PAVILION THEATRE (ST. LEONARDS PIER). — Local Manager, Mr. Elvey Thomas.—Mr. Norman V. Norman and company are presenting this week a much-appreciated selection of pieces. On Monday Nell Gwynne gave much pleasure to a large audience. Mr. Norman V. Norman depicted Charles II. in his usual artistic and skilful manner; Miss Beatrice Wilson acted with her accustomed charm as Nell; excellent support was accorded by Mr. Dennis W. Cleugh as Ralph Cursitor, Mr. Norman Leslie as Lord Dellans, Mr. Francis Hope as Adam Bareacres, and Miss Sybil Ruskin as Betty Arndale. During the week The Adventure of Lady Ursula, The Chevalier de St. George, A Scrap of Paper, As You Like It, and David Garrick have been performed.

HIPPODROME THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—Resident and General Manager, Mr. Albert Mathams. — Miss Phœbe Mercer and Mr. Grey Lane head a varied bill with their admirably acted farcical sketch, Mistakes Will Happen; Messrs. Lloyd and Phillips and company are excellent in Betrayed Friendship, and also in Muggins's Matrimonial Muddle, a sketch of a highly diverting order; Messrs. Martinetti and Wallis, coloured musical comedy artists, are enthusiastically welcomed; Messrs. Grant and Allen are accorded their usual popular reception; Mr. Harry Lawson's amusing songs bring him applause; Wisper is a smart comedy juggler who delights with his tricks and patter; Miss Beattie Bloom pleases with her songs; and Mr. Alfred Overs shows some clear and capitally manipulated films in the Hippodrome Bioscope turn.

HEREFORD.—GARRICK THEATRE.—Manager Mr. H. P. Barnsley.—Mr. Cyril Keightley's répertoire company is here in She Stoops to Conquer, The School for Scandal, and Miles Carew, opening on Monday with the first mentioned. Mr. Cyril Keightley is seen to advantage as young Marlow; Miss Ethel Dane distinguishes herself in her representation of Miss Neville; as Kate Hardcastle Miss Haidée Gunn has made a great impression by her excellent acting; Mr. Baliol Holloway is remarkably good as Hastings; a clever bit of character acting is contributed by Mr. Henry Crocker as Hardcastle; the part of Diggory is undertaken by Mr. B. Pittar, and deserves more than passing notice.

HERNE BAY. — TOWN HALL. — Manager, Mr. T. B. Watson. — Mr. Arthur Bourchier's company (under the local direction of Mr. G. W. Bowes) presented The Walls of Jericho to a large audience here on Tuesday. Mr. Wallace G. Court was seen to great advantage as Jack Frobisher, and fully deserved the reception accorded him; Miss Maud Stuart scored a marked success as Lady Alethea; Mr. Lionel Gadsden played exceedingly well as Hankey Bannister; and Mr. A. Collins-Rolfe was good as the Marquis of Steventon. Miss Bertha Frances made a charming Lady Lucy Derenham; and Miss Olivia Etone was admirable as Lady Westerby.

HORWICH.—PRINCE'S THEATRE.—Proprietor, Mr. A. P. Patterson.—A crowded house on Monday gave a hearty reception to Messrs. Beaudyn and Livesey's company in A Beautiful Fiend. Miss V. St. Lawrence plays Wanda Lubinoff in a most artistic manner; Miss Irene Munro's Nadine Karateff is a very fine performance; Miss Blanche Hill makes a good Patty Woodlands; Mr. Montague Beaudyn impersonates Ivan Paulovitch with force; Mr. Tom Robertson as Count Fedor Karateff proves himself a heartless stage scoundrel; Mr. Albert G. Wray makes Sergius Strogoff a fine type of a Russian gentleman; Mr. Harry Oates as Christopher Crackles is decidedly funny; and Mr. Tommy Byron as Malachi plays his part well.

HOYLAND.—METROPOLE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Geo. S. King; Acting-Manager, Mr. Geo. R. Baker.—Mr. Charles Carte and company are here this week with A Noble Brother. Mr. Charles Carte, in the rôle of Jerry, the tramp, gives a fine character impersonation, and is warmly applauded; Mr. Bert Osbourne is a manly Jack Elsworth; and Mr. Arthur A. Tomlin as Henry Travers is all that can be desired. Colonel Richard Leigh is very good in the hands of Mr. Howard Thorne; and Mr. Ronald Douglas scores as the Strange Preacher. Mr. Michael Maden as Larry O'Brien, and Miss Rosie Conroy as Rosie Rapid are responsible for the humorous characters. Miss Alice Ballard is excellent as Mrs. Leigh; and as Nana Leigh Miss Doris Brooks displays great histrionic ability.

HUDDERSFIELD.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Proprietors, Messrs. Milton Bode and Edward Compton; Resident-Manager, Mr. W. J. Andrews.—Mr. J. Bannister Howard's company is here for the week with the popular Florodora. The piece is well presented by the cast engaged, which includes Miss Josephine Sullivan, a fine singing Dolores; Mr. Allen Morris, also the possessor of a good voice, well used as Abercoed; Mr. Alf. E. Passmore, an eccentric humorist as Tweedlepunch; Miss Lily Gullick, dainty and unaffected as Angela; Miss Kate Leicester, smart and incisive as Lady Holyrood; and Mr. Stanley White, easy and self-possessed as Gilfain. The chorus is capable, and the mounting and dressing of the piece satisfactory.

HIPPODROME LTD.—Resident Manager, Mr. N. M. Robinson.—The bright particular star shining this week is Miss Marguerite Broadfoote, whose first visit has won her a hearty welcome. Others in the bill are Frank Leslie, vocalist; Stidder and Dunbar, musical comedians; the Sisters Poole, a clever pair of dancers; Ted Karno's company in a bustling sketch, The Merry Carpenters; Arthur Royce, a musical comedian with a pretty talent for humour on the piano; Susie and Protti, two fine speciality dancers; Los Rupertos, a pair of original gymnasts of strength and grace; Clown Barker, who, with his troupe of highly trained animals, causes endless merriment; and the Hippodrome pictures.

HULL.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Sole Lessee, Mr. W. Morton; Resident-Director, Mr. W. F. Morton.—Mr. Martin Harvey's visit has been a great success. On Monday he presented The Corsican Brothers, produced the week previous. Mr. Harvey's reading of the title-rôle approximates more to the Fechter traditions than the Irving. Being relieved by many lighter touches, the Dei Franchis have a fascination which holds the audience in sway. There is much subtlety in the delineation of the brothers, who are in turn moody and melancholy and frank and free. Mr. Harvey had an overwhelming reception at the end of the play, and responded in a neat little speech. The duel scene allowed Mr. Vincent Sternroyd a great opportunity, of which he availed himself to the full; Mr. George Cook played the part of Martelli with skill; Fred Wright, sen., caused some little amusement as the Colonna; the Meynard of Mr. A. Mansfield was a pleasant piece of work; there was quiet dignity in Miss Mary Rorke's Mme. dei Franchi; and the Emilie Lesparre of Miss Coleridge was excellent.

GRAND THEATRE AND OPERA HOUSE.—Managing-Director, Mr. John Hart; Resident-Manager, Mr. Wynne Miller.—Mr. Robert Courtneidge's production, The Dairy Maids, is paying its first visit this week. In the absence of Miss Violet Lloyd on Monday her place was cleverly filled by Miss Severn; the Joe Mivens of Mr. Harry Dent was a notable piece of acting; Mr. E. Statham Staples was clever as Sam Brudenell; Miss Beryl Vaudrey's Helene was refreshing; Miss Edith Blanche was as fascinating as ever as Lady Brudenell; and Mr. Clarence Blakiston did well as Dr. O'Bryne.

ALEXANDRA THEATRE.—Mortons, Ltd.—General-Manager, Mr. Geo. Morton.—Mr. Walter Melvill's company, in A Girl's Cross Roads, is drawing excellently here. Miss Beaumont Collins as Barbara Wade presents an impressionist sketch which reveals fine histrioic powers; the Jack Livingstone of Mr. Wilson Gunning stands well out in the picture; the Nellie Meadows of Miss Hannie Meade is effective.

THE HIPPODROME.—Lessee, Mr. Alfred Graham; Manager, Mr. Tom Lunn.—Charles Baldwin's comedians appear in an amusing sketch, The Old Kent Road; the Sisters Marion are charming duettists; Eva Hope and company appear in interesting scenes from Dickens; and other favourites include Lily Morris, Bert Byrne, Marcus Busby, Wake and Dean, and Charles Sloman.

THE EMPIRE.—Lessee, Mr. Alfred Selwyn; Resident-Manager, Mr. Harry Slingsby.—Miss Diana Hope and company in an episode, Her Good Name, and Chummie La Mara, in some popular songs, are the principal turns here; Kid Johnson and Maisie Pelham are smart in a ball-punching and singing and dancing act. Other popular artists include Will Sergeant, Juan and McQue, the Camerons, Marie De Voy, and May Hammond.

THE PALACE.—Proprietors, Moss' Empires, Ltd.—The Boissets and George Formby are big favourites here; the Selbinis are smart cyclists; and a capital company also includes the Eight of Hearts, Viola, Atray, Madge Osmond, Maxwell and Francis, and Harry Hayton.

HYDE.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Sole Lessee, Mr. Fred Granville; Acting-Manager, Mr. A. R. Feather—The Ugliest Woman on Earth is proving a powerful attraction here this week. Mr. Philip Darien, by his manly bearing and studied elocution, makes Jack Merriman a striking character; Mr. Leyton Cancellor brings out very realistically the despicable disposition of Hubert Gold; Mr. Chas. Barrett submits a clever sketch as Antonio Luchesi; and Mr. W. Wallace-Ashton is good as the London Hooligan, Raggles. Mr. Leonard Thackeray plays with artistic ability as Doctor Carr; Miss Beatrice Homer, in the title-rôle, brings out the better side of womanly nature, and soon establishes herself a favourite; Miss Nell Oliver makes a handsome though unscrupulous Rose Courtenay; and the difficulties of the part of Marita are skilfully overcome by Miss Margaret Watson. Mr. Tubby Edlin, a clever comedian, has plenty of opportunities afforded him as Tubby Herrick, of which he takes full advantage; Miss Nellie Jackson as Aggie Brown ably assists in the mirth-making.

IPSWICH. — LYCEUM THEATRE.—General-Manager, Mr. Leonard Grey.—Lucky Durham was produced here on Monday night, and made a good impression. In the chief part of John Durham, Mr. Edmund Kenny gives a striking impersonation of a difficult character, proving him to be an accomplished actor. Mr. Arthur Leigh, as the Hon. Reginald Steigton, causes much merriment. Lord Mountfallon is finely represented by Mr. Robert Forsyth; and Messrs. A. E. Walker, W. V. Simmond Lynn, and W. F. Clitheroe, are all well suited. Miss Louisa Gourlay enacts the part of Mrs. Durham with much pathos and power; Miss Lilian Mason was duly hysterical in the rôle of Lady Mountfallon. Other characters are well portrayed by Miss A. E. Belmore and Miss Florence Dathunty.

HIPPODROME. — Proprietor, Mr. E. H. Bostock. — Large audiences continue to visit this pleasant place of entertainment in St. Nicholas Street. Among the chief items of an attractive programme this week are: The Westwoods, a troupe of trick cyclists of exceptional skill; Harry Randford and Mlle. Valentine, as jugglers and comedy artists, are both amusing and clever, and Walter Stanley, in his comic songs, evokes much merriment. A novel turn is that of La Belle Nello, whose graceful posturing deserves a better term than that of contortionist. Johnny Dywer, the Labour Candidate, sings some humorous ditties, and Charles Stevens, vocalist, and Mamie Cannon, trick pianist, are both well received. A laughable sketch, entitled Getting Even, is well performed by Frank Sinclair and Gracie Whiteford.

JERSEY.—OPERA HOUSE.—Lessee, Mr. C. R. Perkins.—Mr. Silvanus Dauncey and Mr. M. V. Leveaux's company is appearing here in The Fascinating Mr. Vandervelde. Mr. Reginald Dance is capital as Mr. Vandervelde; Mr. H. Lawrence Leyton makes a characteristic Colonel Rayner; Lord Woolham has an effective exponent in Mr. Edward Coutts; Mr. George A. Seager is an amusing Sir B. Cardick; Mr. Russell Barry a humorous Goddlestone; Mr. George Percy a capital parson, and Mr. Vernon Travers and Mr. Gerald Henson do well as Melon and Alfie respectively. Miss Gladys Mason is a taking Lady Clarice; Miss Mary Weigall a stately Marchioness; Miss May Brooke a conspicuously successful Lady Clementina; Miss Eve Titheradge a lively Aggie Coles, and Miss Muriel Mason a good Mary.

KETTERING.—AVENUE THEATRE.—Proprietor, Mr. Frank Payne.—Mr. Harry Joseph's company is here this week in Bonny Boy Blue. Miss Lena Stanton, in the title-rôle, gives an artistic rendering of the character, and Miss Edie Cameron is charming as Dolly. The comic element is in capable hands. Mr. Will Terry as Lawyer Copall and Mr. Bruce Green as Dame Dickory cause great amusement, and are admirably supported by Little Keeno as Jack Lively; and Mr. Adrian Ronnet is successful as Squire Longacre. Some clever dancing is contributed by the Orient troupe of lady dancers.

KING'S LYNN.—NEW ROYAL THEATRE.—Lessees, J. Bannister Howard, Ltd.; Business-Manager, Hen. B. Pareezer. One of Mr. George Dance's companies presented The Orchid here in good style on Monday, Tuesday, and Wednesday. Mr. Harry Walsh proved an irrepressible Meakin; the Zaccary of Mr. Geoffrey Berwick was good, his dancing being excellent; the Hon. Guy Scrymgeour (Mr. Clifford Bing) and Ronald Faussett (Mr. Frank Manger) were a good pair, and Mr. Charles Seymour made a dignified Mr. Aubrey Chesterton. Of the ladies, Miss Poppy Wilkinson was good as Lady Violet Anstruther; Miss Trilby Collier achieved success as Josephine Zaccary; Miss Clara Beck proved a charming Thisbe; and Miss Cissie Brand capably took the rôle of Zélie Rumbert. As Caroline Vokins Miss Hilda Vining did much to keep the fun going.

KIRKCALDY. — KING'S THEATRE. — Managing-Director, Mr. R. C. Buchanan; Resident-Manager, Mr. John Burton.—Mr. Wm. Greet's company is paying a welcome visit in The Sign of the Cross. The piece is well staged and receives careful treatment by artists of excellence. It would, indeed, be difficult to find one better adapted to the part of Marcus than Mr. Frank E. Petely; Miss Marie Leonhard gives an artistic rendering of the rôle of Mercia; she possesses a pleasant, sympathetic voice, a distinct utterance, and an impressive manner, which hold the audience spell-bound. Mr. C. Yorke is effective as the Emperor, while Messrs. Charles Aldred and J. Weatherall are commendable as Tigellius and Licinius; Mr. Walter Fleet is powerful as Favius, and Mr. H. T. Harris is conspicuous as the villainous Servillius. Miss Mary Newcombe is a capital Empress, and Miss Gertrude Price is fairly successful as Berenice. Worthy of special mention is the Stephanie of Miss Effie Dane. The comic relief is in the able hands of Mr Frank Wood and Miss Cissie Carlton as Glabrio and Dacia.

LANCASTER.—ATHENÆUM.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. S. Rogers; Acting-Manager, Mr. Alfred Hook.—Mr. Charles Windermere and company occupy the boards this week. On the first three nights Facing the Music was presented, with Mr. Windermere in the rôle of "the other Mr. Smith," and he kept the house in laughter throughout. Mr. C. Casson Freer was admirable in the character of the Rev. John Smith; whilst Mr. Gordon Phillott as Dick Desmond and Mr. Hy. Nelson as Sergt. Duffell were equally commendable. Miss Kathleen Willoughby and Miss Clare Manifield gave charming readings of the respective Mrs. Smiths; and Miss Evelyn Shelley was successful as Mrs. Ponting. The comedy was preceded by The Bookworm, from the pen of Mr. Windermere, in which the parts were capitally sustained by the author and Miss Manifield. Where is William? is billed for Thursday and Friday.

HIPPODROME.—Proprietors and Managers, Messrs. J. Porter and W. J. Fergusson.—A capital bill of fare is arranged here, at the head of which is the New York Nippers in a clever sketch, Bedtime. Griff is a comic juggler of the first water, and Henry Abdy's canine hippodrome is well received;

ADDRESS :—

THE OATINE CO.,

172, Denman St., London, S.E.

Miss Lilian Payne sings nicely, Arthur Stacey is a capital dancer, and the Custances are amusing in their duologue, A Game for Two. Mlle. Marvelle's performing cockatoos, &c., Miss Lucretia (burlesque artist), and Walter Payne's animated pictures complete the programme.

PALACE.—Proprietors, Messrs. J. and C. Fell; Manager, Mr. John Fell.—Peggie Pryde is making her first appearance in Lancaster, and right well has she been received at every house. The Four Spanish Goldinis electric speciality artists supply a pleasing turn, and the Brothers Hampson have some smart patter; Helme and Cozens, comedy artists; Carney Brothers, duettists; Harry Carmen, comedian; Miss Daisy Lane, comedienne; and the Edison-Swan animated pictures form a first-rate entertainment.

LEAMINGTON. — THEATRE ROYAL. — Lessees, Messrs. Milton Bode and Edward Compton; Manager, Mr. Harry Hunter.—The attraction here this week is Miss Emma Hutchison and Mr. Percy Hutchison's company in the funny comedy Public Opinion. Mr. Percy Marshall is a decided success as Horace Wibsey, the solicitor, and is well suited to his part. A capital character study is to be seen in Mr. Charles Harley's excellent representation of Spencer Traughton, whilst the parts of Mr. Justice Mulley and Sir Babington Mulley are adequately rendered by Mr. Fred Lewis and Mr. Douglas Hamilton. A very natural performance of Lord Percy Kilgour is that given by Mr. Ashton Pearse, whilst Viscount Pofley, as impersonated by Mr. Douglas Greet, is also very good. Miss Nancy Beresford's Pansy Bligh is a successful portrayal of the little adventuress; Miss Emma Hutchinson appears as Lady Diana Caldershaw, and makes the most of her opportunities, proving an admirable foil to Pansy Bligh. Other characters, very ably sustained, are by Miss Connie Dene as Phyllis Dagenham, Miss Violet Harley as Charlotte, Mr. R. Beech as Finchett, and Mr. C. B. Wentworth as Smeeton.

LEEDS.—GRAND THEATRE.—Managing Director Mr. John Hart; General-Manager, Mr. Edward Cadman.—A return visit of Mr. William Greet's company, with the successful piece, The Earl and the Girl, opened to a full house on Monday evening. The eccentricities of Jim Cheese, as portrayed by Mr. William Stephens, are most diverting, and keep the audience in continual merriment. Mr Arthur Harrold plays Dick Wargrave in handsome and dashing style, and Mr. Percy E Wright evidences the possession of good histrionic and vocal abilities as the supposed Earl. Miss Frances Earle makes a piquant and pleasing Ephin Haye, the heiress in love; an exceedingly clever impersonation of the showwoman, Liza Shoddam, is placed to the credit of Miss Jennie Richards; the strong lady in a temper is excellently played by Miss Beatrice Anderson, and Miss Gertrude Melville is to be complimented on a charming and graceful effort as Daisy Fallowfield. The vengeful Bunker Bliss has a capital exponent in Mr. H. Courtin; some clever and entertaining work is done by Mr. Will Hindson and Mr. Greene Taylor as a pair of voluble lawyers, and Mr. Tom Redmond and Miss Mary Morison are also prominent.

THEATRE ROYAL. — Proprietor, Mr Frank Macnaghten; General-Manager, Mr. R. Ernest Liston.—The popular sporting drama, £1000 Reward, capably played by Messrs. Pitt and Halling's company is filling the theatre twice nightly during the week. Mr. Chas. Rogers, jun., gives a convincing portrayal of the leading part of Captain Springthorne; the Madame Sinson is a thrilling piece of acting by Miss Daisy Halling, and other leading characters are in the able hands of Mr. Frank Pitt, Mr J. Newton Cowling, and Mr. Charles Halling.

QUEEN'S THEATRE.—Lessees, Messrs. Dottridge and Longden; General-Manager, Mr. C. H. Longden; Acting-Manager, Mr. Chas. Bush.—The Fatal Wedding is again proving a big attraction here in the hands of Mr. Bert Coote's clever company. The wronged husband is played in good style by Mr. Wilson Howard; the villainous Curtis is embodied with ability by Mr. Guy Hastings, and the heroine and adventuress in the respective hands of Miss Katherine Clarke and Miss Leah Marlborough, each receives a painstaking and convincing portrayal. The generous comedy parts of Toto and Bridget are cleverly played by Mr. Edward Morgan and Miss Blanche Stanley; and Mr. Walter Westwood as the old janitor, Schwartz, is well up to his work. It is to the children's specialities that the piece owes much of its success, and in this connection Misses Dolly and Madge McCalla lead many much-enjoyed interludes.

EMPIRE PALACE.—Moss Empires, Ltd.; District-Manager, Mr. T. Gerald Morton; Resident-Manager, Mr. Alex Galley.—A novel and entertaining sporting sketch, The Bookie, cleverly presented by Joe Elvin and company, is the pièce de résistance of this week's bill, Mr. Elvin's faithful and richly humorous character-study being especially enjoyed. Mrs. Winifred Hare is awarded a big reception for accomplished vocal renderings; the Finney Sisters do wondrous and graceful feats in the crystal tank; Walter Curtis enhances a big local reputation as a clever comedian; that entertaining vaudeville duo, Spry and Austin, continue to amuse; Fred Clements and C. J. Johnson are to the fore with clever comedy items; equilibristic feats by the Henry Taylor Trio arouse great interest, and Rosie Bartlett, comedienne, also secures well-deserved recognition.

HIPPODROME. — Proprietor, Mr. Thomas Barrasford; General-Managers, Mr. Claude Shayler and Mr. Chas. Weldon.—Tom Grave's daring and sensational cycling feat served to attract two full houses on Monday. Johnny Holland and Co. are famous for comic burlesque sketches, and their contribution this week proves vastly amusing; Dusty Rhodes is deservedly popular; and other successful contributors are Hal Godfrey, with an amusing sketch, Harry Rogerson, Sammy Shields, and Frank Couch. That entertaining coon specialist, T. E. Finglas, is having a good week; Harris and Worth prove uproariously funny in their comedy encounters; Edna Latonne is a pleasing vocalist of considerable ability; and Mamie Iris a dainty and entertaining comedienne.

CITY VARIETIES.—Proprietor, Mr. Fred W Wood; General-Manager, Mr. J. C. Whiteman; Acting-Manager, Mr. S. Jones.—Lew Lake and company remain on here a second week, and their uproarious comedy sketch is again attracting and amusing crowded houses; Harry Weldon is very popular with eccentric comedy business; Harry Clifford is no less successful in a similar line; vocal numbers by J. H. Greene are well received; Walker and May, an accomplished comedy duo, secure unstinted approval; and Florence Deighton, speciality vocalist, and the San Remo Girls, in clever song and dance, also have a successful time.

LEICESTER.—ROYAL OPERA HOUSE.—Proprietors and Managers, Messrs. Milton Bode and Edward Compton; General and Business Manager, Mr. Henry Dundas.—An extra special treat has been provided this week in the visit, after a long absence, of the famous Carl Rosa Grand Opera company. On Monday evening Wagner's Tannhäuser, was given in a manner calling for the highest praise, the audience giving them a most hearty reception. In the name-part Mr. Julius Walther both sang and acted the character to perfection; Miss Grace Nicoll was in every way a charming Elizabeth, her splendid voice being heard to great advantage; Miss Marie Alexander made a thorough success as Venus; Mr. Arthur Winckworth as the Landgrave is deserving of high commendation; Miss Ina Hill enacted the part of the shepherd boy in good style; Mr. Dillon Shallard sang extremely well as Wolfram; and as Biterolf, Reinmar, Schreiber, and Walther, Messrs. John Ebbeler, Charles Brierley, Albert Felton, and Charles Le Sueur merit commendation. The excellent chorus and largely augmented orchestra, under the conductorship of Mr. Eugene Goossens, won distinction. On Tuesday evening a magnificent performance of Carmen was given before a crowded house, under the direction of Mr. Walter Van Noorden. Mr. Edward Davies delighted all with his singing and acting as José; Miss Doris Woodall as Carmen made a great impression by her exquisite voice and vivacity; Mr. Charles Victor as Escamillo was a thorough success; Miss Elizabeth Burgess was seen and heard to considerable advantage as Micaela, and Miss Dorothy Mayfield as Mercedes and Miss Ina Hill as Frasquita are also to be highly complimented. Mr Alec Richard is very good as Zuniga. The staging and dressing of both operas left nothing whatever to be desired. Lohengrin, Il Trovatore, Fidelio, Faust, and Maritana were also underlined for presentation.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Sole Lessees and Managers, Messrs. Milton Bode and Edward Compton; Business-Manager, Mr. E. R. Beaumont.—This week's attraction is provided by a visit of Mr. James Willard's company in the spectacular drama, A Woman's Pluck. As Grace Daremont, Miss Grace Lester gives a powerful performance; Miss Violet Carr is very good as Jessie Pope; Mr. Austin Mortimer displays histrionic ability as Dick Darrell, and in the dual rôle of Mark Scanlon and Jim Daremont, Mr. Fred Norburn is a success; Mr. Harry T. Wood is a manly Winston Dale; both Mr. Dicky Bird as Roger Pippin and Miss Nellie Freeland as Olphelia Pippin are most amusing; Mr. Harry Emmerson is a capital Matthew Pope; the same remark also applying to Mr. John Campling as Sir John Daredevil. Miss Tina Shaw as Bertie Daredevil, Mr. Frank Etheridge as Sir Noel Fordyce, Miss Elsie Maitland as Mrs. Pope, and Miss Helen Elmar as Lady Daredevil. The play is well staged.

PALACE THEATRE, LIMITED.—Managing-Director, Mr. Oswald Stoll; District-Manager, Mr. Hatton Wharton; Acting-Manager, Mr. C. Finch-Hatton; Assistant-Manager, Mr. Bertram G. Iles.—The premier attraction here this week is Miss Dolly Elsworthy and company in a new production in three scenes of The Orange Girl, the chief part of Nell Gwynne being excellently portrayed by Miss Dolly Elsworthy, who is assisted by a capital company. At the other end is Whit Cunliffe, a smart light comedian, who is scoring a gratifying success with his popular and well-sung songs; Millie Hylton, accompanied by Decima Brooke, is seen and heard to advantage in a delightful song scena; lively Lillie Langtry, the vivacious and clever comedienne, repeats her customary success; Gwennie Hasto is an attractive vocalist and a clever fancy dancer; Cassac Talma, assisted by Mlle. Gronne de Forge, presents a bewildering illusionist act in a smart manner; Bennett and Martell, eccentric comedians, create much merriment; Tom Owen is a capital Welsh vocalist, and the American Bioscope still remains a popular feature of the programme.

PAVILION THEATRE.—Proprietor and Director-General, Mr. Frank Macnaghten; Acting-Manager, Mr. Walter Lapworth.—The chief attraction here is the marvellous mechanica talking head, Dronza, which quite bewilders the audience; Edna Knollys renders her illustrated songs with much success; Percy Galino is a clever musical comedian, his novel bone solo being especially praiseworthy; Milsted and Bell are very good in their musical scena, The Bell of Arizona; Walter H. Pallister's American Bioscope still remains a popular feature. Others who are entertaining are Will Lytton, a funny comedian; George Menva, the merry magician; and Horace Slade, speciality dancer.

LEIGH.—THEATRE ROYAL AND OPERA HOUSE.—Proprietor, Mr. J. W. Cragg; Resident-Manager, Mr. Harry Rousby.—Messrs. Fred J. Little and Fred Darcy's company is oppearing here with the drama, entitled The Shadow of a Crime. Mr. Stephen Crossley gives a fine portrayal of Harry Bullington; Mr. Robert Forder sustains the part of the villian Ralph Esmond in a forcible manner; Mr. William Matthews is well placed as Jim Murdock; Sir Edward Bullington is effectively presented by Mr. John H. Manley; Miss Ina Grant acts with much sympathy and charm as Loyale Norman; Miss Dorothy Riddell is delightfully natural and winsome as Dora Bullington; the comedy element is safely entrusted to Mr. E. W. Avery as Tom Brown and Miss May Rosine as Mrs. Thomas Brown; and Miss Bertha St. Ruth is amusing as Sarah.

LEITH.—NEW GAIETY THEATRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. R. C. Buchanan; Resident-Manager, Mr. John Darlison.—A notable production of the national drama, Rob Roy, by a company which includes Madame Alice Esty and Mr. E. C. Hedmondt, has this week drawn crowds to the Leith playhouse. The cultured singing of the above-named distinguished artists in the respective rôles of Diana Vernon and Francis Osbaldistone is the main attraction, but the cast all round is a good one, and the performance has been greatly enjoyed. Mr. W. George Robb's impersonation of Bailie Nicol Jarvie is full of genial humour; Mr. Nelson Ramsay acts with unflagging spirit as the Macgregor; Helen finds a sufficiently warlike representative in Miss Marion Lind; and Mr. Herbert gives a fine study of the Dougal Cratur; while Miss Jeanie D. Harle is a pleasing Mattie. Praise is due to the Major Galbraith and Captain Thornton of Messrs. Alex. Hamilton and Walter Russel, as well as to the players of the many minor parts; and the augmented orchestra and full chorus, with Highland pipers and dancers, receive hearty recognition of their efforts at the hands of enthusiastic audiences.

LIVERPOOL.—ROYAL COURT THEATRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. Robert Arthur; Acting-Manager, Mr. Arthur Lawrence.—Mr. and Mrs. Kendal, who have been away from Liverpool for about two years, opened at the leading theatre on Monday night. It was soon evident that their innumerable admirers in this city had not forgotten those distinguished players, for a well-filled house assembled to give them a greeting which must have proved exceedingly gratifying. For the first time here The Housekeeper was presented, and it was generally remarked that Mrs. Kendal, in the title-part, acted with all her old-time charm and playfulness, affording her audience the utmost delight. Mr. Kendal's Colonel Trent was a fine character-study well suited to his particular gifts, and both artists had to bow their acknowledgments of the hearty applause which followed the close of each act. As the brother of Lady Audrey, Mr Bassett Roe helped largely with the comedy; Mr. Edward Vaughan was a sufficiently love-sick subaltern; Mr. Ernest Hendrie caused a deal of merriment in the part of William Hickson; as the deaf dowager Mrs. A. B. Tapping presented a well-finished rôle; Mr. W. M. Rutherford made a solemn butler, with a capital delivery of his lines; and Miss Dora Fellows got the most out of the widow, Mrs. Rillington. The staging and dresses were a particular feature of the production.

SHAKESPEARE THEATRE, LTD.—Manager and Secretary, Mr. John Gaffney.—The appearance of Mr. Beerbohm Tree here this week has caused such a demand for seats that an extra matinée had to be hurriedly arranged for Thursday. The big event, which was looked forward to with keen interest, was the new play, Colonel Newcome, with which the week's stay opened on Monday. It proved a pronounced success, and cordial, indeed, was the reception given to the excellent company that interpreted it. Everyone who witnessed the portrait of the old Anglo-Indian soldier were unanimous in declaring it to be the best study ever offered by Mr. Tree. Then Miss Constance Collier came in for a well-deserved share of the evening's favours for her Ethel Newcome, a delightful picture; Mr. Edmund Maurice, as Fred Bayham, was a capital bohemian; Mr. Charles Quartermaine was manly and earnest as Clive; Mr Sidney Brough proved entertaining with the character of Lord Farintosh; a sufficiently odious Sir Barnes Newcome was submitted by Mr. A. E. Benedict; and worthy support came from Mr. Eric Warwick as Lord Kew, Miss Annie Schletter (Mrs. Mackenzie), Miss Mary Sumner (Rosey Mackenzie), Mrs. Percival (Mme. de Florac), and Miss Muriel Alexander (Lady Kew). The week's list also included Business is Business, The Man Who Was, Trilby, and The Ballad Monger. Mr. G. W. Anson, Mrs. E. H. Brooke, and Miss Nora Lancaster were also members of the company.

ROTUNDA THEATRE.—Manager, Mr. M. Montgomery.—A return visit of The Days of Cromwell, with Beaudyn, Livesey, and Hardy's company, has proved a strong attraction here during the week. Mr. Henry Belding appeared as Ironhand, the Avenger, a part that was excellently played; Miss Gertrude Gilman impersonated Ruby Avondale with grace and charm; the villainous Sir Marsden Mardyke afforded Mr. Robertson Foulis an opportunity for showing his high talents; Mr. Howard Hardy handled well the rôle of Mathew Mardyke; and a deal of comedy was introduced by Mr. George Harvey as the ostler Toby, Mr. Stephen Herbert as Shadrack Shadwell, and Miss Annie Clunn in the character of Betsy.

LYRIC THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Henry C. Arnold; Directors of Entertainments, Messrs. T. Barrasford and F. Willmot; Acting-Manager, Mr. Fred Coles.—Good business is the result of this week's programme topped by the Six Brothers Luck, in their screechingly funny sketch Blazes; Jack and Evelyn are a host in themselves, and their turn is deserving of every praise; Charles Morritt still continues to mystify, and his blind old friend seems to have forgotten nothing; Will Musgrave is laughable; the Three Seabournes are clever gymnasts; and Lily Black is pleasing. Barney Armstrong is decidedly a good turn.

STAR THEATRE. — Proprietor and Manager, Mr Harris Fineberg.—A Warning to Women is brought to the popular Star this week by Mr. C. Watson Mill's principal company. A capital representation of Dr. Marcus Dread is given by Mr. Mill; Miss Rosalind Tate shows her high talents as Moira Kennion; Mr. Howell Travis gives a good sketch of the wandering minstrel Shaun; Mr. Norman B. Cannon affords satisfaction as Fergus McNaughton; Mr. Henry Rutland does justice to Squire Kennion; Mr. Henry P. Kennedy makes a lively Mike McQuade; Miss Edith Rutland is seen to advantage as the cripple Miles O'More; and Miss Emmie Barton is a sweet Shella Kennion.

QUEEN'S THEATRE.—Proprietor, Mr. Lingford Carson; Manager, Mr. Fred L. Arthur.—A drama new to this city, entitled An Unwedded Wife, has been the attraction here this week. Miss Ethel van Praagh displayed a deal of talent as Marion; Mr. J. Edward Whitty made a manly Frank Armstrong; a villainous Phillip Blackstone was presented by Mr. E. St. Clair Forbes; Mr. Richard Purden proved exceedingly funny as Napoleon D. Bloomer; Mr. Logan Darra did his best with John Hawthorne; Miss Violet Wilson was pleasing as Elsie Langham; and Mr. Harry Townley, as Perkinson Pimple, and Miss Amy Coralli, in the character of Caraway Crumpet, also added to the humour. The drama was excellently staged.

ROYAL HIPPODROME. — Managing-Director, Mr. Thomas Barrasford.—At the top of the bill here this week is Fred Wright, jun., the popular comedian, who makes his first appearance in vaudeville. He had a very cordial reception for his several selections, which included "Tired of being respectable," "The great, big English pot" (Cingalee), and "Chin, chin, Chinaman" (Geisha); Grant and Grant, the American Octoroons, found a warm greeting for their cleverly-rendered pieces; the Harvey Boys created a deal of laughter with the boxing act, That Was Me; the Martonelli troupe of lady acrobats went through a performance that was much appreciated; the funniosities of Robb Gilmore, particularly his corkscrew dance, were followed by much laughter; the eccentric gymnastic work of Jack Rae proved an excellent turn; Hallam and Stanton submitted a much-appreciated musical comedy sketch, A Broken Journey; as eccentric acrobats, Baroux and Bion were particularly good; Tatten Hall was a smart burlesque comedian; and the Albanos presented a pleasing musical act. The Wednesday matinées here are very popular.

NEW PARTHENON. — Proprietor, Mr. Edwin W. Smith.—Mr. and Mrs. Frank Shelley are here this week with the exceedingly funny sketch, Miss Summerson's Baby; the always welcome Gerald Mount brings some capital new songs; the Gallery Boy, possessor of a remarkable singing voice, gives some smart imitations of music-hall artists; Stage Chums is a neat trifle provided by the able comedy artists and dancers, Fred Duncan and Ernie Morton; some acceptable baritone songs come from Fred Burnaby; and Florence Wood is loudly applauded for her taking songs.

ROYAL PALACE OF VARIETIES. — Manager, Mr. M. Montgomery; Acting-Manager, Mr. Frank O'Toole.—The "Royal" stock dramatic company is producing here this week Wings of Wealth. Mr. Percy Boucher handles the humorous part of Ephraim Isaacs with much effect; Mr. Harry Tresham is a powerful George Brandon; credit is due to Mr. Sydney Grant for his well-drawn character of Fergus Vavasour; Dr. Currie is capitally presented by Mr. Cecil Ravenswood; Mr. Robert Wilton proves most creditable as Alphonso Green; Mr. E. D. Allen is Ben Badger; and Mr. Leo Montgomery gives satisfaction as Mr. Fielding. Of the ladies, Miss Florence Palmer plays with care and discretion as Elsie Brandon and Miss Beryl Ravenswood makes a stately Lady Everdale.

PARK PALACE, LTD. — Managing-Director, Mr Walter de Frece; Director of Entertainments, Mr. Fred Willmot.—An attractive item heading the programme here this week is Nelson's Name, a pretty naval scena by Mr. George Leyton, who is assisted by a chorus of local boys; McCann's performing dogs afford proof of careful training; some smart comedy work is gone through on the triple bars by the Zano Bros.; capital coon singing comes from J. H. Wakefield; the Sisters Brooks (Mabel and Winnie) are dainty comediennes; and the Bonanzas are deservedly applauded for their clever hand-balancing and staircase walking.

WESTMINSTER.—Lessee, Mr. Fred E. Weisker; Acting-Manager, Mr. G. Montgomery.—The popular Ella Dean is top of the bill here this week, delighting everyone with her favourite songs; Urley and Mora are exceedingly smart comedy duettists and dancers; Sam Thompson, a Scotch comedian, whose quaint antics and funny songs keep his audience in roars of laughter, has proved popular; Molly Manion, a juvenile, does well with her coon songs; Garforth, a most eccentric clown, had a capital show of performing dogs and pigeons; Edith St. Roy is an expert performer on the silver wire; and Amy Elcock dances and sings pleasantly.

OLYMPIA, LTD. — Manager, Mr. A. W. Young.—The remarkable conjuring tricks of Chung Ling Soo, who heads the programme here this week, have been the great attraction. The Andos troupe of Japanese acrobats were received with great applause; a pleasing comedy scena was provided by the Scottish Meisters, whose singing was of a high order; La Sylphe went through some especially fine dances; Alburtus and Jessie Millar had a humorous skit, A Scene at the Fair Grounds; Harry Grey proved extremely funny with his songs and sayings; several well-presented impersonations of famous stars came from George Newburn; Dion Wade, as an eccentric comedian, did credit to himself; and Stelling and Revell, on the bars, made their audience rock with laughter.

PADDINGTON PALACE.—Lessee, Mr. M. Montgomery.—The able stock dramatic company here is this week producing The Ticket-of-Leave Man, which still seems to possess drawing powers. Mr. Albert Sember makes a capital Robert Brierly; Mr. Frank S. Strickland does well with James Dalton; a finished picture of the detective is provided by Mr. Walter Foster; Mr. H. G. Brandon is particularly strong as Melter Moss; and Mr. Vincent A. Briscoe acquits himself ably as Mr. Gibson. Miss Lina Nazeby does justice to Mrs. Willoughby; Miss Lilian Burns plays sweetly as May Edwards; Miss Frances Barnes acts well as Sam Willoughby; and Mr. Francis E. Wybert is a capital Maltby.

EMPIRE.—Proprietors, Moss Empires, Ltd.—Tiller's High Jinks is foremost here this week; Harry Tate, with his funny Motoring, has provoked much laughter; Albert Le Fre is a comedian of much ability, his eccentric dancing being highly appreciated; some fine baritone songs come from Ian Colquhoun; Hanvarr and Lee have a smart item, The Golfer and the Maid; Phil Hermann renders some of his popular songs; and Jean Seul, the Indian mystery, also appears.

ROSCOMMON.—Lessee, Mr. Fred Willmot.—Good business is being done here since the place was opened under the present management. At the top of the bill this week is the popular Walter Munroe, whose capital Irish songs have been received with great enthusiasm. Cline and Clark, another good booking, have delighted everybody with their black and white comedy work and dancing; Carr and Rose render several very laughable duets; Lily Hayes has some neat coon songs; Jackson, as a novelty match-box manipulator, is an acceptable turn; and Leon and Leoni ably perform on the banjo and novelty instruments.

LLANELLY.—ROYALTY THEATRE.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. Z. Andrews; Acting Manageress, Miss Alice Rocheforte.—A success is again recorded here this week by Mr. F. Wybert Clive's company in The Conscript, in which Mr. E. Bellenden Clarke takes the part of Karl in an excellent manner; Miss Lilian Ross as Nadia is also very clever and charming; Mr. Walter Steele as Ivan Manloff does good work; whilst Mr. Chas. E. Johnson as Count Paul Hardski, and Mr. Walter Held as Doggervitch, are both admirable. Capital songs are rendered by Mr. Beckett Bould as Tretch, and by Miss Connie Meadows as Wanda; the latter dances very prettily too. Miss Cissie Reenan is a capital Little Karl.

NEW EMPIRE. — Under this title Mr. W. A. Totten, the late musical director, has opened the Athenæum Hall as a palace of varieties, and presents this week a good show, the programme including Alf Berg, the strong man; Chas. Green, heavy-weight wrestler; Alec Alexander, actor vocalist; Miss Lily Delmaine, serio and dancer; Flemine, one-legged acrobat; the Martinettes, knockabouts; Miss Cissie Gordon, soprano vocalist; and Mr Will T. Burgess's combination, in Found Faithful. Mr. Totten has painted a nice fit-up for the hall, and deserves every success.

LONDONDERRY.—OPERA HOUSE.—Sole Proprietor, Mr. W. Payne Seddon.—Messrs. Durward Lely and William Mollison's company is staging Beside the Bonnie Brier Bush and The Middleman here this week. In the first-mentioned Mr. William Mollison plays Lachlan Campbell very well; Tammas Mitchell is ably impersonated by Mr. Kendall Chambers; Mr. John Clyde scores as Dr. MacClure; Mr. Alen F. Thompson is a capital Archibald M'Kettrick; Miss Evelyn McNay as Flora Campbell meets with favour; and Miss Alice Francis is good as Kate Carnegie; Miss Josephine Woodward as Margaret Howe does well; and the parts of Geordee and Jeannie are in the capable hands of Miss Martha Stewart and Miss Jeannie Fitzgerald.

LONGTON.—QUEEN'S THEATRE.—Manager, Mr. H. S. Howard. — A return visit of Mr. Frank Lindo's company in Home, Sweet Home, has been a very acceptable attraction here this week. The principal rôles of Stephen Armitage, Joan, and the Duke of Ancaster are taken in admirable manner by Mr. Frank Lindo, Miss Marion Wakeford, and Captain Gerald Gambier respectively. As Lucas Lyle, Mr. F. Miles Hodgson does well; Miss Daisy Rochefort is delightful as Dora, a child's part; other characters are well played by Mr. D. Lawrence Doyle, Mr. T. Lewis, and Miss Ray Rochefort.

LOUGHBOROUGH.—NEW THEATRE ROYAL.—Proprietors, Messrs. W. Payne Seddon and George Robertson; Acting-Manager, Mr. Lindsey Edwards. —Her One Great Sin, presented by Mr. J. Leicester Jackson's company, is the attraction here this week. The cast—a powerful one—includes Miss Blanche St. Albans, who is seen to great advantage in the rôle of Grace Warhurst. Mr. J. Leicester Jackson gives a capital rendering of Squire Thornhill; Little Gracie is prettily played by Miss Maudie Lambert; Miss Phillis Damain makes a successful Charlie; and Mr. J. Beresford Innes submits a realistic impersonation of Reuben Warhurst. Miss Louit Walton as Bert Hurdle and Mr. Charles E. Lambert as Dan Hurdle also win credit in their respective parts.

HIPPODROME.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. S. Baskerville.—The following are appearing here this week:—The Great Northern Troupe, dancers; the Elvio Comedy Trio, in Those Troublesome Slaveys; Kioto, an exceptionally clever Japanese equilibrist; Miss Ida Kathrina in her scena Dolly at Home; Mulvey and Miriam, in Fun in a Studio; Les Uniques, speciality acrobats; Cyril Carle, actor-vocalist; Elliott and Warne, duettists; and Miss Effie Morde.

LOWESTOFT. — MARINA. — Managing-Director, Mr. E. A. Smith.—Hardie and Von Leer's company with Two Little Vagabonds is paying a welcome return visit. Miss May Hart (Dick) and Miss Margaret Nybloc (Wally) display considerable talent as the two little vagabonds, and their efforts are warmly acknowledged. Mr. Wm. Fazan does well as Geo. Thornton, and Mr. Hy. Watson is equally good as Capt. Darville. Mr. Edward Cuthbert (John Scarth) and Mr. John F. Traynor (Bill Mullins) are both praiseworthy. As Marion Thornton, Miss Laura Hansen leaves nothing to be desired, and the same may be said of Miss Mildred Hodson as Barbara Scarth.

LUTON.—GRAND THEATRE.—Proprietor, Mr. E. Graham Falcon; Business-Manager, Mr. L. J. Beard. —Messrs. Carpenter and Cooper have brought us a sterling drama this week in The Spider and the Fly. The hero is well represented by Mr. Stanley S. Gordon; villainy being ably portrayed by Mr. Ellis J. Preston. Messrs. Fred Terriss and C. A. Preece, as "Hard" and "Soft" Roe respectively, are responsible for the comedy. Miss Nina Vaughan is the much-persecuted heroine; and the Spider is represented by Miss Amy Venimore. The scenery and effects are elaborate.

MACCLESFIELD.—THE ROYAL.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. W. H. Gatley.—Mr. H. E. Leigh's company is paying a visit here this week in The 'Varsity Belle. Mr. J. Danvers as Professor Septimus Stoney gives a remarkably clever and humourous portrayal; Mr. R. Harley West is excellent as George Barker; and Mr. R. Barraclough is successful as Albert Perrin; Mr. Chester as Theocritus Sparkleton is most amusing, and in conjunction with Mr. F. Lilliput as Runyard, causes much laughter. In the title-rôle Miss Josephine Ellis gives a charming presentment, and her singing of "Those loving eyes," delights the house; Miss B. Egerton is a vivacious Maud Stoney; Miss N. Beacon is capital as Eva Stoney; and Miss E. Rainbow is admirable as Mrs. Barker.

MANCHESTER.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessees, the United Theatres, Co., Ltd.; Acting-Manager, Mr. Edmondstone Shirra.—Enthusiastic appreciation awaited the presentation of The Walls of Jericho here this week, Mr. Arthur Bourchier and Miss Violet Vanbrugh in their original parts of Jack Frobisher and Lady Alethea doing splendid work, and acting with a fine and captivating naturalness—a naturalness that pervaded the entire performance, and was conspicuous also in other prominent members of the cast. Mr. Charles Goodhart as Hankey Bannister, Mr. Arthur Whitby as the Marquis of Steventon, Miss Nora Greenlaw as Lady Westerby (a very nice impersonation), Miss Pamela Gaythorn as the sprightly but shallow Lady Lucy Derennam, and Mr. H. Nye Chart as Harry Dallas won honours; and all the other parts were cleverly filled and contributed to the success of the performance.

PRINCE'S THEATRE.—Proprietors, the United Theatres Co., Ltd.; Acting-Manager, Mr. George Lee.—A visit of The Girl from Kay's here this week is particularly notable for the inclusion of Mr. Willie Edouin in the cast. He plays his original part of Max Hoggenheimer with all his inimitable characteristics and the usual unqualified success. Mr. George Dance's company is further enriched by a number of highly accomplished artists, among whom Miss Nancy Hervyn is conspicuously good as Winnie Harborough. As Nora Chalmers, Miss Aimée Grey acts nicely, and as Ellen, her maid, Miss Chrissie Ralland is vivacious and dances well; Mr. Herbert Franklyn as Harry Gordon, Mr. Tom Shelford as the Hon. Percy Fitzthistle, and Mr. S. Major Jones as Joseph, the hall-porter, each makes a success of his part. All the subsidiary rôles are played satisfactorily, and the chorus and general staging are admirable.

GAIETY THEATRE.—Proprietors, the United Theatres Co., Ltd.; Acting-Manager, Mr. H. M. Thorburn.—Mr. Mouillot's company is here this week in The Toreador, which attracted a good house on Monday. Mr. Harry Buss as Sammy Gigg is a particularly smart comedian, and his efforts to entertain are ably supplemented by Mr. Fred Fowler as Pettifer, Mr. Howard Cridland as Sir Archibald Slackett, Mr. Atheling Farrar as Augustus Trail, Mr. H. M. White as the fearsome Carajolo, and Miss Florence Burdett as Mrs. Malton Hoppings; while Miss Zoe Gilfillan makes a charming Dora Selby; Miss Rose Helene is equally captivating as Nancy Staunton; Miss Marie Adair acts with telling discretion as Donna Teresa; and others who distinguish themselves are Mr. Alfred H. Majilton as the Governor of Villaya, and Miss Katie May as Susan. The singing is excellent throughout.

ROYAL OSBORNE THEATRE.—Manager, Mr. W. B. Broadhead; Acting-Manager, Mr. P. B. Broadhead. —Mr. J. A. Campbell's company is here this week in The Little Breadwinner, of which Mr. Campbell is the author. Lord William Dorrington has an able exponent in Mr. Eugene Santley; Mr. Mathew Boulton does full justice to the rôle of Richard Lawrence; Mr. Alfred Maurice is well suited to the villainous part of Joseph Prior; and Mr. Stanley Leedham gives an intelligent and successful rendering of Charles Prior. Of the ladies, Miss Mary Fulton plays with great feeling as Margaret Daventry; and good parts are in the capable hands of Miss Nellie Thorne-Hallam and Miss Lissa Young; while as Meg (the title-rôle) little Emmie Thomas sings and acts charmingly.

METROPOLE THEATRE.—Manager, Mr. W. B. Broadhead; Acting-Manager, Mr. P. B. Broadhead.—Georg Chanti, in his wonderful transformation act, heads the bill here this week. Happy Attwood, comedian, is also prominent and well received; and other smart turns are offered by the Montaldos, in their slack-wire act, introducing trained birds; Oakdene, a clever comedy ventriloquist; Nancy Renshaw, negro comedienne and bone soloist; the Saletos, in a refined balancing act; Baby Lilybelle, comedienne and clever sand dancer; Sylvia Martin, equestrienne; and (on our visit) a deputy for Herbert Betts, comedian.

ST. JAMES'S THEATRE.—Lessee, Mr. Richard Flanagan; Manager, Mr. Gus Flanagan.—Mr. J. H. Clyndes and company present here this week the successful romantic play, A Royal Revenge. Mr. Clyndes makes a distinct success of his impersonation of Estevan Alvarez; and his accomplished work is equalled by Miss Enid Edoni as Inez Alvarez, his wife, and Miss Amy Gratton-Clyndes as Cora Caslida, the gipsy dancing-girl. The more prominent of the remainder of the parts are undertaken satisfactorily by Mr. Walter Keunion (who sings well), Mr. Arthur F. Dudley, Miss Edith Whiteley, and Miss Emeline Roselle. The staging is capital.

GRAND JUNCTION THEATRE.—Manager, Mr. W. B. Broadhead; Acting-Manager, Mr. P. B. Broadhead. —A return visit of Miss Ida Molesworth and Mr. Mark Blow's company in Under Two Flags is to be recorded here this week. Mr. Mark Blow's rendering of Bertie Cecil Royellieu is an admirable piece of work, and the corresponding part of Cigarette is finely played by Miss M. Thorne. Mr. H. Benson as Rake, the valet, also does extremely well, being an accomplished singer and dancer; while a good character-study is offered by Mr. W. Draper as Lord Rockingham; and Mr. C. Edwin is an acceptable Captain Claude de Chanrellon. Various minor rôles are well rendered by the rest of the cast, and the staging leaves nothing to be desired.

EMPIRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. Oswald Stoll; Acting-Manager, Mr. H. Hall.—The big turns here this week are a musical mélange, The Prince of Monte Carlo, in which Harry Roxbury and company provide immense enjoyment; and the Mac-Naughtons, whose patter is irresistibly funny; Forest and King give a clever acrobatic act; Lucia and Viata are graceful on the wire; Harry Maynard, comedian, sings acceptably; Daisy O'Malley, comedienne, dances neatly; Chas. S. Kitts and Rhoda Windrum present a comic sketch, The Cuckoo; Alice Lloyd, comedienne, sings a couple of songs in smart style; and Albertine Melich presents her wonderfully trained birds. "The Stolen Bride" is this week's subject on the Bioscope.

PALACE.—General Manager, Mr. Walter De Frece; Secretary, Mr. Peter Watson; Acting Manager, Mr. Nelson Barry.—A Trip to Coon Town is a smart entertainment offered here this week by eighteen coloured artists. Plenty of singing and dancing is introduced, and the whole sketch is most enjoyable. James Fawn, the well-known comedian, is to the front with capital patter and songs; Leo Dryden, the eminent vocal character-actor, sings in his usual excellent manner; Lotto, Lilo, and Otto, the great trick comedy cyclists, repeat their success of last week; J. T. McMillan, Scotch comedian, sings well; Tray and Rich are amusing comedians and good dancers; a wonderfully clever turn is the unique spade-jumping act of Fioretti; Miss Elly Gracie Taylor, comedienne, and Ada Cerito, comedienne, charmingly gowned, also contribute pleasing items; and some interesting pictures complete the bill.

HIPPODROME.—Managing-Director, Mr. Oswald Stoll; Acting-Manager, Mr. E. P. Morgan.—"The Soldiers' Chorus" from Faust, excellently rendered by the choir and orchestra, under the bâton of Mr. Alfred Haines, opens the programme here this week. Mr. Sidney Bacon introduces with considerable to the programme are Minnie Wren, comedienne; J. W. Elson, an amusing vocalist; Knoto, contortionist; and George Prince, the crazy comedian.

MERTHYR TYDFIL. — THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessees, The South Wales Entertainments, Ltd.; Manager, Mr. Lewis Gilbert.—Mr. Mouillot's company is this week presenting San Toy to large and delighted audiences. Mr. Hugh Webb undertakes Yen How in an able manner; Mr. Arthur Cartwright is seen to much advantage as Capt. Bobby Preston, his singing being highly appreciated; Mr. Robert Rivers is amusing as Sir Ringo Preston; the Emperor has a capital representative in Mr. William Jordon; Mr. Bert Edwards as Li is deserving of much praise. Miss Irene Lavington makes a charming Hoppy; Miss Bessie Allayne is a delightful San Toy, and her singing is greatly admired; Miss Lottie Sargent is a smart and attractive Dudley.

MEXBOROUGH.—PRINCE OF WALES THEATRE.—Manager, Mr. W. H. Melton.—Mr Bert Coote's company is this week presenting The Fatal Wedding. Mr. Ernest Owtrim plays cleverly as Howard Wilson; the Robert Curtis of Mr. Herbert Humber is a well-sustained effort; Mr. C. H. Hughes and Mr. Cyril Mellon are amusing as Toto and Peter Schwartz; Mr. Alan White does well as Rev. Dr. Lanceford; Miss Madge Haines submits a thoughtful interpretation of Mabel Wilson; Miss Gertrude Harrison skilfully sustains the rôle of Cora Williams; and Miss Julie Temple is an amusing Bridget; Miss Marjorie Lawrence is a dainty little mother.

MIDDLESBROUGH. — THEATRE ROYAL.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. Chas. Imeson.—Mr. Frederick Melville's company, in the drama, The Beast and the Beauty, is the attraction here this week, and good houses are the rule. The company is a talented one, and the piece is nicely staged. Miss Alice Bowes gives a capital rendition of the exacting part of Beauty, and Mr. W. S. Hartford achieves an undoubted success as Jack Barrymore, the Beast. As the Earl of Loman, Mr. William Passmore plays with artistic restraint; Mr. Bernard Mervyn is good as Henry Denver, and Mr. Harry Talbot does well as the lightweight champion. Miss Daisy Gwynne as Delilah Vane figures with great effect; Miss Mamie Rendle causes much amusement as the maid.

OPERA HOUSE.—Managing-Director, Mr. Robert Arthur; Manager, Mr. W. R. Chatto.—Drama, comedy, music, song, and dance are all blended in Mr. Henry Swinerd's production, Dare Devil Dorothy, which occupies the boards here this week. Miss Dorothy Desmonde is a vivacious and altogether charming heroine, her songs being exceedingly well rendered, and Miss Mami Vere is equally successful as Ruth Montrose; Mr. Will Breaton, as Silas Crump, keeps the audiences convulsed with laughter with his songs, and the same can be said of Miss Nellie Harcourt as Judith. Mr Wm. Ashley gives an excellent portrayal of the part of George Fielding, and Mr. Henry Ward is exceedingly good as the villain. Mr. Dean Cliffe imparts great humour into his impersonation of Mr. Haugh, and the specialities introduced by Miss Desmond, Miss Harcourt, and Misses Mabel and Lillie Blake, add in no small measure to the evening's enjoyment.

EMPIRE PALACE.—Managing-Director, Mr. John Brill; Manager, Mr. C. G. Rembges.—One of the most popular turns here this week is that of the Four Juggling Geraldos, rounds of applause greeting their efforts. Binns and Binns create roars of laughter by their fooling, this musical turn being well received. John Lawson and company, in their sketch. Humanity, fully sustain their big reputation. Stan Aubrey, the legmania artist, is both clever and laughable, and Mabel La Blanche sings well. The Sisters Brenton provide a clever dancing turn, and the Carlyles, whirlwind dancers, do well. The Bioscope pictures creates roars of laughter.

OXFORD PALACE.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. Alf. Graham.—The Lukushima troupe of Japanese forms the star turn here this week, and they give a really wonderful exhibition. The Musical Johnstones provide some high-class music on the xylophone, and Terry and Bentley are very amusing in their sketch, The Hunt. The Two Bostons create roars of laughter, and the Sisters Neilson, duettists and dancers, please. Alex Marshall, a local youth, seems destined to make a name for himself as a weight-lifter. A novel competition is promoted this week, valuable prizes being offered for goal-kicking.

MORECAMBE. — ROYALTY THEATRE AND OPERA HOUSE. — Sole Lessee, Lieut. Julian Malvern; General-Manager, Mr. Chas. M. Julian.—By arrangement with Miss Blanche St. Albans and Mr. J. Leicester Jackson, Lieut. Malvern's company has been appearing this week in Dishonoured, which has been very well put on. The leading part, Philip Cunningham, the wrongly dishonoured soldier, has been in the capable hands of Mr. Percy Ballard; and the stern, unbending Col. Cunningham, his father, has been well interpreted by Mr. Chas. Conway, an actor of great versatility. Miss Rosalie Heath is the much-tried Leslie Maynard; and Miss Maud Lillian plays Sybil very nicely. Mr. Chas. M. Julian is very funny as Mike Farthing; and other parts are well played by Mr. A. W. Thompson, Mr. Edwin Ramsden, Misses Rosie Dane, Lily Thompson, and Emily Allen. As the villain Peyntland Mr. Chas. Wilton is good; and Mr. Dalton J. Bosher plays the part of Capt. Cholmondeley.

MOTHERWELL. — NEW CENTURY THEATRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. R. C. Buchanan; Resident-Manager, Mr. Reginald Grant.—A Trip to the Highlands is proving an attraction here. Mr. Wal Croft is seen to advantage as Mac Mutchkin; Mr. Arthur Poole gives ample proof of his versatility as the detective; Timmins, as played by Mr. Joseph B. Montague, is a source of mirth; Mr. Gus Wheatman is good as Sir Septimus; and Mr. Wellesly Smith equally so as Lord Lackington; Mr. Frank Barcly sings well as the Hon. Frederick Lackington; Miss Maisie Ellinger and Miss Millie Engler (good singers both) find much favour as Araminta and Winnie, and Miss Kitty Clinton is a vivacious Fanny Flounce.

NEWCASTLE-ON-TYNE.—TYNE THEATRE AND OPERA HOUSE.—Managing Director, Mr. F. W. Wyndham; Business-Manager, Mr. F. C. Sutcliffe.—Miss Winifred Emery and Mr. Brandon Thomas are appearing here this week in Olivia. W. G. Wills's famous version of "The Vicar of Wakefield" has attracted enthusiastic audiences. Miss Emery's work as Olivia is well done, and is rapturously received. Mr. Thomas imbues the Vicar of Wakefield with an immense amount of feeling and power. The two principals are well supported by Miss May Chevalier, who makes a happy Sophia, and is greatly admired; Miss Kate Lytton renders a good account of herself as Mrs. Primrose; and Mr. Harry Ashford is a typical Farmer Flamborough. Mr. Eille Norwood, Mr. Franklin Dyall, Mr. H. Cannon George, Miss Maidie Andrews, Master Bobbie Andrews, Mr. M. A. Wetherell, Miss Isobel Roland, Miss Morel, and Miss Harriet Trench are all admirable exponents of their various parts. The piece is exceptionally well staged and the scenery good.

THEATRE ROYAL. — Managing - Director, Mr. Robert Arthur; Acting-Manager, Mr. F. Teale Lingham.—One of Mr. George Edwardes's companies is at this popular house this week, in A Girl on the Stage. In this rollicking piece the bulk of the work devolves upon Miss Queenie Leighton, who acts with energy, and sings in a most attractive fashion. Most of the fun of the piece is provided by Mr. Lennox Pawle as the Earl of Sanctobury, whose easy style, and quaint humour often won applause from a large audience. Praise is also due to Miss Mabel Saqui as Letty, especially good being the duet and dance with Mr. Nelson Keys, who take the part of Ethelbert. Miss Fanny Dargo and Miss Valli Valli, as the Ladies Isabel and Dorothy Congress, give valuable aid to the performance with song and dance; while Mr. Arthur Longley as Algernon Southdown, and Mr. Fred Winn as Shingle, both create much laughter. Others taking part in a successful production are Mr. Evaston Neville, Mr. Edwin Rutland, Mr. Edmund Cooper, Miss Mabel Hirst, Miss Rita Ravenscroft, Miss Cissie Berington, Miss Dorothy Garden, Miss Violet Bronson, Miss Cissie Calcott, Miss Juhta Dumas, and Miss Nellie Johnston.

PALACE THEATRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. T. W. Rowe; Business-Manager, Mr. E. B. Clarke.—Messrs. E. L. Mitchelson and Harris Finberg's company with The Traitor is here this week. Mr. C. E. Clive gives a powerful impersonation of Prince Rudolf, and as Chief of Police Mr. Stephen E. Stanton is excellent. Captain Ross, R.N., is in the capable hands of Mr. T. W. Hurst, who is well supported by Mr. F. Sutherland. Miss Gwynne Warren is greatly admired as Countess Zicka, and as Elsie Dupres Miss Kathrine K. Vere is effective. Miss Maude Stewart is very attractive as Cou-Cou, and well merits her success; Miss Isabel Hunt's impersonation of Lieutenant Nicholas is worthy of her best efforts; and Miss Ruth Shepherd as Zulu is clever. The remaining characters are well filled.

GRAND THEATRE.—General-Manager, Mr. Sidney Bacon.—Miss Ida Molesworth's and Mr. Mark Blow's company in the American success, At Cripple Creek, are paying a visit. Mr. Stanley Bedwell plays the part of Joe Mayfield in a very effective style, and earns much applause; Mr. Charles H. Lester as Mason and Mr. J. G. Maine as Alvarez are a pair of cunning villains; Mr. Archer D. Layland's get-up is grotesque in the part of Wahketah, and Mr. Will Hook as Reggie adds to the comic element. Miss Agnes Verity makes a success as Dynamite Ann, and Miss Lily Beagle is delightful as Belle Gordon. Miss Daisy Carlton causes much laughter as Maggie Mason, and a clever Little Tatta is given by Miss Rosie Hopkins.

EMPIRE THEATRE.—Proprietors, Moss' Empires, Ltd.; Managing-Director, Mr. Richard Thornton; Resident-Manager, Mr. George Andrews.—Carl Hertz, assisted by Miss Emmeline D'Alton, in The Bridal Chamber, is the chief attraction here this week. In addition to the famous bridal chamber scene, the professor shows an extraordinary performance in "handwriting on the wall." Lady Mansel and her juveniles supply an effective combination of talent; Bob Hutt and company, in their amusing sketch, Welcome Home, cause much laughter; Arthur Gill, the yokel with many voices, is well applanded; Rio Brothers, American gymnasts, supplied an exceptionally clever and clean turn; the Haytors are enthusiastically received; May Henderson, apart from her other powers, is an admirable step-dancer; the triple-bar performance of the Mezettis is well done, and secured much applause; and the Anartos, in The Moving Mail, scored heavily. The Bioscope proves, as ever, a great attraction.

PAVILION THEATRE. — Managing-Director, Mr. Thomas Barrasford; Manager, Mr. Will H. Boardman.—The top of the bill is this week occupied by Office Hours, a side-splitting sketch presented by Messrs. Corri and Dereve, which was enjoyed by a full house on Monday evening. Mr. W. J. Thompson as William Hurry is the chief comedian, and his specially worthy of mention for his humour and wit. Another amusing sketch is that of Messrs. Hodgson and Lowther's The Barmaids, which is greatly appreciated; Miss Mabel Kessler is a cornet soloist of great merit; the sleight-of-hand tricks of Morimura, the Japanese illusionist, who is assisted by Miako, are astonishing to a degree; Austin Rudd, comedian, scores again and again; Mac and Hill cause a constant ripple of merriment with their clever patter; Galettis, monkey, comedians, provoke much laughter; Mignonetti Kokin proves herself a comedienne of high order; and Leah Arden sings her ballad songs in fine voice.

OLYMPIA.—This popular hall, the home of the living picture, continues to draw good audiences. Gaumont's Patent Chronophone is a wonderful invention, the characters in the pictures produced on the screen being invested with talking and singing powers.

NEWPORT.—LYCEUM.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Sidney Cooper.—Mr. Geo. Alexander's company is playing to enthusiastic audiences here this week His House in Order. Mr. Frank Fenton's Hilary Jesson is a fine piece of acting; Miss Auriol Lee as Nina is natural, sincere, and decidedly charming; Filmer Jesson, M.P., is perfectly portrayed by Mr. Cyril Harcourt; Miss Aubrey Campbell's Geraldine Ridgeley deserves warm praise; and Miss Doris Champion's Derek Jesson is a delightful picture of a boy. Mr. Adam Alexander as Sir Daniel Ridgeley and Miss Kemmis as Lady Ridgeley are natural studies of tyrannical snobbery; and Mr. Geo. Silver is effective as Pryce Ridgeley. Mr. Chas. Tyrel's Major Manrewarde is exceptionally good; Mlle. Juliette Milo makes an excellent Mlle. Thome, and Mr. Danford Brown (Harding), and Mr. Jas. Annard (Dr. Delnott), and Mr. Cyril Cattley (Forshaw) all fill their parts splendidly.

EMPIRE.—Moss' Empires, Ltd.—Managing-Director, Mr. O. Stoll.—Heading the bill here is Ancillotti and his thought-reading dog Pilu, who presents a marvellous show. Nat Clifford convulses the house with his whimsical manner; Madge May sings a couple of songs that are acceptable; and Fred Russell and "Coster Joe" present a very interesting turn. Three Amaranths (acrobatic dancers) are much admired; the Barowsky Trio put in some clever acrobatic work; Howard and St. Clair are fully appreciated, and Little Ganty thoroughly deserves the applause he receives.

NORTHAMPTON.—OPERA HOUSE. — Proprietors and Managers, Mr. Milton Bode and Mr. Edward Compton; Resident-Manager, Mr. Frank Seddon.—Mr. Edward Terry and company are drawing big houses here this week, opening on Monday evening with Liberty Hall. William Todman is one of the best of Mr. Edward Terry's later parts, and his audience warmly appreciated its excellence. Mr. Owen was cleverly and consistently played by Mr. Allan Pollock; Blanche and Amy Chilworth were creditably sustained by Miss Fyfe Alexander and Miss E. Glossop Harris; Crafer was well presented by Miss Eugenie Vernie; the Hon. Gerald Harringay by Mr. Frank Cellier, jun. and J. Briginshaw by Mr. William Dexter, were good assumptions; the parts allotted to Mr. E. W. Thomas, Mr. George Howard, Master Earle, Claude E. Wallis, and Miss Ella Dixon were well carried out. On Tuesday The Magistrate was played, Mr. Edward Terry appearing as Mr. Posket, supported by Miss Agnes Knights as Agatha Posket. On Wednesday Sweet Lavender was presented, with Mr. Edward Terry in his original and world-renowned part of Dick Phenyl, Miss Gertrude Tate appearing as Lavender Holt. Liberty Hall, Sweet Lavender, and The Magistrate were also announced.

PALACE OF VARIETIES.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. Fred H. Anderson; Representative, Mr. Edwin C. Jazon; Acting-Manager, Mr. T. A. Evans.—The top of the bill this week is occupied by Mr. Ed. E. Ford, whose facial contortions cause continuous merriment; Miss Mabelle's dancing proves her a terpsichorean expert; Julian Mack's comicalities are as good as ever; Francis and Alfred are clever sensational comedy jugglers; and Driscoll and Beattie, the Sisters May, and Cherry Lass also contribute. The Palace Pictures are interesting and instructive.

NORTH SHIELDS.—THEATRE ROYAL. — Lessee and Manager, Mr. Arthur Jefferson; Acting-Manager, Mr. Horace Lee.—Mr. Herbert Ralland's company presented on Monday evening La Poupée, which had a cordial reception. Miss Mysie Devine, as Alesia, was in every way satisfactory; and Mr. Harry Brayne, as Hilarious, kept the audience in a happy mood; Mr. Arthur Cozens made quite a hit as Launcelot; and Mr. Walter Balfour was responsible for an admirable portrayal of Father Maxime; Mr. Arthur Dennis made a capital Loremoise; Mr. Fuller Allen was good as Baron Chanterelli; and Mr. Percival Hughes did well as Beniot; Miss Edith Hunter was a capable Madame Hilarious; Miss Dora Dickens played the part of Henri with ability; and the chorus and augmented orchestra rendered valuable service.

CENTRAL PALACE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Wm. Mould.—Mr. Harris L. Bell and Miss Lilly Pearl and company, in A Bit of String, have been warmly greeted here. The Boultons, speciality artists, are popular; Mlle. Bartinelli, lady bender, and gymnast, is clever; the Dunvilles, in their musical comedy act, are smart; the Excelsior Glee Singers are received with much favour; Miss Lloyd, comedienne; Mr. James Shields, comedian and one-legged dancer, and the Bio-photoscope are also well received.

NORTHWICH.—CENTRAL THEATRE.—Proprietress, Mrs. S. Golden; Secretary, Miss E. Golden.—Lovers of the sensational have their tastes catered for this week by Mr. Coleman Davies, who is occupying the boards with No Escape, and is supported by a powerful company. In the dual rôle of Major-General Geoffrey Arlington and Constable Grip O'Grady, Mr. Coleman Davies does well. As Sergeant Arlington Mr. Fred White makes an ideal hero, and proves himself a capable actor. Mr. Terry Davies is excellent as Vandyke Collopion, his fine presence suiting the character admirably. The difficult part of Ethel Arlington is well played by Miss E. Turner Elliot. Miss Eunice Udall as Molly Muggs and Mr. W. V. Tullock as Sampson Slowman attend to the comedy business in capable style.

NORWICH.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Sole Manager, Mr. Fred Morgan.—Mr. George Dance's excellent company is here this week with The Girl from Kay's. Miss Marie Greengrass makes an excellent Norah Chalmers; Miss Irene Vere a sprightly Ellen; Miss Jessie Fraser a successful Winnie Harborough; Mr. Stanley Ravenscroft a capable Harry Gordon; Mr. J. W. Hooper a humorous Hoggenheimer; and Mr. Claude Dampier a diverting Joseph. Mr. Harold Marks ably conducts.

HIPPODROME.—Proprietors, Messrs. R. H Bostock and F. W. Fitt; Manager, Mr. F. W. Fitt.—Mr. Carter Livesey and Lilian Roseberry, in their skit The Would-be Actors, create endless fun; Conway and Leland are truly named the merry monopedes; Wyndham and Waters, in a sketch entitled The Professor and His Pupil, are successful; Wal Robbins is an amusing black-and-white comedian; De Vere and Kenwick are well received; Hill Lane and company are diverting in musical comedy; Bicknelle shows some excellent clay modelling; Bertha Winder is a clever dancer; and the Hippo Biograph gives some laughable motoring sketches.

NOTTINGHAM.—THEATRE ROYAL. — Managing Director, Mr. Robt. Arthur; Acting-Manager, Mr. Howard Finney.—The Orchid is paying a return visit here this week, much to the satisfaction of many playgoers. Mr. Colin Campbell acts Meakin in a highly diverting manner; as Guy Scrymgeour Mr. Fred Thompson sings and acts pleasantly; and Mr. Haddon Cave gives a capital portraiture of Aubrey Chesterton. Mr. Cecil Frere (Fontenbras) and Mr. David Hallam (Mevignac) make a quaint pair; and the fury of Comte Raoul is capitally realised by Mr. William Benson. Mr. Harry Ray squeezes a vast amount of fun out of the part of Zaccary; Miss Mabel Seadby vocalises delightfully in the rôle of Lady Violet; Miss Nell Hopes effectively portrays the French girl Zelie Rombert; and Miss Constance Hamilton imparts the necessary vivaciousness to Thisbe. Miss Dorothy Tempest earns appreciation as the Countess Anstruther; and an attractive Josephine Zaccary is seen in Miss Gladys Ward. Miss Florence Vie quickly becomes a favourite as Caroline Vokins; and the rest of the cast work with commendable zeal. Mr. Cuthbert Hawley gets the best results from his augmented orchestra.

GRAND THEATRE.—Manager, Mr. Charles P. Cooke.—Mr. Edward Marris's company presents this week The Dandy Doctor, and since its last visit the piece has lost nothing of its power to attract and amuse. Mr. Edward Marris impersonates the tinned meat millionaire in merry fashion. He is ably assisted in his efforts by Miss Florence Smithers, who invariably in "slavey" parts reaches a high standard of excellence. Mr. Herbert Pearce makes a dignified Colonel Pendred, whose daughter Ivy is charmingly portrayed by Miss Effie Vincent. Mr. Wallis B. Nugent as the smart young doctor does well, and Mr. Leslie Martin is efficient as Bertie Bolingbroke. Mr. Dalton Dane and Mr. John Birtles both add not a little to the success of the production. Miss Dolly Pane looks very smart as the page, and Misses Ethel Dunker, Belle Hamilton, Rosie Chandler, and Maisie Gerrard act successfully in their various parts. Specialities are effectively introduced by the Dandy Belles, the Dutch Girls, and the Yeoman male voice quartette.

EMPIRE THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—Managing-Director, Mr. Oswald Stoll; Acting-Manager, Mr. Charles H. Bowmaker.—Tschernoff's large troupe of trained ponies and dogs are put through a capital performance, which calls forth unbounded enthusiasm; Wilbur Hill and Willette Whitaker are a clever pair of instrumentalists, the lady also excelling as a vocalist; the Vernon troupe of xylophonists earn a large share of applause, and Die Obersteirers display a versatile cleverness by their singing, playing, and dancing. A delightful turn is provided by Miss Carlotta Levey, who renders her songs with taste and expression. The Lyons Trio supply a pantomime sketch, and dance with animation; Dorothy Clarke vocalises to the evident pleasure of her audience; and Charles Vincent gains appreciative notice. Kelly and Gillette create uproarious laughter by their amusing antics, and hearty plaudits for clever gymnastics on a billiard table. The American bioscope closes an excellent programme.

NUNEATON.—PRINCE OF WALES' THEATRE AND ENTERTAINMENTS CO., LTD. — Managing-Director, Mr. A. F. Cross; Acting-Manager, Mr. Walter J. R. Bryan.—An admirable programme of Shakespearean tragedy, comedy, and historical plays is presented this week by Mr. F. R. Benson's North Company. In The Merchant of Venice, which was presented on Monday evening before a well-filled house, Shylock received meritorious handling by Mr. Henry Herbert, while Portia was very gracefully treated by Miss Dorothy Greene, an actress with a charming personality. The Antonio of Mr. Gerald Ames was marked by a thoroughness which was highly commendable, while the manly impersonation of Bassanio by Mr. Charles Francis deserves the highest praise. Mr. Reginald Davis, formerly a member of Mr. Benson's first company, now plays prominent parts in the present combination. Others taking important characters are Mr. Dagnell, Mr. Henry Morrell, Mr. Ross Shore, Mr. Lionel Bevans, Miss Mary Webb, and Miss Louise Graeme.

OLDHAM.—EMPIRE THEATRE.—General Manager, Mr. E. Dotteridge; Assistant Manager, Mr. J. Hulme.—Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Maclaren's company had a hearty welcome on Monday evening in the popular play Proof. Mr. Gerald Kennedy's realistic portrayal of Pierre Lorance is greatly admired. Mr. W. J. Butler gives a capital rendering of the heavy part of Lazare; and Mr. Wilford Bailey is responsible for a large amount of humour as Chamboran. Mr. Carl Beechey makes a capital Duke D'Aubeterre; and Mr. Frank S. Smith is good as Victor. Miss May Grimshaw is highly appreciated in the part of Valentine, of which she gives a careful study; Miss Beatrice Shirley as Madeline, and afterwards as Adrienne, is very sympathetic; and Miss Ellina Turner is excellent as Little Adrienne. Miss Phena Powell as Madame Deprets and Miss Nita Ashby as the Duchess Aubeterre are highly successful; and Miss Ellen Morris is very good as Julie. In the cast also appear Misses Turner, Manton, Lorrimer, and Beale, and Messrs. Neville, Turner, and Sherrard.

COLOSSEUM.—Manager, Mr. W. Eastwood. — Mr. Tom H. Taylor's company is on a return visit in the successful drama, The Worst Woman in London, and attracts crowded audiences. Miss Florence Dalton appears in the name part, Frances Vere, and acts throughout in a powerful manner. Mr. George Gaisford plays the hero, Jack Felton, vigorously; and Mr. Paul Barry Lewers as Vincent Lyle makes a capital villain. Mr. C. R. Stone is excellent as James Milford; and the part of Philip Armstrong loses nothing as played by Mr. Leonard Booker. Mr. H. W. Monte is very good as the down-at-heel Hugh Drayton; and Mr. George Cranby makes the best of Bertie Heslop. Mr. Willie Garvey contributes largely to the success of the play in the humorous part of Bob Goldfinch; and Miss Emily Kelsey assists him in an able manner. Miss Elizabeth Watkins is very good as Ruth Vincent.

ROYAL THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—Manager, Mr. E. Dottridge; Assistant-Manager, Mr. W. Howgate.—George D'Albert is the star here, and is well received; Reichen's dogs give a remarkable performance, and secure much applause; Rosie Lloyd is a charming comedienne, with catchy songs. Spry and Monti introduce an effective combination of wit and humour; and Verno and Voyce have a good vocal scena. The Frères Borghetti are a smart troupe of acrobats; and the Four Charles introduce a capital transformation act. Jack Hylton is a good comedian; and the Royal Dottoscope concludes an excellent programme.

HIPPODROME.—Manager, Mr. E. Dottridge; Assistant-Manager, Mr. Nuttall.—The attractions at this house are many this week, chief among them being the Gentle Bros. Lang, who keep the house in roars of laughter. Dolly, Agnes, and Maud are another capital turn, and had a good reception; Jessie Barlee and Phil Smith are excellent in their comedy and musical duologue; Viviana is a graceful dancer; and Montague Biggs is a capital lady impersonator. Walter Wade causes much amusement with his songs and patter; and the Wynfords give a very good exhibition of jumping. The Dottoscope shows an interesting picture.

OXFORD.—NEW THEATRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. Thomas Lucas, J.P.; Acting-Manager, Mr. C. C. Dorrill.—On Monday Mr. Eugene C. Stafford opened to a house crowded in every part with the ever popular piece, The Private Secretary. Mr. D. Price Evans is a great success as Rev. Robert Spalding; Mr. W. T. Elworthy is good as Mr. Marsland, and so is Mr. J. P. E. Hussey as his nephew; Mr. W. Hargreaves repeats his sound and mirth-provoking impersonation of Mr. Cattermole from India; and very bright and pleasing is the Douglas Cattermole of Mr. R. Reade; while Mr. V. Gilbert is highly amusing as the tailor. The two girls, Eva Webster and Edith Marsland, find charming and effective exponents in the Misses Beth Elliott and Dora Gray, and Mrs. Alfred Davis does well as Miss Ashford.

PAISLEY.—PAISLEY THEATRE.—Sole Proprietor and Manager, Mr. J. H. Savile.—Kitty Grey is renewing acquaintanceship with local theatre-goers. The company is that of Mr. George Stephenson, which is ably directed by Mr. J. MacCabe. The title-rôle is acted with brilliant success by Miss Hilda Guiver, who is enthusiastically applauded; Lady Binfield has a delightful representative in Miss Marie West, her singing giving infinite delight; Miss Elsie Skillings is a charming Saidie de Poulson; and Miss Nellie Lauraine makes an amusing Mrs. Bright. Mr. George Stephenson plays Sir John Binfield in an accomplished style; the part of Lord Plantagenet loses nothing of its eccentricity in the hands of Mr. Leslie Steward, his dancing gaining great admiration; and Mr. Lauri Lisle portrays the eccentricities of the King of Illyria in his own inimitable way. The remainder of the smaller parts are all in good hands, and the mounting and scenery are above reproach.

EMPIRE.—Lessee, Mr. J. H. Savile; Manager, Mr. Delno Fritz. — A capital company is this week headed by Charles E. Ernest, "the human orchestra." The others include the Stanleys, smart young versatile vocalists and dancers; Alfred Poynton, impersonator of famous men; the Lennards, in their unique pictorial songs; Agnes Lidgate, pleasing vocalist; and Karr and Kooney, comedians and dancers. There is also shown the Empire Animatograph, with all the latest pictures.

TOWN HALL.—Proprietors, The Corporation.—J. M. Hamilton, tenor vocalist, with his company, was in possession here on Saturday. There were also Chorley and Connor, comedians and dancers; Nellie M'Nab, soprano vocalist; Minnie Osborne, coon vocalist and dancer; William Menzies, conjurer; and A. J. Gamble, eccentric comedian.

PENTRE.—LYCEUM THEATRE.—Sole Owners, Messrs. Carlton and Duckworth; Manager, Mr. Sam Duckworth; Resident-Manager, Mr. Harry Counsell.—Mrs. Morton Powell's company is here in When It was Dark. Mr. Geo. H. Pitt must be congratulated on his impersonation of Schwabe; Mr. Cyril Austin Lee is seen to advantage in a powerful portrayal of the Rev. Basil Gotre; Mrs. Powell shows her keen study of detail in her interpretation of Helen Byars; and the difficult rôle of Gertrude Hunt is effectively sustained by Miss Mabel Mannering; Mr. Riddel Robinson acquits himself with distinction as Sir Robert Llewelyn; Harold Spence is in the capable hands of Mr. A. Carrington; and Mr. Millar Wilson and Miss Bessie Ellis contribute vivacious humour as Hon. Charlie Gayfly and Gracie Goldeye respectively.

PENZANCE.—ST. JOHN'S HALL.—San Toy paid a first visit here this week, being presented by a company under the personal management of Mr. A. Gordon Begg. Miss Mora Hersee made a charming San Toy; delighting by her sweet singing and dainty acting; Miss Maud Lucy as Dudley worked hard and successfully in conjunction with Mr. Bert Barton as Li to keep the fun going, with the result that there was never a dull moment when this clever pair occupied the stage. Mr. Grahame Herrington as Yen How, Mr. R. Ford as the Emperor, and Mr. Edward Christopher as Sing Hi, were one and all remarkably good. Mr. Scott Rae as Fo Hop possesses a good voice; and the same may be said of Mr. Victor G. Huntley as Capt. Bobby Preston; the Sir Bingo Preston of Mr. Harry Turner was a quaint character; Mr. James F. Leighton did effective work as Lieutenant Harvey Tucker.

PERTH.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Sole Lessee and Manager, Mr. J. H. Savile; Acting-Manager, Mr. Frank Aldridge.—Mr. George Dance's company is here in the successful musical play The Duchess of Dantzic. Miss Blanche Lynd gives a powerful impersonation of Sans Gêne, afterwards Duchess of Dantzic, and the hearty reception by which her efforts are awarded is fully merited; Mr. Alfred Ebberson is also strong in his successful portrayal of Napoleon Bonaparte; Mr. Cecil Parke is much admired as Vicomte de Bethune, his singing being particularly good; this may also be said of Mr. A. C. Bradshaw, whose vocal talent is prominent in the first act as Captain Ragnier; Mr. Warwick Wellington is well received as Sergt. Francois Lefebvre; Mr. Arthur Ferris is delightfully amusing as Papillon; Mr. G. Griffith makes an ideal Duke of Dantzic; Mr. E. Rickards is successfully placed as M. Dalagro"; Miss Lillian Drake acts the rôle of Empress Josephine with all the majesty required. Misses Florence Smith and Sophie Albutt are the high and mighty sisters of Napoleon; Miss Mona Gray's Renee de St. Mezard is charming and is accorded a warm reception, as also is Miss Hetty Ludlow's Lizette, her vocal renderings being particularly admired.

PLYMOUTH.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. C. F. Williams; Acting-Manager, Mr J. Langdon Lee.—A large and enthusiastic audience assembled on Monday to welcome Messrs. Silvanus Dauncey and M. V. Levaux's company on their second visit to Plymouth in The Walls of Jericho. As Jack Frobisher, Mr. Herbert Bunston, gave a splendid representation of an honourable, straightforward Englishman, whose fickle wife, Lady Alethea Frobisher, is admirably played by Miss Florence Jackson. Mr. George A. Brandam, as Hankey Bannister, the Colonial rough diamond, was deservedly popular for his genuine frankness; while the somewhat uncongenial parts of the Marquis of Steventon and Harry Dallas could not have been relegated to better hands than those of Messrs. Cyril Baleine and Sydney Hamilton respectively. Miss Molly Carton is an attractive Lady Lucy Derenham; Miss Lydia Busch is greatly appreciated as the generous and whole-hearted Lady Westerby; while Miss Edith Cuthbert as Miss Mornington infuses a welcome touch of humour by her fruitless efforts in the matrimonial market.

PONTYPRIDD. — ROYAL CLARENCE THEATRE.—Owners and Proprietors, Mrs. Trenchard and Miss L. Jones; Manager, Mr. Charles Trenchard.—A return visit of Mr. Charles Harrington's combination in Uncle Tom's Cabin meets with the heartiest approval here. Mr. J. Henry Rogers enacts Legree powerfully; Mr. Leslie Beaufort scores a success as George Harris; Uncle Tom is in the able hands of Mr. J. Carr; Mr. Stanley Howards makes a capital Mr. St. Clair; and Phineas Fletcher is ably sustained by Mr. J. H. Renney. Mr. James Jackson is a success as Dan Haley; Marks is admirably portrayed by Mr. Walter Langford; Miss Jennie Malcolm shows to advantage as Aunt Ophelia; Eliza Harris is dramatically presented by Miss Hettie Johnson; and Miss Annie Watson as Topsy is irresistible.

PORTH. — THE PALACE (late Opera House).—General-Manager, Mr. C. W. Poole; Acting-Manager, Mr. Walter Bynorth. — The capital programme submitted here includes the following artists;—George Bernard, actor-vocalist; Mlle. Sara's Marblesque Trio, in classical living pictures; Loundoun Cameron, conjuror, in his spectacular magic act; George Penn, who scores a success; Dale and Vale, smart comedians and pedestal dancers; the Stavordale Quintette, banjo and harp speciality artistes; Miss Constance Bellamy, soprano vocalist; Le Vere Freres in their gymnastic equilibristic act; the Two Eltons on the triple horizontal bars; Ward and Wylie, comedians and duettists; a sketch by Adelina Collier is excellent; and some good pictures are also shown on the Bioscope.

PORTSMOUTH. — THEATRE ROYAL. — Licensee and Manager, Mr. J. W. Boughton; Acting-Manager, Mr. Armstrong Bell.—The attraction here this week is The Geisha, presented by Mr. Mouillot's chief company. Miss Louie Collier shone brilliantly as O Mimosa San; Miss Florrie Saunders was a dainty Molly Seymour; Miss Violet Kenyon creditably impersonated O Juliette Diamante; Wun Hi was amusingly portrayed by Mr. Edward Carlton; Mr. Lionel Braham was a very imposing Marquis Imari; and Mr. Cyril Thompson a capital exponent of Reginald Fairfax. A Greek Slave is also in the répertoire.

PRINCESS THEATRE.—Licensee and Manager, Mr. J. W. Boughton; Acting-Manager, Mr. T. E. Agate.—Mr. Charles Watson Mill's company with A Wrecker of Men is occupying the boards here. Mr. Frederick Biron gives a powerful representation of Jim Murley; Pharosaphus was cleverly taken by Mr. Milner Noble; Mr. Millar Anderson as Railton was responsible for a capable piece of character acting; Guise Strange was admirably impersonated by Mr. Stanley Champion; the part of Risca Mallison, a woman with a past, was sustained by Miss Dora Price, with much ability; Miss Cissie Podmore acted with distinction as Doris Melville; and Miss Gwendoline Talbot as Marion Isaacs and Miss Beatrice Reynolds as Vavasole Slopper did well.

EMPIRE PALACE.—Secretary, Mr. W. Pratt.—Lottie Lennox, who heads the bill here, gets plenty of applause for her amusing and tuneful songs; Welda and Wynne in their act are responsible for good juggling and dancing; the Sisters Dixon, are a pair of clever banjoists and bâton manipulators; the Four Maisanos, eccentric musicians, are well received; Walker and Lake, as patterers, are acceptable; Tom Mills, actor vocalist, is much appreciated; the Players do well in the interesting playlet, Touched Up; Payne's Bio-Photoscope has some taking pictures; Maud Marlow is a smart burlesque actress; and J. H. Crew is quaint.

PRESTON. — THEATRE ROYAL.—Manager, Mr. Stephen Pritt.—Messrs. Hardie and Von Leer's company is here this week, in the realistic play, For Life—and After. Mr. Vernon Sansbury, as Richard Grey, is convincing, and makes a success in a difficult part; Miss Grace Heywood acts with good feeling and restraint as Marion Grey; Messrs. Osborne, Vautier, and Henry Hare, are thoroughly capable in their respective parts; Miss Dean, Miss Fawcett, and Miss Vayne are alike excellent in arduous parts. Comedy relief is ably provided by Miss Barnwell and Mr. Chris. Mason. The play is well staged, the last set especially being original and effective.

PRINCE'S THEATRE. — Proprietors and Managers, Messrs. Sawyer and Woodruff. — Mr. Augustine Knight is presenting The Assassin here this week to crowded houses. Miss Ella Vane as Countess Wanda shows exceptional dramatic ability; Mr. Augustine Knight as Prince Demetri ably acquits himself in a difficult part; Miss Hettie Senior is seen to great advantage in the rôle of Connie Jonathan; Mr. Edward E. Ashby makes an ideal Ivan Ivanoff; Miss Frances Waring successfully portrays Nita; Mr. Edwin Jenner is an excellent representative of Captain O'Neil; Mr. Cecil H. Raymond creates much merriment as Baron Alphonse; Miss Marie E. Robertson makes a charming Katrina very smart; Barton and Franklin, instrumentalists, singers, and dancers, gave a pleasing performance; and other acceptable turns were given by Sisters Hall, vocalists; Mark Leslie, swell coon; Sisters Walmsley, in the scena, From School to Stage; and Lilly Lena, comedienne.

Royal Hippodrome.—Manager, Mr. W. B. Broadhead; Acting-Manager, Mr. Percy B. Broadhead; Resident-Acting-Manager, Mr. C. H. Wentworth. —Mlle. Von Eita, lady illusionist, gives a smart performance here. Billy Williams, comedian, is well received; Marie Jones, assisted by Ernest Munro, does some clever quick-changes; some good tenor singing is contributed by Jack Truman. Haig and Novel, comedy artists; Selby and Myers, comedians, patterers, and dancers; Morzetto, smart juggler; Claude Tomlin, the singing midshipman; and Little Bert also contribute to a good programme.

SALISBURY.—County Hall.—Proprietor, Mr. Arthur Whitehead; Business-Manager, Mr. T. Brinsmead.—Messrs. H. and F. Poole's myriorama commenced a week's engagement here on Monday. The animated pictures are some of the best we have had; and the following variety turns are introduced:—Harry Dowsett, comedian; Miss Florence Hamilton, soprano; Geo. French's acrobatic cyclists; Houston, Chinese magician; Learto and his dog Babs; and the Snow Family, expert skaters. The band is under the direction of Mr. Charles Weldon.

SEACOMBE.—Irving Theatre.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. James Kierman.—Mr. Charles Macdona's company is attracting excellent houses here this week with the popular musical play, Three Little Maids. The Vicar's three charming daughters, Ada, Hilda, and Edna Branscombe, are delightfully personated by the Misses Cora Lingard, Daisy Silverton, and Eva Weigh. The matter-of-fact and businesslike Lady Mallory finds a suitable exponent in Miss Alice Rene, and Gretchen could not be in better hands than those of Miss Laura Wright. Lady Rosemary Beaulieu, Venetia Grafton, and Lady Mary Crichton are adequately personated by Miss Hilda Stericker, Miss Lilian Courtney, and Miss Edith Mayward respectively. Miss Price is suitably depicted by Miss Kitty Whiteley; Mr. Victor Kerr gives general satisfaction as Lord Cheyne, and Mr. Guy Williams presents a delightfully comic and consistent personation of Brian Molyneaux. Mr. Charles Leverton is fully equal to the demands made on him as the Rev. Mr. Branscombe; Mr. Charles Caffrey submits an amusing and good-tempered little Cupid, and Mr. Eric Barrington's M. de L'Orme is a capital character-study.

SEAHAM HARBOUR.—New Theatre Royal.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. A. C. Harrison.—A Traitor Prince is here this week, the drama being presented by Messrs. Beaudyn and Livesey's company. An efficient Prince Rao is found in Mr. George M. Montanini; Mr. T. P. McBride is a hearty Lieut. Derrick; the Hon. Bobby Dalrymple is cleverely portrayed by Mr. Len Philip; as Richard and Col. Vane, Mr. Austen H. Longford does well; Vashti is ably played by Miss Vesta Sandford; Miss Rose Routledge is a pleasing Lola Vane; Mrs. Martha Blossom is well-sustained by Miss Clara O'Grady; Pansy Blossom is vivaciously played by Miss Kitty Thomas.

SHEERNESS.—The Hippodrome.—General-Manager, Mr. F. Leighton.—Harry Lynn and company hold the premier position on the bill here, appearing in the amusing comedy act, Dead to the World; Harry Wenburn, comedian, is paying a welcome return visit; the Three Pandoras gain applause for a well-deserved skipping-rope dance act; Martini and Son, illustrated song artists, are highly successful; Lily Watson, character comedienne, meets with a good reception; Charlotte Lunn is a pleasing comedienne; Joe Mac amuses with his smart patter, and Harry Bent, humorist, also deserves praise. The pictures complete the programme.

The Palace.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. Phil Reymond.—The Nicholsons open the bill here with a laughable comedy act; Mr. Byden Currie as a comedian and mimic would be hard to beat. His banjo playing is good, and he also has a clever little dog; Miss Josie Watson is a smart burlesque actress; Mr. Phil Reymond, the popular comedian and character-actor, is a great favourite, his new songs being cleverly written and excellently rendered; Vaux is a smart society ventriloquist with plenty of humour, and Mr. Harry Royde is a clever comedian.

SHEFFIELD.—Lyceum Theatre.—Managing-Director, Mr. John Hart; General-Manager and Treasurer, Mr. J. E. B. Beaumont.—Finely staged and acted with exhilirating vivacity, The Duchess of Dantzic again charmed the eye and pleased the ear of an enthusiastic audience on Monday. Miss Kitty Gordon was a graceful and bewitching Catherine; Miss Lily Edmunds was pretty and chic as Lizette; and other accomplished and handsome ladies were Miss Lilian Best, Miss Josephine McCarthy, Miss Nancy Hearne, and Miss Doris Greville. Mr. Frederick Moyes repeated his fine impersonation of the Emperor; Mr. H. C. Barry fairly revelled in the amusing part of Papillon; and Mr. Albert Chapman as the Duke was first-rate.

Theatre Royal.—Managing-Director, Mr. John Hart; General-Manager and Treasurer, Mr. J. E. B. Beaumont.—A False Wife was again presented to a Sheffield audience on Monday by Mr. F. Marriott Watson's company. Miss Florence E. Florence and Mr. F. Marriott Watson were again successful in leading parts, and the support was good all round.

Alexandra Theatre. — Managing-Director, Mr. W. D. Forsdike; Acting-Manager, Mr. C. W. Ramsay.—The Temptress was played for the first time in Sheffield on Monday by Mr. W. H. Hallett's company. In the title-rôle, Miss Lydia Donovan looked handsome in her charming costumes, and acted with considerable dramatic ability; Miss Ivy Chandos was a vivacious Rhoda Brown; Miss Grace James a graceful Marian Fordyce, and Miss Effie Bartlett a successful Madge. The character of Sir Oswald Fordyce was made an interesting study by Mr. Claud Ashworth; Mr. W. P. Sheen caused hilarity as Bob Tanner; Mr. Allen Carruthers made Francis Fitz-Fluke a most amusing personage; and Mr. Weldon Atherstone acted in a forcible manner as Lucas Denbigh.

Empire Palace.—Proprietors, The Moss' Empires Co., Ltd.; Acting-Manager, Mr. Alan D. Dunbar.—Mr. George Lashwood is again starring here, and singing his latest songs with his acustomed refinement and verve. Another Sheffield favourite is dainty and charming Miss Minnie Cunningham; Datas, the man of memory; Frank Maura, "the Mexican wonder"; Rose Naynon and her trained birds; Miss Clarice Netta, a talented soprano vocalist; Miss Jessie Burnett, comedienne; the Naples, expert dancers; the American Bioscope with new pictures, and Mr. Josh Dixon, a quaint comedian, are also among the attractions.

Grand Palace.—Proprietor, Mr. Frank Macnaghten; Manager, Mr. Richard Ralli.—Miss Frances Ferina, Mr. John Hitchins and company opened on Monday in Pity the Blind, and other performers billed were the Sisters Tinsley, duettists and dancers; Kit Keen, coloured comedian; the Davenports in their spiritualistic expose and illusions; Miss Mabel Le Roy, serio-comic, and Mr. Lester May, vocal comedian. A popular item is Pallister's Biograph.

SHREWSBURY.—Theatre Royal.—Licensee and Business-Manager, Mr. W. C. Dornton.—The charming musical dream-play, Blue-Bell in Fairyland, was performed here on the first three nights of the week. Mr. Lawrence Emery made a capable Dicky; Mr. Frank Lennard was very successful as the Sleepy King and Mr. Joplin; Mr. Harry Vernon and Mr. Will L. Clement were a clever pair of comedians as Blib and Blob; Miss Vera Vizard was a tuneful fairy; Mr. Albert Mack was agile and smart as Peter the cat; Miss Lily Olive acted creditably the part of Mrs. Hearty; Miss Maud Harris and Miss Rena Robertson were a talented pair as Mab and Winnie, and their coon dance was particularly well done; Miss Lily Eyton, in the important part of Bluebell, sang sweetly and exhibited talent in her acting; Miss Alys Eren was satisfactory in the rôle of a rich lady; Miss Hardee Fitch filled the dual parts of Dorothy and Will o' the Wisp in a praiseworthy manner; Mr. Sidney James as First Bootblack was extremely bright and smart; Mr. Jack Cremo acted creditably the part of the Reigning King; Miss Constance St. Bride a Reigning Queen and, later, the Water Lily, sang effectively; Miss Nellie March was pleasing as the Autumn Leaf; Mr. Edgar Pinge made an active and successful Yellow Dwarf.

SOUTHAMPTON.—Grand Theatre.—Sole Lessee and Manager, Mr. Fredk. Mouillot; Resident-Manager, Mr. Arthur Weston.—Mr. William Greet's company is scoring heavily with The Earl and the Girl. Mr. Alfred Donohoe does well as Jim Cheese; Mr. Thomas Kennard (Dick Wargrave) and Miss May Yates (Elphin Haye) both sing and act in delightful style, and others who lend efficient support are Miss Lina Hicks (Liza), Miss Kathleen Gerrard (Mrs. Black), Miss Ida Stratham (Daisy), Miss Winnie Plumpton (Miss Bliss), Mr. Leslie Owen (Hon. Crewe Boodle), and Mr. Ernest A. Plumpton, the smart stage manager, who plays Downham.

Palace.—Proprietor and Director-General, Mr. Frank Macnaghten; Manager, Mr. William Trussell.—Mr. Fred. Maxwell and Co. again score a huge success with The Heathen and the Christian. Frances Haskoll wins applause for her illustrated songs; the Sisters Coolville, a shapely couple, dance well; the Du Gros trio excel in their gymnastic act; Harley and Harden prove an entertaining pair; Stewart and Morgan sing remarkably well; and G. C. Doughty and Co., with a merry little sketch, Captain Cupid, cause merriment.

Hippodrome.—Joint Proprietors, Messrs. Fredk Mouillot and W. de Frece; General-Manager, Mr. J. de Frece; Acting-Manager, Mr. H. P. Howell.—The best turn in the bill here is given by Shrillo, a wonderful whistler; Billy McClain's coloured sextette are smart dancers, and Farley, Rennie, and Farley evoke enthusiasm with their funny act Fun at a Railway Station; Bert Woodward, cycling coon; Talberto and Douglas, comedy artists; Two Whites, duettists and dancers; Chas. Banks and his dog Woof; and the Cratons, in a sketch, Front and Behind, also appear.

SOUTHEND-ON-SEA. — Empire Theatre. — Empire Theatre Co., Ltd.; Managing-Director, Mr. Geo. Conquest; Acting-Manager, Mr. A. Lingham Power.—When London Sleeps is proving an attraction this week, and Mr. Lester Cottingwood's company presents the piece in a striking manner. Mr. C. Wentworth, in the rôle of Captain Rodney Hayes, shows skill, and has capital assistance from Mr. Harry Barham as Mark Blackwood. David Engleheart as presented by Mr. Sam Arthur arouses much enthusiasm; Sammy Blyth is played successfully by Mr. D'Arcy Kelway; and Mr. Frank Howard is good as the Hon. Bertie Broomhead. Miss Mabel Scudamore impersonates Queenie Carruthers with ability; Miss Maud Yorke portrays Hilda Carode creditably; Carrie Jones is well taken by Miss Bessie Frank; and Maudie is interpreted successfully by Miss Daisy Clifford.

SOUTHPORT. — Opera House, Winter Gardens.—Proprietors, The Southport Opera House and Winter Gardens Co., Ltd.; Secretary, Mr. R. Singleton.—Mr. George Dance's chief company is this week presenting for the first time here the diverting musical comedy, Lady Madcap. Miss Isabelle Dillon undertakes the title-rôle with a chic and abandon eminently suited to the character; Mr. Harold Parkes, in the part of Oroya Brown, creates much merriment; Mr. Vincent Erne is a humorous Corporal Ham; Miss Ethel Beech a piquant and clever representative of Susan; and Miss Maud Davis a graceful and finished Gwenny Holden. Mr. J. Knox-Orde is a diverting Count de St. Hubert; and Mr. Ray Russell and Mr. James Graydon do full justice to the parts of Bill Stafford and Posh Jenkins.

Albert Hall Winter Gardens.—Lessee, Mrs. Charles Parker; Manager, Mr. J. H. Mertz.—After being closed for a week this popular variety hall was reopened on Monday, when an unusually large audience patronised the excellent all-round entertainment provided. The premier attraction was supplied by the engagement of Tom McInerney, the champion wrestler. The programme for the week embraced Daisy Davidson, the New Zealand soprano; Shang Hai, the Eastern magician, in his up-to-date performance, entitled "Orienta"; Evelyn Desa, banjoist, vocalist, and dancer; Fred Lyndo, eccentric comedian and dancer; Granho and Jackson, in their original scena, In a Restaurant; Stylo, loop juggler; the Violas, exponents of second sight; the Olive Trio, comedians and dancers; and the Bioscope with the latest films.

SOUTH SHIELDS.—Theatre Royal.—Lessees and Managers, Messrs. John and Fred Coulson.—Miss Emma Hutchison and Mr. P. Hutchison's company appeared here on Monday and Tuesday in A Country Mouse. Miss Lilias Earle is excellent as Lady Sylvia Bowlby, and Violet Aynsley is cleverly depicted by Miss Margaret Marshall. Miss Hilda Honiss gives a charming and natural delineation of Angela Munir. Jephcot is ably portrayed by Mr. Frank Hill. The parts of the Hon. Archibald Vyse, John Bowlby, M.P., the Duke of St. Kitts, and Lord Robert Wykeham are all skilfully handed by Mr. Templer Powell, Mr. Charles Bedells, Mr. Thomas Sydney, and Mr. Ernest H. G. Cox respectively. Cousin Kate is billed for Wednesday, Thursday, and Friday.

Empire Palace Theatre.—Proprietor, Mr. Richard Thornton; General-Manager, Mr. Frank Allen; Resident-Manager, Mr. Geo. F. Thompson.—Boswell's Circus and stud of cantankerous mules and dogs provide a good deal of amusement; Tiny Winnie Wilmot, a child seven years of age, has made a successful debut, her singing and dancing charming the audiences; Burley and Burley are a couple of merry comedians; the child pianist, Hanid Alexandre, is accorded a good reception; Ford and Barris score in their singing and legmania turn; good cornet selections are contributed by Joly; and the remaining turns are Ernest Ball, actor-vocalist, Beatrice Willey, vocalist, Frank Sylvo, juggler-comedian, and the American Bioscope.

Tivoli.—The Ringling Trio provide a new and laughable entertainment, A Manager's Lunch; the Cape Girls are good vocalists, and neat top boot dancers; J. C. Scatter, in his local song and talk, does well; May and Arthur, in a comedy sketch, introduce some good coon singing and dancing. The remaining items are Lottie De Abbey, clever character delineator, Charles Ashdowne, eccentric comedian, and Walter Payne's Bio-Photoscope.

STAFFORD. — Lyceum Theatre. — Lessee and Manager, Mr. James Elphinstone. — Miss Rose Faith's company was the attraction here for the first three nights of the week with No Cross, No Crown. As Sir Francis Luthell, Mr. W. Carrenden submits a powerful portrayal; the villainous nature of Austin Blake is skilfully depicted by Mr. Herbert De Ville; Mr. Harrison Chapman is an able Professor Nebb; Mr. Fred Gresham is a highly humorous Dr. Ashby; Mr. C. George, a capable Rowson Haines; and as Clare, Miss Rose Faith proves her ability as an emotional actress. In the dual rôle of Lady Margaret Luttrell and Mistress Gray, Miss Gwen Stewart is very effective, and Miss Rita Rosslyn ably sustains the part of Dame Priscilla. For the last three nights of the week Mr. Geo. Dance's company, in the Duchess of Dantzic, was announced.

STALYBRIDGE.—Grand Theatre.—Lessee, Mr. Louis Ellison; General-Manager, Mr. Eugene E. Hardie; Acting-Manager, Mr. J. D. Oswald.—The Three De Veres occupy the premier position in the programme, and are excellent in their acrobatic comedy speciality; the Cellos, too, are very acceptable in their musical turn; Maude Roma, comedienne, Pattie Bella, and Leslie and Player are very good in the comedy line; Joe Oliver, the singing coon, has an excellent voice; Man and Wife is a good comedy sketch, which occupies the attention of a quartette of artists; and A Trip from Dover to Paris on the Bioscope concludes the entertainment.

ST. HELENS.—Theatre Royal and Opera House, Ltd.—Proprietors, the St. Helens Theatre, Ltd.; General-Manager, Mr. McLeod Loader.—Mr. Auguste Van Biene and company opened here on Monday for three nights in the comedy drama, The Broken Melody. As Borinski Mr. Van Biene gave a powerful and skilful rendering of the part. He was well supported by Messrs. H. Ludlow (Ivanhoff); Faulkner Cox (Mortimer); C. A. Morgan (Dickson); Lawrence Grove (Beaujoir); Miss Typhia Morris (Mabel); Miss Rosie Lewis (Mrs. Dickson); and by Misses Mary Mannering and Rosemary Bees as Mrs. Spinnaker and the Duchess respectively.

Hippodrome. — Proprietors, Messrs. Barrasford, Will Sley, and F. Wilmot; Resident-Manager, Mr. A. V. Carnell.—The Four Kweeries head the programme here this week in a sensational illusion. Others in an attractive bill are Geoffreyes and Benson in the sketch Spoofed; Will E. Haines, a clever character comedian; Bros. Harrison in Quaint Concerts; Bert Williams, an excellent ventriloquist; Amber Austin, coon singer and dancer; Allsop and Bekwith, comedy duo; Massona, the boy juggler; and the Barrascope.

STOCKPORT.—Theatre Royal and Opera House.—Sole Owner and Manager, Mr. Charles Revill; Acting-Manager, Mr. Wm. Revill.—The first visit of Mr. George Dance's company in Veronique has been remarkably successful, large audiences having been attracted and evidently delighted with the performances. As Florestan Mr. J. Warren Foster acted ably and sang most pleasingly; Mr. Ellis Holland as Mons. Coquenard caused abundant laughter, and Mr. Tom Seymour as Mons. Loustot was amusing in a marked degree. Miss Nellie Wigley made a captivating Veronique, her vocalism commanding success; Miss Agnes Teady acted and sang with pleasing effect as Madame Coquenard, and Miss Edith Devonshire charmingly filled the part of the Countess de Champ d'Azar. The chorus is an excellent one, and the augmented orchestra is under the able direction of Mr. Clement Locknane.

Empire.—Acting-Manager, Mr. W. Black.—De Biere and Co., illusionists, have mystified large audiences here throughout this week; Jimson's sketch, The Burglar's Surprise, is highly entertaining; George Hyam is an amusing comedian, and Reed and Leone, novel electric comedians, are a great success; King and Delane, in a refined comedy act, At the Club, are pleasing; Millie Denham's songs are acceptable; and the Lovelaces, song illustrators; Tim Johnstone, actor vocalist, and Arthur Slater, "the whistling man in white," comprise the remainder of the programme.

STOKE.—Hippodrome.—Proprietor, Mr. T. Allan Edwardes; Manager, Mr. H. Miller.—Mr. F. V. St. Clair heads the bill here, and scores a huge success in his topical songs; a good sketch, The Collar Stud, is presented, Miss Edith Muir, and Messrs. Hubert Bartlett and Arthur Wallis are most successful in their respective parts; the Three Sisters Transfield contribute a capital musical turn; the Three Ladderites contribute a daring performance; the Zaracs, in their funny bar turn, are also clever; Barrington is a trick pianist whose turn is novel; Madge Daly is a pleasing vocalist; Johnny Worman is a capable comedian; and the Hippodrome Pictures are, as usual, excellent.

STOURBRIDGE.—Alhambra Theatre.—Manageress, Miss Maude Lynton.—This week we are favoured with a return visit of Mr. Allen Malone with his company in The Prince of Rogues. Mr. George Rammell delineates the title-rôle in a capable manner; and Mr. Malone as Frank Farrell is prominent; Mr. Percy Sage as Josh Buggins is capital; and the same can be said of Mr. H. Evan Gibbon as Gilbert Kenry. Miss Georgina V. Thomas is a capable Rita Congreaves; and Miss Ethebred Smart wins favour as Winnie Harwood.

SUNDERLAND.—Avenue Theatre.—Manager and Director, Mr. Chas. E. Machin.—Mr. George Dance's company in The Orchid is paying a welcome return visit here. Mr. Bertie Wright continues to fill with vivacity the rôle of Meakin, the gardener; the Hon. Guy Scrymgeour finds an apt exponent in Mr. Sinclair Holden; Mr. Edward Nainby is an amusing Comte Raoul de Cassignat; and Mr. Stenson Liddard makes the most of his opportunities as Aubrey Chesterton; Dr. Ronald Faussett is in the able hands of Mr. Louis du Cane; Miss Dorothy Firmin plays with chic the part of Lady Violet Anstruther, and her vocal efforts are worthy of special praise; as Caroline Vokins, Miss Emily Stevens is excellent; and the Zelie Rombert of Miss Florence Wakeman could not well be improved upon; Miss Ruby King ably fills the rôle of Thisbe; whilst Miss Desiree Desmond is a pleasing Josephine Zaccary.

Theatre Royal.—Managing-Director, Mr. C. E. Machin; Acting-Manager, Mr. Jos. Hemingway.—Mr. E. Hill-Mitchelson's popular company in Death or Glory Boys drew a crowded house here on Monday night. Mr. E. Hill-Mitchelson gives a powerful rendering of the somewhat difficult rôle of Captain Glyn Ferrers, and Mr. Jerrold Ord is particularly smart as Colonel Fergeson; Mr. H. Bonhote Wilson is a manly Jack Malden; whilst as Lieutenant Duff Mr. Lancelot Usher is clever and amusing; Miss Violet Carlyle gives a refined and pathetic rendering of Nena Fergeson, and Miss Amy Ellam is a winsome Edith; the Jane of Miss Marian Armitage could not well be improved upon.

Palace Theatre of Varieties.—Directors and Managers, Messrs. Rosen and Bliss; Acting-Managers, Messrs. Alfred Brown and Syd. B. Stringer. —The Casey Circus (which headed the bills here last week) remains under engagement, and is as popular as ever; another diverting turn is that of the Five Delevines, in a most amusing act entitled Flipp and Flopp; George Collins, a comedian of considerable ability, is heartily received; Lade Henderson is a clever character vocalist; the Three Sisters Chester score by their smart dances, songs, &c.; the Jalvans prove themselves to be jugglers and top spinners of no mean order; the Crown Trio please by their various musical items; Athas and Collins are a clever comedy couple. The entertainment winds up with an admirable show of animated pictures.

SUTTON-IN-ASHFIELD.—King's Theatre.—Proprietor, Mr. Edward Gray.—The Three Little Maids (Mr. Charles Macdona's company) opened here on Monday. Miss Mabel Kerridge as Ada scores distinctly; and Miss Bessie Walters as Hilda and Miss Edith Colley as Edna are also good. The Lord Cheyne of Mr. J. Herbert Willis is a fine performance; and the Cupid of Mr. Joseph Edwards causes loud laughter, and, together with Miss May Wright, who plays Gretchen capitally, gains well-merited applause; Lady St. Malloy is played in excellent fashion by Miss Kate Graham Beck.

SWINDON.—Queen's Theatre.—Proprietor and Responsible Manager, Mr. Alfred Manners.—On Monday a crowded house greeted Mr Fred Karno's company in that amusing musical comedy Saturday to Monday. Brightly staged, the piece goes with a swing, and the audience is kept in continuous laughter by a capable company, headed by that clever comedian, Mr. Rolando Martin, who, as John Willie Jaggs, proves himself to be the right man in the right place. He is ably supported by Miss Amy Rogerson, very pleasing as Clorinda; and Miss Daisy Stone, bright as Violet Blake. As Jaggs's offsprings, Mr. V. Crawford, Mr. Patten, and Master T. McDonagh, are highly successful in providing much fun. Miss Ada Maskell, Mr. J. W. Bradbury, Mr. Dick Harcourt, and Mr. C. H. Summers all work well in their respective parts.

TONYPANDY. — Theatre Royal. — Lessees, Messrs. Carlton and Duckworth; General-Manager, Mr. Sam Duckworth; Acting-Manager, Mr. Ridgewood Barrie.—Mr. F. B. Woulfe and company are on a return visit here with Lady Godiva. The name-part, as assumed by Miss Ethel Griffies, was an unqualified success; Miss Katherine Brook won approval as Lady Aldyth; Miss Edith Lorraine was suitably placed as Elfride; Mr. F. B. Woulfe presented the part of Tom in a thoroughly acceptable manner; Mr. Wm. Macready ably represented Algar; the part of Leofric was well sustained by Mr. R. Leath-Innes; Mr. A. E. Dunstan was an excellent Edgar; Mr. Rob Anderson was an effective Robin Shackleton; and Unwolf Unwolfson was in the capable hands of Mr. Ernest Hamilton. Nell Gwynne and Jane Shore were presented during the week.

TORQUAY. — Theatre Royal. — Licensee and Managing-Director, Mr. W. H. Mortimer; Secretary, Mr. A. Pearse.—The Night of the Party opened to an uproarious house on Monday, when the extremely funny doings of Mr. Sebastian Smith as Mr. Crosbie kept the audience in continuous laughter. All the characters were well placed, and the Lady Hampshire of Miss Evelyn Howard was a charming performance. Mr. Edmund T. Sayers made a capital Alderman Oargen; Mr. Aiden Lovatt was a dignified Sir Charles Hampshire; and Mr. Frank H. Denton a manly, pleasing Mr. Frayne. Mention should also be made of Miss Lena Graham, Miss Stanley Ronalds, Miss Maude Linden, Mr. Douglas Munro, and Mr. Ernest Rivarz.

TREHERBERT. — Opera House.—Proprietors, Messrs. Poole; Manager, Mr. J. Gunn.—C. H. Phelps and Harry Tilbury opened here on Monday with The Blind Foundling. Mr. Chas. H. Phelps gave an excellent reading of the part of Gerald Dalton; Mr. Frank Harvey made an admirable Parson Ray; Mr. Alfred Fry, as the adventurer, Mark Redman, proved successful; Mr. Bernard Webb was responsible for the part of Jasper Waterford; Dick Dobbins was in the capable hands of Mr. Harry Tilbury, who caused roars of laughter; Mr. John Byron deserves mention as Agly Fitzcholomondly; Miss Bella Tilbury, as Isabel, was pleasing and capable; Miss Millie Doris, as Winnie Dobbins, kept the audience in a merry mood with her humour and songs.

TUNBRIDGE WELLS.—The Opera House.—Lessee, Mr. Charles Carey; Manager, Mr. L. J. Gunnell.—Mr. Arthur Carlton's company in The Span of Life, fills the bill for the week. Mr. R. L. Trelawney makes a dashing hero in the character of Dick Blunt, and is ably supported by Miss Ella Willmer as the leading lady; Mr. Sanderson Moffat gives a powerful impersonation of the villain, while the comedy parts are played with much humour by Miss Kitty Russell as the maid and Mr. Walter Hale as Nutty Brown. The latter two introduce some specialities of song and dance in the third act, in which also the Almo Trio, who form the human bridge, which is the feature of the play, give a very clever acrobatic performance, including the Comedy Three bar act; Miss M. Douglas is a clever juvenile who doubles the parts of the youthful brothers, while Miss Phyllis Hamilton as Mr. Jelf, Mr. Jas. Barrett as Joshua Garnett, Mr. Chas. Noel as the Inspector, and Mr. J. Peterfell as Azreck all contribute some excellent work in their respective parts.

WAKEFIELD.—Royal Opera House.—Proprietors, Sherwood and Co.—The Gay Parisienne is being presented here this week by Mr. Charles Macdona's company. Mr. Will Harman evokes much merriment by his rendering of Ebenezer Honeycomb; Miss Evelyn Hughes is dainty and lively in the title-rôle; Mr. Horace Lingard does well as Major Fossdyke; Mr. Clifford Seyler is clever as M. Pompier; Mr. Edgar Ashwyn is admirable in vocal effects as Tom Eversleigh; Miss Madge Soutter is quaint and amusing as Ruth; Miss Holford Beringer is seen to advantage as Mrs. Honeycomb; and Miss Ethel Iviney is pleasing as Nora Honeycomb.

Hippodrome.—Lessee, Mr. Alfred Selwyn; Manager, Mr. Henry Lucas.—The Cumberlands, acrobatic cycling wonders, head the bill this week; Cliff and Kean are always popular here; Mlle. Zelda scores in a musical turn; Mr. Albert Ventnor, comedian, makes a hit; Mr. J. H. Carney, comedian, dances well; and Wal Owen, silent comedian, is amusing.

WALSALL.—Her Majesty's Theatre of Varieties.—Proprietors, The Walsall Theatres Co., Ltd.; General-Manager and Secretary, Mr. W. H. Westwood.—A big novelty here is Fred Ginnett's Rejected Remounts, which is creating oceans of fun. Marie Santoi and her Merry Little Japs are much appreciated; James Toner, the singing newsboy, is successful; the Welsh Wanderers, a troupe of singers and a harpist, are loudly encored; Bugler Carr is a talented musician and equilibrist; Jack Pleasants is a comedian of no mean merit; the bioscope pictures, The Phantom Motorists, are amusing.

Grand Theatre.—Proprietors, The Walsall Theatres Co., Ltd.; General-Manager and Secretary, Mr. W. H. Westwood.—Miss Frances Delaval's company, in The Biggest Scamp on Earth, is playing here to appreciative audiences. The villainy of Derrick Knight was displayed to perfection by Mr. Herbert Cecil; as Vivian Wakefield Mr. Fred Lillywhite scored largely; and Miss Frances Delaval's Naomi Belvedere is a clever character part. Mr. Leslie Yorke distinguishes himself as the father of Derrick; Mr. G. Osmond Tearle is an ideal showman, and as proprietor of the Hall of Mystery gives a meritorious performance; Mr. Jas. Stewart as Rufus does well; Miss Clare O'Sullivan is charming as Irene; Mrs. Edmund Lyons as Mother Hawke, Miss Hetty Stewart as the nurse girl, and Miss Carrie Johnson as Bobby, are effective.

WARRINGTON.—Royal Court.—Proprietors, Messrs. W. Johnson and J. Potter; General-Manager, Mr. J. Potter; Acting-Manager, Mr. Fred J. Reece.—Mr. Frank Bertram's company is reappearing here this week in The Breed of the Treshams. Mr. H. Tripp Edgar, as Lieut. Beresby, is responsible for a clever realisation of that character; a dignified and earnest Viscount Dorsington is Mr. Oswald Lingard; and as the traitorous Colonel Hungerford, Mr. Richard A. Greene acts with good effect; Mr. George Traill does well as Colonel Sir Henry Curwen; a remark which also applies to Mr. Alec Flood, as Colonel Bagshawe; Mr. Aubrey Fitzmaurice, as Captain Stanhope; and Mr. Henry Burnard, as Captain Rashleigh; the Hon. Francis Tresham is well presented by Mr. Cecil C. Klein; Miss Celestine Bertram is a piquant and interesting Batty; Miss Florence Tressilian a tender and lovable Hon. Margaret; and Miss Madge Sagny a kindly Mrs. Bagshawe.

Royal Theatre of Varieties.—Proprietors, Messrs. W. Johnson and J. Potter; General-Manager, Mr. J. Potter; Director of Amusements, Mr. Fred Willmot.—The Jackley Wonders head the bill here this week, and the marvellous acrobatic performance is watched nightly with astonishment; Ryder Slone is an accomplished comedian; Charles Craston wins favour with his songs; the boy Glen is a smart youth; Maggie Rimmer is a dainty comedienne; and Sid Brandon sings well; Bliss and Bliss also appear; and the Bioscope adds to the attraction.

WEDNESBURY.—Theatre Royal.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. W. J. Battersby.—Miss Marie Dagmar's company is here in the new sensational drama, entitled A Beautiful Criminal. Miss Marie Dagmar plays with artistic taste as Elinor D. Arville; Mr. C. Somerfield, in the important part of Will Maynard, is capable; the parts of Cyril Langdon and Geoffrey Langdon are effectively delineated by Mr. Roy Fortesque; a well-studied rôle is that of Leonard Vimbert, presented by Mr. T. G. Vane; and Mr. Alec Findlater makes the most of the part of Harold Hingston; Miss Cherry Veheyne is seen to advantage as Phœbe, Miss Amy Naughton does well as Florette de Vere, and the comedy part of Janet Miles is in the worthy hands of Miss Molly Monaghan.

WEST BROMWICH.—Theatre Royal and Opera House.—Lessee, Mr. Harding Thomas; Manager, Mr. Herbert Vere.—Mr. Morton Powell's company opened here on Monday night with the stirring drama, The Woman Who Gambles." The piece is well staged, and the company includes Mr. James Duncan, who makes a capital Count Otto Steinbach; the Countess is cleverly sustained by Miss Gertrude Hunt; the strong-willed Baron Cratzlaw is undertaken by Mr. Horatio Sinclair, whose forcible acting evokes admiration; Mr. Reginald Fox portrays the character of Lieut. Karl Ctzarteriskl with dramatic power; Mr. Ernest H. Clarke is well-placed as the Chief of Police; Mr. J. O. Stevenson causes amusement in the part of the Hon. Bertie Bray; Mr. Fred Prior is good as Peter Peteroff; Cora Gouldhart has a clever exponent in Miss Florrie Halton; Miss Brenda May is all that one could desire in the character of Zanette; Miss Florrie Hall is a capital Zila Zeyelda; Miss Lily Malvern is a striking Stella Melakoff.

New Hippodrome.—Managing Director, Mr. T. M. Sylvestor; Manager, Mr. H. W. Player.—Harry Tate's Motoring sketch heads the bill here this week; a smart turn is submitted by Charles Dixon; a clever and interesting little sketch is introduced by Ernest Montefiore, entitled The Little Colonel; Johnny Fuller proves himself a clever acrobat and dancer; a distinctly effective turn is that of Takio, who is well received; Charles Lilburn gives a pleasing show; Hick's Clerks, in a musical sketch, entitled A Day at the Seaside, keeps the audience in almost continuous laughter; the Hippodrome Pictures also add to the enjoyment of the evening.

WEST HARTLEPOOL.—Grand.—Sole Lessee, Mr. Fred Granville; Manager, Mr. J. A. Lewis.—Mr. George Testo Sante and company are playing this week The Life of a Showman. Mr. G. T. Sante in the rôle of Brien Leader gives a firm exhibition of strength; the heavy part of Kendrick Marais is in the capable hands of Mr. Logan Darra, and that of Agatha Winter is safely entrusted to Miss Amy McNeill. Some pleasing violin selections are introduced by Mr. J. G. Sante, who plays with effect the part of Laurie Grey; and others who deserve commendation are Mr. F. Gwyn Richardson as Sir Noel, Mr. Edward Warden as the Rev. Cyril Arliss, Miss E. Bamford as Lena Hartland, and Miss Grace Harlington as Angelina Mutton.

Palace.—Proprietor, Mr. Frank Macnaghten; Manager, Mr. Julius Simpson.—J. W. Rowley's geniality and amusing patter make him a great favourite here. The comedy act of Cullen, Carthy, and Cluley is overflowing with original comicalities. The selections (especially on the glasses) by the Musical Silvo evoke applause. The Five Bon Bons are old favourites who are more popular than ever. Almon as an upside-down performer is undoubtedly clever. The Bio-Tableaux are interesting. Clever indeed are the impersonations by Harry Thurston. The remaining items on the programme, which meet with deserved favour, are Grace Langelly, a smart and graceful coon and dancer; Minnie D'Aubyn, an attractive burlesque artist; and some up-to-date films on Raymond's Bioscope.

WESTON-SUPER-MARE.—Knightstone Pavilion and Opera House.—Manager, Mr. W. Payne. —Mr. Fred J. Kirke's company opened here on Monday, in The Naval Detective. Mr. Kirke gave a thoroughly good interpretation of Lieut. Jack Beresford; Mr. Frank Beaulieu was sufficiently villainous as Dr. Schreiner; Mr. Mark Practice made an excellent Captain Hustle; the Hon. Bertie Fairlox was facetiously portrayed by Mr. Walter T. Hybert; Mr. Chas. Burns was good as Hans Winklepump; as Susan Scrubbs Miss Edith Claris was decidedly funny; Miss Annie Brunette was successful as Lulu Kaufmann; and Miss Lily Seymour made a praiseworthy Rebecca Gentle.

WEST STANLEY.—Victoria Theatre.—Proprietor, Mr. T. C. Raws; Responsible-Manager, Mr. John Cassidy.—Mr. John H. Negus's company, in A Miserable Marriage, is here this week. Mr. George D. Knight gives a fine portrayal of Arthur Cameron; Mr. W. Robert Barbour is a clever Arron Hewsemann; Miss Madge Northcote represents the part of Lizzie Bowman in capital style; Miss Nellie Fern is good as Lady Cameron; Miss Shirley Dalton ably sustains the rôle of Agnes; Mr. Fred Carroll scores as Joseph Midgers; the part of Jefferies, the tramp, is effectively played by Mr. J. B. Elliott; Mr. E. A. Ryleston acts well as Simeon; Tom Willett is carefully portrayed by Mr. E. A. Stanley.

Theatre Royal.—Proprietors, The Stanley Theatre Co., Ltd.; Managing-Director, Mr. Mark H. Lindon.—Mr. F. L. Connynghame is paying a welcome return visit with A Mother's Love. Mr. Arthur Mervyn gives a striking impersonation of Paul Wingate; Mr. Arthur E. Prince is responsible for some powerful acting as Geoffrey Mannering; Mr. F. L. Connynghame creates much amusement as Mat Ruddock; Miss M. Lavinia Ellie is a clever Ellaine Mervin; Miss Dorothy Monkhouse ably fills the part of Mary Stuart; Miss Holly Haslewood is responsible for some good work as Marjorie Wing

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

BERLIN, THURSDAY, OCT. 11.—A Sudermann première is always a red-letter event in our theatrical annals, and, needless to say, every seat in the house was filled. Among the audience were managers from every part of the country, besides distinguished literary, social, and artistic luminaries. It may be stated at once that the new play was a distinct success, the esteemed author being compelled to appear many times in response to enthusiastic applause. The action passes—as in many of Herr Sudermann's plays—in the "milieu" of up-to-date fashionable Berlin circles. Some of the critics detect a resemblance to the plot of a former successful play by the same author—Sodom's Ende. With a pen that cannot quite be termed "scathing," but rather wittily and amiably satirical, Herr Sudermann exposes the follies and frailties of a certain class in his own masterly manner. He shows us how bad we are, how good we ought to be, but at the same time we confidently hope that not all our mothers and daughters are as naughty as the Baroness Erffingen and her young daughter Thea. The former is a kind of modernised Lucrezia Borgia. Her first husband shot one of her lovers in a duel, and, when left a widow, she married another of the numerous throng. Now she is a widow for the second time, with two daughters—Raffaëla and Thea. The Baroness, despite her grey hairs, is at heart the rake and voluptuary she ever was, and her maxim is to make her daughters like her, astonishing as this may seem. She declares they shall inherit her love of life and beauty, her savoir vivre—her love of love itself, and in Thea, the younger, she finds a willing disciple. Thea is a slangy, cheeky child, a demi-vierge, but with a certain fascination and occasional better impulses. She declines the Count her mother had selected for her, and marries (in the second act) her cousin Fred, an idle young good-for-nothing, also with occasional better intentions. Thea, it is true, makes her conditions before entering into the matrimonial compact; one is that they pass the wedding-night in the circus café, "To the Merry Guinea-pig," the other is perfect liberty in the matter of incidental amours, each agreeing to tell the other his and her adventures. To all this Fred consents, and the "interlude"—passed in the Merry Guinea-pig—is the best thing of the kind Herr Sudermann has ever written. The various types of the showman world are there, and a come-down gentleman clown says some plain truths to the frivolous bride. Thea's elder sister Raffaëla is married to a wealthy merchant—Broesemann, who pretty nearly keeps the whole family. Raffaëla would have been perfectly happy with her worthy husband had not poisonous thoughts been instilled into her mind by her mother and sister. It being considered a sine qua non that a married woman must have a lover, Frau Broesemann takes one to herself, with the result that her husband kills him with a boat-hook at a garden fête. This wakes up the foolish Thea and Fred to a better state of things, and the former is cured of her wish to make her "life like a flower-boat, with music and laughter all around—a dream of bliss." The play was faultlessly acted, new to the company being Fräulein Ida Wuest, a young and extremely talented artist.

THE CROWN, PECKHAM.

On Monday, Oct. 15,
the Successful Musical Play, entitled
"A COUNTRY GIRL."

A Country Girl is always a favourite with Peckham audiences, and another visit from this sparkling and melodious musical comedy shows that it has by no means exhausted its power to attract. Mr. George Dance's company give a presentation of the piece which is acceptable in every respect. Mr. Coningsby Brierley is the life and soul of the performance as the irrepressible Barry, singing and dancing throughout the evening with much cleverness. Mr. John M. Hay is very acceptable as Geoffrey Challoner, his song of "Girlie" in the second act being delivered with much success. Miss Cissie Sephton as Mme. Sophie ably assists Mr. Coningsby Brierley in his duets, acting and singing with much vivacity and charm. She scored a great success in "Hello, little girl!" Miss Ellaline Thorne is good as Nan, her assumption of the country accent being admirable, and she rendered "Under the bamboo tree" in capital style. Miss Ernestine Desborough uses her fine voice to great advantage as the Princess Melaneh and her superb rendering of "Under the Deodar" is one of the features of the evening. Mr. F. J. Rooney sings well, and is a dignified Rajah of Bhong, but his make-up is scarcely in keeping with the part. Miss Barbara Babington looks very attractive as Marjory Joy, and possesses a very sweet voice. Mr. H. A. Mather presents a clever study of senility as Granfer Mummery, and Mr. Charles Stafford does all that is possible with the rôle of Douglas Verity. Mr. Arthur Jackson is amusing as the fussy old baronet, Sir Joseph Verity, and Miss Leslie St. John is a dignified Lady Anchester. The minor parts are all creditably played, and full justice is done to the various concerted numbers by the orchestra, under the direction of Mr. Herbert Robinson. Mr. George Blunt acts as business-manager, and Mr. Charles Stafford as stage-manager.

WILLIAM MORGAN JUBILEE.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE ERA.

SIR,—"Lest they forget," will you kindly permit me, through the medium of your columns, to call the attention of the many friends of Mr. William Morgan to the forthcoming celebration at Scarborough, when, as a recognition of fifty years of management, he will be entertained at a banquet, over which the Earl of Londesborough will preside, and be presented with a testimonial of the esteem in which he is held by the members of the dramatic and musical professions and other friends?

Mr. Morgan, as manager of the early Bradford theatres and proprietor of the Aquarium at Scarborough, of which city he has twice served the office of Mayor, is so well esteemed that I feel sure his friends only need this gentle reminder to make them anxious to participate in this interesting celebration. Mr. Valentine Fowler, of Scarborough, as hon. secretary, will be pleased to give all further particulars.—Yours faithfully,

EDWARD TERRY.

THE Prince of Wales' Theatre, Liverpool, which was unsuccessfully offered at auction last week, has been sold privately for business purposes.

DEATH OF STEFANO GATTI.

We regret to record the death of Mr. Stefano Gatti, who, after a long and painful illness from cancer, passed away at his private residence in Bedford-square, on Friday, the 12th inst., at the age of sixty-four.

Mr. Gatti was a native of Dongio, Canton Tessin, Switzerland. His uncle, Carlo Gatti, came to London in the fifties, and opened a café in Villiers-street, Hungerford Market, close to Charing Cross Railway Station. The business proved so successful that Carlo Gatti invited his nephews, his only relatives, to England to help him in its management. Agostino and Stefano Gatti left their native place for London, and both of them took an active share in the ordinary daily work. At the suggestion of Stefano, chops and steaks were added to the daily menu; and the engagement of a string band to play while the customers were eating their dinner was also his idea. The business greatly prospered. In 1862 Messrs. Agostino and Stefano Gatti left the shop in Villiers-street, and took a lease of the Adelaide Gallery, Strand, which they opened with music. But they reckoned without the Vicar of St. Martin's-in-the-Fields, who opposed the music, and his efforts resulted in the band being discharged. Both brothers, however, were determined to succeed, and diligently stuck to their work.

Eight years later the brothers, with characteristic boldness, secured a lease of one of the biggest houses in London, Covent Garden Theatre, where Arditi and Riviere were the conductors, from 1873 onwards, of a series of promenade concerts, at which appeared many of the most celebrated vocalists and instrumentalists of the day. Jack and the Beanstalk, with Sinbad the Sailor and Valentine and Orson, were also produced by the Gattis during the Christmas seasons at the close of the "seventies," when admirable mounting and clever artists helped to secure undoubted success. The brothers Gatti next assumed the tenancy of the Adelphi, in succession to Mr. F. B. Chatterton, and commenced a series of productions which may be said to occupy an important page in the theatrical history of that period. Among these were Dion Boucicault's final efforts, Forbidden Fruit and The O'Dowd, and Michael Strogoff, with its river of fire, and Henry J. Byron in the part of the war correspondent. The first great success was Taken from Life, written by the late Henry Pettitt, and produced in December, 1881. In the following year Edwin Booth appeared at the Adelphi in The Fool's Revenge, his Bertuccio being a very powerful performance. It was in 1883 that Mr. George R. Sims, in combination with Mr. Pettitt, wrote In the Ranks. The partnership proved a remarkable success, and was continued until death dissolved it. The Harbour Lights was also received with enthusiasm, and had a long run. Dramas by Wilkie Collins, Robert Buchanan, Charles Reade, Comyns Carr, and Haddon Chambers, well acted and finely mounted, were produced, but the Pettitt and Sims plays were by far the most successful. William Terriss succeeded Charles Warner as leading man, and in such dramas as The Union Jack, The Silver Falls, &c., rendered himself a supreme favourite, his handsome person and bold, breezy style exactly fitting him for the heroes of Adelphi melodrama. In 1889 he made a trip to America, and his place was filled in the interim by George Alexander, Kyrle Bellew, Chas. Warner, and Henry Neville. Some three or four years later Terriss, who had meanwhile fulfilled engagements at Drury Lane and the Lyceum, returned to the Gattis, and successfully appeared in The Swordsman's Daughter, Boys Together, In the Days of the Duke, and other dramas. Mrs. Patrick Campbell also achieved a notable triumph in that effective melodrama, The Trumpet Call, produced some fifteen years ago. Pettitt's death and Terriss's cruel assassination in December, 1897, had a serious effect upon Adelphi melodrama, and its popularity gradually but surely declined. In 1898 Charlotte Corday was produced, with Mrs. Brown-Potter and Kyrle Bellew in the leading rôles. Gillette made a real success in Secret Service, but The Heart of Maryland did not have a very long career. A well-remembered event was the appearance here of Sarah Bernhardt as Hamlet in 1899. During their long life both brothers retained their attachment for their mother-country, and were elected as Members of the House of Assembly.

Mr. Agostino Gatti, when he died—a millionaire leaving six children, willed all his property to Stefano, who now is succeeded in his business by his two nephews, Messrs. John and Rocco Gatti, who have been associated with their uncle for some time in the superintendence of a large business, which, in addition to the restaurants, includes the active management of the Vaudeville Theatre, which they acquired in 1892.

The late Mr. Gatti was the founder of the Charing Cross Electricity Supply Corporation, in which he had a large interest. He was the owner of a great deal of property in the Strand, and was a man of immense wealth. In character he was very unostentatious, and gave money to charity with great liberality. He numbered many friends, especially among the members of the theatrical profession, and was personally very popular. Mr. Stefano Gatti never married. He felt the loss of old companions and friends very deeply, and the brutal murder of William Terriss, on the threshold of the Adelphi Theatre, gave him a terrible shock, from which it is believed he never wholly recovered.

THE FUNERAL.

The funeral of the late Mr. Stefano Gatti took place on Tuesday. At the requiem mass at 10 a.m. at St. Patrick's Church, Soho, the officiating priests were Canons Bere and Surmont, and Fathers Subra, Sheen, Quinn, Conway, Bendon, Brown, and McGuckin. Three of these reverend gentlemen—namely, Fathers Bendon, Conway, and McGuckin—took part in the funeral service at the graveside in St. Mary's Cemetery, Kensal Green. The principal mourners were Mrs. Agostino Gatti (sister-in-law), Mr. John Gatti (nephew), Mrs. John Gatti, Mr. Rocco Gatti (nephew), Miss Gatti (niece), Baroness de Ville (niece), and the Baron de Ville, who occupied the first two coaches. Following in the funeral carriages were also Mr. Geo. R. Sims, Mr. Richard Butler, the Very Rev. Canon Surmont, Mr. Arthur Collins, Mr. J. M. Glover, Mr. Mervyn Dene, Mr. Walter Gibbons, Mr. G. H. Glasier, Mr. R. Chadwick, Consul Julius Sichel and Son, Mr. Herbert Blackmore, Mr. Herbert Clark, Mr. C. Dundas Slater, Mr. Fladgate (solicitor), Mr. E. W. Seale, Mr. Clyde Young, Mr. Henri Gros, Mr. H. Wilson, Mr. E. A. Baker, Mr. R. A. Northcott, Mr. A. Monica, Mr. M. R. Morand, Mr. John Pritchard, Mr. A. E. Grant, Mr. Joseph Lyons, Mr. St. John Brenon, Mr. A. Moore, Mr. E. A. Morton, Mr. Joseph Davis, Mme. Mona, Mr. E. Johnson, Major Nunn, Mr. R. Chadwick, Mr. Alec Knowles, Colonel Clifford Probyn, Miss Louie Pounds, Mr. Arthur Williams, Mr. Courtice Pounds, Mr. Leslie Stuart, Mr. Walter Slaughter, Mr. Ivan Caryll, Mr. Walter Dickson, Miss Clara Jecks, Mr. Edward Jones, Mr. Leonard Merrick, Mr. Herbert Brown, Miss Ethel Newman, Miss Camille Clifford, Mr. W. Lestocq, Mr. J. W. Mathews, and Mr. Walter Emden.

Mr. Beerbohm Tree, Mr. Arthur Bourchier, Mr. Edward Terry, and Mr. George Dance sent telegrams expressive of their sympathy and their regret at being unable to attend the funeral. Telegrams and letters of condolence came from all parts of England and the Continent. Some thirty or forty carriages were in waiting to convey the mourners, but several theatrical managers and others who could not take advantage of them went to the cemetery in their own private broughams and motor-cars. Among others who were present at the interment were the staffs of the various business concerns with which the deceased gentleman was associated, including the Adelphi Restaurant and the Charing Cross Electricity Supply Corporation, of which the late Mr. Gatti was a director.

Mr. Stefano Gatti is laid to rest in the vault in which his brother, Mr. Agostino Gatti, who died in January, 1897, was interred. The coffin bore the following inscription:—

STEFANO GATTI.
Died 12th October, 1906,
Aged 61 years.
R.I.P.

The number of wreaths was very great, and required three separate hearses to convey them. They were borne in front of the coffin. Among the senders were Sir Squire Bancroft, Mr. Beerbohm Tree ("a token of affectionate remembrance") and Mr. Arthur Bourchier (both of whom were prevented by provincial engagements from being present); Mr. George Edwardes, Mr. George Alexander, Mr. Henry Neville, Mr. and Mrs. Walter Slaughter, Mr. Leslie Stuart, Mr. C. H. Brookfield, the Baron and Baroness de Ville, Mr. C. H. Taylor, Mr. Herbert Clark (business-manager of the Vaudeville Theatre), Major Nunn, Mr. J. P. Mendoza, Mr. Arthur Chudleigh, the City Swiss Club, the Unione Ticinese, Mrs. D'Oyly Carte, Mr. and Mrs. Dundas Slater, Mr. and Mrs. Monico, Mr. W. F. Fladgate, Mr. Brandon Thomas, Mr. H. E. Haines, the officers and staff of the Charing Cross and Strand Electricity Supply Coropration, Messrs. W. Younger and Co., Mr. and Mrs. W. W. Kelly, Mr. George Shelton, Miss Clara Jecks, Mr. Sidney Smith and staff of Drury Lane Theatre, Mme. Suzanne Adams, Miss Zena Dare, Miss Phyllis Dare ("inloving memory of a dear and kind friend"), Miss Cynthia Latham, Mr. J. W. Mathews, Mrs. Joseph Lyons, Mr. and Mrs. F. G. Latham, J. Lyons and Co., Mr. John Pritchard, Mr. Frederick Harrison, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Collins, Mr. and Mrs. George Ashton, Messrs. Francis, Day, and Hunter, Mr. Herbert Blackmore, Mr. Neil Forsyth, Mr. F. W. Wyndham (Edinburgh), Miss W. Hart-Dyke, Mlle. Adeline Génée, Mr. Walter Dickson, Mr. H. J. Hitchins, staff of the Empire Theatre, Mr. Edward Jones (musical-director) and Orchestra of the Vaudeville Theatre, Mr. and Mrs. Edward Terry, the working staff of the Vaudeville Theatre Mr. Charles Hawtrey ("in memory of my dear friend"), Mr. T. Mc. D. Dendle, the members of The Belle of Mayfair London and touring companies, Mr. A. Knowles, Mr. S. E. B. Seale, Mr. Walter Gibbons, Mr. and Mrs. E. W. Seale, the directors of the Alhambra Theatre, Mr. R. Chadwick, Consul Julius Sichel, Mr. Carl Sichel, Mr. G. R. Sims, Mr. Richard Butler, Mr. G. H. Brougham Glasier, Mr. and Mrs. Golding Bright, Mr. Harry Wilson, and Mr. and Mrs. Charles Temperley. Mr. and Mrs. Seymour Hicks sent a wreath "With the deepest sympathy and ever loving and affectionate remembrance of dear 'Uncle,' from Ella and Seymour Hicks." The Vaudeville staff tribute bore the inscription "In affectionate remembrance of our good friend and ever kindly manager." The performers in The Belle of Mayfair sent "In loving and affectionate remembrance from his company." The Adelaide Gallery staff sent a magnificent floral harp as a "Token of love and profound respect," and the Adelphi Restaurant staff also sent a beautiful wreath.

BOROUGH THEATRE, STRATFORD.

On Monday, Oct. 15,
the Musical Play entitled
"THE GIRL BEHIND THE COUNTER."

With two such London "stars" as Miss Isabel Jay and Mr. Hayden Coffin in the cast, The Girl Behind the Counter came to Stratford on Monday night with excellent credentials, and the packed audience that assembled to witness the piece gave eloquent testimony of their appreciation. Undoubtedly Mr. Fred Fredericks's enterprise in booking such a strong attraction with Mr. Frank Curzon's actual company from Wyndham's Theatre should result in a heavy week's business. Miss Jay makes a delightful Winnie Willoughby, and her exquisite vocalism enchants everyone. "Life is just what you make it" is a very charming contribution, and her duets with Mr. Hayden Coffin are rapturously received. Mr. Coffin has, of course, a part that suits him exactly as Charles Chetwynd, and he looks equally at home either as the returned gold digger or in the Court garb of the second act. "The land where the best man wins" and "Some day" afford excellent scope for his great vocal ability. Mr. J. F. McArdle scores a great success as General Sir Wilkie Willoughby and his "Sir Walter Raleigh" burlesque is one of the funniest thing imaginable. All too little is seen of the phlegmatic waiter of the Baron's Court Exhibition, as impersonated by Mr. George Barrett, whose drollery is quite irresistible. Mr. G. Davy Burnaby makes a decided hit in the light comedy rôle of Lord Gushington, and his rendering of "Beastly, awfully jolly!" goes wonderfully well. Miss Violet Englefield makes a very prepossessing Millie Mostyn, and sings "Enid" with appropriate naïveté. Mr. Lionel Victor makes the most of his opportunities as the office boy, Adolphus Dodd, and, besides his own vocal efforts, shares the success of a very pretty duet—"Greenaways"—with Miss Kathleen Courtney. The latter as Susie plays in bright and engaging style; and Miss Helene Rose as Ninette is decidedly successful. Mr. Fred Allandale cleverly depicts the volatile Monsieur Duval; Miss Violet Crossley fulfils all requirements as Lady Willoughby; Rudolf, the commissionaire, is excellently played by Mr Ernest W. Laceby; and Mr. A. E. E. Edwardes does well as the doleful-looking waiter Joseph. The orchestra is this week augmented, and is conducted by Mr. Howard Talbot, the composer of the music. Mr. J. Herbert Jay is Mr. Curzon's general manager for the tour, and Mr. E. F. Bradley is the courteous acting-manager.

DEATH OF MR. JOHN WORSWICK.

With the death of Mr. John Worswick, managing-director of the Royal Court Theatre and the Hippodrome, Wigan, is closed a most remarkable and eventful career. "All the world's a stage, and one man in his time plays many parts." This truism finds no greater amplification in the business world than in the life's work of Mr. Worswick, who, in the course of the sixty-six years that he lived, had been in succession factory hand, bellman and sword-bearer to the ancient borough of Wigan, publican, bill-poster, actor, theatre proprietor, ironmonger and general furnisher, company director, and interested in various other businesses. A shrewd and calculating business man, he was the master of resource in an emergency, and many are the stories that are told of him in the exercise of these qualities. A man of strong determination and will-power, he carried to success every undertaking he took in hand, and throughout his time personally supervised every detail of his commercial affairs. His illness developed serious symptoms four weeks ago, and culminated with his death at his residence at St. Anne's-on-Sea on Friday evening, the 12th inst.

Mr. Worswick was born at 118, Chapel-lane, Wigan, on Nov. 7, 1839. At the early age of nine years, as was customary at that time before the days of factory legislation, he was placed in the same mill in which his father was employed—Tipping's Mill, Henhurst Bridge, Chapel Lane. Two years later, after his day's work in the factory, he used to assist the actors at the Theatre Royal, now demolished, and this brought him in contact with many of the leaders of the theatrical world of that day, and greatly influenced the course of his future life. In 1860 he ceased working in the mill, and began to sell tea round the country-side. He did so well that he was able to purchase a horse and cart, and entered into business as a carrier between Wigan and Hindley. On June 11, 1863, Mr. Worswick was appointed bellman—an office which carried with it the duties of sword-bearer in civic ceremonies and bill-poster to the Corporation of Wigan. The last-mentioned part of his work laid the foundation of one of the most extensive bill-posting business in the Kingdom, viz.—John Worswick and Sons.

In 1864 he commenced to share and "farm" entertainments in Wigan, and surrounding Lancashire towns, including Southport and Blackpool. These were in the "good old and prosperous days," and the ventures proved very successful. Amongst the companies he toured was Sam Hague's original negro minstrel troupe. Mr. Worswick himself was a clever actor, and frequently appeared as substitute at the theatre, etc., and was ever in demand in amateur stage-play performances for charitable purposes. In 1884 he bought a share in a wooden building erected as a circus in the Market-square at Wigan, and worked it to advantage as a music-hall. In May, 1886, in partnership with Mr. H. L. Gee, he leased land in King-street, and erected the Royal Court Theatre, a handsome and well-equipped building, which was opened in November of the same year. In 1890 he took up an interest in the old Theatre Royal, upon the stage of which he had appeared many times in various rôles, chiefly Shakespearian. He also managed the theatre for various lessees and witnessed many vicissitudes through which the old place passed. He was also for a time the licensee of the Shakespeare Hotel attached to the theatre.

In 1903 he leased land adjoining the old theatre, and built the grand Hippodrome, which was opened in March the following year. Mr. Worswick was also one of the directors of the Lytham Pier Company.

Mr. Worswick married in 1862, and leaves behind a widow, five sons, and two accomplished daughters.

The funeral took place in the Catholic churchyard, Wrightington, on Tuesday, amid manifestations of regret of friends and relatives and those intimately associated with his local enterprises.

THE GRAND, FULHAM.

On Monday, Oct. 15,
the Comic Opera, by A. Vanloo and G. Duval, entitled
"THE LITTLE MICHUS."

The stage at the Grand this week has been occupied by a first-class company in one of Mr. George Edwardes's great successes, The Little Michus. The company is a strong one at all points, and the scenery, dresses, and chorus are excellent. There is, however, an additional attraction in the shape of Mr. George Groves in the part of General des Ifs. The two Michus are played by the Misses Iris Hoey and Thelma Raye, a charming and dainty pair. Miss Florence Parfrey is good as Mme. Michu, and Miss Alice Oppitz satisfactory as Mlle. Herpin, the schoolmistress; while Miss Adeline Lester contributes a humorous sketch of the old market woman. Mr. W. Tailleur Andrews is a fine, manly representative of the dashing soldier, Gaston Rigaud, his singing being deservedly applauded; Mr. Leonard Mackay possesses a good share of quiet humour, and makes a good representative of Aristide; and Mr. Jack Cannot is well suited in the part of Bagnolet, into which he puts plenty of fun, dancing admirably. Mr. George Miller is very amusing as Pierre Michu, the much-worried father, who mixed the babies in the bath, and so gave rise to the confusion. Mr. Willie Warde, jun., who is responsible for the dances, represents an old market man, and draws many a laugh. There remains Mr. George Groves, who is of course quite inimitable and exquisitely funny. On Monday he scarcely allowed his audience a minute's breathing time between their fits of laughter. His extraordinary attitudes, his weird descriptions, and his witty retorts follow one another without an effort in such rapid succession that the laughter never ceases. The whole production is admirable, and has been received with the greatest delight by full houses.

MR. TREE LECTURES IN LIVERPOOL

The Guild of Undergraduates assembled in force at the University of Liverpool on Tuesday to listen to an eloquent lecture by Mr. Beerbohm Tree on "The Highways and Byways of Shakespeare." Mr. Herbert G. Williams, who presided, made appreciative reference to Mr. Tree's eminence in the dramatic art.

Mr. Tree, who was heartily received, said the fertile soil of Shakespeare's imagination was particularly congenial to him, as his career had more and more resolved itself into that of a Shakespearean actor, and his theatre, greatly to his own satisfaction, had tended more and more to become the house in which Shakespeare was the predominant feature. When they asked an actor to address them he knew they had a lurking hope that he would not give an academic exposition such as might more effectively be procured from some of their own members, but that he would in some way disclose the secrets of the prison-house, and speak about Shakespeare as an actor of Shakespeare. The practical experience of an actor in relation to Shakespearean productions was probably more interesting to them than would be learned theories upon Shakespeare and Bacon, or upon the mysterious "W. H." of the sonnets. He had endured considerable criticism in daring to produce Shakespeare in a manner that seemed to his mind calculated to render the great dramatist's works popular and understood. There was a certain school who apparently imagined that Shakespeare should be presented on the twentieth century stage in the same manner and with the same limitations as were necessarily observed on the stage of the Globe Theatre in the sixteenth century. Some people also seem to regard Shakespeare as a sacrosanct writer who considered the limited conditions of his own day as perennial and eternal, but to him (Mr. Tree) Shakespeare was a much greater man, who did not regard those conditions as ideal or final, and who had longed for a more spacious setting. Surely there must have been a consciousness of the after-life of his genius and that splendid conceit which all artists must have and ought or they went under. His was the master-mind which rose superior to the limitations of his own century, bending to his will the theatrical machinery of his own time, and writing plays that could be presented with all the developed opportunities of subsequent centuries. To worthily depict Shakespeare, scenic embellishment must be as beautiful and costly as the subject of the drama being presented seemed to demand, and it should not be subordinate to but rather harmonious with the dramatic interest. Wagner had made the nearest approach to Shakespeare in his dramatic genius, availing himself of all the effects with which modern art could help him, no doubt saying to himself as Molière said, "Je prends mon bien on je le trouve." Wagner perhaps would not have been so great but for the divine right of a mad king. He wished there were a few more mad kings about. Only the weakling harked back echoically to the methods of a bygone generation. That painter was surely greater who saw nature, human and otherwise, with the clear eyes of his own time rather than through the blurred spectacles of a bygone age. No man was great in any walk of life unless he was, in the best sense, of his own time.

Referring to the modern stage, Mr. Tree said he took it that the entire business of the stage was illusion. To gain this end all means were fair. Illusion was the first and last word of the stage; all that aided illusion was good, all that destroyed illusion was bad. That simple law governed them—or should govern them. In that compound of all the arts which is the art of the modern theatre, the sweet grace of restraint was, of course, necessary, and the scenic embellishments should not overwhelm the dramatic interest, or the balance was upset, the illusion gone. Shakespeare's character drawing, his drama, was not mediæval, it was representative of human nature no less in modern than in far distant days. Kings were his slaves. What were the actualities of their lives as compared with their value in the pages of his genius! They served but as the models for his spacious canvas. It was, indeed, the enormous merit of Shakespeare that they could ignore in his case the passage of centuries. Interesting as a purely archaic might be to the epicure in archæology, a work of art, if it was to continue to live, must appeal to after ages as well as to the generation in which it was presented. Shakespeare's greatness was not only a national greatness. His reputation, his influence, widened and had already extended beyond the bounds of the Empire. His greatness, indeed, was not only historical, but also geographical.

Mr. Tree then dilated upon his forthcoming production at His Majesty's of Anthony and Cleopatra, and gave interesting details of the nature of the work this entailed upon him, and something of the evolution of a Shakespearian production. To put this play on the modern stage exactly as it was printed in the Shakespeare folios was to attempt the impractical and to court failure. As printed, of the five acts of the play two of them consisted of eleven and thirteen scenes respectively, the whole five acts comprising no less than thirty-eight separate scenes. In the preparation of a prompt book he at once found that many of these scenes could be merged into one, and those of them who did him the honour of witnessing his production would find that the thirty-eight scenes and the five acts were incorporated into four acts and eighteen scenes.

GUILDHALL SCHOOL OF MUSIC.

An excellent concert was given by the students of the Guildhall School on Wednesday evening. The programme commenced with a duet for two pianofortes, "Variations on a theme of Beethoven" (Saint-Saëns), neatly executed by Miss Muriel Hearson and Miss Katie Gray. Tartini's violin solo, "Sonata in G Minor," had a gifted exponent in Miss Hilda Lett, who played with good tone and remarkable freedom of execution; Miss Katie Gray also did herself credit in her piano solo, "Frühlingsrauchen," by Sinding, and "Zug der Zweigen" (Grieg). A very clever mandoline solo was given by Miss Lillie Selden, A.G.S.M., who chose the Adagio and Allegro from Max Bruch's by no means easy "Concerto in G. Minor," the youthful performer at the close being heartily applauded. Other instrumentalists were Mr. Wallis Bandey, who gave good expression to Moszkowski's piano solo, "Etude de Concert in C sharp Minor"; and Miss Kathleen B. Hicks and Miss Dorothy S. Wright, who were heard in a duet for two pianos, "Variations on an Original Air," by Arthur Somervell. The vocalists also did great credit to their professors and to the school. Mrs. Daisy Goulder, although slightly nervous, sang "The Sands of Dee" with purity of intonation; and Miss Elsie Lester used her fine contralto with admirable effect in Lewis Carey's clever musical setting of the hymn, "Nearer, my God, to Thee." Leoncavallo's pretty song, "'Tis the day," was capitally sung by Mr. Harold Pattison; Mr. Robert Carr, too, gave good expression to "Songs of the East"—"Invocation to the Nile" (Egypt), "Drinking Song" (Persia), and "Song of the Sword" (Japan)—three songs by Granville Bantock, of which the most characteristic was the "Invocation to the Nile." Mr. Carr has a fine bass voice, and is the School (bass) prize-winner of 1904. Another clever vocalist was Miss Maude Willby, who sang "Villanelle," by Del' Acqua, in capital style. A pupil of Signor G. Garcia, Miss Helen Elsie Wright, sang well, but was somewhat unfortunate in her choice, as Allitsen's "Like as the hart" hardly suited her voice. Miss Jenny Hyman was of the utmost service as accompanist.

LONDON & SUBURBAN THEATRES.

THE MARLBOROUGH.

On Monday, Oct. 15,
the Play, by E. W. Peple, entitled
"THE PRINCE CHAP."

Since the announcement was put forth that Mr. A. H. Canby's company, in The Prince Chap, was to visit Holloway, patrons of this house have been anxiously awaiting its arrival, and it must have been a great gratification to the management to witness the enthusiasm of a very large house on Monday and throughout the week. The reception of the piece, which is presented precisely as it was given at the Criterion, in the matter of company, scenery, costumes, and all effects, was cordial in the extreme, and at the close the curtain has had to be raised at least a half a dozen times. The utmost praise is to be accorded the company as a whole, but it is to Mr. H. R. Roberts that the attention of the audience is chiefly directed. Mr. Roberts' acting of the rôle of the sculptor, William Peyton, is distinguished by ease, and his finish, pleasing stage presence, cultured voice, and distinct elocution combine to render the assumption perfect. Claudia, in Act I., is undertaken in a pleasingly childish manner by Little Betty Green, and in Act II. by Little Geraldine Wilson, the arch and winning nature of her acting taking the house by storm. Miss Lorna Laurence also achieves a success as Claudia in the last act, her performance being marked by great charm and artistic feeling. Mr. George Shelton makes a great hit with his clever playing as Marcus Runion, his impersonation being a quaint and humorous piece of comedy acting, which keeps the house in a continuous state of laughter. Mr. Wilfred Draycott's Earl of Henningford is a carefully-studied performance, and the parts of Ballington, Jadder, and Fritz are commendably undertaken by Messrs. A. E. Greenaway, Arthur Eldred, and Ivan Berlyn. Miss Ethel Hollingshead creditably undertakes the rôle of Alice Travers, and Miss Kathleen Kellie, who enacts the part of Mrs. Harrington, is responsible for some very impressive acting. No better exponent of Phœbe Puckers could be found than Miss Adie Boyne, her easy and amusing style being greatly appreciated. The Prince Chap is preceded by a one-act comedy, entitled The Burglar and the Judge, in which Mr. Ivan Berlyn scores considerably as Mr. Justice Gyves, being ably supported by Mr. Arthur Eldred as Burglar Joe and Mr. A. E. Greenaway as Parkhurst.

KING'S THEATRE, HAMMERSMITH.

On Monday, Oct. 15,
the Drama entitled
"EAST LYNNE."

That East Lynne will always attract was clearly demonstrated at the King's on Monday evening, when a crowded audience manifested the utmost approval of this well-worn play. The episodes in which Little Willie and his erring mother took part appealed powerfully to the more emotional members of the audience. The occasion served to introduce Miss Dorothy Grimston to the playgoers of Hammersmith. She played the character of Lady Isabel with power and sincerity, and duly won the sympathy of the house. Miss Grimston gave signs of ability which should ensure her attaining to a position on the stage not far below that of her celebrated parents. As Archibald Carlyle, Mr. Walner Gregory was exceedingly satisfactory, and the cool villainy of Captain Levison was well accentuated by Mr. Frank Harding; Mr. Harry Barford was a capable Justice Hare, and Richard Hare was capitally played by Mr. Harvey White. The Lawyer Dill of Mr. Edward Sidney quite suited the humour of the audience, and Mr. James A. Storey displayed the necessary dignity as Lord Mounisevern. Mr. Lloyd Townrow as Bullock, the policeman, was irresistibly funny, the front scenes in which he appeared being eagerly looked forward to. Miss Helena Millais made a charming Barbara Hare; and Miss Agnes Byron as Cornelia Carlyle rendered good service to the piece. Miss Mary Stafford-Smith skilfully represented Joyce, and Miss Marion Beresford was a smart Suzanne. Miss Dorothy Townrow effectively undertook the part of Wilson. Little Willie found a very graceful impersonator in Miss Dolly Swift; and Miss Maud Lord nicely pictured Little Isabel.

THE CAMDEN.

On Monday, Oct. 15,
the Musical Comedy entitled
"THE LADY MADCAP."

After two weeks of Gilbert and Sullivan's operas, a return is made to the musical play of the present day, and The Lady Madcap is quite one of the best of the recent musical comedy productions. Mr. Paul A. Rubens has written some really charming songs, the book bristles with amusing lines, and the whole production is one of the brightest possible character. In the rôle of Lady Betty, the madcap, we find that charming young actress Miss Vera Vere, who plays the part in a delightful manner. She is full of energy, and her high spirits are quite infectious. Miss Vera Vere sings admirably, and her dancing is decidedly good. Mr. H. V. Surrey is a first-class comedian, his embodiment of Trooper Smith being screamingly funny. Mr. Surrey is naturally compared with the originator of the character, Mr. G. P. Huntley, but he is no slavish imitator, and plays it to a large extent on his own lines, and is most successful. Mr. Alex. Chentrens as the Count St. Hubert has some delightful songs, which he sings in a most artistic manner, and his rendering in French of some of the present-day popular songs is excellent. Miss Maisie North is a charming Gwenny Holden; and Miss Peggy Primrose is captivating as Susan. Mr. Percival Knight is distinctly good as Stoney Stratford; while his confederate, Posh Jenkins, is portrayed in a most whimsical fashion by Mr. Oliver J. Round. Colonel Layton is capitally played by Mr. R. S. Comber; and Mr. F. C. Leister does well as Captain Batherswaite. Mr. Douglas Philipps is smart as Captain Harrington, and his song, "It's a way they have in the Army," has a rare swing with it. Mr. Tommy Nelldon appears as Corporal Ham, and is very amusing in the character. Mr. Martyn Roland acts Lord Framlingham in a suitable manner; while Mr. Ralph Henson makes an acceptable Palmer. The other characters are carefully played, and there is an excellent chorus, whose hard work is to be commended. Mr. Ernest Hartmann has the orchestra under his able direction; and Mr. Arthur Davis is the manager for Mr. George Dance, whose company this is. The scenery is of the prettiest description, and the dresses are very tasteful.

CORONET THEATRE.

On Tuesday, Oct. 16,
the Comic Opera, entitled
"THE GONDOLIERS."

It is with great pleasure that we record the hearty welcome given to the D'Oyly Carte principal opera company this week on their return visit to the pretty theatre at Notting Hill Gate, under the business-management of Mr. H. R. Bellamy. The programme for the week consisted of The Mikado Monday and to-night, Tuesday The Gondoliers, Wednesday The Yeoman of the Guard, Thursday Iolanthe, Friday H.M.S. Pinafore. A house crowded in every corner, and including Mrs. D'Oyly Carte in a private box, welcomed The Gondoliers on Tuesday night, and encored every item for all the world as if a new opera were being put before them. As we listened to the felicitous phrasing of the libretto and the flowers of fancy with which the lyrics teem, one could but think that Mr. W. S. Gilbert must have been "born under a rhyming planet." The dainty melodies, sparkling like champagne, which sprang from the facile pen of the late Sir Arthur Sulli-van, too, steep the senses in delight and rapturous appreciation. Mr. C. H. Workman is admirable as the needy Duke of Plaza Toro, his dignity and delightful drollery and mock heroic melodramatic manner are excruciatingly funny, and the songs and jeux d'esprit allotted to him are delivered in inimitable fashion. Mr. Leicester Tunks is very well cast as Luiz, his attendant, and afterwards King of Barataria, and he shows to much advantage in the sweetly pretty duet with Casilda, "Bury, bury, let the grave close o'er." This latter part of Casilda is deliciously rendered by Miss Mabel Graham, who acts and sings charmingly with winsome grace, refinement, and spontaneity. Mr. Fred Billington as the kind, genial old gentleman Don Alhambra del Bolero who, as Grand Inquisitor, grapples with the most difficult problems of State and expounds them in song, is most laughable and clever. Miss Hope Hastings makes a fascinating Gianetta, and sings the song "Kind sir, you cannot have the heart" exquisitely, and acts with agreeable animation and vitality. Miss Lulu Evans is a bright and vivacious Tessa, and trips it on the light fantastic toe in most taking manner. Mr. Pacie Ripple gains applause for his rendition of "Take a pair of sparkling eyes," and is first rate as Marco; whilst Mr. Albert Kavanagh is full of life and humour as the other gondolier, Guiseppe Palmieri. Miss Theresa Rassam is good as the stately Duchess of Plaza-Toro, and she excels in her songs and duets with her lord and master, the Duke of Plaza-Toro. Mr. Fred Drawater does well in the small part of Antonio; and Misses Mabel Burnage, Elsie Carey, and Bessell Adams head a most capable and efficient chorus; nor must we forget Miss Ellen Whyte as Inez, the King's foster-mother. The operas are reproduced under the stage direction of Mr. F. A. Leon, whilst Mr. François Cellier conducts the augmented orchestra.

DALSTON THEATRE.

On Monday, Oct. 15,
the Domestic Drama entitled
"TWO LITTLE DRUMMER BOYS."

Mr. Walter Howard's drama Two Little Drummer Boys, which is being played this week at the Dalston Theatre, is sandwiched between a musical comedy and the most boisterous of musical farces. Last week Florodora enthralled by its melody, and next week comes Sergeant Brue. In Two Little Drummer Boys Mr. Edward Bikker represents the busy officer General Kingsley, V.C., and plays the part to perfection; Mr. Fred Emery, Mr. Archie Helsby, Mr. Charles Gallier, and Mr. Philip Redgrave are brother officers; and certain minor military individuals are represented by Mr. J. Margarth, Mr. Harry Lyndon, and Mr. Frank Hoyd. Mr. Harry Greenburn appears as the Rev. John Rivers, Vicar of Riverdale, and is appropriately placed and dignified throughout; Mr. Fred Newburn is a warder; and Mr. F. Winter and Mr. T. Kennedy capably fill the characters known as Tom Grant and Joe Smith respectively. Miss Edie Macklin is quite a favourite as Molly Meadows, the regiment's sweetheart; Miss Mildred Eversleigh is just sufficiently dignified as Alma Kingsley, the General's daughter; while Miss Kathleen Magee is dramatically realistic as Margaret Rivers, otherwise known as Drunken Meg. The two little drummer boys are represented by Miss Lily Beverley (Eric Carsdale) and Miss Maggie English (Jack Smith). They act admirably together, the different natures of the characters not being for a moment forgotten. Mr. and Mrs. F. G. Kimberley's company is presenting the drama.

KENNINGTON THEATRE.

On Monday, Oct. 15,
the Comedy, by Paul Rubens, entitled
"MR POPPLE (OF IPPLETON)."

"One of the freshest and most original comedies of recent years" must be the judgment passed on Mr. Popple (of Ippleton), which was introduced to a large and expectant audience at Kennington Theatre by Mr. Chas. Macdona. The highest expectations of Mr. G. P. Huntley's delineation of the part which he so triumphantly created were more than realised, for he kept the house full of merriment the whole of the time he was on the stage. Bright and lively as the comedy is, it is nevertheless no exaggeration to say that the feature of the performance was the clever study which Mr. Huntley gave of the character of Freddy Popple. He was ably supported by a strong company, the music was catchy, the songs were topical, the dances tricky, and the staging all that could be desired; but, despite all this, it was Freddy Popple, the simple, unaffected country gentleman, with rustic mannerisms and a pocket-ful of apples, who captivated the audience, and Mr. Huntley's happy efforts on Monday added yet another laurel to his brow. He was admirably seconded by Miss Nellie Legarde as La Bolero, for she is an accomplished comedienne, and sings well, her song, "La-la-loo," being triply encored. As Louise, maid to La Bolero, Miss Nellie Hodson exhibited a great deal of vivacity, her messenger boy dance and song being accorded a big ovation. Mr. Basil Foster was effective as Norman Popple; and much fun was caused by Mr. Sidney Young and Mr. James Stevenson as the giddy old admirers of La Bolero. Miss Kate Forster and Miss Ella Daincourt were very good as the indignant suburban wives of La Bolero's admirers, the former playing the predominant partner to perfection. Mr. Arthur Grover deserves a word for his interpretation of the part of La Bolero's lover, and his song in the first act was finely rendered. Miss Eva Kelly looked exceedingly pretty as Norman Popple's sweetheart, and acted her girlish part as prettily as she looked. Mr. C. M. Daly displayed much versatility as Platt, becoming quite a warm favourite with everyone. The "Scarlet Runners" of the chorus danced and sang quite brilliantly, whilst the whole of the concerted numbers went with a swing which reflected the greatest credit on the musical conductorship of Mr. Julian Rutt.

THEATRE ROYAL, STRATFORD.

On Monday, Oct. 15,
the Drama, in Five Acts, by E. Hill-Mitchelson, entitled
"THE FRENCH SPY."

Mr. Fred Benton and his company are paying a return visit to the Theatre Royal this week with The French Spy, which is repeating its former success. Mr. Richard Fulton makes a manly and outspoken Captain Sommers; and an incisive portraiture of Count Romanoff comes from Mr. Max Coutts. Mr. L. Chaseby is a smart representative of Lieut. Maxwell, and Mr. George Sherraton does well as Petross Romanoff. Mr. Lincoln Calthorpe is a soldierly representative of General Trepoff, and Mr. Claud Aymond makes a dignified Lord Aynsley. Mr. Charles Digby plays the foppish Viscount Alexis with excellent effect, and Mr. Seymour Perry is always amusing as the diminutive Knipps. Mr. Fred Benton looks the part of the German strong man, Fritz, and gives a most consistent performance. Miss A. Harrison Tate plays very powerfully as the handsome adventuress Olga; Miss Gertrude Evans handles the part of the Countess Andre with much tact and sympathy; and Miss Cissie Cleveland makes a bright and engaging Julie.

NEW PRINCE'S THEATRE, POPLAR.

On Monday, Oct. 15,
the Musical Comedy, in Three Acts, by Owen Hall, entitled
"SERGEANT BRUE."

Messrs. Lockwood and Crossman's company, in Sergeant Brue, is receiving a very warm welcome from the discriminating public of Poplar, who always appreciate talent. Mr. Arthur Reynolds in the title-rôle makes an excellent type of the good-tempered and jovial policeman, and earns hearty applause for his able rendering of the part. As Crookie Scrubbs Mr. Charles McLagan could not be bettered. He is a finished comedian, and can be really funny without being vulgar, his comicalities and witty sallies keeping the audience continually on the laugh. Mr. E. Percy Rogers is very successful as Michael Brue, and Mr. Charles Sims as Mr. Crank, the magistrate, is also very good. Miss Mary Hay is well suited with the part of Aurora Brue, her "Panama" song receiving a well deserved encore. Miss Marion Harpare invests the servant girl, Daisy, with a distinctively humorous character, and Miss Mabel Keith makes an attractive Mabel Widget. The Lady Beckenhall of Miss Hebe Bliss is charming and clever. Her singing is worthy of high commendation, "Instinct" receiving hearty applause and many demands for extra verses. Mr. Harry Soutar is very satisfactory as Matthew Habisham, and Mr. Cecil Hood is a capital Inspector Gorringe. Smaller parts are all well filled, and the chorus do their work with excellent effect.

THE SHAKESPEARE.

On Monday, Oct. 16,
the Comedy, by Brandon Thomas, entitled
"CHARLEY'S AUNT."

Notwithstanding the many years she has been before the gaze of the public, Charley's Aunt is still as vigorous as ever, and from the large crowds that have attended each performance at the Shakespeare Theatre this week it is also very evident that her powers of attraction have not diminished. Produced under the direction of the author, and acted by a really capable company, the piece on Monday evening met with a most cordial reception. Mr. Stanley Cooke as Lord Fancourt Babberly avails himself to the utmost of all the comic opportunities which the part presents, and he keeps the audience in a continual state of merriment throughout. Mr. C. B. Keston gives an admirable delineation of Colonel Sir Francis Chesney, Bart., and scores a decided success. The rôles of the two undergraduates, Jack Chesney and Charlie Wykeham, are in the safe hands of Mr. Hastings Lynn and Mr. Richard B. Mason, who both contribute sterling performances. The pompous Stephen Spettigue has an excellent representative in Mr. Walter Beaumont, who looks and acts the part admirably; whilst Mr. Sydney Compton as the college scout, Brasset, causes much merriment. Miss Lena MacNaughton is a handsome and commanding Donna Lucia D'Alvadorez; and Miss Lilyan Lait, Miss Kitty Carew, and Miss Gladys Storey are charming in their respective rôles of Kitty Verdun, Amy Spettigue, and Ela Delahay. Charley's Aunt is preceded by a one-act play by the same author, entitled Fourchette and Co., which is well received, the various rôles being sustained by Miss Gladys Storey, and Messrs. C. B. Keston, Syd Compton, and George Ellis.

THE GRAND, WOOLWICH.

On Monday, Oct. 15,
the Musical Pantomimical Comedy, entitled
"THE SWISS EXPRESS."

The Brothers Renad and company are paying a return visit here this week with their merry musical comedy The Swiss Express, and Woolwich playgoers, who already owe them thanks for many hearty laughs in the past, have been turning up in good numbers to increase their indebtedness. Uproarious merriment is indeed the order of the evening while these talented brothers are on the stage, for while they have little or nothing to say, they seem to have a positive genius for the invention of comically illustrative business. At the same time, their acting is entirely good-humoured and free from offence of any description, and the audience so thoroughly enjoy the perplexities to which poor Doctor Gull is put by the eccentricities of his footmen that they have no room for pity for the doctor himself. The last-named character is drolly played by Mr. Johnny McElroy, whose rendering of the harassed medico is humorous in the extreme, the doctor's exasperation during his nerve-shattering experiences on board the express being portrayed with great skill. Miss Ida Ernest makes a vivacious and pleasing Virginia, dancing nicely, and scoring a success with her "Bungalow" song. Mr. Alec Wylie is amusing as Dudley Green, a "masher" of the most pronounced type; Mr. George Martin does well as Rob Rollingstone; Mr. Harwood Cooper works hard in the dual rôle of Jack Gadabout and Admiral Bombshell; Miss Dora Moorhouse makes the most of Mrs. Septimus Squeeze; and Mr. C. Gray as Squeeze and Mr. A. Bernard as the landlord contribute to the fun of the evening. A much-appreciated item is the dancing of the Edene Quartette.

CRYSTAL PALACE THEATRE.

On Monday, Oct. 15,
the Musical Comedy, in Two Acts, entitled
"THE BELLE OF NEW YORK."

"The Belle" bids fair to be always popular, and is being played here to the largest audiences of the present season of Mr. Bannister Howard's management. A largely augmented orchestra, special scenery, and pretty and varied costumes, all went to complete the success.

Mr. Paddy Duprès was excellent as Ichabod Bronson, and in his songs scored heavily; and Mr. John Doran as Harry well embodied the all too susceptible man about town, and was in good voice. The Polite Lunatic of Mr. Max Copeland was a quaint study, both in get-up and manner. Mr. Alfred Sandoe as Doc. Snifkins, and Mr. Walter Uridge as Kenneth Mugg played well together as the manager and low comedian of the Cora Angelique Opera Company. Mr. Frank Lawton in his original part of Blinky Bill, whistled, acted, and danced himself into great popularity, and had many encores. He received excellent support from Miss Florence Hersée as Mamie Clancy, her dancing and singing in a Japanese scena in the last scene being alike good.

Miss Empsie Bowman at once gave refinement, grace, and daintiness to the part of Violet Gray, the Belle, and Miss Lily Maxwell as Fifi Fricot was as full of verve as a typical Parisienne could be. Miss Winnie Browne, in a series of magnificent costumes, well impersonated Cora Angelique, the comic opera queen.

The brothers Count Ratsi and Patsi Rattattoo were in the hands of Messrs. Lionel Yeoman and R. L. Cody, their simultaneous actions and twin-like appearance being genuinely funny. A deal of amusement was extracted from the newspaper illustrated interview with young Bronson, where Messrs. Owen O'Brien and Townley Searle as the Reporter and Photographer respectively, burlesqued the situation. A bevy of tastefully-dressed damsels appeared as chorus in various guises, and Mr. Ernee Woodville was the musical director.

CASTLE THEATRE, RICHMOND.

On Thursday, Oct. 18,
the Comedy entitled
"THE SCHOOL FOR SCANDAL."

"The comedy is finished; I have now nothing to do but write it." Thus spoke Richard Brinsley Sheridan, and surely never dramatic author more deserves his success. That to-day The School for Scandal is as much appreciated as in 1777, when it was originally produced at Drury Lane, is an argument more eloquent than columns of adulation. The version played at the Castle Theatre, Richmond, closely follows the original, and the comedy proved it had lost none of its sterling excellence which for a century and a quarter has delighted playgoers and lovers of the drama. Mr. Philip Gordon played Sir Peter with delightful freshness, and proved himself an actor of ripe experience; his fine elocution was a feature of the performance. Mr. Edward Landor did admirably as Sir Oliver Surface, and won success by a clever performance. The hypocritical Joseph Surface was capital. As the devil-may-care Charles, Mr. Ian Maclaren scored a complete and legitimate success. Rowley found an unobtrusive exponent in Mr. Stafford Dawson. The humours of the Semitic money-lender Moses were not neglected by Mr. W. Kane; Mr. Gordon Phillpott was sufficiently acrimonious as Sir Benjamin Backbite; Miss Edith Coleman was charming as Lady Teazle; Maria was capably represented by Miss Violet Barnett; excellent work was done by Miss Gertrude Littlewood as Lady Sneerwell; Mrs. Henry Howard as Mrs. Candour was natural, and proved herself to be a clever and capable actress. Minor parts were very satisfactorily filled by Messrs. Bryant, Meharry, and Barnes. On Friday evening David Garrick filled the bill. Mr. Arthur Howard is in charge of the front of the house, and may be complimented on his success.

COUNTY THEATRE, KINGSTON.

On Monday, Oct. 15,
the Farcical Comedy, in Three Acts,
by R. C. Carton, entitled
"MR. HOPKINSON."

Mr. Chas. Macdona's principal company is appearing here this week in this highly diverting production, and a good house gave the play a favourable reception at the first of six performances on Monday evening. They seemed to enjoy immensely the drolleries of Mr. Frank Stanmore in the title-rôle, which were really very funny. Miss Marie Hassell was a great favourite in the part of the Duchess of Braceborough; and Mr. Chas. Heslop achieved a marked success as the Hon. Otho Dursingham. Good work was also put in by Miss Gladys Jesson as Lady Tyra Eggiesby, by Mr. Arnold Lucy as the Duke of Braceborough, by Mr. Shirley Lea as the Earl of Addleton, by Mr. Reginald Dane as Lord Cawthorpe, by Mr. Geo. McCloskie as Mr. Smethurst, by Mr. Vincent Galley as Parbury, by Mr. J. G. Lowther as Blunt, and by Mrs. Katherine M. Romsey as Eliza Dibbs. A comedietta, entitled A Love Game, in which the two parts were ably sustained by Miss Marjorie Chard and Mr. C. M. Heslop, preceded the play.

THE LYRIC, HAMMERSMITH.

On Monday, Oct. 15,
the Drama, by Edward Thane, entitled
"THE SLAVE OF SIN."

This week the exciting melodrama The Slave of Sin is drawing large audiences to the Lyric. Gordon Morley, the unfortunate hero of the piece, is played with considerable skill by Mr. Arthur Bawtree, who is a gentleman much appreciated by Hammersmith playgoers; Miss Minnie Grey as Elsie Beresford receives applause at every appearance; Mr. Fred Morgan as Dr. Selby, pithily described on the programme as a disgrace, proves once more his ability to impersonate a villain with success; as Professor Morley Mr. J. P. Dryden is decidedly well placed; while Mr. A. P. Kaye is quietly amusing as Wily. The title-rôle is played by Miss Nellie Fletcher, who portrays the adventuress to the life. In the light comedy part of Clara Jenkins Miss May Seton causes much amusement. She is assisted in the pleasant art of making fun by Mr. Geo. Ellis, who gives us a droll study of a French hairdresser. Mr. Bert Morley, with skill, gives a pathetic picture of Stephen Fletcher, a street artist; as Mother Moocher Miss Nell Gilmore does good work. Others who deserve a word of commendation are Mr. Ashton Winslow as Pawson, Mr. Ernest Jones as Peter Tomlin, Mr. J. E. Manning as Jim Ankin, Mr. John Bell as Governor Simons, Mr. James Kitson as Warder Thompson, and Mr. Jack Dale as Bobby.

THE WEST LONDON.

On Monday, Oct. 15,
the Drama, in Four Acts, by Arthur Shirley, entitled
"THE MIDNIGHT MAIL."

This powerful play of Mr. Shirley's is always a big attraction in Marylebone, and this week, Dottridge and Longden's company made a bigger success than ever. As the drunken stoker, Billy Brewer, Mr. Fred G. Evison gives an admirable display of histrionic talent, his every action being in keeping with this character. Mr. Robert Grey is eloquent and plain-spoken as Leonard Royle; Mr. Arthur Gilroy is fervent and passionate as Hassan Padisha; Mr. Charles McCann does exceedingly well as Donald Craig; Mr. H. Dobell Lyle is suitably cast as Jasper Thornleigh; whilst Mr. Alfred Goddard is responsible for a most vivid portrayal of Harry Steyne, his struggle with Billy Brewer, in the cab of the engine of the midnight mail being so realistic as to send shudders through the house. Miss Mildred Carr is piquant and pert as Nancy Brewer; Miss Grace Chesterfield is a benevolent Mrs. Mildmay; Miss Phyllis Dailley is decidedly good as Lady Phyllis Eustace; and Miss Ada Oakley's impersonation of the persecuted Mary Steyne could scarcely be improved upon, and her success is quite deserved. The piece is capitally mounted and staged, and the all-round excellence of the company is most marked.

RICHMOND THEATRE.

On Thursday, Oct. 18,
the Comic Opera,
"VERONIQUE."

Surely the residents of Richmond owe a debt of gratitude to Mr. George Dance for his delightful entertainment of Thursday; it was a graceful act, too, to bring his Veronique company to the Surrey borough at a time when musical events are ever welcome. The production met with an enthusiastic reception, and the house was packed from floor to ceiling. Quite excellent was the interpretation. Mr. Leslie Holland—who also produced the opera—was unctuously funny as Mons. Coquenard, and kept the audience in a ripple of merriment; his business throughout was of the drollest character. Especially was this evident in Act I., where he receives his captain's commission; he was equally happy in Act II., in his share of the mock duet, in conjunction with Mons. Loustot, cleverly played by Mr. Fred Lyne. Miss Ethel Negretti was delightfully clever as Agatha, and fully entered into the fun of the play; possessing a singularly powerful voice, her various songs were finely rendered, and she contributed very materially to the success of the production. Perhaps her best effort in the piece was her delightful treatment of the ballad "The Apple Tree." To Mr. Roland Bottomley fell the rôle of Florestan, and it could not have been in better hands. In excellent voice, he did ample justice to Andrée Messager's score, and many of his numbers were redemanded. Miss Ruth Lincoln was irresistibly charming as Veronique, and sang very sweetly. "The Swing" song brought the inevitable encore. Perhaps one of the most artistic hits of the performance was reserved for Miss May Leslie, who, as Aunt Benoit, won much applause for her tasteful interpretation of "The Garden of Love." Mr. Courtenay Comber was cast for Seraphin, and did remarkably well; nor should Denise (Miss Grace Sinclair) be omitted for honourable mention. She sang with much sweetness throughout. Miss Lena Maitland was dignified as La Comtessé de Champ Azur; Mr. Tom Robertson was reliable in a part that presents but few opportunities; excellent work was done by Mr. Maurice Ogle; and the chorus merit more than ordinary mention.

The danger of leaving "properties" in an unprotected state at railway stations was exemplified on Saturday last, when a man at Liverpool received six months' hard labour for stealing a theatrical hamper, with contents valued at £25, from the Exchange Station. The previous Sunday afternoon a lady artist arrived in town with the hamper, and left it for a short time outside the cloakroom, from which spot it quickly disappeared. The thief was caught whilst attempting to sell a pair of slippers taken from the hamper.

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

An interesting play into which the feats of a number of popular illusionists are ingeniously worked saw the light at Ilkeston on Monday, and met with an enthusiastic reception. The play commences with the preparations for the festivities in connection with the silver wedding of Lord and Lady Kinton, which are being held in the gardens of the Old White Bull. Whilst Lord and Lady Kinton are on their way to the gardens they are robbed by some men in possession of a motor-car, a diamond necklace being amongst the spoils. One of the men is recognised by Lord Kinton as Rufus Merrivale, who is engaged to his niece, Lucie Daraville, but when accused of the theft Rufus firmly protests his innocence. A conversation takes place between Professor Le Gros and Robert Fenton (the real thieves), during which Le Gros informs Fenton of a quarrel he witnessed sixteen years previously between Bothwell Daraville and Lord Kinton, who were brothers. Lord Kinton was struck insensible by Bothwell Daraville, who hastily left the country under the delusion that he had killed his brother, leaving Le Gros in charge of his fortune, and also making him guardian over his daughter Lucie. Le Gros, having run through the fortune, now wishes to marry Lucie to avoid having to account for the money, and whilst he is trying to force her to accept him Bothwell Daraville returns under an alias and upsets his plans. Upon Bothwell Daraville making himself known to Le Gros he is threatened with exposure unless he agrees to give Lucie to Le Gros, but refuses. In order to clear Rufus Merrivale's name Daraville obtains the help of Talma and Le Roy, and the latter searches the rooms of Le Gros, and finds the stolen necklace, which is handed over to Lucie Daraville for her uncle, Lord Kinton. Talma and Lucie are seized by Le Gros and Fenton, and Talma is taken to Fenton's waxwork exhibition, where, amongst other wax figures, she sees one of Rufus Merrivale, which had been used at the time of the robbery to throw the blame on the real Rufus. Talma is securely tied up with ropes, but she quickly frees herself from them, and escapes. Lucie Daraville is carried to Le Gros' experimental chamber, where Le Gros intends, by means of hypnotism, to force her into an immediate marriage with him, but the hypnotist, who turns out to be Le Roy, spirits her away, and Le Gros' villainy is shown up.

The play was in the hands of a capable company. Miss Queenie Fraser-Brunner was an admirable Lucie Daraville, and the part of Rufus Merrivale was well taken by Mr. Robert A. Innes. Lord Kinton found a good representative in Mr. Stafford Smith, and Mr. John S. Chamberlain as Bothwell Daraville was an acquisition. Miss Marie Ault as Annie Jones provided some excellent comedy, and deserved all the applause she received; and Mr. Willie Atom was smart as Billy Brighton. Mr. Frank Melrose worked well as Le Gros, and in Mr. Harry Danson as Robert Fenton had a suitable helper. Le Roy, Talma, and Bosco are the principal performers, and in Act II. give an exceedingly smart magical entertainment, which was received with every appreciation from all parts of a packed house.

STAGE STAFF GOSSIP.

The friends of Mr. J. T. Sheridan, electrician for the Waldorf Theatre, will regret to hear that he is in a serious state of health, and his immediate removal from London is advised by his medical attendant. An effort, which is likely to be successful, is being made to secure his admission to the Royal National Hospital for Consumption at Ventnor.

The Committee of the Heads of Departments' Association met on Tuesday, when several applications for membership were dealt with. One applicant was strongly recommended by his manager. The question of subscribing annually to the Royal Hospital for Consumption was considered, with a view of the Association being in the position of an Annual Governor and able to supply a member with a letter of admission. The committee regretted to hear of the serious illness of a member, Mr. J. T. Sheridan, and decided to render him any assistance desired to enable him to undergo special treatment for the next two or three months.

The fourth annual concert in aid of the Stage Employees' Benevolent Funds of the Heads of Departments' Association, Carpenters and General Staff Branches, and National Association Theatrical Employees, will be given in the Covent Garden Opera House, by kind permission of Mr. Frank Rendle, on Sunday, Dec. 2. Mr. Landon Ronald has consented to conduct the London Symphony Orchestra. The committee are endeavouring to secure an attractive programme. Tickets will be issued next week.

The new departure at the Grand Theatre, Islington, where, this week, two complete performances are given nightly, is of considerable importance to the stage staff. The management announce that "not a line of any drama will be cut out, but each will be played in its entirety." The first performance commences at 6.15, and the second at 9 o'clock. In these circumstances the staff will be at work from 6 o'clock to 11 o'clock or 11.30, practically two hours longer than at most other theatres. It is stated that members of a company booked for the Grand were asked to do the additional show without extra remuneration, and some of the members of the company refused and resigned. It is hardly likely that the stage staff will give two hours' extra work without extra pay. If such an innovation should become general, the stage staff would have to be in a position to earn enough by such work to subsist on that occupation alone, as it would be practically impossible for men following any other employment to attend at such early hours.

A meeting of stage employees will be held on Sunday evening at the Hare and Hounds Hotel, Upper-street, Islington, at 8 o'clock.

A presentation of a handsome marble clock was made on Tuesday evening at the Tunbridge Wells Opera House to Mr. P. J. Walker, the stage-carpenter, in recognition of his successful organisation of the recent annual outing of the staff. Mr. W. E. Urquhart, supported by Mr. L. J. Gunnell, made the presentation in complimentary speeches.

"THE MORALS OF MARCUS."

Sir Marcus Ordeyne, Bart. . MR. C. AUBREY SMITH

Carlotta ..... MISS ALEXANDRA CARLISLE

It is not often that an adaptation of a novel is more agreeable than the original; but this is certainly the case with The Morals of Marcus. In Mr. William J. Locke's book almost excessive emphasis is laid upon the merely sexual and sensuous attraction of the heroine. The passion of Sir Marcus Ordeyne for Carlotta seems little more than the infatuation of an elderly man for an emigrant from a Turkish harem. One is made to wonder what sort of a life they will lead when the honeymoon is over, and how long the "child of nature" will remain constant to her mature benefactor. In the play a great deal of this feeling is removed by the fact that the representative of Carlotta is decidedly Saxon. One cannot imagine her telling improper stories, and when at last she "finds her soul," we have some faith in her not losing it again.

What is the essence of the acknowledged attractiveness of this play? Chiefly, we think, the acknowledgment of the purely physical basis of sexual love. Sir Marcus Ordeyne flatters himself that he is not as other men are, that he can preserve a purely philosophic attitude towards the opposite sex, and that he is a confirmed celibate. The Greeks in their drama were always teaching that it is dangerous to defy Venus, who invariably has her revenge upon those who ignore her power. And the goddess "comes down heavily" on Sir Marcus Ordeyne. The moment the right woman appears—the woman with sufficient beauty and piquant sensuous naïveté to appeal to his long-suppressed "propensities," he yields to the charm, and is soon the absolute slave of his passion. Amusing as Mr. Locke's piece is in parts, it has an underlying vein of pathetic irony. We cannot help feeling for the unfortunate Mrs. Mainwaring, who is so much better fitted to make Ordeyne happy than the childish beauty with whom he is "in love." And this is what makes The Morals of Marcus something more than a merely amusing "entertainment of the stage." It touches us nearly; it is an old story with new characters, a truism of human experience, offered to us with delightful and diverting embellishments. And, while the pathos is only hinted at, and a "happy ending" is secured by an adroit turn in confined space, the dainty drollery is distributed over the whole of the action. We could not have conceived that the novel would have made so agreeable and interesting a play.

The play is divided into four acts, the first of which takes place in the garden of Sir Marcus's cottage at Surbiton. Here, and not near the Thames Embankment, as in the story, Carlotta introduces herself to the philosophic baronet, and establishes herself in his household. In this act we are introduced to Ordeyne's friend, Sebastian Pasquale, and also to Mrs. Judith Mainwaring, the lady with the bad husband, from whom she is separated. Between her and Ordeyne there has existed, for eight years, a steady platonic friendship, and she is naturally uneasy when she sees Sir Marcus's heart going out to Carlotta, whose beauty, audacity, and originality fascinate him entirely. Sebastian Pasquale, a confirmed libertine with a foreign accent, is also charmed with the young Turk, and, in the third act, induces her to run away with him. This, however, he only accomplishes by the help of Mrs. Mainwaring, whose husband is now dead, and who hopes that Ordeyne may marry her. She tells Carlotta that Sir Marcus belongs to his old friend, and the girl, believing this, yields to Pasquale's entreaties, and goes with him to Paris.

In the last act she returns, deserted by the rascally Pasquale, and having, as she says, "learnt wisdom by sorrow." This is all the harder for Mrs. Mainwaring, as Sir Marcus, in his lonely and hopeless state, had almost resolved to make a marriage of reason with his old friend. Carlotta's arrival, however, alters the case immediately. Sir Marcus tells her of his love, and she receives his offer with deep affection and pathetic gratitude.

The Morals of Marcus is capitally cast, and Mr. Bourchier has again shown his cleverness in the selection of artists each admirably suited for his or her task. Mr. C. Aubrey Smith's style and person well fit him to impersonate the philosophic and sententious student, who finds out rather late in life what love means. Mr. Aubrey Smith is excellent in every phase of the character. He is ponderous courtesy itself in the lighter passages, and very powerful in the short but intense scenes of passion and earnestness. Mr. Dennis Eadie gives a neat and crisp embodiment of Sebastian Pasquale, hitting off cleverly the dainty airs and paltry affectations of the polished roué. Mr. Sydney Valentine endows the rôle of Hamdi Effendi with weight and interest by his personal importance, and by the forceful emphasis with which he delivers the few but pithy lines of the part. With few and simple materials he makes an impression not easily erased. Mr. Charles V. France is the ideal of a self-respecting and faithful manservant; and Mr. Wilfred Forster does useful work as Bobby Tremlett. Miss Lillah McCarthy realises very happily the refined, plaintive, and carefully-civilised Mrs. Mainwaring; Miss Helen Rous gives a firm and well-balanced portraiture of the wise and worldly Mrs. Ordeyne; Miss Olivia Glynne being duly dashing and "up-to-date" as Dora Ordeyne. Miss Sadie Jerome makes a handsome and imposing appearance as Mrs. McMurray, and plays the little part with ease and ability. A decided hit is made by Miss Marianne Caldwell, who throws herself with great spirit into the character of Antoinette, and depicts most amusingly the exuberance and oddity of the buxom Frenchwoman. Miss Caldwell's bursts of ecstasy are very comic, and she looks the part remarkably well. Miss Sybil Audrey deserves praise for her neat performance as Lady Elmira Wynn; and Miss Gordon Walker is quite commendable as Miss Lestrange.

The success of the production is achieved by Miss Alexandra Carlisle, whose creation of Carlotta is exquisitely winning and delightfully wayward. She is sweetly pretty, and depicts all Carlotta's little ways with absolute self-possession and serenity. It is difficult to analyse the fascination of the part and the player; but everyone who sees The Morals of Marcus must admit that the infatuation of Ordeyne is easily accounted for by Miss Carlisle's bewitching simplicity and charming unconsciousness. The mixture of quaint childishness and arch acuteness in Carlotta's character proves even more effective on the stage than in the novel, and Miss Carlisle succeeds in capturing the affections of her audience completely. The piece is prettily mounted, and the superintendence of Mr. Sydney Valentine has secured a most smooth and perfect production. The Morals of Marcus makes a very interesting play, and the little drama which it contains—the old but always interesting situation of a man between two women—is brought out much more distinctly than in the printed page. The omissions which have been made are most judicious, and altogether the adaptation has been done with equal skill and spirit. It makes a most amusing, enjoyable, and interesting entertainment.

THE IRVING REMINISCENCES.

Mr. Bram Stoker's "Personal Reminiscences of Henry Irving," which has been published by William Heinemann, is not only an interesting biography of an eminent man, but a remarkable literary achievement. Mr. Stoker is a novelist of striking power; and his humorous and picturesque treatment of the valuable materials in his possession redoubles their value. Thus we get a broad view of Irving's character and career, embellished with a vast amount of new and admirable anecdote. The difficulty of dealing with a book like this is that it is a puzzle how to select any particular page for especial quotation. It is readable from beginning to end. We have the whole drama of the actor's life, its adventure, its variety, its triumph, and its pathetic end. Whether he is telling a funny story, or expressing a deep emotion, Mr. Stoker's style is always equal to the occasion. He has given himself plenty of room, in these two handsome volumes, to do justice to his subject; but he never descends to "padding," and the whole work is an excellent example of the art of biography. And it is not only concerning Irving that we derive information. Celebrities with whom the actor came in touch are drawn for us with a few vivid touches, and these "side-lights" are both numerous and graphic.

To actors these "Reminiscences" must prove full of interest. Again and again we come across explanations of how special stage effects were obtained, how technical difficulties which presented themselves were overcome; and thus we are enabled to form an idea of the thought and contrivance which went to make up the tout ensemble of a Lyceum production in the "palmy days" of the Irving régime. And, while Mr. Stoker can be quietly satirical, he is never unpleasantly personal or cruelly severe; and, in dealing with individuals, he shows as much tact and cleverness, as much courtesy and judgment as acuteness of thought and accuracy of observation. Altogether, no praise can be too warm for the way in which Irving's biographer has done his work. The two volumes are handsomely bound, and are illustrated with excellent reproductions, photographs, and drawings by celebrated artists. The type is delightfully large and bold, and the publisher's part of the task has been most creditably performed.

We take at random a few extracts from the text. Mr. Stoker is explaining where Irving got his idea of Digby Grant in Two Roses:—

It was an inimitable character which Irving impersonated in a manner so complete that, to this day, I have been unable to get it out of my mind as a reality. Indeed, it was a reality, though at that time I did not know it. Years afterwards I met the original at the house of the late Mr. James McHenry—a villa in a little park off Addison-road.

This archetype was the late Chevalier Wikoff, of whom in the course of a friendship of years I had heard much from McHenry, who well remembered him in his early days in Philadelphia, in which city Wikoff was born. In his youth he had been a very big, handsome man; in the days when men wore cloaks used to pass down Chestnut-street or Locust-street with a sublime swagger. He was a great friend of Edwin Forrest, the actor, and a great "ladies' man." He had been a friend and lover of the celebrated dancer, Fanny Elsler, who was so big and yet so agile that, as my father described to me, when she bounded in on the stage, seeming to light from the wings to the footlights in a single leap, the house seemed to shake. Wikoff was a pretty hard man, and as cunning as men are made. When I knew him he was an old man, but he fortified the deficiencies of age with artfulness. He was then a little hard of hearing; but he simulated complete deafness, and there was little said within a reasonable distance that he did not hear. For many years he had lived in Europe, chiefly in London and Paris. There was one trait in his character which even his intimate friends did not suspect. Every year, right up to the end of his long life, he disappeared from London at a certain date. He was making his pilgrimage to Paris, where, on a given day, he laid some flowers on a little grave, long after the child's mother, the dancer, had died. Wikoff was a trusted agent of the Bonapartes, and he held strange secrets of that adventurous family. He it was, so McHenry told me, who had brought in secret from France to England the last treasures of the Imperial house after the débâcle following Sedan.

This was the person whom Irving had selected as the archetype of Digby Grant. Long before, he had met him at McHenry's; with that "seeing eye" of his had marked his personality down for use; and with that marvellous memory which, in my long experience of him never failed him, was able to reproduce with the exactness of a "Chinese copy" every jot and tittle appertaining to the man, without and within. His tall, gaunt, slightly-stooping figure; his scanty hair, artfully arranged to cover the ravages of time; the cunning, inquisitive eyes; the mechanical turning of the head, which becomes the habit of the deaf; the veiled voice which can do everything but express truth—even under stress of sudden emotion. Years after Two Roses had had its run at the Vaudeville and elsewhere I went to see Wikoff, when he was ill in a humble lodging. In answer to my knuckle-tap he opened the door himself. For an instant I was startled out of my self-possession, for in front of me stood the veritable Digby Grant. I had met him already a good many times, but always in the recognised costume of morning or evening. Now I saw him as Irving had represented him; but I do not think he had ever seen him as I saw him at that moment. I believe that the costume in which he appeared in that play was the result of the actor's inductive ratiocination. He had studied the individuality so thoroughly, and was so familiar with not only his apparent characteristics, but with those secret manifestations which are in their very secrecy subtle indicators of individuality grafted on type, that he had re-created him—just as Cuvier or Owen could from a single bone reconstruct giant reptiles of the Palæozoic age. There was the bizarre dressing-jacket, frayed at edge and cuff; the ragged frogs and stray buttons. There the three days' beard, white at root and raven black at point. There the flamboyant smoking-cap with yellow tassel, which marks that epoch in the history of ridiculous dress out of which in sheer revulsion of artistic feeling came the Pre-Raphaelite movement.

Mr. Stoker has, of course, the advantage of being a novelist and an essayist, and he writes in a style which is, in itself, prepossessing. He has a keen sense of humour, and tells the following anecdote with genuine gusto. It relates to one of Irving's visits to Bristol:—

One of these men, Arnott, the property master, and a fine workman, had had an odd experience during the Bristol week. Something had gone wrong with the travelling "property" horse used in the vision scene of The Bells, and he had come up to town to bring the real one from the storage. In touring it was usual to bring a "profile" representation of the gallant steed. "Profile" has in theatrical parlance a special meaning other than its dictionary meaning of an "outline." It is thin wood covered on both sides with rough canvas carefully glued down. It is very strong, and can be cut in safety to any shape. The profile horse was of course an outline, but the art of the scene-painter had rounded it out to seemingly natural dimensions. Now the "real" horse, though a lifeless "property," had in fact been originally alive. It was formed of the skin of a moderately sized pony; and being embellished with picturesque attachments in the shape of mane and tail, was a really creditable object. But it was expensive to carry, as it took up much space. Arnott and two of his men ran up to fetch this down, as there was not time to make a new profile horse. When they got to Paddington, he found that the authorities refused to carry the goods by weight on account of its bulk, and asked him something like £4 for the journey. He expressed his feelings freely, as men occasionally do under irritating circumstances, and said he would go somewhere else. The clerk in the office smiled, and Arnott went away; he was a clever man, who did not like to be beaten, and railways were his natural enemies. He thought the matter over. Having looked over the time-table, and found that the cost of a horse-box to Bristol was only £1 13s., he went to the department in charge of such matters and ordered one, paying for it at once, and arranging that it should go on the next fast train. By some manœuvring he so managed that he and his men took Koveski's horse into the box and closed the doors.

When the train arrived at Bristol there had to be some shunting to and fro, so as to place the horse-box in the siding arranged for such matters. The officials in charge threw open the door for the horse to walk out. But he would yield to no blandishment, nor even to the violence of chastisement usual at such times. A little time passed and the officials got anxious, for the siding was required for other purposes. The station at Bristol is not roomy, and more than one line has to use it. The official in charge told him to take out his damned horse!

"Not me!" said he, for he was now seeing his way to "get back" at the railway company, "I've paid for the carriage of the horse, and I want him delivered out of your premises. The rate I paid includes the services of the necessary officials."

The porters tried again, but the horse would not stir. Now it is a dangerous matter to go into a horse-box, in case the horse should prove restive. One after another the porters declined, till at last one plucky lad volunteered to go in by the little window close to the horse's head. Those on the platform waited in apprehension, till he suddenly ran out from the box, laughing, and crying out:

"Why, you blamed fools. He ain't a horse at all. He's a stuffed 'un!"

IRVING'S GRAVE.

SIR HENRY IRVING'S TOMB.

The memory of Sir Henry Irving was reverenced on Saturday, the anniversary of the great actor's death, by the visit to Westminster Abbey of hundreds of people, and numerous floral tokens, many of them anonymous, were laid upon his grave. The theatrical profession was largely represented, among the first to pay his tribute of respect being Mr. George Alexander, who, with loving care, arranged the wreaths in order that the various inscriptions might be more easily read. The name of an old friend of the deceased actor was recalled by a wreath with the words "Bram, Florence, and Noel Stoker. In loving memory." A spray of choice flowers was inscribed "Always in loving remembrance of dear Uncle Henry, from your only niece, Mary." A bunch of rosemary bore the words "Rosemary—this for remembrance of the great and beloved name of Henry Irving, on the first anniversary of his death." A wreath with the inscription "In loving memory of a great actor, a great artist, and a great gentleman, from six old Lyceum pittites" was also conspicuous. Wreaths also came from the "Gallery First-Night Club" and from members of some of Sir Henry's companies. Among the other floral remembrances was a cross of red geraniums, bearing the card of Mr. George Stone Benedict and Miss Benedict, of New York. Flowers and wreaths continued to be deposited for several days afterwards, during which a large chaplet of laurel leaves sent by the British Empire Shakespeare Society was allowed to remain. It bore the inscription "H. I.—In homage to the memory of our first president, Henry Irving," while on a ribbon attached to the wreath was traced the couplet:—

"I shall remember while the light lives yet,
And in the darkness I shall not forget."

Simple flowers mingled with more elaborate tributes of love and honour, showing a desire on the part of all classes of the community to keep green the memory of a man who so well merited the nation's esteem.

We are glad to learn that Mr. Frank Matcham, the well-known theatrical architect, has almost recovered from the accident which he sustained a little more than two months ago, and is now well on towards recovery. He has gone to Torquay in the hope that his native air will complete his restoration to health.

A new Dickens play, entitled The House of Dombey, adapted by Florence Teignmouth Shore and Walter Dexter, will be produced at the Cripplegate Institute, Golden-lane, E.C., on Saturday, Nov. 3.

"THE MERRY WIVES OF WINDSOR."

Nicolai's Opera, Revived at the Lyceum Theatre, Edinburgh, on Friday, Oct. 12.

Sir John Falstaff ..... MR. CHARLES MANNERS
Mr. Ford ..... MR. LEWYS JAMES
Mr. Page ..... MR. CHARLES MAGRATH
Fenton ..... MR. WILSON PEMBROKE
Master Slender ..... MR. BAILEY
Dr. Caius ..... MR. MOFFETT
Mistress Ford ..... MISS KATE ANDERSON
Mistress Page ..... MLLE. ZELIE DE LUSSAN
Anne Page ..... MISS GARLAND

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

A large audience assembled at the Lyceum Theatre on Friday evening, when the Moody-Manners Opera Company revived Otto Nicolai's opera, The Merry Wives of Windsor. First produced in Berlin in 1848, barely two months before the composer's death, and revived in London by the Carl Rosa Company in 1878, this opera, although enjoying considerable popularity on the Continent, has not been heard in this country for about eighteen years, and therefore the revival by Mr. Manners may be considered in the nature of a novelty. The central figure of Falstaff in Shakespeare's immortal comedy has inspired various composers to give the play an appropriate musical setting, and, besides Nicolai, Salieri in 1798, Balfe in 1838, Adam in 1856, and Verdi in 1893, essayed the task. Nicolai's effort has been eminently successful, and he has produced what is distinctly a masterpiece in the realm of humorous opera. It is full of bright, sparkling, and melodious music. The humour is conspicuous throughout, and the various episodes are limned with grace and lightness of touch, and yet with true musicianly skill. The orchestration is skilful, and is characterised by spontaneity, freshness, and variety. The libretto, based by Mosenthal on the famous Shakespearean text, deals with three of the principal adventures of the amorous knight.

Mr. Manners has added to his fame by his portrayal of Falstaff. His make-up was excellent, and he represented in a masterly manner the many foibles of the boastful and cowardly old rake. It was a splendid piece of acting, and Mr. Manners's magnificent and sonorous voice was in harmony with the striking and ample figure which he so well depicted. Mlle. Zelie de Lussan as Mrs. Page was the roguish and merry wife to the letter. She acted and sang with the tact, vivacity, and distinction which are always associated with her appearances, and her rendering of the florid music allotted to her, particularly in "The Hunter of Herne" song, was instinct with all her beauty of tone and perfection of method. Miss Kate Anderson, who is making great strides in her profession, portrayed the bewitching Mrs. Ford in a delightful style. Her beautiful, sympathetic voice invested Nicolai's ornate music with a charm which was thoroughly enjoyed, and her acting was natural and spontaneous. Anne Page was sweetly played by Miss Garland; Mr. Lewys James, with his fine voice and easy acting, represented the suspicious Mr. Ford with much success; Mr. Wilson Pembroke as Fenton made an excellent impression, and his full, ringing voice was heard to great advantage. Mr. Charles Magrath as Mr. Page sang and acted admirably; while Mr. Bailey and Mr. Moppett, in the parts of Master Slender and Dr. Caius respectively, played and sang with humour. The chorus sang brilliantly, and the orchestra, under the direction of Herr Eckhold, played finely throughout, the overture coming in for a special share of applause.

Mr. Manners is to be heartily congratulated on his successful and satisfying revival of the opera, and in a speech in response to loud calls at the end of the performance, he gave expression to his feelings of pleasure at the way in which his efforts had been appreciated by such a splendid house. Mr. Manners said that although they might not be aware of the fact, it was nearly eighteen or twenty years since The Merry Wives of Windsor had been staged in English. It was then performed by the Carl Rosa Company, before Mr. Rosa's death. He (Mr. Manners) was convinced that, notwithstanding the apathy of London towards English opera, the British people were ready to support opera such as they had had that night. There was no greater admirer of Wagner than he, but he believed lovers of opera could enjoy a light, merry opera, as well as that of a more sombre aspect. On the Continent, The Merry Wives of Windsor was regularly performed, and the success achieved that night would encourage him to exploit the field of other operas. They knew what Tannhäuser and Carmen and the others could do. He was resolved to give other operas a chance, and they could afterwards return to the old favourites with renewed fervour.

MR. BOURCHIER IN DUBLIN.

At the conclusion of Mr Arthur Bourchier's visit to the Theatre Royal, Dublin, on Saturday last, in reply to the demand for a speech, he said: Ladies and gentlemen, although we players experience nothing but kindness and hospitality when we come to you, we know very well that if we don't deserve it you will not hesitate to let us feel it. In these days, when a vigorous attempt is being made in certain quarters to praise foreign art at the expense of English endeavour, it is a great comfort to the toilers to find a press and a public free from all affectation, and who take sufficient interest in our work to point out its defects with a kindly encouragement calculated to spur us on to do the best that in us lies towards improvement in a difficult art, whose greatest charm to the zealous artist is that it is only by the continual exercise of that art that any approach towards perfection can be attained.

The stage is so wide in its scope that it caters for those who want to combine amusement with instruction as well as for those who merely want to be amused. Perhaps I may be allowed to place The Walls of Jericho in the former class. During the twelve months' run it recently enjoyed in London I was the recipient of many letters from all sorts and conditions of people. One letter from a clergyman particularly lingers in my memory. He wrote as follows: "Your play is a sermon which you, the preacher, have surrounded, like a dose of medicine, with plenty of sugar, so that your hearers hardly realise that it is a sermon till the curtain is down. I once tried to attack a prevailing evil under the guise of an anecdote. The offertory that followed my sermon was very small, and on the following Sunday my congregation was smaller still! I trust that you will not suffer the same experience."

Well, ladies and gentlemen, I was able to assure the writer that my congregation showed no signs of diminution; on the contrary, that it grew and grew in size week after week. Throughout this past week the same happy experience has been ours; and, emboldened by your reception and an offer from Mr. Mouillot, I am trying to arrange to come next year for a fortnight. If I am successful in cancelling engagements already made I shall look forward to appearing before you in a répertoire which will include, besides The Walls of Jericho, The Arm of the Law, and other modern plays, two Shakespearean productions, The Merchant of Venice and Macbeth. I shall also try to produce a new play here for the first time on any stage.

"A Maid of Many Parts," a comedy, in one act, by Mrs. Langtry and Graham Hill, and Guinevere, a tragedy, in three acts, by the latter writer, were produced for copyright purposes at the Court Theatre on Saturday.

THEATRICAL GOSSIP.

Mr. Beerbohm Tree, who has been scoring socially and artistically in Liverpool this week, will reappear at his own theatre on the 29th inst. in Colonel Newcome. All records in advance booking were broken in Liverpool, the sum paid over for reserved seats nearly reaching four figures. The music for Antony and Cleopatra, which is to follow Colonel Newcome at His Majesty's, will be composed by Mr. Raymond Rose.

One of the most interesting features of the farewell matinée to Miss Emily Soldene at the Palace Theatre, on Nov. 13, will be furnished by Mr. Owen Hall, who has written a one-act tragedy, entitled Agnes's Secret. Mr. Hall, who thus makes his first contribution to the serious literature of the stage, will personally superintend its production. The committee has been strengthened in a notable degree by the addition of the names of Lord Farquhar, Lieut.-Col. Clifford Probyn, L.C.C., Mr. Cyril Maude, Mr. Arthur Bourchier, and Mr. Louis Calvert. Miss Mary Moore, Miss Marion Terry, and Miss Phyllis Broughton have also joined the Ladies' Committee, of which Mme. Melba is president and Miss Ellen Terry vice-president.

Mr. George Alexander, whose taste in dress is so often reflected among the élite of London society, has been provided by his charming wife with a new object of admiration. It consists of a waistcoat resplendent in green and gold, silk strips of those hues being woven together in a unique way. The first appearance of the novelty on the stage of the St. James's caused an impression, and the garment will certainly form one of the most effective ornaments of His House in Order.

Mr. Frederick Stanley, the senior partner of Stanley, Woodhouse, and Hedderwick, died on the 12th inst., in his eightieth year, from the effects of an operation which he underwent last August. He assisted Mr. Charles Morton in starting the Philharmonic Theatre, and was solicitor for the Theatrical Managers' Association. His genial manner made him very popular, and he was well known to most of the leading members of the theatrical profession.

Mr. E. S. Willard has entered upon his twelfth American season with every indication that it will be one of the most gratifying of his distinguished career. Mr. Willard's performance of Colonel Newcome is generally regarded as one of the finest things he has ever done. He has been presenting the new piece to "standing-room only," and were it not for his arrangements with the authors of the other plays in his répertoire, it is quite certain that he could depend on Colonel Newcome exclusively for the success of his season.

Mr. James Glover, who has been chosen as the next mayor of Bexhill-on-Sea, was started on a career which ultimately led him to be musical-director of Drury Lane by a rare stroke of good fortune. A lady sleight-of-hand performer advertised for a pianist, and promised him a long engagement at 35s. a week, but dismissed him the first week because he did not polish his boots. She, however, did him a good turn, for when he arrived at Southampton to begin the engagement he found that he was advertised as musical-director. "When I found myself stranded," relates Mr. Glover, "I immediately returned to London with a large stock of handbills with my name on them as musical-director, and promptly wrote to every London manager demanding free seats for his theatre as a right. Mr. W. F. Griffiths, then manager of the Prince of Wales' Theatre in Tottenham Court-road (the old 'Dusthole'), now Scala, instead of sending me tickets for Miss Genevieve Ward in Forget-me-not, asked me to come down, offered me an engagement as musical-director with Mr. Charles Collete on tour at £3 a week, and that started the ball rolling."

Golf enthusiasts are so numerous at the New Theatre that a club has been formed among the company engaged in the production of the popular Amasis. The club consists of Mr. Louis Calvert, the producer; Mr. Michael Faraday, the composer; and Messrs. Herbert Ross, Rutland Barrington, Norman Salmond, L. de Frece, and Roland Cunningham. So far the little coterie has been singularly successful in their engagements, and enjoys the distinction of holding an unbeaten record.

Miss Lennox Grey, who has been saved from the bitter prospect of spending the rest of her days in the workhouse by the charity of certain friends who desire to remain anonymous, gratefully acknowledges their beneficence. "The generous offer of those gentlemen who are going to allow me a pound a week," writes Miss Grey, from the Strand Union, Edmonton, "fills my heart to overflowing. May God reward them for their kindness." The philanthropic action alluded to was the result of a conversation between eight gentlemen in a restaurant last week, when Miss Grey's unfortunate position was referred to, and the determination to contribute half-a-crown a week each towards the veteran actress's support was agreed upon.

Friends of Miss Dot Stephens will be glad to know that the little lady has so far recovered from the consequences of her recent accident as to be able to come up to town. She is at present staying at 7, The Grove, Hammersmith.

Mr. Cecil Raleigh, whose pen has flowed none too freely of late, has just completed a three-act play for Mr. Lawrence D'Orsay, who enjoys great popularity in America. The piece is to be produced in New York under Mr. Daniel Frohman's management, and Mr. Raleigh will cross over to superintend rehearsals.

The brilliancy of Mr. George Edwardes's production of Les Merveilleuses, which is due at Daly's on Saturday next, will be enhanced by an orchestra of forty-nine instrumentalists and the largest chorus ever yet employed at the theatre. The full cast of the opera will consist of Messrs. Robert Evett, W. Louis Bradfield, Fred Kaye, W. H. Berry, A. J. Evelyn, Willie Warde, Gordon Cleather, Scott Russell, V. O'Connor, Norman Greene, and George Graves; and Misses Evie Greene, Denise Orme, Gabrielle Ray, Elizabeth Firth, Jessie Broughton, Eleanor Souray, M. Erskine, Nina Sevening, D. Dunbar, Barker, and Mlle. Mariette Sully.

Mr. J. Bannister Howard is likely to remember his first experience of a French racecourse. He was present last Sunday at Longchamps during the riot, and writes that he never saw anything to equal it. A curious effect was created by the sight of several well-dressed gentlemen, finding they could not recover their money, marching off with chairs on their backs. The way the infuriated mob broke down the railings was wonderful; it was all done in ten minutes, and the whole place was ablaze.

Mr. Luscombe Searelle, whose collaboration with the well-known American authoress, Ella Wheeler Wilcox, in Mispah, has resulted in the production of a fine poetical play, is well entitled to his share of the flattering encomiums which have been bestowed in the United States. Mrs. Wilcox, as well as Mr. Searelle, has written some fine blank verse, but the merit of Mispah, which is founded on the Biblical story of Esther, lies admittedly in its dramatic qualities, and for these Mr. Searelle, so well experienced in the art and business of the drama, is responsible. A novel expedient has been resorted to in a little book of the play, in which the work of the two authors is differentiated, Mrs. Wilcox's share of the piece being printed in italics and that of Mr. Searelle in ordinary Roman.

Mr. Martin Harvey's revival of The Corsican Brothers has been received with the greatest enthusiasm, both at Birmingham and Hull, and the play will in future have an important place in his répertoire. Mr. Harvey's next production will be that of a play founded on the story of "The Flying Dutchman." The character of Vanderdecken is one that should be admirably suited to Mr. Harvey's artistic temperament.

Mr. Frank Bertram has been the recipient of the following amusing letter:—"Dear Sir,—During your visit to Sunderland with The Breed of the Treshams my wife and I visited your play three times, and it pleased us so much that we have decided to go to our fancy dress ball as Batty and the Rat. We are about the same size, and the clothes will fit us. As it will be a grand advertisement for your play, will you send the costumes, with the swords and boots, carriage paid? We shall want them three days, as we shall be photographed in them (another grand advertisement for you). We do not want any payment, only the costumes carriage paid." Mr. Bertram has sent the gentleman the address of a well-known London costumier who supplies him with the costumes.

Mr. David Bispham, the popular singer, makes the interesting announcement that early in December he will produce in London, under the management of Mr. Frank Curzon, a new light romantic opera on The Vicar of Wakefield, written for him by Mr. Laurence Housman and composed by Madame Liza Lehmann. Mr. Bispham will himself play the part of the Vicar, and will have the invaluable help of Miss Isabel Jay, who, in the part of Olivia, will return to that form of opera which exercises her gifts as a vocalist in the most favourable way. A fine cast has been engaged and the work is now in active rehearsal. Mr. Bram Stoker, whose book on Irving has been received with such a chorus of approval, is the business manager for Mr. Bispham. Mr. Bispham's own song recital will, it may be mentioned, take place at Bechstein Hall on the afternoon of Monday, Nov. 19.

A well-known figure of the theatrical world, both at home and abroad, has passed away this week in the person of Mr. James Nelson, who died suddenly at Swansea on Wednesday. Mr. Nelson was a partner of the Sass-Nelson company, which has latterly achieved great renown in Australia and South Africa. The lamented actor, who has, for the past ten years, resided in South Africa, was a member of the old Surrey stock company, and took part with Mr. Sass in many of the popular melodramas produced under the Conquest management. Like many another Surrey actor, he ultimately found his way to the West End, where he was associated with Mr. Charles Hawtrey in a number of his productions. Mr. Nelson returned to England in the spring of the present year, and a few weeks ago accepted an offer from Mr. James Welch to go on tour with him. The deceased, who had many estimable qualities, was held in the highest regard, and his death will occasion the most profound regret.

Mr. C. I. Coltson, the secretary of the Actors' Benevolent Fund, has received from Messrs. H. and M. Rayne, of the Waterloo-road, a cheque, together with Mr. F. H. Pedgrift's cheque for £4 6s., both sums being devoted to the Fund from the proceeds of the sale of Messrs. Rayne's "Date Book." Mr. Coltson writes: "Messrs. Rayne inform me that in the interest of the Fund you have generously assisted in pushing the sale of their book free of all charge, and I beg your acceptance of my very sincere and grateful thanks for the help you have thus been able to afford the Fund." A lady who was unable to get to the Abbey last Saturday sent the Fund 5s. in loving memory of Sir Henry Irving.

At the Queen's Theatre, Gateshead, on Monday next, drama will once more take the place of variety.

Mr. Sidney Bacon, the courteous and astute manager and co-lessee of the Metropole, Queen's (Gateshead), and Grand (Newcastle) Theatres, has been persuaded by a large number of friends to allow himself to be nominated as a candidate for a seat on the Town Council of the first-named town. Five years ago Mr. Bacon wooed the electors without success, but since that time his reputation as a sound business man has been brought more prominently before the public, and there is every reason to believe that he will come out "top-dog" this time.

The Broughton Packer Bath scholarships, one for violin and one for violoncello playing, at the Royal Academy of Music, will be competed for on or about Thursday, Dec. 13. Candidates will be required to play a piece of their own selection, and a piece at first sight selected by the examiners. In addition, violin candidates are to prepare Concerto No. 13 in D major (first movement only), Kreutzer; and violoncello candidates "Allegro Appasionata," Saint-Saëns, Op. 43. The competition for the George Mence Smith scholarship, which is to be awarded to the lady vocalist who exhibits the best voice in conjunction with musical aptitude, will take place on or about Tuesday, Jan. 8, 1907. Candidates are required to prepare two pieces, of their own selecteion, one florid and one declamatory, and such pieces may be in English, French, German, Italian, or Latin.

Awards in the recent Royal Academy of Music scholarships have been made as follows:—The Ada Lewis scholarships.—Singing: Janet Lydia H. Woolley (of Nottingham); Millicent H. P. Norton and Lily Mitchell Fairney, highly commended; and Margaret Ismay, commended. Pianoforte: Vivian Langrish (of Bristol); highly commended, Greville Turner Cooke and Agathe Manns. Viola: Phyllis Ingram Mitchell (of London). Double bass: Paul James Stanley (of London). The Erard Centenary scholarships.—Pianoforte: Norah Mignon Cordwell (of London); Dorothy L. Grinstead, Gertrude M. Mustard, and M. Cicely Chapman, being highly commended. Harp: Dot Lyons (of London), Grace D. Maxted being highly commended.

The Campbell Clarke scholarship was won by Marie Isabelle Wadia (of London), Elsie J. Redfern and Mildred E. Harvey being highly commended. The Wessely Exhibition was secured by Edward Stanelli de Groot (of Brighton), Dora F. Coombs being highly commended. The Ross scholarship was awarded to Thomas Gibbs (of London), Percival Driver being highly commended, and J. Melvin Nightingale commended. The Stainer Exhibition was won by Henry Gilkece Dutton (of Tewkesbury). The examiners in the various competitions were Mme. Agnes Larkcom, Sir Alexander Mackenzie, Messrs. F. Corder, W. Adlington, Oscar Beringer, T. B. Knott, Claude F. Pollard, A. Kastner, John Thomas, Fred Walker, R. Cummings, A. Thompson, Josef Blaha, Alfred Gibson, Hans Wessely, Arthur Barlow, Fredk. Ranalow, Lloyd Chandos, Carlo Albanesi, Benno Schonberger, Lionel Tertis, Chas. Winterbottom, and Alfred Burnett.

Mr. Lionel Glenister and Mr. Wood-Ingram, who are now achieving great results with their tour of All-of-a-Sudden Peggy, with Miss Decima Moore in the title-rôle, have re-engaged Miss Moore for their spring tour of this favourite piece.

Mr. Granville Barker will make his welcome reappearance at the Court Theatre in the revival of Man and Superman, which will take place on Monday, the 29th inst. The cast will be completed by Messrs. James Hearn, Lewis Casson, Edmund Gwenn, Hubert Harben, and Edmund Gurney; and Misses Lillah McCarthy, Florence Haydon, Agnes Thomas, Grace Lane, and Mary Hamilton.

A wedding of considerable interest in theatrical, musical, and other circles took place at All Saints' Church, Fulwell-road, Sunderland, last week. The contracting parties were Miss Dorothy Nita Machin, second daughter of Mr. C. E. Machin, the popular proprietor and manager of the Avenue Opera House, Sunderland, and other provincial theatres, and Mr. William Jackson, son of the late Mr. William Jackson. Both bride and bridegroom have musical tastes, have passed various examinations, and hold diplomas. Mr. Jackson, indeed, is the author of several musical works, and has written all the music required for sketches by Mr. Machin. There was a large attendance at the church, and the ceremony was performed by the Rev. F. Aubrey E. Leake. The bridesmaids were Miss Phyllis Machin (sister of the bride), Miss Isabel McGarry, Misses Davidson, and Miss Ira Sprague (cousin of the bride). The best man was Mr. Mervyn Ritson, and the bride was given away by her father.

The bride, who looked charming, was attired in a dress of cream ivory silk with overflowing tucked crepe de Chine trimmed with real Brussels lace and orange blossoms, and wearing a large Empire belt. The travelling dress was of wine-coloured cloth, with boa and muff and a hat to match. The bridesmaids were in pale blue, their dresses bearing some similarity to that of the bride. They wore picture hats to match their dresses, and carried beautiful bouquets. After the ceremony there was a reception at Mr. Machin's house, at Roker, followed by a party at the Avenue Theatre. The presents were very numerous and included a silver tray and methylated spirit lamp and kettle from the staffs of the Avenue and Royal Theatres.

The usual weekly meeting of the Council of the Actors' Association was held on Tuesday, when there were present Mr. Aubrey Smith (chairman), Mr. A. E. Drinkwater (deputy-chairman), Mr. Henry W. Mote (hon. solicitor), Messrs. Burton Cooke, C. Hayden Coffin, F. Cremlin, Quinton McPherson, Spencer Trevor, Fredk. Volpe, Hubert Willis, and Charles Cruikshanks (secretary). Three cases of alleged insanitation in provincial theatres were under consideration, and the secretary received instructions to deal with the matters involved. Percy Baverstock, Arthur Morris, and Robert Corray were nominated for election. Dennis Eadie and Harry Russon were nominated for reinstatement, and four former members were reinstated.

The secretary reported the result of an arbitration held since the last meeting of the Council, and he also reported that he had received notice of a claim by a member under the insurance scheme. The report of the Finance and General Purposes Committee was received, and two suggestions contained therein were adopted by the Council. The secretary reported telegraphic communications between himself and a commissioner in connection with provincial meetings of the A.A., and announced that Mr. H. Beerbohm Tree was considering the question of holding another in some other provincial centre in the immediate future. Questions in connection with the proposed Irving Memorial were before the Council, and their consideration was adjourned until next week, when a specially convened meeting of the Council will be held to deal with the entire matter.

Mr. Bannister Howard intends to revive old fashioned pantomime at the Crystal Palace Theatre this Christmas. Any effort to return to the rollicking performances of bygone days deserves to be supported, and there can be no doubt that Mr. Howard's enterprise, over which no expense will be spared, will be crowned with success. The subject of the pantomime is Aladdin, the book of which will be supplied by that experienced pantomime writer, Mr. Fred Bowyer. Miss Lillie Lassah will impersonate Aladdin, and Miss Lillie Gallick the Princess; and the cast will also include Mr. Arthur Pool, Mr. A. E. Passmore, Miss Josephine Sullivan, and the Ongar Brothers. The second boy will be Miss Nellie Barnwell, and the second girl Miss Gladys Ray, a sister of Miss Gabrielle Ray, who was originally brought out by Mr. Howard. Mr. J. D. Cawdery, one of the oldest performers at trap-work, will be demon and clown, and the harlequinade and shadow pantomime will be a strong feature of the entertainment. The pantomime will be produced by Mr. C. Lake, and Mr. Joseph Sainton will compose and arrange the music. Mr. W. E. Sharpe will still continue to actively manage the front of the theatre.

Mr. Allan Wilkie has secured the services of Miss Gertrude Gilbert (late leading lady with Mr. Ian Maclaren), and is now in the position of having three recognised leading ladies in his Shakespearean company, as he still retains the services of Miss Iné Cameron and Miss Carrie Baillie, who took the principal parts with the Osmond Tearle company. This, together with the support of Mr. G. Alexander Marsh, makes one of the strongest combinations ever seen in the provinces.

Servais Le Roy and W. Scott Phipp are to be congratulated on the immediate success of the new mystical play, Lady Kinton's Necklace, produced on Monday at the Theatre Royal, Ilkeston. We are informed that, although the play is packed with novelties, they are still being crowded in. A notice of the play appears in another column, and a copy of the day-bill will be found in our companies' page. The advertising department has had most careful attention, and the management claim they have already (for a start) more real original notions than any other show on the road.

Mr. William Morgan, managing-director of the People's Palace and Aquarium, Scarborough, and thrice in succession mayor of the town, attained on Aug. 3 last his fiftieth year as an amusement caterer, and a testimonial fittingly to commemorate the occasion is being organised. Mr. Morgan may well claim to be a pioneer of provincial touring, for fifty years ago he brought a complete metropolitan company into the provinces, thus paving the way for the great development which has since led to successions of London companies occupying provincial playhouses practically all the year round. Mr. Morgan's initial enterprise was at Bradford, where for several seasons he ran high-class Saturday night entertainments at St. George's Hall. Then he built and managed the Prince's Theatre, Bradford, and became lessee of the Preston Theatre Royal. Subsequently he earned great popularity for Blackpool Winter Gardens by several years of management, and since then has successively controlled the Morecambe Winter Gardens and the Scarborough People's Palace and Aquarium, of which he has been managing-director since 1890. The testimonial is being promoted by a committee of which Sir George Sitwell is chairman, and amongst the members are the Earl of Londesborough, Mr. Edward Terry, Mr. John Hart, Mr. T. Sergenson, Mr. J. H. Huddlestone, and Mr. George Harrop. Subscriptions are not to exceed £1 1s., and may be paid to the hon. secretary of the Fund, Mr. Valentine Fowler, Huntriss Hall, Scarborough.

The annual elocution competition of the British Empire Shakespeare Society will take place at the St. James's Theatre on Friday afternoon next at 1.30, when Mr. George Alexander, one of the vice-presidents of the society, has kindly consented to act as judge. Many members from the provincial centres help to swell this year's large entry. The prizes in connection with the competition will be given away by Her Highness Princess Louise Augusta of Schleswig-Holstein, also at the St. James's Theatre, on Nov. 29.

Mr. Sydney Sydney, the author of the successful musical farce, Miss Lancashire, Limited, is writing for Miss Florence Baines another play, taking for his subject an extraordinary decision given by the English House of Lords in an Australian matrimonial case.

Miss Florence Baines is publishing two songs, which are to be given away as an advertisement for the Miss Lancashire, Limited, company. One is "The Lancashire Country Girl," the song with which Miss Baines was so successful in the Tivoli revue, and the other is "The children's Party," which the popular comedienne has effectively utilised to introduce her children's imitations. Miss Baines wishes to advise her fellow artists that the songs may be had free on application to her, though the frontispiece bears a warning to artists and managers that the privilege of performing these songs is vested in Miss Baines only, and any infringement will be followed by prosecution.

The sixth bi-monthly meeting of the members of the Actors' Association will be held in the Saloon at 10, King-street, Covent Garden, on Thursday, the 8th prox., at 2.30 p.m.

Mr. James P. Moore, who has recently vacated the management of the West Bromwich Theatre, was, on Wednesday last, appointed to the position of Provincial Grand Sword-bearer for Worcestershire, and to celebrate the event a pleasing little function was held at the residence of Dr. Herbert Manley, in West Bromwich, when Mr. Moore was presented with a beautiful suit of Provincial clothing by a few of the West Bromwich brethren of the Godson Lodge.

Mr. George Robertson, of the Theatre Royal, Loughborough, has arranged with Mr. Brandon Thomas for the small towns and "fit up" rights of that play of marvellous vitality, Charley's Aunt, and will start his tour at Christmas next.

Mrs. Bandmann-Palmer scored a remarkable success at he Theatre Royal, Sheffield, last week, the receipts constituting a record. Under the management of Mr. John Hart, this theatre is bidding fair to revive the good fortune of its earlier days.

Mr. Charles Hannan's farcical comedy, The Electric Man, as we foreshadowed last week, is to find a home at the West End, and will be produced at the New Royalty Theatre early next month. Mr. Harry Nicholls will impersonate the title-rôle, and other important engagements are pending.

Mr. and Mrs. Hubert Harben received congratulations this week on the birth of a little son. Mr. Harben, who was formerly a member of Mr. and Mrs. Kendal's company, is one of the many clever young actors who have become "Courtiers"—in other words, realised the opportunity of playing good parts in brilliant productions, under the management of Messrs.. Vedrenne and Barker. Mrs. Harben, who is professionally known as Miss Mary Jerrold, also toured with the Kendals, has played at the St. James's, and is one of the most natural and charming of ingénues—with a sense of humour. Descended from Douglas Jerrold, she is the sister of Mr. Inglis Allen, author of The Dear Unfair Sex, recently produced, with Miss Ellis Jeffries in the chief part, in New York.

Curiously enough, the last evening of the Brixton Theatre's career as a dramatic house coincided with the Hospital Saturday Fund collecting day, which Mr. Ernest Stevens has regularly observed during his management. The collection this year amounted to £2 4s. 9d.

"Her Love Against the World," the latest achievement of Mr. Walter Howard, is proving one of the best financial successes on tour, and has greatly enhanced that author's already enviable reputation as one of the premier provincial playwrights. Mr. T. Edward Ward, who is producing Mr. Howard's next play, called Second to None, at the Grand Junction, Manchester, at Easter, has met with the utmost confidence at the hands of resident-managers, and has secured a fine list of bookings for next autumn.

Mr. R. W. Allum, who has been connected with the management of the Brixton Theatre for over eight years, had a substantial token of the respect and esteem in which he is held locally by the presentation, on the 12th, of a cheque for a substantial amount, subscribed by the patrons of the theatre and friends. Mr. Ernest Stevens, the late lessee and manager of the theatre, also presented his lieutenant with a massive gold ring, bearing the inscription, "Ernest Stevens to R. W. Allum, with good wishes, October, 1906." From Mr. J. Murray Herriot, late business manager here, came a pretty silver-mounted office clock, inscribed, "R. W. Allum, from J. Murray Herriot, with good wishes, October, 1906." On the final fall of the curtain on Saturday night the staff presented Mr. Allum with a handsome silver card case and a pair of gold sleeve links. Mr. Allum has found a new sphere for operations, his next appointment being that of acting manager of the new Putney Hippodrome.

Miss Emma Litchfield, who has toured A London Actress for five years, will shortly discontinue it for a time, having in preparation another sensational drama, entitled A Clever Imposter, from her own pen, which will be produced at Theatre Royal, Macclesfield, on Dec. 24. This is the third drama from Miss Litchfield's pen, and she will play the leading rôle, in which she will assume five different disguises.

A revised version of Yellow Fog Island will be given at Terry's on Monday, and will be preceded by a farce, entitled A Restless Night, which was originally produced under Mr. Nation's management a score of years ago. The chief part in the piece will be sustained by Mr. Charles Groves.

Success of a remarkable kind has attended Miss Emma and Mr. Percy Hutchison's tours this season, the demand that exists for good comedy companies being demonstrated in all parts of the country. The Freedom of Suzanne, with Miss Mabel Love, is having a wonderful reception, and new records have been established everywhere. Mr. Percy Hutchison is now with this company in his old part, supporting Miss Love.

The British Empire Shakespeare Society gave their first dramatic reading of the season at the Passmore Edwards' Settlement, Tavistock-place, on Sunday. Henry the Fifth was the play chosen for the occasion, and it won the enthusiastic applause of a crowded house. That fine Shakespearean actress, Miss Edith Wynne Matthison, read the not over-grateful part of Chorus with some exquisite shades of meaning; Mr. Lewis Casson, aided by his fine elocutionary powers, gave a virile and highly-appreciated rendering of King Henry. The part of Pistol was in the hands of Mr. Acton Bond, who read it with his customary high degree of excellence; Mr. Michael Sherbrooke as Fluellen was a host in himself; Miss Margaret Busse submitted a charmingly ingenuous Katherine; and Miss Margaret Parker—who also read the stage-directions with great clearness—ably acquitted herself as the Hostess. Mr. Kenyon Musgrave, Mr. Courtenay Foote, Mr. John Macfarlane, and Mr. Lewis Willoughby gave valuable service in doubling parts; and the remaining rôles were ably filled by Mr. Asheton Tonge, Mr. Hann, Mr. Cecil Duncan, and Miss Kate Turner. The reading was under the direction of Mr. Acton Bond.

Miss Helen Vicary, whilst endeavouring to get on a Hammersmith omnibus on the 12th inst., slipped and fell backwards, cutting her leg severely. The wound bled profusely, and the sufferer was conveyed to St. George's Hospital, where she received prompt attention. Miss Vicary was greatly shaken by the accident, but hopes to resume her professional duties shortly.

The announcements in the London Gazette of the 9th inst. included the following: Volunteer Rifles—1st Volunteer Battalion, the Prince Albert's (Somersetshire Light Infantry): Major E. Lewis is granted the honorary rank of Lieut.-Colonel. Lieut.-Col. E. Lewis is the much-respected lessee of the Theatre Royal, Bath, and joined the 1st (now A) Company of the 1st Somerset as a private as far back as 1875, has passed the examination in tactics, and holds the Volunteer long service medal, the Volunteer decoration, and the Coronation medal.

"The Girl from Biarritz," a new first piece by Mr. Leonard Rolson, has been secured by Mr. A. H. Cawby, to precede The Prince Chap on tour. The initial production will take place at Hill Theatre, Aberdeen, on Oct. 29.

"Robin Hood; or, The Outlaw of Sherwood Forest," the play by Messrs. Dennis Cleugh and Cecil Duncan Jones which Mr. Norman V. Norman will shortly produce, was written as a pastoral play for Mr. Norman some time ago, and since then a prologue has been added. The play is founded on a series of the old legends and ballads relating to the famous outlaw, and the part of Maid Marion, which will be played by Miss Beatrice Wilson, is made a strong comedy rôle, and, in fact, partakes somewhat of the character of a hoyden.

Mr. and Mrs. Calvert Routledge's pretty theatre at Barrow was taxed to its utmost capacity on Wednesday last, the occasion of a special visit of the draughtsmen from Messrs. Vickers, Sons, and Maxim to witness the performance of Mr. Percy Hutchison's company in The Freedom of Suzanne. Miss Mabel Love (the charming Suzanne), whose birthday it happened to be, was presented by the draughtsmen with a beautifully-made model of H.M.S. Dreadnought, heavily laden with the daintiest of chocolates, to wish her "Many happy returns of the day." It was successfully launched from the dress circle, amidst the cheers and good wishes of the audience.

Mr. Paul Rubens is well forward with his new musical play, Miss Hook of Holland, of which he is author, lyrist, and composer. The novelty, which is described as "a Dutch musical incident, with chatter, jingles, and tune," will be produced by Mr. Frank Curzon at or about Christmas. A simple love story, coloured by quaint touches of Dutch character, is developed in the piece, the scene of which is a cheese market on the borders of the Zuyder Zee, and, later, the interior of a Dutch liqueur distillery on a festival day. The cast will include Mr. G. P. Huntley, Miss Ethel Cadman, Mr. George Barrett, Miss Gwennie Brogden, and Miss Gladys Ivery.

The memory of Verdi is now perpetuated in New York, where a statue of the great composer was unveiled on the 12th inst. Speeches were delivered by Count di Massiglia, the Italian Consul-General, and Admiral Calli, the special Italian representative, and a parade of the different Italian societies of New York was a feature of the celebration.

A scathing denunciation of the Berlin stage was made at the congress of the combined Associations for Promoting Public Morality, which is being held at Hanover. Baron von Oertzen, the principal speaker on this subject, divided the Berlin theatres into four classes:—First, the two Royal theatres, pure in intention and devoting themselves largely to classical drama and opera; secondly, the modern stages, wholly indifferent to ethics, whose mainstay is Sudermann; thirdly, those theatres which consciously and of set purpose make their profit out of immoral plays. The fourth category included the variety theatres and cabarets, the audiences at which were stated to be in some cases so bad that even the worst entertainments could do them no further harm.

Prizes for the two best productions by Italian playwrights in the native language are offered by the Italian Government in the hope of encouraging the national drama. Ninety-five per cent. of the plays on the Italian stage, it is said, consist of translations or adaptations from foreign sources—chiefly French. The competition will remain open till the beginning of Lent, 1908.

Miss Ada Ferrar, who recently returned to town from a visit to Stratford-on-Avon, is a comedienne with a sense of humour "on and off." The eldest of the clever Ferrar sisters, she has been associated with many of the best managements of the day, and played all sorts of parts—from comedy to tragedy; from Shakespeare to Pinero. Her sister Beatrice is equally well-known as an actress; but Miss Jessie Ferrar—perhaps inspired by the sight of matinée hats from over the footlights—has left the stage and evolved into Mme. Auburn of Bond-street. Perhaps Miss Ada Ferrar was most successful in sinking her own personality, being completely changed in voice, in look, in manner, in the part of the old blind nurse, in the original production of Paolo and Francesca at the St. James's Theatre.

Lhevinne, the Russian pianist, who made such a notable success at Queen's Hall last week, left England on Saturday for a six months' tour in America. Born in Moscow in 1874, his whole life has been spent in perfecting his art, for his fine technique and peculiarly soft touch are the result of hard work and unflagging enthusiasm. He made his début at the age of eight, and was only fourteen when Rubinstein invited him to play at a big orchestral concert in Moscow, afterwards publicly thanking and embracing the little boy. M. Lhévinne received the Rubinstein prize in 1895, winning this coveted honour in a competition of over thirty promising pianists. For the last four years he has been a professor in the Imperial Conservatory in Moscow, besides giving recitals in all the large cities in Europe.

The members of the Amateur Players' Association accorded an enthusiastic reception to Mr. H. Chance Newton, at their headquarters in Victoria-street on Wednesday, when he made his first appearance among them as their president. Mr. Newton opened a debate on "First-night criticism," and in the course of his address the president, who is well qualified to speak on the subject, compared the critic of the past and of the present, much to the advantage of the latter. With regard to whether the critic should attend the first performance of a play or the seventh opinions were varied, and a great deal could be said on both sides. This aspect, however, only touched the amateur actor from his playgoing point of view, as an amateur actor was always criticised on his first night, his run seldom exceeding that limited period. "Critics," continued Mr. Newton, "varied in their capacity to 'hustle,' and whereas one man is not hampered by the conditions prevailing with a first-night criticism and immediate going to press, others equally brilliant preferred to ponder and re-write. No doubt this latter was the preforable course, and produced the best work. Still, the critics write for the public, which likes its news red-hot." An interesting discussion followed the presidential address, and finally, on a resolution being put to the meeting in favour of first-night criticism, it was carried by a large majority.

ITEMS OF INTEREST.

MR. BEERBOHM TREE was ingeniously "heckled" rather than interviewed by a representative of the Manchester Courier last week. Said the "interlocutor" to the actor: "Can you give an answer to the argument so often repeated that the personality and popularity of an individual actor go far towards ensuring public support?" "When an audience applauds enthusiastically," replied Mr. Tree, "I will not presume to think that in my case it is due to my personal efforts, but that others—perhaps in the case of Colonel Newcome, Thackeray—had a 'look in.'" This led the way to a question concerning the tendency of public taste. "When business interests are considered," said Mr. Tree, "one's enthusiasm must be tempered with sanity, but as a general rule I hold one should never be merely a camp-follower of the public." "Then," said the interviewer, "I must put to you a solemn question: Is it or is it not true that the public taste for the all-absorbing musical comedy is on the wane?" "Like football, it is always with us," said Mr. Tree. "I am all for healthy, physical exercise, and shall believe in the decline of musical comedy when I hear of the decline of football as a beautiful sport."

MR. TREE, in defending Mr. Michael Morton's version of "The Newcomes," mentioned that Thackeray's daughter had written as follows:—"My father often wondered if the creations of the brain could one day come into actual being. I am sorry he is not here to see his speculation verified." Thackeray, if present, would have been ninety-five.

MR. TREE, at the conclusion of his lecture on "The Highways and Byways of Shakespeare" at the Liverpool University on Tuesday, told his hearers how, too late, he had discovered that when asked to speak into the gramophone he had recited the "To be or not to be" speech from Hamlet in Falstaff's voice and Falstaff's speech on "Honour" in Hamlet's voice. He then delivered the two speeches in the same way in which he had talked them into the gramophone. As a vocal entertainment, Mr. Tree's "recitations gone wrong" must have been delicious. Could he not be induced to repeat it at one of his benefit matinées in London?

THE easiness of criticism and the difficulty of performance were exemplified in an incident which is related in Bram Stoker's Irving Reminiscences. After Henry VIII. had run some forty nights at the Lyceum, Irving got a letter to the following effect: "The complete success of Henry VIII. was marred when the King kissed the china doll. The whole house tittered. . . . Herewith I offer the hire of our real baby for the purpose of personating the offspring. . . ."

To this Mr. Stoker replied: "Mr. Irving fears that there might be some difficulty in making the changes which you suggest with regard to the infant Princess Elizabeth in the play. If reality is to be achieved it should of necessity be real reality and not seeming reality; the latter we have already on the stage. A series of difficulties then arises, any of which you and your family might find insuperable: If your real baby were provided it might be difficult, or even impossible, for the actor who impersonates King Henry VIII. to feel the real feelings of a father towards it. This would necessitate your playing the part of the King; and further would require that your wife should play the part of Queen Anne Boleyn.

"THIS might not suit either of you—especially as in reality Henry VIII. had afterwards his wife's head cut off. To this your wife might naturally object; but even if she were willing to accept this form of reality and you were willing to accept the responsibility on your own part, Mr. Irving would, for his own sake, have to object. By law, if you had your wife decapitated you would be tried for murder; but as Mr. Irving would also be tried as an accessory before the fact, he too would stand in danger of his life. To this he distinctly objects, as he considers that the end aimed at is not worth the risk involved.

"AGAIN, as the play will probably run for a considerable time, your baby would grow. It might, therefore, be necessary to provide another baby. To this you and your wife might object—at short notice. There are other reasons—many of them—militating against your proposal; but you will probably deem those given as sufficient."

MR. A. W. PINERO may smile at being reminded when he reads Mr. Stoker's book of how he was able, most innocently, to "poach" Irving's reception in the production of The Corsican Brothers at the Lyceum in 1880. In the first scene, which is the house of the Dei Franchi in Corsica, opportunity had been taken of the peculiarity of the old Lyceum stage to make the entrance of Fabian dei Franchi—the one of the twins remaining at home—as effective as possible. The old stage of the Lyceum had a "scene-dock" at the back, extending for some thirty feet beyond the squaring of the stage. As this opening was at the centre, the perspective could by its means be enlarged considerably. At the back of the Dei Franchi "interior" ran a vine-trellised way to a wicket gate. As there was no side entrance to the scene-dock it was necessary, in order to reach the back, to go into the cellarage and ascend by a step ladder as generously sloped as the head room would allow. But when the oncomer did make an appearance he was some seventy feet back from the footlights and in the very back centre of the stage, the most effective spot for making entry, as it enabled the entire audience to see him a long way off and to emphasise his coming should they so desire.

BUT in the arrangement the fact had been lost sight of that another character entered the same way just before the time of his oncoming. This was Alfred Meynard, Louis's friend from Paris, a somewhat insignificant part in the play. Somehow at the rehearsal the appearance of the latter did not seem in any way to clash with that of Fabian, and be sure that the astute young actor who played Alfred did not call attention to it by giving himself any undue prominence. The result was that on the first night—and ever afterwards during the run—when Alfred Meynard appeared the audience, who expected Irving, burst into wild applause. The gentleman who played the visitor had not then achieved the distinction which later on became his, and so there was no reason, as yet, why he should receive such an ovation. From the great stage talent and finesse which he afterwards displayed I am right sure that he saw at the time what others had missed—the extraordinary opportunity for a satisfactory entrance so dear to the heart of an actor. It was a very legitimate chance in his favour, and nightly he carried his honours well. The young actor was A. W. Pinero.

ONE very interesting fact has been made public in the pages of Mr. Stoker's book—viz., that Henry Irving, with the exception of a thousand pounds which he obtained as a legacy from a Mrs. Brown, was never subsidised, but earned all the money which he spent on his elaborate productions. When he took the Lyceum, its entire holding capacity was £228. After the house was enlarged in 1881, at a cost of £12,000, it was made to hold another £100, and later on by changes and improvements £420 could be got into it. Irving spent £60,000 on the "expenses of the house." Between starting management in 1878 and the day of his death in 1905, Irving's takings for his own playing amounted to over £2,000,000.

A joyous, active, interesting, and very agreeable entertainment is Messrs. Henry Hamilton and William Devereux's drama, which was presented to a London audience for the first time at the Lyric Theatre on Wednesday, after a trial trip last week at Birmingham. It is really surprising how acceptable and effective a piece the collaborators have made out of the meagre materials at their disposal. The old ballad and a bit from "Ivanhoe"—the reception of King Richard by Friar Tuck in his hut—are practically all the authors had to "go upon"; but the action never drags, and the piece has plenty of "movement."

The authors were careful, at the outset, to provide themselves with a "love interest." Lady Marian de Vaux, lost in Sherwood Forest, meets bold Robin Hood, and is enamoured of the dashing outlaw at first sight. But there is much in this same act besides incipient love-making. There is the comical capture and detection of the artful Abbot of Jourvaulx, who has tried to smuggle through Robin's lines a number of money-bags hidden at the bottom of the panniers of the donkey on which the false Abbot rides. He is made to dance for the amusement of the jolly foresters and to dine on bread and water. Sir Hugo de Longespée, a Norman baron, who is aiding and abetting Prince John in his projected usurpation of the crown, is about to hang one of Robin's band when an arrow comes flying and buries itself in a tree. In the shaft is a note: "I have another for the heart of Prince John." In the confusion which follows Robin's follower escapes. In the next act, on the battlements of Nottingham Castle, Sir Hugo presses upon John his claim for the hand of Lady Marian, who, sorely beset and helpless, sends to Robin a silver arrow which he has given her, to show him that she is in want of his assistance. John has vowed to capture the audacious outlaw before leaving Nottingham, and a party is despatched to a mill-house on the Trent to arrest him. Lady Marian's attendant, Adela, hastily attired in forester's clothes, is carried off in mistake for Robin, who has been disguised as an old woman.

In a hall at Nottingham Castle in the third act, Robin—again using a disguise—rescues Lady Marian on the eve of her nuptials with the hated Sir Hugo. Robin presents himself at the castle as a minstrel, and manages to smuggle into her ladyship's boudoir a suit of boy's clothes, in which she gets away safely. When Prince John's retinue would follow, the forester stands in the doorway with drawn bow, and arrow pointed at the Prince's heart. John, terrified, orders his followers to throw down their arms, and Robin disappears, having first shut and bolted the doors of the hall so that the enraged courtiers beat upon it in vain rage as he escapes. In the last act King Richard returns, and reassumes his rightful rule. The lovers are united, and all ends happily, Robin being made Earl of Huntingdon.

Interspersed with the action of Robin Hood are some capital songs. Mr. Herbert Bunning has written delightful music to Mr. Henry Hamilton's lyrics, which are really of a superior order.

One in the first act, "In the Maytime," is admirably sung by Mr. Cecil Cameron, who also charms the ear by his rendering of the pretty romance "A man and a maid," and brings down the house with Blondel's ballad "Oh, Richard! Oh, my King!" Mr. Lewis Waller, who was suffering on Wednesday from a bad cold, brings to the part of Robin Hood all the eager vitality and bright, romantic alertness which he has so often employed in characters of this class. It is an easy task for an actor of Mr. Waller's calibre, and he makes the most of it, not only by his force and energy, but by the tact and discretion with which he avoids anything like exaggeration or bravado. Miss Evelyn Millard plays Lady Marian de Vaux with the assured accomplishment of the experienced artist, and looks very picturesque in the becoming costumes of the character. Miss Helen Leyton, who appears as Eleanor of Acquitaine, makes an imposing appearance in sumptuous royal robes, and suggests with skill the stern dignity of the intriguing Queen. Miss Dorothy Minto is a very pretty and piquant Adela, and acts with all the necessary archness and good-humour. Mr. Philip Cuningham was very suitably selected as the representative of the stalwart Cœur de Lion. He does full justice to the Crusading monarch's famous qualities. The important rôle of Prince John is sustained by Mr. William Devereux with marked individuality and very commendable characterisation; and Mr. S. B. Brereton gives an entirely creditable embodiment of Fitz-Aylwynne, the High Sheriff of Nottingham. Mr. Frank Woolfe causes Hugo de Longespée to stand out boldly from his surroundings by vigorously emphasising the relentless hardness of the baron's dark nature; and Mr. J. H. Irvine is quite excellent as Sir Aymer le Botelier. Mr. Herbert Vyvyan contributes a quaint and comical impersonation of the Abbot of Jourvaulx; and Mauvoisin and De Tracy are ably embodied by Mr. H. J. Carvill and Mr. Shiel Barry, the latter giving a striking exposition of a sleek, subservient, and slightly silly knave—which is cleverly conceived and smartly carried out. Mr. Frank Cochrane not only depicts Much the Miller humorously and well, but distinguishes himself by his spirited singing of a bacchanalian ditty in praise of the "big black jack." Mr. Herbert Jarman, with his striking stature, is an ideal representative of John Little, and suggests the sheepish geniality of the giant very drolly. Mr. A. E. George is all that could be desired as Friar Tuck, whose bibulous propensities and jolly, careless nature are unctuously displayed by the actor. Mr. Owen Roughwood is effective as Will Scarlett; and the rest of Robin's men have good representatives, Mr. R. C. Smith making the most of the small rôle of Haco. Miss Georgie Esmond is a buxom, "bonnie," and merry miller's wife; and Miss Gertrude Ayre does useful work as Elspeth.

The scenery of Robin Hood deserves special notice; indeed, one set—Mr. Joseph Harker's mill scene in the second act—evoked a spontaneous burst of applause by its rare beauty. Mr. Harker and Mr. R. McCleery have each done a pretty forest scene, and Mr. McCleery's hall in Nottingham Castle is entirely artistic. The dresses have been cleverly designed by Mr. Percy Anderson, who has made the most of his opportunities; and to Mr. Waller, assisted by Mr. Herbert Jarman, is due great credit for having produced the play so completely. Robin Hood was received with acclamation at the Lyric Theatre on Wednesday.

MR. ZANGWILL'S NEW PLAY.

Nurse Marjorie, a comedy, in four acts, by Israel Zangwill, was produced at the Liberty Theatre, New York, on the 3rd inst. Miss Eleanor Robson, who was chosen by Mr. Zangwill to be the incarnation of Merely Mary Ann with results that spoke volumes for Mr. Zangwill's perspicacity, has vivified another character conceived by the same author—Nurse Marjorie; and the results are likely to be quite as satisfactory in this case as they were in the other. In her latest impersonation Miss Robson again reveals the charm of a winsome personality, and makes the character she assumes one that the great theatre-going public of this city will surely take to their hearts and remember. In other words, Nurse Marjorie should occupy a niche in one's memory side by side with the one occupied by the boarding-house "slavey."

John Danbury, M.P., a friend of the working man, is afflicted with a squint, and a comic paper has said that he is unable to look an opponent "straight in the face." So he spends a few weeks in a private hospital to have the squint removed. The last person he sees before he takes ether is a female nurse with an incipient moustache and a generally unprepossessing appearance, to whom he takes a violent aversion. The nurse is changed whilst his eyes are bandaged, but he knows nothing of the substitution, nor that Nurse Marjorie is young and beautiful. She, becoming aware of his unhappy mental state, decides that his is a double squint, moral as well as optical. When the bandage is removed he falls in love with her at once, and by pretending that he is still unable to see properly delays his departure from the hospital, although the Labour Party demands his reappearance in Parliament and his father appeals to him to come home and help to settle a strike in his shipyard. Danbury believes that Nurse Marjorie belongs to the proletariat, of which his constituency is composed. Whilst encouraging him in this belief, the young woman is piqued to discover that his ambitions have the mastery over his heart, and that in marrying one of her humble origin he sees a chance to advance himself in his political career. So she arranges for the return of her unattractive predecessor, which seems to be the only way to drive John Danbury out of the hospital. Before this happens, however, Danbury, senior, has decided that Nurse Marjorie is trying to ensnare his son, and in his effort to separate the pair goes so far as to offer the girl twice her income if she will agree not to marry John. Now, as a matter of fact, Marjorie is the daughter of the Duke and Duchess of Donegal, and has an income of twenty thousand pounds a year, so the elder Danbury, a very gruff and outspoken gentleman from Newcastle, commits himself in a way that makes him look foolish anon. In concealing the fact that she is a lady of title Marjorie finds a useful accessory in her former nurse, Biddy O'Mulligan, the proprietor of a "fried fish emporium" in Whitechapel. John Danbury is led to believe that Biddy is the nurse's mother, and when Marjorie pays a visit to the fried fish shop and Danbury surprises her there, the nurse's cloak and bonnet are stowed away in a corner, and Marjorie, with her sleeves rolled up and a coarse apron over her gown, is bending over the boiling fat, and picking out "penn'orths and ha'porths." The sight is almost too much for John Danbury, much as he loves the "common people," and Biddy makes it harder for him by reeling off an imaginary list of undesirable relatives, several of whom are "doing time." But Nurse Marjorie presently stands revealed as a young lady of aristocratic parentage, and when this happens the young politician turns from her. He is wofully disappointed because she is not poor, and there is an end to his love-making. But he changes his mind, and as Marjorie is really in love with him they come together in the last act, Danbury, senior, being largely responsible for this happy consummation, for his feelings undergo a revolutionary change when he discovers that the pretty hospital nurse is the daughter of the Duke and Duchess of Donegal.

Mr. Reuben Fax as the elder Danbury had a perfect North Country accent—something rarely heard on the American stage—and his representation of the loud-voiced, dictatorial shipwright was so true to life that his every exit was followed by a round of applause. Miss Ada Dwyer's Biddy O'Mulligan was a richly humorous characterisation. Mr. H. B. Warner created a very good impression as John Danbury; and Mr. Hassard Short was amusing as a lovesick cockney "buttons." Mr. A. G. Andrews, Mr. Leslie Kenyon, Miss Essex Dane, and Mrs. Kate Denin Wilson played prominent parts well.

ACTORS' DAY.

The Organising Committee of the above particularly wish to call attention to the following:—

(1) All contributions should be sent to the Trustees, Actors' Day Fund, 10, King-street, Covent Garden, London, W.C.

(2) Cheques should be made payable to the Trustees, Actors' Day Fund, and crossed "Messrs. Coutts and Co."

(3) The acting-managers of all companies are asked to kindly assist by forwarding, on behalf of those who request them to do so, all contributions from the members of the companies in one amount, giving no details of individual salaries.

(4) Where this arrangement is not made, individual members are asked to be kind enough to forward their contributions direct to the trustees, in which case the amount of the contributions will, under no circumstances, be disclosed.

(5) All who have promised their support on Actors' Day, and who are not playing, are invited, if they are in a position to do so, to send a proportionate contribution direct to the trustees.

The following artists, in addition to those whose names have already been published, have promised their support:—Allen, Tom; Alexander, Fife; Andre, Olga; Anson, G. W.; Baily, Harrington; Barker, J. A.; Baverstock, Percy; Benford, Dan; Bretton, Hilda; Bury, Rosamund; Butler, C.; Buckley, Hugh C.; Byrne, George; Chevalier, Marcelle; Coutts, Edward; Craven, Reginald; Crawford, Mattie; Dalton, Fred R.; Dare, Colet; Dare, Gladys M.; Darcier, L.; De Burgh, Beatrix; Dene, Connie; Dexter, William; Dillon, Frances; Donovan, Lydia; Erskine, Eve; Fitzgerald, George; Foldi, Irma; Fysher, Edwin J.; Gordon, Arthur; Graeme, A.; Grey, Isabel; Hamilton, Cosmo; Harcourt, Johnson; Hargreaves, William; Hartford, W. Farce again at the Criterion! Farce, too, with no risky imbroglio, no peccant husband, no déclassée masquerading with a whitewashed reputation given her by the adapter from the French, no situations depending on doors and windows, but honest farce with reasonable sense of probability, with a real instinct for comic situations, and with dialogue that is generally smart, and often droll. On Saturday, before the curtain rose, Mr. W. Kingsley Tarpey's power as a humorist was only known to the leisured few who were able to be present at the performance of Windmills—the title originally chosen for The Amateur Socialist—at the Comedy Theatre, on June 17, 1901; but now he must be recognised as among the few authors for the stage who can add to the gaiety of nations by a real sense of humour, and a power to express it to his own profit and to that of the management who produces his work on the stage.

Sir Hubert Pennefeather, the protagonist of The Amateur Socialist, notwithstanding his wealth and title, sacrifices his position, drops the "Sir," and devotes his leisure to the spread by pamphlet and speech of Socialist propaganda. His Socialism, too, is of the most aggressive type, and in the first scene, which is enacted in Hyde Park, he addresses in inflammatory language a meeting of costers, who take his advice, and march on Rotten Row—a resort of the hated aristocrats, which he asserts to be very appropriately named—of which they assume possession until the police, under the direction of Inspector Bott and Sergeant Fell, disperse the rowdy crowd. Sir Hubert, in company with the Hon. Philip Wykeham—who, by the way, has been introduced to the baronet as Phillips—is pursued by the officers of the law, but, by taking a circuitous route, gets home safely with his protector and whilom ally. Philip, naturally intensely amused at the turn things have taken, thinks it better to remain "Phillips," and conceal his rank, in order that his suit for Evelyn Rivers—Sir Hubert's ward—may be viewed favourably by the amiable fanatic, who regards titles as an outrage on the "rights of man." Sir Hubert considers "Phillips" to be a practical Socialist, and that his behaviour in baffling the police has been nothing less than noble. In fact, Phillips is invited to dinner, and is only too delighted to accept, to be near Evelyn. Two other unexpected guests arrive—Mr. Pritchard and Mr. Brown, whose cards bear the magic words, "The National Socialist Brotherhood." They are welcomed with open arms by Sir Hubert, whose enthusiasm and ardour are not even damped when Mr. Pritchard, who asks for "a word in his private ear," and tells the baronet his name is Bott—Inspector Bott—and that he has called on a little "matter of business"—that he has, in fact, with his friend, Mr. Brown—otherwise Sergeant Fell—come to arrest him on a charge of inciting to violence and of obstructing the police in the execution of their duty. Here is a distinct chance of martyrdom for Sir Hubert. Never in his wildest flights of imagination had he dreamed of such an opportunity for making the world ring with his reputation as an "enlightened" reformer of social abuses, a champion of the slum-dwellers, and an antagonist to the leisured classes. He immediately insists on the inspector and sergeant remaining to dinner, and, with the fall of the curtain on the second act, Bott—who prides himself on the fascination he possesses for the ladies—is seen taking Lady Pennefeather in to dinner.

In the third act the scene is the magistrate, Mr. Moberly's private room. Sir Hubert and his companion, now under arrest, have passed the night very comfortably, and it is evident from the conversation between Inspector Bott and the stipendiary that the charge against the baronet is likely to break down. The chief piece of evidence—a false beard—has been lost, and the cabman, who had been liberally rewarded for his share in the temporary escape of "the amateur Socialist," is intoxicated when he comes to the police court. The police are severely censured for bringing such an unfounded charge against a member of the aristocracy, who "would leave that Court without a stain on his character." The charge against "Phillips" is dismissed. During a quarter-of-an-hour's wait, he steals out and marries Evelyn by special licence—which he has carried in his pocket all through the piece. Sir Hubert is very angry at the turn things have taken. There will be no posing as a martyr, and his ward is now the wife of one of the despised aristocrats. He finds a little consolation, however, in the probability that, before the Hon. Philip Wykeham comes into the title, the whole of his order will have been swamped by the wave of Socialist aggression.

The farce was taken in the right spirit by the highly accomplished company. Mr. Eric Lewis in the title-rôle scored one of the greatest successes of his life. The character belongs to the realms of amiable noodledom; but Mr. Lewis's alternate spells of gentle amiability, bland benevolence, and rabid social intolerance, were so convincing and yet so funny, that the house absolutely rose at him. He preserved admirably, too, the comedy tone, and obtained his success—a brilliant one, indeed—by means at once unobtrusive and artistic. His Sir Hubert should set Londoners laughing for months to come, if the merits of piece and performer be recognised as they should be. Mr. E. Dagnall, who has "produced" the piece for Mr. Jerrard Grant Allen, who has now taken the theatre, was responsible for an embodiment of Police-inspector Bott, which should clearly add to his reputation for acute observation and genuine originality in character impersonations. Mr. E. Y. Rae gave him excellent support as Sergeant Fell; and there was much to commend in the Gibson of Mr. Rawson Buckley. Mr. Louis Goodrich established his reputation as an actor of keen insight by his clever sketch of Spencer Goldthwaite Pennefeather, who expresses his disgust at his father's absurdities in speeches in which much unconscious fun lurks. The part might easily be overdone, but the right tone was always insisted upon by this exceedingly promising young actor. Mr. P. H. Clayton Greene furnished an excellent contrast by his manly and consistent rendering of the Hon. Philip Wykeham ("Phillips"); and Mr. F. Percival Stevens's sketch of the metropolitan police magistrate was absolutely irreproachable. Miss Lilian Braithwaite had little more to do than to look sweet and adorable, and of course succeeded perfectly, and with such an excellent actress in the cast the author might increase the love interest. Miss Ethel Matthews was quite distinguished and aristocratic as Lady Mabel Wriothesley; Miss Margaret Bussé was engaging as Cora Moberley, whose opinions change with the spring fashions. Miss Carlotta Addison was delightful, this fine actress expressing the distress of Lady Pennefeather with sincerity and humour. Mr. Percy H. Jackson completed the cast adequately.

Preceding The Amateur Socialist came the play, in one act, by Gladys Unger, entitled

"THE LEMONADE BOY."

The hero of this promising but gloomy little piece is Pippy, whose stand for the sale of lemonade on the shore at Eastbourne is next to the sweetstuff-stall of Maria, with whom he has fallen in love. She is a bit of a flirt, having not altogether discouraged the attentions of Jan Claypole, the bathing master; while, at the same time, she is more than flattered by the attentions of Guy Turner—a masked songster—who wishes her to elope with him, not however until she has scooped out the contents of her till, and purchased a new hat. Pippy overhears the bounder's declaration, and, by wounding himself in the leg with a broken bottle, appeals to Maria's pity, and delays her departure until she is too late to keep her appointment to go to London with Turner. She turns on Pippy in a rage, and accepts the hand of the bathing man. The characters are somewhat vague; but Miss Minnie Terry showed ability as a nursemaid; Mr. O. P. Heggie made a forcible and pathetic figure of the title-rôle; and Miss Nella Powys struggled with an assumed cockney accent as Maria, Mr. E. Y. Rae completing the cast capably as the bathing man. At the conclusion of The Amateur Socialist the author was called and heartily cheered.

"LES MERVEILLEUSES."

With Mr. George Edwardes's production of an adaptation, by Basil Hood (the music being by Hugo Félix), of Victorien Sardou's Les Merveilleuses, some particulars of the original piece may be interesting. Parisians had, at the time of the première at the Variétés, on Dec. 6, 1873, recovered the gaiety that had been almost eclipsed by the disaster of the Franco-German War and the terrible times of the Commune; and the first night, according to our correspondent of that period, could fairly be reckoned as one of the most remarkable curiosities in the annals of Parisian theatricals. Never was excitement more strongly manifested. Such was the demand for "places that during the morning of the production a few stray tickets were as eagerly competed for as if they would bring the chance of an immense fortune to their possessors. At noon as much as 110 francs were readily paid for an orchestra stall, and 120 francs was eagerly offered for one in vain when the doors were opened." It is evident, from our correspondent's remarks, that millionaires were far from common thirty-three years ago. Had the day of gigantic trusts then arrived a five-pound note would have seemed a poor price to pay for a coveted seat at a much-discussed première. We are told also "Four hundred francs was the price given for a little box on the ground floor, from which a very poor view of the stage could be obtained." Le haut monde of Paris had evidently made up its mind to be present, and consequently the best places on the opening night were occupied by literary, theatrical, and fashionable celebrities, constituting a truly remarkable audience.

The costumes and appointments of the piece were understood to have cost no less a sum than £3,000, and with author's fees and the closing of the Variétés for a ten days' rehearsal our correspondent calculated the initial outlay on Les Merveilleuses to have been £4,000—a very large amount for a Parisian production in those days. M. Sardou, very liberally, no doubt, exercised an author's prerogative in deciding the methods adopted in presenting a remarkable and brilliantly striking picture of a vanished epoch, and with the efficient and highly important assistance of the costumier, property man, and scene-painters, the distinguished playwright placed before the public a really wonderful picture of the manners, language, customs, and dress that marked the population of Paris at the period of the Directory. Said our informant at the time: "He has conjured up a departed and almost forgotten world—strange, eccentric, feverishly excitable, melancholy and gay by turns, turbulent but dazzling. He brings on to the stage quite a carnival of colours, a sparkling, witty crowd, clothed in every vagary of the fashions then in vogue—tight-fitting, short-waisted robes on the ladies, whose hair is dressed in almost every conceivable style; and the men in long-tailed, shiny-buttoned coats—light blue, yellow, violet, green, and black, with fantastic stockings, enormous cocked hats, and prodigious cravats." The resurrection of the Directoire on the stage of the Variétés was, so far as outward appearances went, complete, but the play, as a play, was considered to be somewhat flimsy in texture. It should be quite easy for the adaptors to increase the dramatic interest of the piece, especially with its crowd of Incroyables, speaking many witty things, and the author's admirable sketch of the manners of the period, which at times "is quite Aristophanian in its comic aptitude." Much of the original dialogue was stinging in its sarcasm, and on the whole Les Merveilleuses was generally regarded as a fine genre picture, cleverly and ingeniously composed so as to accord with the taste of the public.

The action of the play commences in 1797, when the fury of the sans-culottes had abated, and a democratic assembly had become a power for good. The genius of young Napoleon Bonaparte was showing itself in the Italian campaign, and the hero is a young officer who has just come back from the series of brilliant manœuvres under Le Petit Caporal which ended in the battle of Marengo. Dorlis, who had been forced to leave his wife after the honeymoon, discovers on his return that she has sought and obtained a divorce, and is about to enter into a mariage de convenance with a rich and elderly suitor. This is all that is necessary to write of the plot. We may be sure that the good genius of the piece—Lodoiska—does all that is necessary to secure a happy ending. Miss Denise Orme will play the young wife Illyrine, Mr. Robert Evett the young officer of the Republican army, and Mr. George Graves the elderly lover, with plenty of opportunities, we hope, of creating fun, though it is understood that special comedy relief will be supplied by two police spies impersonated respectively by Mr. Fred Kaye—who has appeared in most of Mr. George Edwardes's productions since The Gaiety Girl—and Mr. W. H. Berry. Miss Evie Greene will have a grateful part in that of the good genius, Lodoiska; and Miss Mariette Sully will figure as a cousin of Illyrine.

The proper title of Les Merveilleuses should have been Un Jour sous le Directoire; for the story is of as flimsy a texture as were the décolleté dresses of Mmes. Bachelin, Lodoiska, Inguerlot, and other of the characters around whom Sardou grouped personages—faithful reproductions from paintings by Isabey, Vernet, Saint Aubin, and others. There was no rôle worth mentioning in the original production; but Céline Chaumont, by her consummate art, succeeded in imparting something like life to the rôle of Illyrine, and scored a well-deserved success. M. Dupuis and Mlle. Gauthier were much applauded in the amusing scene wherein the sentimental Lodoiska has the delightful emotion of throwing herself into the arms of a man who is on the eve of being guillotined. Dorlis was impersonated by M. Preston, but the part required to be played by a younger man. The other characters were in the hands of a bevy of ladies who only had to look pretty; and this they did to perfection. The tasteful Directoire costumes and the splendid scenery did the rest; and the dazzled and amused audience at the première in December, 1873, gave the piece an excellent reception.

AMUSEMENTS IN GLASGOW.

THEATRE ROYAL, LTD.—Managing-Director, Mr. F. W. Wyndham; Acting-Manager, Mr. Percy Humphrys.—The Moody Manners Opera company began its autumn visit on Monday with a brilliant performance of Bizet's Carmen. Herr Richard Eckhold conducted. Mlle. Zélie de Lussan as the Gipsy was, if anything, more delightful than ever, singing and acting in splendid style. Mr. Joseph O'Mara was the Don José. In acting he was at his best, though his singing seemed to be marred by cold. Escamillo was superbly impersonated by Mr. Lewys James. He had a very warm encore for the "Toreador song," and responded. Very charming was the Michaela of Miss Kate Anderson. These four principals were repeatedly recalled. Mr. W. Bailey as Remendado, Mr. C. Moppett as Dancairo, Mr. Carter as Morales, Mr. Halpin as Zuniga, Miss Rigby as Frasquita, and Miss Alvord as Mercedes made up a first-rate cast. Faust was given on Tuesday, on Wednesday Tannhäuser. The other operas for the week are Romeo and Juliet, The Merry Wives of Windsor, Cavalleria Rusticana, and Pagliacci, and the evergreen Bohemian Girl.

ROYALTY, LTD.—Managing-Director, Mr. F. W. Wyndham; Acting-Manager, Mr. Wm. M. Downie.—This management's grand spectacular production of The Lady of the Lake is now in the third week of its run, and continues to draw good houses.

KING'S, LTD.—Managing-Director, Mr. F. W. Wyndham; Business-Manager, Mr. H. Macfarlane.—Dorothy o' the Hall, the new play which Miss Julia Neilson and Mr. Fred Terry are introducing this visit, proves an enjoyable and healthy drama of the romantic type. Miss Neilson as Dorothy Vernon has a part that affords her unlimited scope, and the picture she gives of the self-willed young heiress of Haddon Hall is most entertaining. Mr. Fred Terry as Sir John Manners is suited to a nicety, and as the gallant lover he acts with romantic fervour and convincing sincerity. Mr. J. Carter-Edwards is good as Sir George Vernon, and another well-played part is the Earl of Rutland of Mr. Frederick Groves. Mr. Jerold Robertshaw gives the necessary sinister touch to his embodiment of Sir Malcolm Vernon. Two particularly well-played parts are the Queen Elizabeth of Miss Miriam Lewes and the Mary Stuart of Miss Lillias Waldegrave. Miss Claire Pauncefort is quaintly humorous as Lady Vernon, and a charming maid is the Jenny of Miss Mary Mackenzie. Mr. D. J. Williams as Lord Burleigh, Mr. Horace Hodges, as the Jester, Perkin, Mr. Malcolm Cherry as St. Loe, and Mr. Walter Edwin as Mark give able support in their respective parts.

GRAND, LTD.—Managing-Director, Mr. R. C. Buchanan; Acting-Manager, Mr. A. Mascard.—A full notice of the second Shakespearean revival (Cymbeline) at this house will be found in another column.

ROYAL PRINCESS'S.—Sole Proprietor and Manager, Mr. Rich. Waldon; Acting-Manager, Mr. Hugh Murdoch.—Mr. Charles Harrington and company are here with The Sailors of the King, in which Mr. Harrington gives a fine portrayal of the bluff old Admiral Drake. Mr. Frank Stephens has a fine voice, and gives a telling representation of the hero, Lieutenant Drake. Miss Sylvia Stella as the adventuress of the drama, Rebecca Crosby submits a vigorous presentment of feminine wickedness. The villain of this play is a clergyman, Orrel Drake, ably represented by Mr. R. F. Stacey. Miss Madge North as Felicia Phyrnne is a charmingly attractive heroine, and Miss Hero Hathaway as Penelope Penn, a demure young Quakeress, is delightful. Miss Lily Prescott as Daisy Dent gives an admirable representation of a betrayed and deserted girl, while Mr. H. Webb as her father, Rufford Dent, is equally good. Mr. Harry Conway as Captain of a warship looks and acts the part excellently. Comedy is abundantly supplied by Mr. Fred Owen as Wilkenstein, Mr. Kenneth Black, jun., as Barnet Fair, and Mr. Walter Farnworth as a Loafer.

METROPOLE, LTD.—Managing-Director, Mr. Arthur Jefferson; Acting-Manager, Mr. W. Gillespy.—Miss Elaine Verner and company are this week presenting the popular drama The Middleman and Saints and Sinners. The company opened on Monday with the former play. Mr. Harding Thomas submits a powerful delineation of Cyrus Blenkarn. The Joseph Chandler of Mr. Frank Lyndon is a strikingly good performance. Mr. Percy Brown satisfactorily portrays Captain Julian Chandler, and Mr. Edward De Vere presents a finished portrait of Batty Todd. In the comedy parts Edgar Kent as Jesse Pegg, and Miss Elaine Vernon as Mary do excellent work. Miss Ada Clarke is an attractive Mancy. In the characters of Mrs. Chandler and Maud Chandler Miss Maud Beard and Ruby Romer sustain their respective parts with effect.

LYCEUM.—Proprietor, Mr. Rich. Waldon; Acting-Manager, Mr. J. H. Oakden.—At the Princess's Theatre last week Mr. Walter Melville's play, performed by Mr. Douglas Bruce's company, The Girl Who Lost Her Character, has been transferred to the Lyceum, and, judging by the enthusiastic audiences attending nightly, seems to have caught on in the "Shipbuilding" Burgh.

NEW GAIETY.—Sole Lessee and Manager, Mr. B. M. Armstrong; Acting-Manager, Mr. Joseph Barker.—Mr. Montgomery's dramatic company continues to attract good houses. The sensational drama When Rogues Fall Out is well presented this week. Mr. H. A. Clarke as Sir Henry Lorrimore, Mr. Horace Booth as his son Jack, Mr. A. D. Adams as Stephen Ralston, are well acted rôles; the Dick of Miss Mattie Crawford appeals strongly; and in Miss Nellie Barker we have a capable Polly Peach. As Hettie Stanton and Madge Lorrimore Miss Marie De Roos and Miss Laurie A. Pardy respectively add interest to the drama by their excellent acting in the parts named. Mr. H. Hesselgrave plays Jack Burton and superintends the production

EMPIRE.—Proprietors, Moss' Empires, Ltd.; District-Manager, Mr. Sam Gething; Resident-Manager, Mr. Charles Mussett.—Owing to indisposition Bella and Bijou were unable to appear on Monday evening, but a capable substitute was found in that well-known musical combination the Celtic Comedy Trio. Boris Lensky provides a rare musical treat; his violin playing was listened to with great appreciation; Ben Albert sings funny songs and proves himself a great favourite; Clark and Glenny present their humorous sketch entitled The Haunted House; Leo Tell gives clever imitations of musical instruments and animals; Jack Warden is seen in a clever character episode entitled Only a Vagabond. Other good turns are the Heartwells, in a musical comedy sketch, Society; the Wedburns, patter comedians; and Katie Butler, comedienne.

ZOO-HIPPODROME.—Proprietors, Moss' Empires, Ltd., and E. H. Bostock; Resident-Manager, Mr. E. H. Bostock.—Mahmout, the Albanian wrestler, is here this week, and several very interesting and exciting contests have been witnessed with local and foreign wrestlers, the Albanian proving himself a tough customer to tackle. Ella Retford, a clever and bright comedienne and a neat dancer, caught the fancy of the audience right away; the Celtic Comedy Trio have lots of amusing business, and their musical items are good, and much enjoyed; Les Bollingers, the Parisian rag painters, give an ingenious and novel turn; Hillman and Russell appear with success in a vocal comedy duologue entitled The Somnambulist, which affords them opportunity for showing their vocal ability; Cliff and his clever dog surely represent the acme of animal training, judging by the tricks shown; Durrant Bros. give a smart trapeze and acrobatic act, with much clever comedy business; Lesketh Meade's illustrated songs prove highly popular; and the Bioscope completes an excellent entertainment.

PAVILION, LTD.—General-Manager, Mr. Samuel Lloyd.—Vesta Victoria heads the bill here, and the result is crowded houses twice nightly. This clever artist is highly popular, and her latest songs give ample opportunity for her talent. George French is a quietly quaint comedian; Eva Kelland, a sweet songstress, has made a hit with several catchy and melodious songs; Espinosa and Neilson are smart dancers and their imitations or burlesques of the style of Russian, nigger, Continental, and other dances are much enjoyed; Charles Prelle's dog circus, with ventriloquial effects, is a clever and original item; Alice Hollander, the Australian contralto, has a voice of much mellowness and beauty, and her singing of "Ave Maria" is enthusiastically received; J. H. Scotland, the popular baritone; Carl Lynn, mimic; and Gus Hindell, in a song-scena, complete a first-rate bill of fare.

PALACE.—Sole Proprietor and Manager, Mr. Rich. Waldon; Acting-Manager, Mr. Harry McKelvie.—Lily Burnand, comedienne, tops the bill here, and has a rousing reception, her singing being greatly enjoyed; Foreman and Fannan, comedians; Gus Garrick, grotesque comedian; Lillie Lassah, comedienne and dancer; Tom Yorke, coster comedian; Evelyn Taylor, comedienne; Fred Herbert, topical vocalist; Gravetta and Parr, speciality artists; and Angelina, expert lady juggler, also successfully contribute to the bill.

COLISEUM.—Proprietors, Moss' Empires, Ltd.; District-Manager, Mr. S. Gething; Resident-Manager, Mr. Harry Burdette.—John Tiller's company top the bill, and are seen to much advantage in a laughable sketch entitled Mad Minstrels; or, Sport at a Spa; Picitt and Lizette are clever and amusing; the Debreans create much laughter as shadowgraphists; and J. H. Milburn has had a good reception, as befits such a popular old favourite. The bill also includes Daisy James, comedienne; the Two Tees, musical grotesques; the American Bioscope; and Herbert Darnley's company of comedians in the sketch Muscles.

QUEEN'S.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. B. M. Armstrong; Acting-Manager, Mr. Harry Bowerman.—The bill is strong in comedians here this week, as witness the names of W. J. Ashcroft, Charles Bignell, and G. W. Fyvie. They are all well known and popular with Queen's patrons. Violet Morgan, mimic, is very smart in her quick changes; while Cordite and Buffalo have a good reception for some wonderful rope-spinning feats, the lady being extremely clever. The Canine Streets of London is the title of a drama illustrated by a clever troupe of performing dogs, which is watched with considerable interest. Arthur Andrews, comedian and dancer; Benson and Waite, comedy artists; and the Bioscope complete the programme.

HARMONIC CONCERTS.—Musical Secretary, Mr. Wm. Biggam.—A varied programme is contributed here by the Edgar Forrest Combination in a lively sketch, My Friend the Enemy; Gravetta and Parr in a clever pot-pourri act; Barney Noble, a versatile vocalist; Read and Write, comedians and top-boot dancers; Alf Ripon, ventriloquist; Esther Hood, soprano; Geo. Macdonald troupe of dancers; Jack Belton, and Bros. Laurence, in song and dance items; and Archie Jack, descriptive vocalist.

AMUSEMENTS IN DUBLIN.

GAIETY THEATRE.—Managing Director, Mrs. Michael Gunn; General-Manager and Secretary, Mr. Chas. Hyland.—Mr. George Edwardes's company is delighting large audiences here with The Spring Chicken. Mr. George Gregory gives a humorous reading of the character of Mr. Gridle; and Miss Irene Verona fills the rôle of Mrs. Gridle in an exceedingly clever manner, and her songs are heartily enjoyed. Through illness Miss Gertrude Glyn was unable to appear as Rosalie, but the part was effectively portrayed by Miss Beatrice Dunbar; Mr. John Brabourne gives an amusing representation of the advocate, Gustave Babori; and Miss Gertrude Gilliam is charming as Dulcie Babori, and sings very nicely. Miss Nancy Langtyre is most successful and captivating as the Baroness Papouche; and Mr. Frank Hector displays considerable ability in his personation of Baron Papouche. Miss Nellie Lonnen makes a pleasing Emmy Lou, and her song and dance were warmly appreciated; Mr. Fred Leslie, jun., as Boniface, and Mr. William Spray as Stephen Henry, act their parts with great credit; Mr. Jocelyn Hope, as the proprietor of the Crimson Butterfly is most successful; and as the head waiter, Mr. Ernest Mahar's embodiment is all that could be desired. The orchestra, under the direction of Mr. Ernest Vousden, does its work in creditable style.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Managing-Director, Mr. Mouillot; Resident-Manager, Mr. Geo. Parrington.—Mr. George Dance's company is appearing here with the popular and picturesque musical play, A Country Girl. Miss Maisie Gay, with her pleasing and winsome manner, and effective singing, is greatly admired as Nan; in the eccentric part of Barry, Mr. Charles Walenn achieves his accustomed success; and Mr. St. John Hamund gives an amusing and characteristic representation of the Rajah of Bhong. Mr. Percy Carr as Geoffrey Challoner is exceedingly good; and Mr. J. Graves plays Sir Joseph Verity in capital style. Mr. F. W. Pedgrift distinguishes himself in the character of Granger Mummery; and Mr. Robert Corray acts well as Douglas Verity; Miss Winnie O'Connor portrays the Princess Mehelanah admirably; Mr. Percy Corray is particularly good as Lord Anchester; and Miss Kathleen Ronayne is a charming Lady Anchester. Miss Addie Lennard as Mme. Sophie sings and dances extremely well; and Miss Nancy Rossiter wins hearty plaudits for her excellent portrayal of Marjory Joy.

QUEEN'S THEATRE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. J. W. Whitbread; Acting-Manager, Mr. John M. Dawson.—Mr. Lingford Carson's répertoire company, in A Modern Adventuress, is here this week. Miss Muriel Thompson gives a finished and effective rendition of the rôle of Violet Meredith; and the part of Pietro Donelli is ably undertaken by Mr. Charles Draycott. Mr. Morley Carroll is a capable William Delby; and Miss Marie Robson an interesting Vivette Delby. John Crompton is successfully represented by Mr. Arthur Byron; and Miss Daisy Norman creates much amusement as Sally Hodges. Harry Delby is well played by Mr. Sydney C. Cranston; and Mr. Ernest J. Fare is an acceptable Wallace Danton. Mr. J. H. Scratchard is an excellent Steve Meredith; and Mr. J. Dobson Clyde an efficient Walter Beale.

EMPIRE.—General-Manager, Mr. Frank Allen; Acting-Manager and Secretary, Mr. George H. Marsh.—Topping the bill here is an old favourite, Mark Sheridan, with a budget of new songs; he meets with an ovation nightly. A cordial reception is extended to Fielding and Hull for their interesting vocal medley; and R. H. Douglas is a highly-successful versatile comedian. The Picquays, head and hand balancers, are well received; and Florence Esdaile, ballad vocalist, wins much applause for her excellent singing. A remarkably clever male impersonator is Flo Hilton, who makes a decided hit; and Will Cornish delights the audience with his silver bells and chimes. Edgar Budden, bone soloist and skate dancer, obtains considerable appreciation; and the Empire pictures are up to date.

TIVOLI.—General-Manager, Mr. Charles M. Jones; Secretary, Mr. H. A. Murphy.—The Morton Comedy Trio lead the bill here this week, and obtain much appreciation; the Kurios, in a clever comedy act, cause much laughter; and the Zerbinis' musical interlude is loudly applauded. Wheeler and Wilson give a smart comedy acrobatic turn; and Belle Braham, with her beautifully illustrated songs, is nightly encored. Bayne and Hope, in their scene from David Garrick, receive due recognition; and Ruth Molloy is well to the fore as a mimic. George Hall is a clever siffleur and vocalist; and O. B. Krebo, comedy juggler, and the bioscope, complete the bill.

LA TOSCA, the well-known artist's model, has nearly recovered from her accident, but is unable to undertake a long sea voyage; consequently, she has been obliged to cancel a ten months' arrangement with Mr. Munro, of the New Zealand International Exhibition, at Christchurch.

So enthusiastic was the reception given to The New Barmaid at Luton last week that several of the well-known residents, headed by Mr. Louis Beard (Mr. Graham Falcon's genial manager) came round at the end of the performance on Saturday night and personally complimented Mr. Alexander Loftus and his company on the success they had achieved there.

A NEW comedy by Robert Ganthony, entitled Union Jack, is to be produced by amateurs at the Castle Theatre, Richmond, on the last two days of the month.

UNSOLICITED TESTIMONIALS.—DEAR SIR,—You have done my gown quite beautifully. I had no idea that dry dyeing was so perfect. Many thanks for the care you have taken with the embroidery.—Truly yours, FLORENCE ALEXANDER, 57, Pont-street, S.W. I have received my furs. I sent them to you three days ago; you have now returned them equal to new. I congratulate you on the speedy way in which you execute orders. —Thanking you, Yours faithfully, H. PEDGRIFT, 9, Rushham-road, Balham, S.W. Please clean coat and return as soon as possible. I was delighted with the one you did for me in August. It was the best piece of work I have ever seen done.—Yours truly, MAGGIE MORTON, Hurworth, Grimwood-road, Twickenham, Oct. 15, 1906. T. Harris, Esq., Chemical Cleaning and Dyeing Co., 6, Argyll-street, W.—ADVT.

MISS DOT STEPHENS' SAD CASE.

The following additional subscriptions have been received since last week towards the fund now being raised for Doris Stephens, best known in the profession as "Dot" Stephens, whose lamentable accident on the railway on June 30 last has awakened such widespread sympathy:—

DEATH OF CONSTANCE LOSEBY.

We record with deep regret the death on Saturday of Miss Constance Loseby, who enjoyed great popularity in burlesque some thirty years ago. She appeared at the opening of the Gaiety Theatre under the late John Hollingshead's management in December, 1868, as Columbine in Jonas's operetta The Two Harlequins, and as Raimbault in Mr. W. S. Gilbert's extravaganza Robert the Devil. Miss Loseby remained at the Gaiety for six years, playing in Mr. W. S. Gilbert's Thespis, Lecocq's Cent Vierges, Offenbach's Princess of Trebizonde and Trombalcasar, Reece's burlesque of Martha, and other pieces. Among the parts in which she gained greatest distinction were those of Clairette in La Fille de Madame Angot and the Princess in Aladdin II., in which Nellie Farren represented the boy.

Miss Loseby also appeared as Galatea in W. S. Gilbert's well-known classical play Pygmalion and Galatea; as Oberon in the Gaiety revival of A Midsummer Night's Dream, Mr. Phelps appearing as Bottom; Tresham in H. J. Byron's burlesque Guy Fawkes, produced at the Gaiety on Jan. 14, 1874, Mr. J. L. Toole appearing in the title-rôle; Polly Pall Mall in The Prisoner of War; Rigobert in The Magic Flute; Dolly in Alfred Cellier's comic opera The Sultan of Mocha, produced at the St. James's on April 17, 1876. Miss Loseby also appeared as Cinderella at the Amphitheatre, Holborn, in December, 1874, and the following Christmas as the Princess in Aladdin the Great at the Prince's Theatre, Manchester, the title-rôle being played by Mrs. John Wood. Later, Miss Loseby became engaged at the Alhambra, where she successfully appeared in versions of several French operas, including Genevieve de Brabant.

Miss Loseby was buried yesterday afternoon in Brompton Cemetery. The coffin was brought from Milford by train, and the cortège started from Waterloo Station shortly after one. The mourners, who occupied two carriages, were Mr. and Mrs. Fletcher (son-in-law and daughter), Mr. C. E. Nash, and the Misses Cooper. The deceased lady was interred in the grave of her mother, Mrs. Elizabeth Loseby, who died in 1888. The Rev. A. W. Bird Jones, of St. John's, Chelsea, conducted the services in the chapel and at the graveside. The coffin, which was of polished oak with brass fittings, bore the inscription:

CONSTANCE COULFIELD,
Born 1850,
Died Oct. 13, 1906.

Two very old friends of the deceased attended at the graveside—Mr. W. T. Day and Mr. Fredk. Thomas Bell.

Several very beautiful specimens of the florist's art were to be seen among the wreaths. The daughter's tribute consisted of arum lilies and white flowers, and bore the message, "To my dearest mother, from her broken-hearted child Connie." Mr. Geo. R. Sims sent a wreath of lilies, chrysanthemums, and white roses "with deepest sympathy," and Miss Phyllis Broughton another of arum lilies and pink flowers bound with a pink sash, "in loving memory of dear Connie." Other wreaths were from Mrs. and Miss Crichton, Mrs. Sleeman, M. and E. Hanke, the Red Lion Slate Club, a "Life-long friend," "From her devoted servant Annie," "With deepest respect and regard from Mary," the staff of the Red Lion, and Mr. Edwin Rothwell.

MR. R. W. ALLUM'S BENEFIT.

The estimation which Mr. R. W. Allum has gained during his eight years' connection with the management of the Brixton Theatre was demonstrated on Tuesday, when he was accorded a complimentary concert at the Brixton Hall. The well-appointed hall was closely filled in all but the front seats, which nevertheless proved remunerative, as they had all been disposed of. An admirable programme, in which many concert-hall artists were sandwiched between popular variety turns, was greatly enjoyed, each performer being loudly cheered. One of the foremost favourites was Miss Edie King, who in her song of "Let me show you" demonstrated very cleverly the various styles of dancing characteristic of the Dutch girl, the Spanish senorita, and the ballerina. Miss Rose Hamilton gained a hearty reception for one of her most popular selections; the Sisters Lavender bewitched the audience in a duet of "Josephine" and a skilful dance; and the Sisters Melba, prettily attired as boy and girl, contributed a dainty love duet. The Two Penns made a distinct mark with their funny "cross-talk," which ended in the low comedian relapsing into a representation of Coupeau's delirium tremens scene from Drink, which he did very dramatically. A droll sketch was presented by Harvey and Holt; Miss Nellie Tayler sang of "Daisy" and deluged the stalls incidentally with bouquets; Miss Blanche Marion's coon song and dance was highly relished; and Mr. Harry Leyton gave an effective impersonation of "The Fallen Star."

A feature of the evening was the rendering by Mr. Fred J. Hunter of Elgar's "Land of Hope and Glory," accompanied by full orchestra and organ. Mr. Hunter sang the ode with splendid vigour, and the audience joined in the stirring refrain with impressive effect. Mr. George Dawson revealed the possession of a robust and cultivated tenor in a well-known ballad; and Mr. Edwin Lewis, also a tenor vocalist of excellent quality, sang "Watch with me love to-night." Other fine vocalists were found in Mr. James Saker, who sang "The Green Isle of Erin" with agreeable expression; and Mr. P. Gorton Young, who rendered "The Deathless Army" with great effect. Miss Marian Liddle, though not quite perfect in her intonation, acquitted herself creditably in a difficult operatic solo; Miss Alice Stroud gave a powerful rendering of "Angus Macdonald"; Mme. Edith Hunter sang "Spring is here" gracefully; Miss Edith Cooper recited a humorous piece by Conan Doyle; and others who contributed to the long and diversified programme were Miss Tina Mucklow, Miss Lily Allen, Miss Louie Oswold, Mr. Sidney Gundy, and Mr. Percy E. Barkshire.

After the last item Mr. Allum, who was received with loud and continuous cheers, came forward and asked the audience to allow him to return his heartfelt thanks for their kind and loyal support at his benefit. He appreciated the kindness in more ways than one, and his thanks were especially due to the artists, many of whom had come a long way and at great personal inconvenience to render the occasion a success. He was sorry to see so many empty seats, but it was satisfactory to say that the tickets for them had been sold, although the purchasers had not responded with their presence to enjoy the grand and beautiful concert which had been given. He hoped to have the pleasure of meeting them on some other occasion, not at the old theatre, with which he was severing his connection after a period of over eight years, but at his new place, the Putney Hippodrome. He again thanked them for their kindness and loyal support.

The committee of the concert included Mr. Nelson Francis, manager of the Empress, who was present in the course of the evening, as was also Mr. E. V. Page, the former manager of that house. A full orchestra was conducted by Mr. Edwin Moss, and Mr. Frank Swinford officiated at the organ, which was utilised very effectively.

"HER MARRIAGE VOW," a drama, in four acts, by Owen Davis, was produced for copyright purposes at the Dudley Opera House on the 11th inst.

MISS DOT ROBINS has just returned to London, after a successful tour in the Highlands with her concert and dramatic company. Her latest London sketch, The Necklace of Death, has been a great attraction everywhere.

ANSWERS TO CORRESPONDENTS.

J. Hindell.—(1). The Alabaster Staircase was produced at the Comedy Theatre on Feb. 21 last, and ran only a few nights. (2). Write to the author, Mr. Robert Marshall, 62, Green-street, Park-lane.

A. C. Speach.—When Mr. Lewis Waller revived Monsieur Beaucaire at the Imperial Theatre, on June 10, 1905, Miss Evelyn Millard was engaged as the leading lady, and the play was in the bill until the autumn season.

J. Laurence.—Try the Church Times or the Christian World, which is published at 13 and 14, Fleet-street, London.

A Reader.—We should think it is extremely unlikely that it had a sliding roof, but cannot say for certain.

Harry Melbourne.—The Moody-Manners Opera Company opened an engagement at the Lyric Theatre, Hammersmith, on Monday, Aug. 20 last.

Frank Harris.—Labiche died in 1888, Delacour in 1883, Dumanoir in 1865. As to Deslandes, there were two dramatic authors of that name, Raymond and Paulin. Raymond Deslandes died in 1890, and Paulin Deslandes in 1866. With reference to Fred Grove Palmer we can find no record.

Frank Parker.—Salvini made his first appearance at Drury Lane on April 1, 1875, as Othello, under the management of Mr. Mapleson.

Birmingham Correspondent.—We cannot trace the date. You might obtain the information by writing to Mr. Jack De Frece, 178, Charing Cross-road, London.

Helen Dunster.—As the comedy mentioned is not at present being played in London, or on tour in the country, there is little probability of its being staged in or near Manchester before Dec. 1.

J. H. Mathams.—Yes.

Owen.—In loving memory of Emmie Owen, who fell asleep Oct. 18, 1905.

"Now when the morning was come, Jesus stood on the shore."

"Heaviness may endure for a night, but joy cometh in the morning."—E. J.

Toft.—In memory of William Toft, who departed this life Oct. 14, 1904. Also his wife, May Toft; died May 10, 1905.

They are gone but not forgotten;
Never shall their memory fade,
Sweetest thoughts shall ever linger
Round the grave where they are laid.
Never forgotten.—David Turnbull.

THE LAW OF COPYRIGHT FOR ACTOR AND COMPOSER,
BY
ALBERT A. STRONG, LL.B. (Lond.).
"The Law of Copyright for Actor and Composer," by Albert A. Strong, LL.B., solicitor, author of "Dramatic and Musical Law" ("The Era" office), seems to be the one compendious and indispensable authority on the subject, as vexed as the "Bermoothes" and as tortuous as a Chancery suit, that has long been wanted. It is in every essential a text book for the perplexed layman, and no solicitor or barrister worth his salt ought to think of taking or appearing in "proceedings" without consulting its pages. It must suffice, after what has been said, to state little more than that the contents include five chapters, respectively named "Copyright as Opposed to Performing Right," "Performing Right," "Infringement and Remedies," "Musical Copyright," and "International and Colonial Copyright." The work, for all its precise authority, is not dry reading. The statutes, with the elucidatory notes, necessarily impose a task on the reader which takes some tackling, but they had to be there. The cases adduced, however, are full of interest. Certain of them might fitly find a place in the romance of copyright. There was the fight of Charles Reade with George Conquest over "It's Never Too Late to Mend," for instance, and the equally interesting conflict of Mr. J. A. Cave with Chatterton over "The Wandering Jew." The latter was a famous battle. Chatterton took it to the House of Lords, and was finally beaten, to the unspeakable relief of Mr. Cave, who is never weary of relating the story. Had the result been otherwise, it would have meant his ruin. I well remember meeting him on the day of his victory and "crashing a cup with him" in honour of the same. "The Law of Copyright" is dedicated to Mr. A. W. Pinero.—Sportsman.

SATURDAY, OCTOBER 20, 1906.

THE IRVING ANNIVERSARY.

Saturday last was the anniversary of the death of Henry Irving. All our readers will remember the extraordinary demonstration of public feeling which was given last year at his funeral in Westminster Abbey. It startled and surprised even those to whom his popularity was most manifest. For it was an expression of the instinctive affection for an individual felt by the public—that great, unknown, incalculable body which is always startling clever prophets with surprises, and baffling the expectations of the most experienced. We should then have thought that it was impossible to add anything to the affectionate estimate formed of the actor by the profession and the public. But Mr. Bram Stoker, in the second volume of his "Reminiscences of Henry Irving," which has just been published by Mr. Heinemann, has put the last touch to the loving memory of Irving which is cherished by so many both in and out of the profession.

There is a tinge of envy felt, in spite of ourselves, as we contemplate the career of an entirely successful and fortunate man. It seems to lift him out of fellowship with those whose lives are more or less imperfect, who are conscious of tasting the bitters as well as the sweets of human existence. To outsiders, Henry Irving's career seemed rounded off by the sudden death which removed him at the height of his popularity. Mr. Stoker has lifted the veil, and has shown us instead of a triumphant idol, a brave and uncomplaining martyr. For the last seven or eight years of his life Irving suffered. The turn of the tide came on the night of December 19, 1896, when he appeared as Richard III. The performance was an immense success, and at its conclusion there was held on the stage of the Lyceum Theatre one of those gatherings, numbering between three and six hundred of the representatives of art and letters, of statesmanship, and the various forms of public life; of Society, of the professions, of commerce—of the whole great world of personal endeavour. That evening came the first of a series of misfortunes. On returning home to Grafton Street, as he was passing up the staircase, he fell and struck his knee against an old oak chest, rupturing the ligatures under the knee-cap. "The disaster of that evening was the beginning of many which struck, and struck, and struck again, as though to even up his long prosperity to the normal measure allotted to mankind." That foot-slip cost Irving two months and a half of illness and an out-of-pocket expense of over six thousand pounds. In the February of 1898 came the burning of the Lyceum scenery at the storage in Bear Lane, Southwark, the property thus destroyed being worth over thirty thousand pounds sterling. This utterly demolished the repertoire side of Irving's management. Before the loss of the scenery he was in a position to put on the stage, at small cost, revivals of his successes; and many of these revivals were, for a moderate period, very profitable. Eight months after came the great calamity of Irving's life—the loss of his health.

To the weak and those who have been always a little ailing real illness is a trial; to the man who has been free from pain and weakness during his life it is a crushing blow. In 1898, after a successful performance of Madame Sans-Gêne in Glasgow, Irving broke down from pneumonia and pleurisy, caused by a chill taken in travelling. For seven weeks he lay ill at Glasgow, and, when he returned to London, he made the arrangement with the Lyceum Theatre Company, by which he became only a sharer in the profits of the house. It was an acknowledgment of increasing weakness, which made him long to shift some of the burden of responsibility to other shoulders. Irving no longer enjoyed life; he endured it. He had perforce to deny himself many little harmless pleasures which from habit had been precious to him. For seven years before his death he was subject to a wearing and irritating throat complaint, which weakened and wore him down by degrees. Finally, it was found that, since his attack of pleurisy and pneumonia, one of his lungs had been seriously affected. But after this he continued to struggle on heroically. Whatever bitterness he may have felt was confined to his own breast; his temper remained to the last gentle, calm, and considerate. Then he grew weaker and weaker; and another chill which he took while travelling to Wolverhampton added to his illness. He could act with all his old fire, but off the stage he was, literally, tired of his life. If he was to repair his losses and secure an income for his old age, he must, he felt, toil on until his farewell tours were finished. What the end was is well known.

The pathos of the last seven years of Irving's life must appeal to all actors and actresses. With all the protections which care and money could supply, he suffered, as so many of the profession suffer, from the inevitable exposures of travel. His losses only differed in magnitude from those of his poorer brethren; they were equally distressing and equally undeserved. If he had been less open-handed and generous he might have retained a little more of the wealth that he earned so well; but his lavish enterprise was a policy which up to a certain period repaid itself, and his personal expenditure was so modest that he had a right to his only luxury—benevolence. The publication of the details of his endurance adds another wreath to those which were placed last Saturday on Henry Irving's grave.

Lofthouse Amusements Park is a new enterprise which is about to be inaugurated under the auspices of the Wakefield and District Light Railway Co. and the Yorkshire (West Riding) Electric Tramways Co., Ltd., who have purchased the property, and are about to equip it as an up-to-date, first-class amusement resort. The park is situate almost midway between Leeds and Wakefield, and is 60 acres in extent, with a frontage to the main road of over 600yds. The company will make roads, erect band stands, refreshment rooms, and assembly hall, install a miniature steam or electric railway, lay out athletic grounds, bowling greens, and dancing platforms. Everything will be done to make the park attractive, and during the season first-class bands will be engaged. The population of the district, already served by the tramways, is very large, and sixteen other towns, besides innumerable smaller places, are being brought into touch with the park. In addition to the foregoing, arrangements are being made for the construction of lines to Dewsbury, and, within the next few months, the whole of the population of the heavy woollen district will be able to journey to the park by car. The towns of Dewsbury, Batley, Heckmondwike, Liversedge, Cleckheaton, and other important places will be linked up, and as cars with special fares will be run, there is every prospect of a large business. The advertisement department will be a strong feature of the management, illuminated advertisement cars being utilised in addition to the ordinary means of publicity.

Mr. Robert Colburn Buchanan, on behalf of the Edinburgh Construction Company, Ltd., applied at a special session of the Edinburgh Justices on the 12th inst., for a licence for the new King's Theatre in that city. The report of the Chief Constable, the Fire Master, and the Burgh Engineer were read, the last mentioned stating that the plan of the theatre, which had accommodation for 2100, had been well thought out, and ample provision made for the convenience and comfort of the public. Discussion took place on the right of the Justices, in granting the licence, to put an obligation on the proprietor not to apply for a liquor licence, and it was explained that the applicant would have to apply in the ordinary course to the magistrates for his licence to sell liquor. The theatre licence was unanimously granted.

The funeral of the late Mr. Frank Bateman took place at the Rycroft Cemetery, Walsall, on the 11th inst. Mr. Harry Battersby, of the Bilston Theatre, and Mr. Walton, the business-manager of the theatre, attended, and Mr. Collingwood (Alexander Theatre, Birmingham) was also represented. Several members of Mr. Bateman's company were also present, and contributed a handsome wreath, and similar tokens of respect came from the staff of Cardiff Theatre, Wednesbury Theatre, and four brothers of Mrs. Bateman. Telegrams and letters of sympathy, to the number of about one hundred, were received, including messages from Mr. Jno. Douglas, of the Coliseum Theatre, London, and Mr. Fredericks, of the Theatre Royal, Stratford.

At the Covent Garden Ball, given on the night of the 12th inst., some of the most striking and charming dresses included "Vanity," an exquisite concession to feminine weakness in the matter of mirrors and toilet requisites; "American Dollars," with its various panels bearing lifelike portraits of Miss Edna May, Mr. Pierpont Morgan, Mr. Rockefeller, and Sir Thomas Lipton; a sparkling "Fairy Fountain," and a typical "Garden of Eden." Mr. W. Clarkson sent a number of tasteful costumes, winning a fourth prize for "Vanity" and a sixth prize for "Fairy Fountain," already mentioned. He gained other prizes for "Garden of Eden," "Tipping," "La Duchesse," "Approach of Winter," "Sultan of Seringpatan," &c.

Mr. J. Page Moore, who is retiring from the management of the West Bromwich Theatre Royal, entertained a few friends to a dinner at a local inn by way of farewell. After thanking his many friends for the generous support they had always accorded him, Mr. Moore offered a hearty welcome to Mr. Vere, the new manager for Mr. Thomas, and expressed the hope that he, too, would find friends as good and generous in West Bromwich as he had. He explained that he had been led to give up the theatre because, living away from the town, and having other interests, he could not give the time necessary. Mr. W. S. Watts, as one of Mr. Moore's oldest friends, on behalf of a few subscribers, asked Mr. Moore's acceptance of a handsome gold cigarette case, suitably engraved.

Miss Frances Ferina and Mr. John Hitchins are meeting with gratifying success on tour in Mr. Harry Pleon's pathetic scena, Pity the Blind, which was produced by them at the Public Hall, Barnsley, a few weeks ago.

Presentation.—The orchestra of the Ardwick Empire and his Manchester friends have presented the musical director, Mr. Dick Hardwick, with a beautiful gold watch and diamond pin, as a token of esteem, on his thirty-second birthday.

COPYRIGHT CONVICTIONS.

A Harlesden music-seller, James McGuire, was given in charge on Saturday by a man named James K. Brown for selling pirated copies of Stephen Adams's "Holy City," Marzial's "River of Years," Trotère's "The Deathless Army," and Liddle's "Abide with me."

Asked by Mr. J. M. Grant, the Willesden magistrate, what authority he had for his action, Mr. Brown quoted the 1906 Act, which gave any citizen the right to act as he did. He was corroborated by Mr. Herbert Cooper, assistant secretary to the Music Copyright Association.

The Magistrate: How about the purchasers?

The Agent: We have no power to proceed against them under the Act.

The Magistrate: This case is not so simple as it appears to you. I do not think you can arrest a man for selling what is practically stolen property and ignore the receiver, who is really the worst offender. I don't see the justice of it, and I shall confer with my brother magistrates on the matter.

Prisoner was remanded on his own recognisances.

John McCallum, Geo. Lawson, Michael Coyne, Bernard McCallum, Joseph Benson, and Geo. Smith appeared before the Newcastle city justices on Monday, charged with having pirated music for sale in their possession. The first four men were apprehended on Saturday, and the evidence showed that John McCallum had 100 copies, Lawson 105, Coyne 125, and Bernard McCallum 70. Coyne stated that he was holding the music whilst the owner went to get his tea, and the other men pleaded ignorance of the Act. The two McCallums, Lawson, and Coyne were fined 10s. and costs.

In the case of Benson, the police stated that he was on the Quayside on Sunday, and had 222 copies of pirated music in his possession. "The Holy City," "Daddy," "In the shade of the old apple tree," and "I wouldn't leave my little wooden hut for you" were amongst the pieces found in Benson's possession, Inspector Potts stated. Benson was fined 20s. and costs, and Smith, who was apprehended yesterday with 153 copies, was ordered to pay 10s. and costs. The Bench made an order for the destruction of the music.

William Fisher, twenty-eight, a pedlar, and George Brown, seventeen, a labourer, both giving an address at Hammersmith-road, were charged at Chiswick with being concerned together in possessing and soliciting orders for the sale of pirated copyright music at Silver-crescent, Gunnersbury.

An agent of the Music Publishers' Association, Regent-street, deposed that on Wednesday morning he saw the prisoners together at High-road, Chiswick, with bundles under their arms, and knowing Fisher to have been formerly engaged in selling copies of music he kept them under observation. They went to Hartington-gardens, and each called at different houses. The agent went for a constable, and subsequently found the prisoners at Silver-crescent. Brown was standing outside a house, while Fisher was engaged in conversation with the lady of the house. Fisher had a book, in which were entered orders for copies of pirated music, the prices ranging from 2d. to 6d. Prisoners were arrested, and Fisher had in his possession ninety-six copies of copyright music, while Brown has 100 copies of pirated music and six copies of copyright music. At the station it was alleged that Brown claimed the book referred to as his own. Fisher pleaded not guilty, but Brown admitted having the pirated music with him.

The Bench did not think the evidence was strong enough against Fisher, and he was discharged. Brown was fined £2 and costs. An order was made for the destruction of the pirated music.

THE GRANVILLE.

This week, at the Granville, Hetty King, the celebrated male impersonator; Harry Ford, the whimsical comedian; and the Brothers Horne, in their pugilistic comedy The Biter Bit, loom largely on the posters and figure prominently in the programme. Hetty King has made her name well known, and gained a great success in London and the provinces by reason of her distinction of manner and refinement in the portrayal of various types of mankind, and her dancing has largely helped in establishing her success and popularity. As a thoroughly "well-groomed masher," as a jolly Jack Tar (as neat as the man-of-war whose deck he lately strode), or as a dashing militaire, Miss King is always essentially smart and well-set-up. Her songs suit the impersonations, being, "When a fellow is twenty-four," "When Jack's ashore," and "Dandy Dick of the Devil-may-care Brigade." Harry Ford sings plaintively of the joys (sic) of married life, of the many little duties he has to perform, "and after that my time is all my own"; but as he is up at 3 a.m to work, and his household duties last till 2.45 a.m. it does not require much calculation to guess what leisure time is left him! His other song, of his lady love, is exquisitely droll in delivery and composition, and the manner in which he warbles "When she talks, when she talks" keeps the house in a roar. Assuredly he is, as the programme puts it, "a Granville favourite" second to none. The Brothers Horne in their little pugilistic sketch with a moral lesson for all bullies, entitled The Biter Bit, give a capital show on humorous lines. Another artist who deserves special mention is Nellie Wallace, the popular burlesque artist, and screamingly funny is her facial play and her grotesque make-up, as well as her quaint calisthenic exercise in "You may bet it's never been my luck to find a man yet" and "I can't go to sleep." Rose Archer is a first-rate musical mimic on the lines laid down by Miss Ray Wallace, and specially good is her imitation of Miss Marie Lloyd. Marriott Edgar, "the man in red," has a wonderfully clear enunciation, and shows great promise in his songs "I thought I'd light a match" and "On the sands." Newham and Latimer, in their burlesque ditties "We'll show you round the Tower" and "The Earl and the Girl," are highly diverting and original. Gertrude Bradshaw gains deserved applause by an excellent rendition of "The children's home." A. G. Spry is an eccentric comedian who is a certain starter for the mirth-making stakes, and in his songs "I'll have my two bob back" and "I think I'll apply for that" he is genuinely funny without being vulgar. The Sherrys are clever and daring comedy acrobatic specialists; Harrigan and Holt sing "Only a stew" and give characteristic "patter," their dancing being especially graceful and dexterous; Brown and Kelly and company appear in their bustling sketch The Butler Knows, played to an accompaniment of hearty laughter, especially when the baby cries! Vernon's Bioscope has admirable new pictures in "Her morning dip," "The ? Motorists," and "How a British bulldog saved the Union Jack." Lawrence Barclay, as a "member of the force" who keeps everything "For evidence" and in "Oh, 'Ria, what have you done for me," is a prime favourite at Walham Green. Gladys Mavius, the Canadian coon singer, and a very neat dancer; Lambert and Glover in their farcical duologue My Birthday; Therese and May in their singing protean act; Will English, nigger comedian; and Arthur Melrose, a capital comedian, complete the programme. Mr. W. S. Bassett conducts the capital orchestra with verve and ability.

Morris and Morris, grotesques, who have been touring for sixteen weeks in the States, are being rebooked everywhere on the other side, and American managers will claim their services for some time to come.

"CYMBELINE" AT GLASGOW.

A hearty reception was accorded the second Shakespearean revival at the Grand Theatre, Glasgow, on Thursday, the 11th inst., and the interest and enthusiasm evoked by last year's production of Romeo and Juliet seem likely to be repeated in the present instance. Cymbeline has been chosen as the subject for this revival, and as the play has not been seen in Glasgow for seventeen years, it possesses the charm of novelty for most of the present generation of playgoers. It deals with a picturesque period of British history, the story is powerful, and the unravelling of the plot makes a strong call on the resources of the principal characters, necessitating as it does the sounding of the whole gamut of the emotions, love, despair, grief, pity, hate, and revenge being in turn called for. The scenic possibilities of the play have been made much of, and Messrs. Hugh Freemantle and William Palmer have provided a number of beautiful settings, in particular those representing Imogen's Bed-chamber, the Hall of Cymbeline's Palace, Before the Cave of Belarius, Imogen's Ante-chamber, and the Garden of Cymbeline's Palace, which are one and all notable examples of scenic art at its best. The company engaged for the production is in every respect well chosen. Miss Mona K. Oram as Imogen gives a most enjoyable performance, and her acting throughout is on a very high level. From the love-making scenes of the first act to the pathetic incidents of the later scenes she holds the interest of the audience, and the powerful scene with Iachimo is given with a tragic force that is in striking contrast with the comedy aspect of her rejection of the suit of the foolish prince, Cloten. Miss Oram's acting throughout undoubtedly enhances the high opinion already held here of her abilities. Mr. Vincent Clive as Leonatus Posthumus imbues the part with the necessary romantic attributes, and his fine delivery of the many stirring speeches incidental to the part is a most commendable feature of his performance. In the strong scene with Iachimo, where the latter's artful insinuations make Leonatus believe that Imogen has proved unfaithful, Mr. Clive is especially successful, and the audience were quick to acknowledge their appreciation of the fact. In the part of the scheming Iachimo Mr. F. Joynsen-Powell made a decided hit, and the artful villainy of this Iago-like character is brought out in many quiet but artistic touches. Mr. E. Story-Gofton is a dignified and kingly Cymbeline, and his powerful and resonant voice is heard to advantage in the denunciation of Leonatus in the first act, and in several other notable passages. Another excellent actor with a ripe elocutionary method is Mr. Henry Marston Clifford, who plays with telling effect the part of Belarius. His two wards, Guiderius and Arviragus, are cleverly acted by Messrs. Eric Maxon and Alfred Hilliard, and their scene with the disguised Imogen at the cave is played with commendable judgment and appreciation. Mr. Ernest Griffin, who has numerous admirers here since his fine performance in Romeo and Juliet, is well suited in the character of the Roman general, Caius Lucius. Mr. Eric Mayne as the faithful Pisanio acts well, and Mr. A. C. Hardie ably plays the part of Philario. Miss Barbara Fenn acts with notable success as the intriguing Queen, and the only other female part, that of Helen, is ably filled by Miss Ella Thornton. The chorus and augmented orchestra, under Mr. H. Henderson, looked after the musical interests, and the rendering of the glee, "Hark, hark, the lark," by the chorus was accorded a hearty encore. The production has been arranged by Mr. Richard Dalton, who stage-manages the present revival under the personal superintendence of the managing-director, Mr. R. C. Buchanan, and both gentlemen were heartily applauded for their share in the arduous labours of the production, and had to respond with a few words of thanks.

FREEMASONRY.

The Ranelagh Lodge No. 834 had a very successful evening in the Masonic Temple of the Criterion last week, Mr. Malcolm F. Wilkins presiding, supported by Messrs. H. W. Dyne, I.P.M., G. F. Butt (treasurer), W. South (secretary), G. B. Stehr, S.W., A. G. Gee, J.W., P. W. Smethurst, S.D., W. G. Lee, J.D., and W. G. Brooks, I.G. The W.M. initiated Mr. E. F. Appleby into the mysteries of ancient Freemasonry, and raised Messrs. McDonoch, Ibbetson, and Eastgate. The next business on the agenda was to present Mr. John Worth, a founder, and for some years treasurer, of the Earl's Court Lodge, with his Grand Lodge clothing, and to congratulate him upon being appointed A.G.P. of England by H.R.H. the Duke of Connaught, the Grand Master.

This was performed in a most impressive manner by the W.M. Mr. Worth, who was visibly affected, replied, thanking the Ranelagh and the Earl's Court Lodges for the highly valued testimonial of their regard. The brethren then adjourned to the Victoria Hall, where they were joined by their lady friends, and attended a reception held by Mr. and Mrs. Wilkins. Subsequently they dined together in the Grand Hall. At the conclusion of the banquet a highly successful concert, under the direction of Mr. Charles Moore, was held. The Misses Julia Cowan and Muriel Hey, assisted by Messrs. Frank Esmond, Arthur French, Charles Rose, Tom Leo, and Maurice Garland, took part, the last-named gentleman causing much amusement and amazement by his conjuring tricks.

The latest quotations for music hall shares is as follows:—Alhambra, 1¼; Canterbury, ½; Empire (15s. paid), 1½; Empire (10s. paid), 1; London Pavilion Ordinary, 4½; ditto Pref., 5½; London Coliseum, ½; Metropolitan, ½; Moss' Empire, 7½; Moss' Empire, 5 per cent. Pref., 3½; Oxford, 7; Palace, 11; Tivoli, 6½; and Vars. Cons. Theatres 14s.

Mr. George C. Doughty, who has recently concluded a successful tour of the Moss-Stoll circuit, has been rebooked by Mr. Oswald Stoll, to commence the tour again June 10, 1907, at the Empire, Hackney, with his comedy scene, Captain Cupid, by Wm. P. Sheen, author of The Temptress, The Way of the World, Why Woman Sins, &c.

Huline and Le May, the novelty clowns, return to town on Monday, opening at Mr. Gibbon's new Hippodrome in Brixton. They have just returned from the provinces after successfully appearing at Mr. Gilbert's hippodromes.

Master Clifford did a trial turn at Shepherd's Bush recently, and was immediately engaged for Monday at the Empire, New Cross, with the Stratford and Shepherd's Bush houses to follow. Master Clifford is the son of Mr. Cliff Ryland, and is the only boy of the family who is following in his father's footsteps.

Mr. Fred Larola, the comedy juggler, who has recently returned from Australia via India, &c., has presented Mr. Harry Lester, his brother Terrier, with a perfect miniature ebony and ivory model of an elephant, of which the recipient is very proud.

"The Lady of the Roses," the dainty miniature comedy written by Hubert Bartlett for Mr. and Mrs. Hugh de Beera, and which is down for production at the Camberwell Empire on Nov. 5, will be lavishly dressed and mounted. Nothing will be required from the management but a clear stage, and the whole production will, we are assured, be worthy of a West-End theatre.

Gipsy Woolf is meeting with great success on the Continent, her engagements there taking her up to March, 1907. She is now at Bremen.

VARIETY GOSSIP.

The tenth annual general meeting of the Music Hall Artists' Railway Association will be held on Tuesday next at the Camberwell Empire. Mr. Fred Neiman will take the chair at 12 noon. All members must present their green cards to obtain admission.

Mr. W. T. Stead has been to the London Hippodrome, and chronicled his enjoyment of the show. The Indian fakirs pleased him immensely, and he thought the clowns delightfully amusing. The Royal box was placed at the disposal of Mr. and Mrs. W. T. Stead, who, during the progress of the performance, had a chat with Sir Edward Moss.

When a humorist becomes serious he launches on a risky experiment, but Mr. Owen Hall, who as a satirical journalist had a nice taste in lampoons, has determined, now that the exuberance of youth has given place to the philosophic calm of middle-age, to write sentiment, and will be represented at the Soldene matinée, on Nov. 13 at the Palace Theatre, by a one-act piece which will be minus the audacious wit that Londoners so much admired in The Gaiety Girl, The Little Cherub, The Girl from Kay's, and other pieces from the same versatile pen.

In the early days of the Mohawk Minstrels Mr. Harry Hunter, whose death is recorded in another column, was assisted in writing the songs by Mr. Charles Townley (Mr. Geoffrey Thorn), the author of the earlier pantomimes at the Grand Theatre, Islington; but later the deceased gentleman employed his astonishing facility in turning out verses with most successful results in songs that obtained a remarkable vogue through their rendering by the famous minstrels that were for nearly thirty years an institution in Islington.

A personal friend of Mr. Hunter writes in the Islington Gazette: "Few will readily forget the periodical entertainment he and other members of his troupe gave to the inmates of Islington Workhouse, and the humorous speeches with which he always pleased the old folks at the conclusion of the entertainment." Harry Hunter's final appearance on the stage was on the night of Saturday, April 9, at the last performance of the Mohawk-Moore and Burgess at St. James's Hall.

Mr. Hunter was the head and front of the Mohawks, and was undoubtedly for many years the most popular entertainment manager in London, and it must have caused him no little regret to note the growing indifference of the masses to the attractions presented by burnt-cork melodists and mirth-makers, whose fame he did so much to establish. The enormous development in variety entertainments and the rapidly-increasing popularity of the modern music hall, drew the public patronage from minstrelsy, and the removal of the Mohawks from Islington and their amalgamation with the Moore and Burgess combination revived only a transitory interest in an innocent form of recreation that had entirely lost ground with the amusement-seeking public.

Among the well-known people at the funeral on Wednesday at Abney Park we noted Mr. Thomas, the first manager of the Mohawks; Mr. R. Berridge; Messrs. Fred J. Barnes and R. P. Weston, the well-known song writers; Mr. Miles (formerly Little Henry, the harpist, of the Mohawks); that veteran comedian, Victor Liston, whose famous song, "Encore, Encore, Encore," still recalls pleasant recollections; the Two Johnnies (Schofield and Danvers); Mr. "Little Thomas," the renowned corner man; Mr. Tom Birchmore, Mr. E. R. Franks, Mr. Dawes, Mr. Stainton, the well-known job master, and possibly the oldest ratepayer in Islington; Mrs. Herbert Campbell, and Mr. Harry Randall.

Miss Millie Payne resumes her acquaintance with her admirers at the Metropolitan on Monday next, and will then play at all the Stoll suburban houses. New songs will be submitted, and her success can be relied on.

Mr. E. C. Matthews, the well-known Irish comedian (late with Mr. Cyril Maude at the Waldorf Theatre), and Mr. Vernon Cowper (late of the Coliseum), have joined forces to produce Mr. Matthews's latest sketch, entitled When the Clock Went Wrong (a tale of a new-laid egg). As author of The Lady and the Parson, A Bit of Bacon, The Romany King, and upwards of 50 other successes, Mr. Matthews's name is a household word, while Mr. Cowper as an actor and vocalist is also well-known. The new sketch will be produced on Monday at the Royal Standard, Pimlico, and should arouse much interest.

A new musical sketch was put on at the Empire, Hackney, on Friday evening, during the second house, when Vaughan, Williams, and Carlton entertained the patrons of the house with a musical mélange, which has already secured the approval of many prominent managers in London. The piece was produced by Lionel Vaughan, whose sketch Who's the Culprit?—the name of which, by the way, has now been changed to In Trouble—will come to the Middlesex on November 5. Bookings for this clever sextet of artists are coming in thick and fast.

An interesting ceremony was witnessed at Christ Church, Albany-street, Regent's Park, on Saturday afternoon, when Mr. Reginald Weber Allan, the well-known musical composer and orchestral arranger, was wedded to Miss Kathleen Marguerite Riley, in the presence of a large congregation. The bride, who entered the church upon the arm of her brother Robert, was charmingly attired in white spotted muslin trimmed with white lace and embroidered silk, with a massive satin sash embroidered with silk marguerites. On her head was a wreath of orange blossoms and an embroidered silk veil, and she carried a shower boquet. The bridesmaids were the Misses Dora and Madeline Hulbert (cousins), prettily dressed in white muslin with lace, and wearing wreaths of marguerites out of compliment to the bride's name. Chêne sashes and boquets completed their costumes.

The officiating minister was the Rev. Arthur Webb, M.A., and Mr. J. Airlie Dix was at the organ. Mr. Wilhelm Piercey was best man. Miss Riley was given away by her mother, who wore a white dress covered with lace and chiffon and a white picture hat with large ostrich feather. After the ceremony a reception, largely attended, was held at the house of the bride's mother. The happy couple, who were the recipients of a large number of valuable and handsome presents, are spending their honeymoon at Westcliff-on-Sea. The bridegroom, a son of William Joseph Allan, of Southport, is a brother of the late Ernest Allan, musical composer, and was at one time connected with Messrs. Francis, Day, and Hunter.

The Follies, whose turn is one of the chief attractions in the particularly strong programme at the Tivoli, were all present at St. Simon's, Shepherd's Bush, on Wednesday, when Miss Marjorie Napier was married to Mr. Frank Elmore. Miss Napier was a member of the popular little company for over six years, having made her last appearance on the stage only three weeks ago. She was an exceedingly pretty bride, and wore a simple dress of finest white Indian silk, the white hat being trimmed with ostrich plumes and a handful of pink roses under the brim, and her only ornament a jewelled pendant, the gift of the bridegroom. Immediately after the ceremony Mr. and Mrs. Frank Elmore left for Devonshire, where they will spend two weeks, to be followed by a six months' trip to the other side of the world.

Our congratulations are tendered to Miss Helen Charles and Mr. Harry Burns, the well-known variety agent, and popular manager of the Empress, Hartlepool, upon their engagement.

The police entered the Queen's Theatre of Varieties, Glasgow, on Wednesday night when the performance was proceeding, and the deputy chief constable announced from the stage that he held a warrant to close the theatre and arrest any person in the audience who refused to leave. On Tuesday the magistrates withdrew the theatre's licence owing to boxing competitions having been carried on, but the management opened the theatre in defiance of the magistrates' order.

Mr. John Ormerod, a director of the Winter Gardens, Blackpool, died at Park-road, Blackpool, on Friday, Oct. 12, and was buried on Tuesday afternoon at the Blackpool Cemetery. The chief mourners were his three daughters, Mrs. Lempriere Pringle, of London, Mrs. J. Lightbody, of London, Mrs. W. H. Foxwell, of Manchester, Mr. W. H. Foxwell, Mr. W. H. Browne (nephew), from Bristol, and Dr. Molloy. The Winter Gardens Company was represented by the Chairman (Mr. Pearson), the manager (Mr. Huddlestone), and the secretary (Mr. Peace). Unfortunately Mr. L. Pringle, son-in-law, was unable to be present owing to an engagement in the South of England. There were a number of beautiful floral tributes covering the polished oak coffin.

Mr. Edwin W. Smith, proprietor of the popular Parthenon, Liverpool, took his sixteenth annual benefit on Thursday evening. There was a crowded audience, and artists from all the variety houses of the city and Birkenhead came forward to offer their services. This yearly event is one of the most appreciated in Liverpool, for Mr. Smith is a general favourite in the theatrical world; while his little and old-established place of amusement always does good business, capital programmes being presented. On Thursday there were fifty star turns, the stage-managers being Messrs. D. J. Clarke (Argyle Theatre, Birkenhead), Neils Christensen, Syd Bird, and Charles Nixon.

Antonio Pierri, the "Terrible Greek," of wrestling fame, obtained judgment on Wednesday in the Edinburgh Court of Session against Mr. Barney Armstrong, of the Queen's Theatre, Glasgow, for £120, being Pierri's salary for a week's engagement. During the proceedings allegations were made as to the bona-fides of the wrestling, but Mr. Armstrong was unrepresented, and judgment was awarded Pierri.

The death is announced of Mr. J. H. Wood, who succumbed to cancer on Saturday, the 13th inst., at the residence of his sister in Manchester, at the age of 64. In the provinces he ran many years since the Mechanics' Hall and the People's Palace, Oldham, where he initiated clog-dancing competitions. A few years since he was associated for a short time with the Bow Palace, where he initiated dancing and other competitions. He originated the famous dancing contest in which Dan Leno, Tom Ward, and other famous experts in the clogs competed. In his earlier career at the London halls the lamented Dan rattled the wooden shoon at all his engagements, and wore a silver belt, which he won in a famous competition organised by Mr. Wood.

Mrs. Burke, whose husband's death was announced in our last issue, has received the sad news from America of the decease of her mother, Mrs. Cecilia Catherine Beatty, who, at the age of eighty-eight, expired on the 11th inst., after ailing for a long period. The deceased, who had resided over fifty years at Washington, was a well-known authoress and poetess, and was the first lady writer to protest against slavery in the States, over half a century ago. At one time she was the only female correspondent of the New York Tribune (Horace Greeley's paper.)

Mr. Will Murray, the acting-manager of Sadler's Wells, discredits the rumours of his marriage which have recently been circulated. Mr. Murray, it seems, is so seldom absent from his post that when he was out of town a couple of weeks ago on business it was insinuated that he had taken the fateful step. Mr. Murray, however, has not yet surrendered his latchkey, and the congratulatory postcards and letters, some of which have already come to hand, are therefore superfluous.

On Tuesday the Water Rats gave their fourth flying matinée performance at the Brighton Hippodrome, and attracted an overflowing audience. The entertainers were numerous, and the programme, therefore, a very lengthy one.. Among those who submitted turns were Little Tich, Joe Cheevers, Dean Tribune, W. J. Churchill, Dave O'Toole, Carlton, the McConnell Trio, the Poluski Brothers, the Brothers Egbert, Brilliant and Brilliant, Eadie and Ramsden, Jordan and Harvey, Lil Hawthorne, Jessie Preston, Annie Purcell, Eily Adair, and Brown and company. The matinée was a splendid success. The duties of conductor were shared by Mr. Bond Sayers (London Pavilion), Mr. Louis De Reeder (Tivoli, London), and Mr. Charles Johns (Brighton Hippodrome), and Mr. Harry Clark was stage manager. Special thanks are due to the proprietors of the Hippodrome for the use of their magnificent theatre of varieties, and to their courteous manager, Mr. Arthur R. Holland.

Miss Annette Kellerman's most exciting experience happened, oddly enough, when she was not "in the swim," but quietly paddling round a tank after her performance was over and the audience had left the theatre. She had quite forgotten that it was customary to empty the tank by means of a pipe at the bottom, and her surprise and fear can be well imagined when she suddenly felt a mysterious suction under the water, dragging her down. For once the fair champion felt a shudder of dismay, and wildly seized the handle of a broom that was lying across one corner of the tank. Her cry of distress brought half a dozen men to the brink of the water, and by their united efforts she was helped into safety. Whenever Miss Kellerman uses the phrase about a drowning man clinging to a straw, she substitutes the word "broomstick."

Visitors to Chelsea Palace next week may look for somewhat of a novelty in Beauty and the Bounders, which is described as a musical protean pleasantry, written by Wilton Heriot, with music specially composed and arranged by Carlile Vernon. Special scenery has been painted for the production by Walter Drury, representing the lounge bar of the "Hotel de Luxe." Miss Frances Manners will appear as Beauty, a barmaid, and the Bounders, four in number, will all be impersonated by the author.

Caicedo has been doing splendid business this week at the Palace, Carlisle. His act has been filling the houses to their utmost capacity.

Miss Frances Letty, the latest American comedienne and dancer, to appear in London, has scored a big hit at the Granville, Walham Green. This dainty artist introduces in one of her songscenas quite a unique novelty, namely, clog dancing on a board so fitted and connected with an electric supply as to produce a wonderfully startling effect with every beat of her clogs. The theatre is in darkness, and the resultant scene is weird and picturesque in the extreme. Miss Letty's success was so pronounced at her début that she was immediately booked for a lengthy Moss and Stoll tour, and has also received enticing offers for South Africa and the Continent. Will Oliver is representing this latest arrival.

Mr. J. L. Graydon's annual anniversary takes place on Thursday next, when all the available talent in London will appear.

A special opening performance of the Brixton Hippodrome will be given on Saturday evening, when the élite of the profession will appear. An excellent orchestra has been engaged.

The Canterbury anniversary will be celebrated on Thursday evening, Nov. 15, when the programme of this historic house will be augmented by special features.

Mr. J. W. Edgar, by permission of his directors, will take his complimentary benefit at the Metropolitan on Thursday evening, Nov. 15. Among the attractions already promised are Little Tich, Hackenschmidt, and Marie Lloyd.

The Putney Hippodrome will be opened to the public on Monday, Nov. 5. The managing-director, Mr. W. J. Grimes, will run the house on the old plan of one performance nightly. At the première, Mr. Herbert Sims Reeves, the son of the celebrated tenor, will sing the solo of the National Anthem. The manager is Mr. Clifford King.

Mr. J. W. Winton, the celebrated ventriloquist, is an enormous favourite in Australia, where he has given something like 3,000 performances in Sydney and Melbourne while under engagement to Mr. Harry Rickards. He is now with us for a season, and has been renewing his Colonial triumphs at the Paragon and Walthamstow Palace. He will introduce his original act at the Holborn Empire on Monday next.

The Four Sherrys, while travelling on Thursday night from the Granville, Walham Green, to the Bedford, had a very narrow escape of their lives. When about half-way on their journey their brougham was run into by a motor 'bus, and so completely smashed that they had to make their exit by the window. Marvellous to relate, however, none of the occupants sustained any injury beyond a severe shaking, and all were in time for their turn in Camden Town.

During the Royal Carl Rosa Opera Company's next vacation Mr. Ernest Chas. Gittins, the acting-manager, has decided to tour the halls again with his répertoire of grand opera sketches. Mlle. Adèle Prescott, who made such a success last season, has been re-engaged for the principal rôles, and Miss Therese Gilbert, the well-known contralto, for the chief contralto parts.

Mr. Alfred Butt has taken great pains in submitting the Blackpool Motoring Pictures, and his preparations have been rewarded by a series of films the clearness and steadiness of which speak very highly for the operators. Mr. Lee Guiness seems to have been taken from all points of the compass, and Miss Dorothy Levett making the ladies' record is an interesting picture.

Miss Maidie Scott, a dainty Irish comedienne, who is making her first appearance at the Palace, is the daughter of an Army officer. Next week the McNaughtons, no longer bound by Syndicate contracts, join the already crowded programme, and Miss Margaret Cooper, one of the most artistic vocalists of modern time, will submit some new songs at the piano.

Mr. Alfred Butt, during last winter's season at the Palace Theatre, tried the experiment of giving at the Saturday matinées high-class orchestral selections, and the success then attained has determined him to make a feature of the best music. He will naturally leave the choice to that excellent musician and highly-capable chef d'orchestre, Mr. Herman Finck, who will, this afternoon, conduct Tschaikowsky's "1812" overture, a tone-poem of the deepest dramatic significance. Miss Margaret Cooper, who makes her début at the Palace on Monday, comes from the concert platform with the highest reputation.

Mr. Frederick Stanley—the senior partner of the well-known firm, Messrs. Stanley, Woodhouse, and Hedderwick, solicitors to the Theatrical Managers' Association—died on Friday morning, the 12th inst., in his eightieth year. He never recovered from a serious operation that he underwent last August. For many years the deceased gentleman was well-known in theatrical and music hall circles, and was associated with the late Charles Morton, his brother-in-law, in the erection of the first music hall on the site of the Canterbury Arms, and also helped him to start the old Philharmonic in Upper-street, Islington, Oct. 17, 1870, as a theatre. The funeral took place at Norwood on Monday, the burial being preceded by a memorial service at St. Matthew's, Denmark Hill.

Miss Emily Soldene is much touched by the kindness of prominent artists volunteering their services at her farewell matinée at the Palace on Nov. 13. Among the attractions will be the appearance of Sir Charles Wyndham for the only time this season. Miss Marie Tempest will sing two of Mr. Frank Lambert's delightful compositions, and there will be selections from The Dairymaids and other current theatrical attractions. Mme. Melba, the president of the Ladies' Committee, is working hard to ensure success. Lord Rothschild has bought a box, and the first cheque received was from Ellen Terry, who has sent two guineas for a couple of stalls. Mme. Ada Crossley has also expressed her intention of being present. Miss Soldene proposes to return after Christmas to Australia.

Mr. Alfred Moul will introduce a novel turn at the Alhambra, which at present is indefinitely termed "a study in the occult." So sure is he of its appeal to the trained mind that, before including it in the evening programme, he has decided to invite all the leading authorities in the scientific world and experts in the study of psychic force to a private performance to judge of its quality.

Mr. Sydney M. Hyman, who has been combining business with pleasure during his trip over the other side, has secured several big turns for the Hyman Company's halls in South Africa, and has been visiting two halls every day, Sundays included. He has visited Chicago, and is now in San Francisco. He expects to be back by the first week in November. Mr. Hyman has arranged to open a permanent branch office in New York City, which will be under the management of Mr. Robert D. Girard, who in the past has been associated with Mr. Richard Pitrot in agency.

Miss Cissie Curlette, the well-known mimetic vocalist, who has been appearing in the provinces with such success, was forced to give up on Tuesday, the 9th inst., at Grimsby, owing to throat trouble. On her return home to Liverpool she consulted a throat specialist, who informed her that she had a growth on her vocal chords, and advised her to undergo an operation for its removal, to which she immediately consented. We are pleased to say that the operation was so successful that Miss Curlette was able to appear at the Hippodrome, Stockton, on Monday.

Cruickshank, the lightning caricaturist, recently entertained a few private friends at an afternoon at the London Pavilion with an experiment in rapid production. In the short space of two hours and ten minutes he executed the phenomenal number of 240 caricatures of the world's celebrities. These sketches were produced without any halt, except for a couple of seconds every five sketches, to permit of the change of blank material. Since opening at the Pavilion Cruickshank has drawn over 240 celebrities, repeating them 2,000 times.

Another slight change occurs at the Ealing Hippodrome. Mr. E. W. James loses his but lately appointed assistant, Mr. W. R. Draper, who takes up an appointment as chief at the Brixton Hippodrome.

Miss Rachel Lowe made her re-appearance at the Tivoli and Canterbury on Monday night, after spending a week in Paris. She introduced to London audiences her latest song, "The Progressive Woman." This is not a woman's rights song, but a dissertation on "Man in the Abstract." Attired in the very latest Parisian dress, Miss Lowe gives an object lesson to the ladies in the audience who insist on wearing large hats in public places to the annoyance of the members of the sterner sex. The idea is novel and original, and is much appreciated, especially by the Tivoli patrons.

Miss Kitty Loftus is winning artistic triumphs in Johannesburg, where her turn at the Empire has been lengthened by demands for encores that must have severely taxed the endurance of the popular soubrette. Miss Loftus expects to return to London early in December..

"The Mystery of the Cliff," by Tom Craven and Will Evans, produced at the Bedford this week, proved an instantaneous success, and was immediately booked up by managers. The sketch will be seen at Hammersmith next week.

Mr. Horace Marriott writes to us as follows:—"I beg to acknowledge per Mr. Rayne your cheque for £4, as a donation to the Music Hall Benevolent Fund, being part proceeds of the sale of Messrs. Rayne's useful little book of dates and distances. Permit me, on behalf of our president and committee, to thank you for your good and substantial efforts on our behalf. We are very much in want of funds to carry on the good work, and when I tell you that the committee has investigated over 1,500 cases during the past year, you will realise how necessary it is to obtain money enough to enable the Fund to continue to aid and relieve the poor professional."

On Saturday last, at the Drill Hall, Rotherham, the fourth annual comic song contest took place for the Yorkshire Challenge Shield and gold medal. The entrants numbered forty-five, and more than thirty appeared. Mr. Arthur Bearle, of Levenshulme, officiated as judge, and announced his decision as follows: Challenge shield, gold medal, and £4, Mr. Sam Jesson, Blackpool; second prize, £2 10s., Mr. Donald Cameron, Burnley; third prize, £1 10s., Mr. Alfred B. Millard, Manchester. The contest, which was highly successful, was promoted by Mr. Goulder Hamilton, the Yorkshire humorist.

Mr. Frank Parker is hard at work on his forthcoming Christmas production, and the necessity suddenly arose for the finding of a particular artist to do a certain piece of business. Mr. Parker accordingly resolved to pay a flying visit to the suburban Moss Empires in the hope of securing what he wanted. Time at his disposal, however, is very limited, and he could only spare one night for his search. A very fast 14 h.p. Star motor-car was obtained on Tuesday evening, and, accompanied by Messrs. H. Garrick and W. Bennett, of the Press Department, the popular equestrian director left the Hippodrome in it at 6.40 p.m. Holloway Empire was reached at 6.55, and from the stage-box the turns of Maudie Ford and the Granadas were seen. Between 7.15 and 7.28 the car was speeding between the Holloway and Hackney Empires. Vesta Tilley was on the Mare-street theatre stage, and even after singing four songs the mighty audience clamoured for more.

Mr. Parker and his companions re-entered the car at 7.46, and the mazy, dimly-lighted streets, bristling with soap factories, on the Essex marshes were traversed at the car's top speed. The church clock in Broadway struck eight as the motor pulled up outside the Stratford Empire. In the next thirty-five minutes Victor Travers, Frank Danby's Chauffeur and some bioscope pictures had been seen. Then commenced the longest run of the evening—to New Cross Empire. Clemart has the 9.10 turn there, and is followed by Will Mitcham and Paulinetti and Piquo. Mr. Parker followed these acts with keen interest. But the vigilant timekeeper notified the flying trio that two more halls were yet to be visited. Accordingly, 9.35 found the car once more swiftly gliding through the traffic to the Camberwell Palace. This hall was reached exactly ten minutes later. Frank Darwin was singing when the visitors arrived. One can almost throw a biscuit from the Palace to the Empire, so the last-mentioned establishment was visited at 10.5. The Richards Trio and Ada Gratley were the turns seen here. At 10.25 Camberwell was left behind, and at 10.40 Mr. Parker arrived back at the Hippodrome in time to witness the final scenes of devastation in The Earthquake.

At the 485th meeting of the Executive Committee of the M.H.A.R.A. were present Messrs. Fred Neiman, John Alexander, Fred Griffiths, Douglas White (hon. treasurer), Harry Blake, A. Borelli, Frank Gerald, and C. Douglas Stuart (secretary). Mr. Fred Neiman was voted to the chair. A letter was read from Mr. G. H. Chirgwin, resigning from the post of vice-president, and his resignation was accepted with regret, as was also the resignation from the committee of Mr. James Finney. A petition was received from a number of members re the agency at Hanley, and it was decided to transfer it to Mr. Tom McHugh, of the Antelope Hotel. The procedure to be employed at the general meeting was adopted, and arrangements were settled as to the method of dealing with the voting papers at the forthcoming election of the committee. It was decided to hold a special committee meeting on Tuesday next, at 11.30, at the Empire, Camberwell, prior to the general meeting on that day.

There was a very well-attended and enthusiastic meeting of the International Artists' Lodge at the Royal Sovereign, Upper St. Martin's-lane, last Sunday. A letter was received from Mrs. Burke, widow of Brother Burke, thanking the Lodge for the wreath sent. At the same time a letter from the headquarters of the Lodge in Berlin was also received, asking for further information as to the funeral of the deceased and informing the meeting that the death-money was at the disposal of Mrs. Burke upon production of death certificate.

A brother asked advice with reference to the arrangement of his times by Mr. G. A. Payne. The artist was booked to play two halls in one evening, and, though the time-table was arranged in one office, the artist had been set down in the programmes at times which made it impossible to play both halls, as it would take him probably three-quarters of an hour to get from one house to the other, and the interval allowed was only twenty minutes. Brothers 1226 and 1365 advised the brother to play one hall, and send word to Mr. Payne that he would play the other as soon as was possible.

The meeting of the White Rats held on September 7th in America for the purpose of discussing affiliation between the V.A.F., I.A.L., W.R., and Vaudeville Comedy Club, and mentioned in a recent report of the American Lodge meeting, was then discussed. Those present at this meeting (I.A.L., London) were not well informed as to the nature of the Vaudeville Comedy Club, but all agreed that the matter was in very good hands, as the president and his brother were on the other side.

PARIS ECHOES.

(From our own correspondent.)

The Casino de Paris, which was to have reopened under a new management on Saturday, the 13th inst., has postponed the function until Monday next. We shall therefore be noticing the programme in next week's edition.

Gadbin's career at the Folies-Bergères has been cut short, fortunately not by accident, but his performance has been forbidden by the Prefect of Police, who found it too dangerous and too cruel an exhibition. This was brought about mainly by the Cirque d'Hiver putting on a similar show, at the dress rehearsal of which the unfortunate athlete was really nearly killed.

The manager of the "Tourbillon de la Mort," in which a young lady met with her death at the Casino de Paris, also asked for an authorisation to make a début, but was most energetically refused by the police authorities.

Another very dangerous performance is at present taking place at the Velodrome Buffalo, where a plucky American, Dare-Devil Schreyer, takes a dive of about 100ft. on a bicycle into a small tank below. It is very evident that, should the wind be strong, he would doubtless deviate from his course and would probably meet with a bad accident. It is said that the management of the Vélodrome incur a heavy penalty each time he gives his performance.

Two new débuts at Barrasford's Alhambra—Rebla, a comic juggler, who met with an instantaneous success; also Haydee, with his marionette theatre, in which appear in diminutive all the celebrities of the music hall. The imitation of Little Tich is very clever.

I forgot to mention in my last Paris notes that the bill is still topped by De Gracia with his wonderful Assam elephants. He has created quite a sensation, and in the opinion of the public generally and also the principal experts in animal training this is the best act of its kind on the variety stage at present.

The Nouveau Cirque, under the management of Mr. Houcke, the nephew of Mr. Houcke in partnership with Mr. Bostock, is presenting a troupe of thirty Polar bears doing a remarkable performance, which winds up with "Shooting the Chutes,"—a sensational finish indeed!

Mlle. Alexia and her dancer Orfeo, who made such a hit at your Empire, are at present appearing at the Folies-Bergères, where their success is very great. We may add that Mlle. Alexia is engaged to appear in January next at your Alhambra, where a ballet, in which she is to play the leading part, is being specially composed for her.

It is reported that Loie Fuller is at present negotiating with Messrs. Houcke and Bostock, of the Hippodrome here, to give a great and novel production in which a hundred dancers will take part. This novelty will be introduced into the great spectacular production India, which will be produced at the Hippodrome early in November.

Parisiana has just produced with great success its new revue, Viens-tu, Cheri? by Messrs. Moreau and Quinel. The costumes, by Landolff, are works of art, and are said to have cost over £4,000. Mlle. Lina Ruby, a new star, has made quite a sensational début.

Taking it all round, the music halls are not doing extraordinary business this month, the weather continuing to be fine and warm. The Entente Cordiale is slightly responsible for this also, as the crowds remain on the Boulevards late in the evening, shouting "Vive le Lor-Maire," whilst the managers are standing at their gates watching them pass. I would not vouchsafe that they are particularly enthusiastic.

A. C. M. E.

Mr. Wilkie Bard, who is in the Hackney Empire bill next week, once toured through America with Who Owns the Baby? company. All the towns visited were placarded with a great twenty-four-sheet poster of a very lovely child that any woman would have been delighted to call her own. Result, enormous business all the time. Every woman in every town had to pay a visit to the theatre to see the baby. One morning a lawyer's letter was received intimating that a lady sued the theatre magnate for using the nude picture of her little child for an advertisement of the play, £10,000 damages being claimed. The plaintiff alleged that the picture was used without her consent, and said, further, that "because of the unauthorised publication of the picture she was taken ill, and was still ill, and that the publication of the picture and the words, 'Who owns the baby?' were such as to bring her into contempt and ridicule." The lady's baby and the poster duly figured in court; but a hard-hearted judge decided that the baby was not half as good-looking as the picture, and non-suited the plaintiff.

Mr. Edwin Croueste, the well-known jester and late circus proprietor of Scarborough, on the recommendation of his life-long friend Mr. Harry Rickards, of Sydney and Melbourne, has been engaged to manage Fitzgerald's Great Australian Circus and Menagerie, and will shortly start for the Antipodes. Previous to his departure, however, he will tour Europe in search of novelties. A number of Mr. Croueste's friends have formed themselves into a committee to give a smoking concert in his honour, together with a substantial testimonial of their good wishes. Mr. Harry Rickards, before his departure for Sydney, headed the subscription list with five guineas. The hon. treasurer to the fund is Mr. Thos. Fox, Fish and Quart Hotel, Leicester, who will be happy to receive subscriptions from any of Mr. Croueste's numerous friends. He has been exactly fifty years in the profession, having started his circus career as a lad with Mr. William Cooke's circus at Astley's Amphitheatre in 1856.

Mr. Tom J. Morton and Miss Maggie Bowman have met with such success in a year's trial of work in the halls, that their rattling sketch, She Loved a Policeman, is booked well into 1908. At Christmas they go into pantomime at Paisley, playing principal girl and principal comedian respectively. During the summer months Mr. Morton and his clever little wife tour with their own costume party, originally known as The Yokels, but recently given a new name—The Tatlers. Miss Bowman, like her three equally well-known sisters—Nellie, Isa, and Empsie—has been on the stage since her childhood. Her very first part was Peek-a-boo in My Sweetheart, but, having only three lines, she coolly introduced a dance of her own invention on the first night; but unfortunately it was during one of Tony's most important songs, and he did not appreciate—although the audience did—such a surprising innovation. That she had just reached the reckless age of five is perhaps a sufficient excuse for her conduct.

Quite a number of people well-known in the musical and orchestral world were present at the wedding on Saturday afternoon, at Christ Church, Albany-street, Regent's Park, of Mr. Reginald W. Allan and Miss Kathleen Riley.

Tony Iverson, "the ragman at the piano," will produce on his birthday, Oct. 26, at the Palace, Aberdeen, a new act, entitled The Pedlar and the Piano; or, Fun in the Vaults, in which he will have the assistance of five or six voices in addition to his own imitations and selections.

SONGS, WRITERS, AND SINGERS.

It has long been a moot point whether in the course of time "Kelly's London Directory" or Francis, Day, and Hunter's pantomime books will be the bigger or heavier tomes of future years. The great Charing Cross-road house has just belched into St. Martin's-le-Grand such a gigantic volume of printed matter in the shape of panto-mime books, five in number—viz., Principal Boy, Principal Girl, Fairy Queen, Low Comedian, and Dame, and the Book of Free Songs (the latter alone containing 175 ditties)—that the astonished postal authorities asked whether Christmas card-time and the period of drapers' spring clearance catalogues had happened simultaneously in October! Bona-fide artists engaged in pantomime are being sup-plied with the volume suitable to their line of business on application, the only charge made being, as in former years, the cost of postage—sixpence each volume. As soon as the printers can get the "letter-plate" engraved, a copy of Tom Leno's new song of the "Short Stories" class, entitled "Pom te O! Pom te A!" is likely to be "insetted" in the Low Comedian book.

Messrs. Francis and Day have in the press a new song, by Jerome and Schwartz, entitled "Henny Klein." This is a Dutch character-song for sou-brette or principal girl in the style made so popular by that clever lady, Miss Fanny Fields. Panto pro-ducers are securing the number whilst there is yet time.

Miss Florrie Forde opened in town on Monday at Collins's, and introduced her latest chorus craze, "Float me, Charlie." The popular lady must be congratulated on having acquired a number which will rank in quality with the numerous successes she has been identified with. Messrs. Francis and Day are being inundated with applications for the number from the best-known folk interested in Christmas annuals.

Mr. George Arthurs, who has written the words of the new songs in The Belle of Mayfair—"I'll wait for you, little girl!" and "She always does the right thing"—is, like the composer, Mr. Leslie Stuart, a Manchester man. Mr. Arthurs seems to possess the knack of hitting the popular taste, for another of his recent efforts, "If the world were ruled by girls," has been the success of Miss Ada Reeve's engagement at the Tivoli. Miss Lloyd is about to sing one of his songs, "The adventures of Lady Jane," Miss Lottie Collins has another, called "A Marriage of Convenience," and Mr. Whit Cunliffe is scoring heavily with "It's a dif-ferent girl again," the music being composed by Mr. Bennett Scott.

During the past year, when musical piracy was most prevalent, M. Witmark and Sons, the popu-lar American music publishers, have refrained frem presenting what they considered their most popular numbers, as a song "hit" meant immediate appropriation by the pirates. Now that Mr. T. P. O'Connor has given protection to the property of publishers, the Witmarks are enabled to open their store of song novelties for the coming pantomime season. With their vast catalogue of vocal and orchestral music they are in a position to furnish all the music of a pantomime from the rise to the fall of the curtain.

Those old-established favourites, the McConnell Trio, are winning the plaudits of their admirers by their excellent rendition of "Star of my Life" and "Good-night, Beloved," both published by M. Witmark and Sons.

Among the recent American song successes now popular in New York, may be mentioned "Moon, Dear," "Will you love me in December as you do in May?" and "I could learn to love a soldier." All of these can be had from the house of Wit-mark.

T. E. Dunville has a clever new song, which is likely to become a by-word, viz., "A most ridicu-lous sort of a thing to do," from the pen of Will Hyde. The Shapiro, Von Tilzer Music Co. have secured it for publication.

We are glad to hear that Mr. J. P. Harrington, the well-known author, is progressing favourably after his recent operation, and is now convalescent.

Among recent acquisitions of Messrs. Francis, Day, and Hunter may be mentioned "Expres-sions," by Fred Frampton, sung by Mr. Arthur Melrose; "Can't you see I'm thinking?" by Leigh and Pether, and "Because it's the fashion to do so," by E. A. Searson, both sung by Mr. Will Bentley; "My first time on earth," by Barnes and Weston, sung by Mr. Tom Wootwell; "Kaloolah," by Glover-Kind, sung by Mr. Tom Finglass; and charming Miss Alice Lloyd's "The tourist and the maid," by George Arthurs and Orlando Powell.

The interest in Miss Vesta Victoria's song, "Waiting at the church," in the United States, remains unabated. The American publishers them-selves admit ungrudgingly that it is the biggest thing in the song line that ever happened in a country of big things.

Miss Lilian Doreen is making a big success with Messrs. J. F. Lambe and H. E. Pether's charming song, "Beside the Bonnie Brier Bush." It is published by Francis and Day, and is dedicated by permission to Ian Maclaren.

Messrs. Francis, Day, and Hunter have in the press a Venetian love song, with the title "Won't you float with me in my gondola?" It is written and composed by J. F. Lambe and T. W. Thurban.

Miss Victoria Monks' latest coon song, "I'm leaving home," which was produced at the Hol-born Empire, was an instantaneous success. This song bids fair to eclipse in popularity the same artist's "If you want to have a row." The author and composer, Messrs. Percy Ford and J. Chas. Moore, have placed the song for publication with the Shapiro, Von Tilzer Music Co., Ltd.

The Shapiro, Von Tilzer Music Co., Ltd., have just secured the publishing rights of Mr. Geo. A. Stevens's new song, entitled "Open your eyes to the good that they do," which Miss Florrie Galli-more will feature exclusively.

Miss Vesta Tilley has just produced with great success, Harry Von Tilzer's American hit, "In a hammock built for two," an Eng ish version having been specially written by Mr. J. P. Harrington. The Shapiro, Von Tilzer Music Co., Ltd., are the publishers. All pantomime permissions, however, must be obtained from Miss Tilley direct.

Mrs. John Lawson will produce at the Palace, Tottenham, next week, a new sketch, entitled The Devil's Sunday. The title suggests that a scathing dramatic satire has been written round the in-dictment of Father Bernard Vaughan concerning "the smart set" in sermons that have excited much comment in the Press.

Mr. George Edwardes hopes to produce the new ballet at the Empire in a few weeks' time. It has been invented and devised by Wilhelm, who has written the libretto, and is in two tableaux, the music for the first being composed by Mr. Cuthbert Clarke, and that for the second by Mr. C. Glaser. No name has yet been given the new production, and it will not, as suggested, be entitled The De-butante, but something more eastern to suit the Oriental theme that runs through the second part. Mlle. Genee will, of course, play the title-rôle, whatever it may be, and Mr. Fred Farren and Mr. Sundberg will appear in leading parts.

LONDON VARIETY THEATRES.

LONDON PAVILION.

"A loveliness that speaks straight to the heart, and shows us Nature fairer than Art," according to the London Pavilion poet, Mr. R. N. Lucas, is the possession of La Milo, who has been witch-ing audiences with her undraped beauty at the Piccadilly-circus house for some months past. The fair Australian has played the rôle of the modern Galatea with a success that has been much en-hanced by an article from the pen of Mr. Stead, and since that clever and eccentric person was pleased to recognise the artistic merit of the statues of goddesses sculptured by the sons of an-cient Greece and Rome, Mr. Frank Glenister has had to make the pleasant announcement nightly, "Standing room only." The lightning caricatures of Cruikshank fill out most agreeably the waits between the "statuary" of the lady whose theatrical costumier is Nature.

The house is visited nightly by "Boadicea from the Embankment," who comes with her chariot from Westminster Bridge, and in the person of Mr. Malcolm Scott harangues her listeners on men, women, and other matters. The "Queen of the Iceni" has many humorous things to say when quoting from "Scott's own edition of Who's Who." Mr. Scott has just returned from South Africa, and the experience has been a "refresher," that enables him to sustain his high reputation as a laughter-maker." Mr. George Mozart is another favourite at the "Pav.," and requires nothing better than his travesty of melodrama. Mr. Jock Whiteford, one of the "discoveries" of Mr. Glenis-ter, is now fulfilling a return engagement, and makes the auditorium echo with laughter when singing of "Inverary Mary," who, needless to say, is no "nigger lassie," though the lilt of the music largely partakes of coon melody.

Laughter holding both its sides best describes the attitude of the house towards Mr. Arthur Roberts while playing the rôle of Fitzawful Smith, in Mr. Harry Pleon's sketch, The Importance of Being Another Man's Wife. Another diverting sketch is Hooked by Crook, an American comedy, in one act, from the pen of Gelett Burgess, which has had previous successful runs at this house and elsewhere in the immediate neighbourhood. Mr. Homer B. Mason impersonates the burglar Bill, with a dark lantern, and a nice sense of the ludicrous in his imitations at the piano. Miss Marguerite Keeler is a fascinating Millicent Ray-bridge, being quite pretty in her petulance. Mr. Henry Travers also does well as Oliver Herkomer.

Miss Marie Dainton is a newcomer to the Lon-don Pavilion, thus returning to the environment in which she first found fame as a mimic. Though imitations are certainly overdone on the variety stage, still there is a charm and refinement in some of Miss Dainton's realisations of theatrical cele-brities which vastly please the house. Early in the evening the humour of Miss Alice Maydue entirely justifies the title of "comedienne" that is attached to her name on the list. Mr. Marriott Edgar, also an early-comer, presents, as "the man in red," a style of song that may claim to be re-garded as both original and funny. Mr. Edgar has had excellent training and experience on the regular stage, and we note his neat and finished style, his admirable delivery, and his quiet sense of fun, all of which graces and qualities speed him in the favour of Pavilion audiences. One listens in admiration to the concertina solos of Mr. Percy Honri, who invests that instrument with artistic merit. Mr. Fred Hasings is a new acquisition to the Pavilion cohort of fun-makers, and has the audience laughing all the time that he is sing-ing his "song without a name." Celest is a won-der on the slack wire; Mr. James Finney and his daughter are facile princeps in the art of nata-tion; Mr. John E. Coyle is a favourite firmly established; the Howards rejoice in a much-ap-preciated alliance of music and fun; the Pavilion Girls are bright, alert, and skilful in their statue dancing; and other turns include the Raies dancers; Jordan and Harvey, Hebrew patterers; Mr. Arthur Aldridge, tenor; and the Three Pres-tons, in their absurdity, The Liftman's Rise.

THE METROPOLITAN.

The admirers of Chirgwin—and their name is Legion in the neighbourhood of Paddington and the regions beyond—have been sorely disappointed on reading the notice put upon the outer doors of the Metropolitan by the popular manager, Mr. Jack Edgar, to the effect that the world-famous White-eyed Kaffir was unable to appear in con-sequence of throat trouble. His place in the current programme was filled on the night of our visit by Mr. Fred Hastings, who sang with con-siderable success his popular number "The song without a name." Among the older brigade of entertainers, whose humour is quite as much to the tastes of the music-hall lovers of the present day as it was to their elders, Mr. Horace Wheatley occupies an honourable place as an Irish come-dian. Quite a broth of a boy is he—racy and of the soil, with "illigance" in every step of his jig and fun in the twinkle of his eye. Mr. Wheatley has many amusing anecdotes concern-ing "Macintyre," whose portrait is shown on the stage. Macintyre, it appears, was the author of a very original "opera," in which the orchestra played a decidedly leading part in musically de-scribing the actions of the characters. We can confidently recommend the fun of this little inter-lude as a safe cure for the "blues," and one of its best qualities is that it lends itself to elaboration, but is excellent as it stands. Mr. Wheat-ley winds up his turn with a dance of remark-able neatness, and does not stoop to acrobatic contortions as many of our dancers do nowadays.

The new farcelet—The Midnight, as it is called by its author, Mr. Forbes Dawson—is presented by that gentleman with undoubted success. In a first-class compartment of a midnight express sit a lady and gentleman. By an extraordinary series of coincidences the fair traveller comes to the conclusion that her travelling companion is none other than a criminal lunatic escaped from Broadmoor. Equivoque succeeds equivoque, and the free-and-easy manners of the man alarm the lady, who, of course, is soothed when she learns that the supposed lunatic is an assistant medical officer travelling to Bethlehem Hospital. The piece is capitally acted by Mr. Forbes Dawson and company, whose names do not appear on the bill.

Another amusing sketch is Mrs. Skinner's Lodgers, presented by the McConnell Trio. The landlady is troubled with lodgers, who try to win sufficient money on the racecourse to pay their rent and fail lamentably. They make light of their impecuniosity, each suggesting that the other should court the irate widow and thus get rid of the rent difficulty. Popular melody ap-parently softens her heart, and solos, duets, and trios follow in quick succession, much to the delight of the audience, who give rein to their enthusiasm by loud applause. We have had no such diverting interlude on the variety stage for a long time as Mr. Gus Elen's sketch of the out-o'-work who dreams of no greater catastrophe than the prospect of being engaged to carry a hod. The particular member of the worshipful company of "sons of rest" is a-bed when we make his acquaintance, and before he philosophises he gazes with pride on the testimonial given as a mark of esteem to him by his brother loafers. He has an "argyment both sensible and sound" when he tells us that "if you can't get work you can't get the sack," and his behaviour gene-rally is as funny as anything can be.

Mr. Charles Pastor is droll in his drunken im-personation; Mr. James Stewart is heartily ap-plauded for his interesting and whimsical busi-ness as the "tramp at the piano"; Mr. Russell Wallett rouses laughter by his patter as "the lady in black"; the Sisters Silcott look three smart middies; Miss Rale Walters makes a suc-cessful appearance as a fisher maid, who is anxious to tempt a bachelor into the matrimonial net, with which she angles among the stalls and orchestra; and Miss Alexandra Dagmar is very welcome both in song and story. Irma Lorraine, with a beautiful figure, poses in allegorical realisa-tions of the Seasons; and others who appear are Miss Elly Adair, Mr. Arthur Holland, Sibb and Sibb, and Barnard's Marionettes.

THE SOUTH LONDON.

The siege of the South London is a familiar sight in the busy thoroughfare in which the popu lar hall is situated, but the difficulties of coping with the crowds of people who nightly fill the immense house are overcome by Mr. William Payne, the manager, whose stalwart presence alone goes far towards the maintenance of good order. The current entertainment is admirably adapted to the wants of the patrons of the hall, the chief item of the bill being the sketch, The Curse of Drink, taken from Zola's celebrated work, "L'Assommoir." The sketch is presented at the hands of Mr. Brien McCullough's company, and all the most exciting scenes of the story are por-trayed in rapid succession, Coupeau's terrible fall from the scaffold, the fight between the two women in the wash-house, Coupeau's temptation to drink, and his last sad end, being all realistically de-picted. Mr. McCullough has in Coupeau a part admirably suited to his dramatic gifts, and the scene in which he falls a victim to the temptations of his besotted companions who urge him to drink is made one of deep pathos. The delirium tremens episode is also very impressive, the force and energy which Mr. McCullough has at com-mand serving him well in the portrayal of one of the most difficult assumptions in the range of the drama. Miss Bernice Fielding acts with her cus-tomary intensity as Virginie, vividly depicting the relentless hate of the despised woman, and in-dicating with commendable restraint the sup-pressed passion which animates her. The other parts are ably filled, and the little piece is mounted with remarkable attention to detail.

The science of juggling is invested with comic attributes by Larola, who tosses a number of plates into the air with a reckless regard as to their destination, but invariably catches them be-fore they reach the floor. The force of contrast is brought out effectively when the performer, after balancing a lighted lamp and several glasses on his forehead, passing a hoop to and fro over his body meanwhile, seizes the massive table on which he has been reclining, and sustains it for several moments on his chin. Larola's feat of somersaulting over a row of chairs wins a loud en-core, to which he responds with a dozen backward and forward somersaults with feet bound. Miss Mabel Thorne gets a hearty welcome on her re-turn to South London, where she is a favourite of long standing. She has a song about a young lady who goes "walking in the park," the seats of which have been newly painted, with disastrous results to her attire. The effect of the lyric about "Mr. Green" is still very pronounced, and the audience is put into the highest spirits by the fair artist's endeavours to locate a faithless swain, running him to earth first in the stalls, and then in a private box.

A popular personage of the bill is found in One Billy Farrell, a coloured vocalist who imports much drollery into his singing and patter. Mr. Farrell excels in many varied forms of amuse-ment, his eccentric dancing and his vocal imita-tion of a xylophone being very clever, and heartily cheered. Mr. Percy Dalton is a youth who agree-ably combines singing and dancing, his song about "Dixie, dear," being accompanied by some neat steps, supplemented by a long and trying dance, which is watched admiringly by the audience. The poetry of motion is also illustrated by the Twin Sisters Anderson, who adapt the art to the skip-ping-rope, both ladies dancing with wonderful precision in one encircling cord. The young ladies who also join in a coon duet, are lavishly re-warded.

A sketch, entitled The Shoeblack's Dream, pre-sented by Fred Fuller and company involves the appearance of a number of urchins, who sing and dance and join in chorus. The captain of the bootblack brigade is about to leave the neighbour-hood, and bids farewell with a song, and after-wards a number of coons join in revels associated with the cake-walk. Chirgwin's "Blind Boy" is also sung as a duet, and the entertainment, which is well diversified, proves thoroughly agreeable to the taste of the audience. Nash and Noel supply a good deal of funny "cross-talk," in which a watch figures prominently, and their dancing is a very pleasing feature of their contribution. Miss Rose Cabani is a talented comedienne; Mr. Her-bert Cyril has the distinction of being a "seven-foot comedian"; and the programme is compieted by the ever-welcome pictures on Ruffell's Imperial Bioscope.

SADLER'S WELLS.

First and last performances are alike crowded at Sadler's Wells, and the vast auditorium on the night of a recent visit presented one immense family circle all deep in the enjoyment of the strong entertainment with which Mr. F. Macnagh-ten's patrons are everywhere regaled. Stirring scenes are witnessed in the sketch Under the Union Jack, which is being played by Mr. Fred Southern's company. The piece is laid in America during the war, but the Union Jack does not make its appearance till the last scene, when the hero, who is falsely accused of treachery, is enveloped in its folds just as he is about to be shot. The Federal colonel dare not fire upon the British flag, so he simply orders its removal; but just as the firing party are again about to shoot, the villain, who has been struck blind, rushes in and makes a full confession. Mr. Southern, who has acquired a high reputation as a comedian at Sadler's Wells, has the part of a jovial servant to a mine-owner, and undergoes much trouble, in the course of which he is robbed of his clothes and invested with those of a "red skin," causing merriment thereby. Miss May Emery acts with power and sympathetic expres-sion as the heroine; and Miss Gipsy Alexander makes a prepossessing appearance in a light comedy part. Mr. Edgar L. Hocking reveals ex cellent dramatic aptitude as the villain; Mr. Chas. Ashwell is impressive as the heroic young mine-owner; and Mr. Percy Emery gives dignity to the rôle of a colonel of the Federal Forces.

Of quite an opposite complexion is the burlesque skit entitled The Land-Grabbers, which travesties in absurd fashion the recent seizure of land by a band of unemployed. A motley group of unkempt men appear on a scene, representing a piece of waste land upon which cabbages are seen grow-ing luxuriantly. A meeting is held by the "Sons of Ease," and the state of the diminishing sub-scription list discussed. One of the gang is seized with a fit upon being offered employment, and subsequently the leader delivers a speech denounc-ing work and all its advocates. A warrant officer, who arrives with a writ of expulsion, is attacked, and, the police coming to the rescue, a free fight ensues, leaving the field covered with the wounded. The skit includes many most ludicrous incidents, and is played by Messrs. Ward and Andrews company to a continuous accompaniment of laughter.

A scena which goes straight to the hearts of the audience is presented in A Children's Christmas Eve, in which songs and sentiment are associated with fun and frivolity. A trio of children receive a visit from "Santa Claus," and are so happy at the receipt of his presents that they indulge in a dance. The sounds of a Christmas carol come through the window, at which appear a number of ragged figures, who solicit alms. The children invite their visitors in, and a song and skipping-rope dance are indulged in, after which a girl sings a pathetic ballad very prettily. The scena ends with the sudden entry of the parents, papa joining merrily in the cake-walk which concludes. Fyne and Hurley make a great hit with their representation of "The coster and the dude," in the course of which a typical scene "on the road" is depicted, and a lesson in boxing adds to the fun of the turn, which is keenly relished.

Charming effects are created by Maurin's Illu-minated Fountains, the waters of which assume myriad shapes under the rays of changing lights. Pictorial representations of flags of all nations are also thrown on to the figure of a lady who stands at the back. Brilliant effects are obtained, and the approbation of the audience is shown in hearty cheers. Miss Nora Beverley has a voice of exceed-ing sweetness, and is loudly cheered for her render-ing of the favourite Nigger melody, "My Old Kentucky Home." Miss Beverley sings with ex-cellent expression, but she would be well advised to prolong the higher notes, which appear to be well within her range. One of our oldest veterans appears, in the dusky person of Mr. Sam Redfern, who philosophises on the ever present theme of courtship. He also deals in politics in his topical song, "If you'll tax that you'll tax anything," of which the audience would fain hear more. Wild, Willie, and West arouse laughter and applause for their trampoline acrobatics, and the programme also includes Miss Daisy Silcott, burlesque artist, and Mr. Jack Heath, comedian. Mr. Frederic Baugh, the general manager, has an able acting manager in Mr. Pete Murray, who looks the picture of robust health.

HOLBORN EMPIRE.

The novelty in this week's programme at the Holborn Empire is a new automaton, the invention of Mr. Samson, who has won distinction as a strong man. According to the gentleman who makes a few preliminary remarks the invention has taken no less than six years to perfect. The figure, which is called "Sergeant Bruce," is of Brob-dingnagian proportions, and is composed of six parts, which, on the curtain rising, are found to be separated. The inventor, having first shown the hollow interior of the body to the audience, pro-ceeds to put the different parts together. The figure is in military uniform, with a silver decora-tion gleaming on its expansive chest. The auto-maton is supposed to be worked by means of a small electric battery, which is manipulated by Mr. Samson. The "Sergeant" advances a few paces, and obeys the word of command by winking, bow-ing, and shaking the ponderous head and dancing. It also smokes a cigar, after rejecting several which are evidently not considered good enough. After going through this performance the huge figure retires to its original position, the sections are taken apart by Mr. Samson, and displayed to prove that they are quite hollow. Those who are fond of mystery should make the acquaintance of "Sergeant Bruce" without delay.

A great attraction at the Holborn Empire this week is Miss Victoria Monks, a bright and artistic comedienne, who deserves special commendation for the frequency with which she introduces new songs. In one of the most tuneful and successful of her numbers she addresses the audience in playful and seductive style, and it has a charming refrain. In her second contribution there is a touch of pathos. The song has reference to a nigger who has been induced to join a travelling company, but as an actor he has proved a hopeless failure, and now he wants to go home to Jacksonsville. Clever Miss Monks contrives to get quite a dra-matic effect out of the simple theme. A Scotch comedian with a telling style is Mr. Jock White-ford, who scores with a comic version of "The Banks of Allan Water," the restless energy he throws into his work being highly effective. Miss Gertie Gitana wins the favour of the audience by her bright and expressive rendering of "Nelly Dean" and "Songbird." Mr. Herbert Clifton is a clever mimic, including amongst his latest subjects Miss Phyllis Dare. Mr. Sam Mayo, disguised as a native of China, sings a ditty that is received with much enthusiasm. The Dandies, consisting of two gentlemen and an equal number of ladies, meet with deserved success, for their entertain-ment of song and dance under the direction of Mr. Henry J. Corner is distinctly above the average in point of merit. Mr. Charles Whittle is an original comedian who has rapidly made his way to the front; Roxborough and Wright, in the farcical episode, entitled Cockie, excite consider-able laughter by an amusing performance; and other excellent turns include Fred Lincoln, come-dian; Stelling and his wonderful dog; and Jessie Hartley, comedienne.

Laughter continuous and hearty accompanies the performance of the bustling sketch Moses and Sons, by Mr. Fred Karno's company. There is genuine humour in Mr. Fred Kitchen's embodi-ment of Perkins, the caretaker; and admir-able support comes from the Misses Leah Morris, Janet Reeve, Madge Rockingham, and Messrs. Landeck and Anthony Gordon. The pictures shown on the Imperial Bioscope illustrating "The Wonders of Canada" are specially interesting. Mr. Claude Marner is the manager at this hall, and the selections played by the orchestra, under the leadership of Mr. James Sale, are well chosen and greatly appreciated.

THE FORESTERS'.

An attractive programme this week at the Foresters' includes Miss Josephine Colonna and her company, under the management of Mr. Arthur St. John, in the spectacular historical episode, entitled Jane Shore. Some years ago we recollect going through a number of papers and documents concerning the stage of the early part of last century. These testimonials included a monthly critical journal—published more than eighty years ago—which contained a criticism of a play on the subject of Jane Shore. We recollect that the criticism was an adverse one, the writer stating that the idea of a dishonoured and faithless wife being pardoned and received back by her husband was too gross from a moral point of view. But the critique proceeded to say that Jane Shore would keep the stage for centuries, as its very name was a tower of strength. The writer of those lines has no doubt long since passed beyond mortal ken, but everybody must admit at this day that his prophecy was a true one. Jane Shore has kept the stage, and is likely to do so for probably genera-tions to come. As to the production under review—that of Miss Colonna—it is altogether an admir-able one, well staged, well dressed, and well acted. Miss Colonna plays the part of Jane Shore, and plays it with a full appreciation of the intense soul-tragedy and pathos associated with the character. Mr. Arthur St. John doubles the rôles of Shore and the Duke of Glo'ster, and acts with fine dramatic feeling and impulse. Miss Ida St. John and Miss Madge Morley are seen to ad-vantage as Alison Grist and the Queen respectively; and the other parts are in safe keeping. Coming to the rest of the programme, Miss Ada Martine proves herself an accomplished and dainty comedi-enne; and Miss Flo Chevalier is a vocalist who excels in the singing of refined songs. Mr. Jimmy de Voye and his educated horse Billy furnish food for reflection. Billy, be it understood, can play a game of nap, and can do subtraction, division, and multiplication sums in an amazingly precise and speedy manner. He can also tell you the number of your watch and the time by it. In short, Billy is an equine prodigy.

Miss Sable Fern, the charming English singer of English songs, enchants her hearers with her ren-dering of "There's only one queen bee in the hive" and "Always take and give a little bit." Miss Fern's performances are always commendable. Mr. W. J. Churchill is as comical as ever, and his ditties, "Are you downhearted?" and "Girl not wanted," are provocative of great merriment. Mr. Harry Morris demonstrates his abilities—and they are not to be questioned—as a mimic. We get imitations of people, animals, and things, and each impersonation is thoroughly characteristic of what it is supposed to represent. Mr. Harry Village is an exceedingly amusing eccentric character come-dian; and Gicardo, a youthful artist, juggles in an astonishingly smart fashion with a variety of articles. From Raymond's Bio-Tableaux there is a fine series of animated pictures, the subject being "The Child of Nature." Messrs. Warren and Vereker's sketch company are appearing in the dramatic playlet, Mysteries of the Thames. The story of how Richard Brandon gives way to gambling and gets into debt and into the power of rogue named Captain Denbigh; how he is tempted to rob his employer's safe, but declines to betray the trust reposed in him; how the captain him-self cracks the crib and contrives to get the blame fixed upon Brandon; how Brandon is transported in a convict ship; how the villain is at last de-nounced and killed, and the hero is once more united to the heroine, is all told in most interest-ing style by Messrs. Warren and Vereker and the artists by whom they are supported in the sketch. Mr. Andrew Money is seen in a pleasing repre-sentation of the hero; Mr. Brooke Warren brings virility and brutality to his aid in his portrayal of the villain; Mr. Sydney Vereker treats us to some admirable character comedy in the rôle of Bill Bosco; and Mr. Dan Hardie, Miss Effie Craw-ford, and Miss Stephanie Baring capably fulfil the requirements of the other rôles.

BRITANNIA, HOXTON.

The old "Brit." once more reigns supreme as the premier North-east London house of entertain-ment. As a top-liner we have Professor Alex, de-scribed as the Anglo-American hypnotist and magnetic healer, who presents a remarkable per-formance. He selects several men for hypnotic subjects, and they, while under the influence, are made to go through a series of side-splitting antics. The professor terminates his exhibition with an astounding feat. One of the attendants is placed under mesmeric influence and suspended across two trestles. While in that position a real horse and rider are allowed to stand on the attendant's chest, a feat which causes intense ex-citement, and is the signal for great enthusiasm. Professor Alex also claims to cure, without the aid of any other force, all cases of nervous disease and paralysis, consultations being held daily.

A novel turn is that presented by Gold and Sterling, entitled The Welsh Girl and the Artist. The male partner, in the short space of six minutes, executes a clever oil-painting. The picture chosen on the night of our visit was a view on the Lakes of Killarney. The lady excels as a vocalist, her rendering of "Asthore" winning hearty applause. A great ovation is accorded to Mr. W. J. Churchill, a comedian whose funniosities create yells. His song "Should you be downhearted" catches on. Voyles and Bryan, who, by the way, are making their début before a London audience, are a smart comedy duo, and soon become favourites, their rendering of "Farewell" being loudly applauded. Bert Harrow is a comedian with an original style, his song describing his adventures as a cricketer meeting with approval. A welcome return visit is being made by the Delormes, who present their successful dancing speciality. They also show to advantage in a pretty duet and dance. Honours are accorded to Miss Millie Howell, whose vocal efforts are much appreciated; the Papillons are a dainty quartette of singers and terpsichorean ex-perts; and Dick Cruikshanks and company appear in an amusing comedy playlet entitled Colonel Pepper, in which Messrs. Dick Cruikshanks, Allan Hope, Geo. Wybrow, and Miss Kitty Kirwan all work hard, and win the approval of an appreciative audience. Miss Lucy Coventry is a pleasing come-dienne and sprightly dancer; and The Battle of the Belles appears after but a short absence. In this condensed drama Mr. Fred Moule is as success-ful as ever as Kendal Groat, the laughing pub-lican; Brenda Groat is capitally portrayed by Miss Catherine Cavanagh; Miss Ada Lucelle makes the most of the somewhat small part of the down-trodden dressmaker; and Courtney Robinson proves himself a capable actor as the gallant soldier Hector Rodney. The comedy element is supplied by Mr. E. D. Nicholls and Miss Ada Frank. The scenery is deserving of special mention. Effective pictures are shown by Raymond's Bio-Tableaux; and the selections of the Britannia orchestra, under the direction of Mr. Carl Hamlin, are be-coming a special feature of the programme.

HOUNSLOW HIPPODROME.

This week Mr. John Lawson, the entertainment manager of this popular place of amusement, has such an excellent menu that there is small wonder crowded houses have been the rule. The ball is set rolling by the drolleries of Mr. Alf. Brookes, who sings and dances with a vivacity and energy that is remarkable. Percival and Morgan find ample scope for their talents in the sketch What's in the Box? The mysterious contents of the box are, of course, a cat, which provides a theme for no end of amusing prevarication. Mr. Fred Keeton, billed as "the Funny Mantograph," displays considerable humour, especially in his bacchanalian ditty, in which a brewery, police, and magistrates all figure prominently. Bacchus would appear to treat this Mantograph somewhat scurvily. This fact, however, does not deter the audience from applauding his really funny efforts to the echo; his second contribution—"Silly Dick"—proves highly amusing.

We have before referred to the clever couple, "The Lurins," in their sketch, The Abode of Love. It proves as amusing as ever, the dialogue and situations being alike funny in the extreme. Success should surely attend such celver artists. Here they are evidently huge favourites, and their efforts are keenly appreciated in a pot-pourri of the popular airs of the day. A novel turn is that of Billy Taylor, who appears as the Electric Man, and contrives in an ingenious way to manipulate innumerable electric jets, and explains that he has fallen a prey to the fascinations of electricity generally. Very prettily Miss May Pritchard sings a tuneful ditty anent "Sea-gulls." The audience pick up the strains of the chorus quite quickly, and artist and audience con-tribute to the success of "the turn." Mr. Arthur Boyne, "the funny little fat comedian," elicits a lot of applause for his ditty, "Don't all shout at once"; his second song, "I'm in trouble," proves irresistibly funny, and his woes appear to amuse everyone present.

Cissie Louie Lawson and company appear in an episode, entitled A Bride for a Living. This strange Zolaesque story has to do with insanity, murder, suicide, drink, and idiocy; indeed, the author would appear to have dipped his pen in Eugène Sue's ink-pot. But despite its terrors, A Bride for a Living is enjoyed amazingly by those who pre-fer their drama strong and vigorous. The piece owes much of its success to the impersonation of Miss Cissie Lawson as Loie. It is altogether a wonderful portrayal of a repulsive character. Loie is a bad lot, and to her crime is an amusement. Excellent was the David Faber of Mr. B. Gates—quiet, unobtrusive, and earnest; Mr. Horton Tree's Lucus was also an excellent impersonation; Mr. B. Cohen as the shuffling idler did very well, and Mr. J. S. Boom made the most of the small rôle of the Rev. Theophilus Warley. The episode was well mounted, and was cheered to the echo. Mr. Lennox Barry is in front of the house—a guarantee that "all's well."

In consequence of the unexpected termination of Miss Marie de Campi's tour with The King's Signet Mr. Charles Collette resumes his music-hall engagements, and will appear on Monday and during the week at the Empire Palace, Greenock, N.B., in his sketches Hard Luck and Tea for Two, supported by Miss Joan Derry.

"IN HER BOUDOIR."

Mr. Edward Lauri and Miss May Beatty have an amusing, if irresponsible, trifle, in their sketch, written by the first-named artist, and entitled In Her Boudoir. The boudoir referred to is that of a principal boy in a pantomime, a character in which Miss Beatty's fine physical endowments are seen to advantage. A newspaper interviewer is announced, whom the lady refuses to see, in consequence of the pressure of production night. A manservant of hers, however, decides to play a trick upon the interviewer. He dresses himself up as a woman, and the unsuspecting interviewer makes love to him. This is responsible for some laughable situations, in which Mr. Edward Lauri, as the pretended artist, is exceedingly diverting. There is a duet between the two—Miss Beatty as the interviewer and Mr. Lauri as the star lady—which is sung with a full appreciation of its absurd attempt at love-making. It is called "Mingle your eyebrows with mine," and, along with accompanying movements and gestures of the artists, is creative of much merriment. Miss Beatty gives evidence of considerable vocal ability in her song, "Whene'er in the thick of the fight," sung in the earlier part of the sketch, and "I love you," when she later appears as the interviewer. She is sprightly and charming, both in the gorgeous dress of a principal boy and as the smart and debonair young interviewing gentleman. Mr. Lauri enters with his usual zest and liveliness into the absurdities of his double rôle of a male attendant and a show actress, and he succeeds in being intensely entertaining. Mr. Lauri has been absent from this country practically for five years, a period that has been mainly spent by him in Australia, New Zealand, and India. His reappearance on the London stage has been heartily welcomed. As to Miss May Beatty, she is not so well known in England. She is a native of New Zealand, and comes here with excellent credentials. In Her Boudoir provides Miss Beatty with her first part in the Old Country, and there are indications that she will become an immense favourite. Both Miss Beatty and Mr. Lauri will be seen in pantomime at Dublin during the forthcoming season in Mrs. Michael Gunn's production of Sinbad the Sailor. It is worth mentioning in connection with this production that on Monday evening at the Richmond Theatre a young artist who gave promise of considerable talent made her début on the stage. This was Miss Ouida Macdermott, who played the part of a French maid in a most engaging manner, and who possesses a delightfully clear and tuneful voice. Miss Macdermott, who is as yet in her teens, should certainly be heard of in the future.

WALTHAMSTOW PALACE.

Once more we have to record splendid business at this house, the programme submitted for the week by Mr. Arthur J. Barclay proving magnetic in its power to attract the public, and Mr. Geo. F. Slatter, the acting-manager, has his hands full at every performance to find room for the crowd. This result should be all the more gratifying to the managerial heart as a tribute to the ever-increasing and solid interest taken in the Palace by the public, inasmuch as the bill includes neither any star of the first magnitude nor yet one of those dramatic sketches so dear to the hearts of the local public. The hit of the evening is undoubtedly made by Mr. Mike Whallen, the American story-teller. This gentleman begins by singing excellently, and then contributes a series of stories relating chiefly to the doings of one Malony which keep the audience in one perpetual roar of laughter. Many of his sayings are quaint and original, and a particularly happy inspiration results in his singing an improvised ditty in which he cleverly picks out individuals among the audience and addresses them in neatly-turned lines, much to the amusement of the persons themselves and of their neighbours. Miss Connie Milton is a bright and attractive comedienne of handsome appearance, good voice, and pleasing manner. Mr. Max Duffick introduces a musical set of quite an original character. The performer plays his various instruments in every attitude except that usually adopted by musicians. To form his body into a hoop and play the cornet upside down is a mere trifle to this singular gentleman, who evidently disdains the orthodox habit of standing on his feet. The turn is received with loud applause. Mr. Charles Norton infuses novel variety into his imitations of well-known music-hall stars by impersonating Mr. Joe Elvin as a bookmaker on a racecourse, betting with such favourites as Gus Elen, Wilkie Bard, R. G. Knowles, and others, the characteristics of each one being cleverly reproduced. The Four Aces are acrobats whose feats of dexterity are watched with breathless interest and rewarded with a storm of applause. A farcical absurdity, The Bigamist, played by Austin Lenton and company, is certainly absurd enough, and, acted with an amazing amount of vigour by the three ladies and the gentleman making up the cast, is productive of considerable merriment. Messrs. Parker and Parr, described as "Welsh novelty duettists," sing Irish songs sweetly. The gentleman who sings the ever-popular "Killarney" employs a falsetto voice of rare clearness, while the two voices blend well in "Eileen Allanah." Their musical numbers are set in a framework of patter. Mr. Harry Russon creates a good impression on his first appearance here. Dressed in a fantastic but effective costume compounded of black and white, Mr. Russon sings a good song about "Love" in excellent style, and then proves his versatility by reciting one of Rudyard Kipling's Indian poems. The reciter, whose enunciation is pleasantly clear, proves himself possessed of a rare vein of pathos and dramatic effect combined, which lend themselves admirably to the lurid lines of the poet.

Lieut. Albini introduces his latest mechanical toy, the speaking head, to which is given the name of "the Queen of Sheba." This is an exceedingly skilful piece of mechanism, and goes, literally, like clockwork. The waxen head of King Solomon's famous visitor answers questions as to dates propounded by the audience; but as the gallant Lieutenant, too polite, perhaps, to question a lady's veracity, does not condescend to ask whether the answers are correct or not, the result may be regarded as nebulous. "Sheba" also sings snatches of popular songs, including "I wouldn't leave my little wooden hut for you." The show is very clever indeed, and is received with distinct marks of popular favour. The programme finishes up with some excellent pictures by Ruffell's Imperial Bioscope, those showing the great Isle of Man motor race being watched with interest, and the amusing chase of an escaped convict causing great laughter. The overture for the week is entitled "The Lawn Polka," written by Mr. H. Petersen, and well played by the orchestra under the direction of the composer.

The benefit given to Mr. T. W. Rawson at the Central Pier, Morecambe (kindly lent by the directors), turned out a gratifying success on the evening of the 10th inst. Morecambe and Lancaster amateurs provided the items in the programme, assisted by Miss Lily Bertram (Mrs. Rawson) and Mr. T. W. Rawson. Mr. Rawson thanked his supporters, emphasising the fact that he should never forget the many kindnesses he had received in Morecambe since June 13 last, on which date he had the misfortune to break his ankle. Mr. Rawson's many friends will be glad to hear that he is now getting about nicely.

Mr. Charles Reynolds, the esteemed proprietor of Reynolds' old-established waxworks in Lime-street, Liverpool, celebrated his silver wedding on Thursday.

DR. BODIE'S LECTURE.

At the Canterbury on Sunday evening Dr. Walford Bodie, before a large and interested gathering, gave a lecture, the title of which was "What is a Miracle?" The proceeds from the evening's attendances, which were to benefit the Waterloo Hospital for Women and Children, realised, we understand, the sum of £40. Dr. Bodie, who received quite an ovation when he stepped forward to address the audience, said:—

At the very start I would say that, in my opinion, there is no such thing as a miracle, taking the word to mean something supernatural, something which flies in the face of nature's laws. Those laws are not like the laws which our Parliaments and rulers make, and which can be altered or broken. What nature decrees is fixed and unalterable. No power of man can alter or break it. For instance, the regular ebb and flow of the tides, the growth of trees and flowers, and all other similar manifestations of nature are unalterable. A miracle there is impossible. And so, too, with us human beings. If a soldier is shot through the heart, he dies. For nature has decreed that his life is dependent on the exercise of certain functions which are now destroyed. . . . The laying on of hands and praying, followed by the healing of the sick person, brings me to the question of the Christian Scientists and the Peculiar People. You have all heard a great deal on this question. Every now and then there is some case reported in the newspapers of the death of some follower of these doctrines—faith-healing doctrines, I mean—and of a charge made against the family that if they had called in a doctor the life might have been saved. Often this is so. I should be the last man in the world to advise people to attempt to do without doctors. There are many cases of illness where drugs and skilled advice as to the particular treatment required are absolutely necessary. And in cases of broken bones and wounds nature requires to be assisted. But at the same time I am of opinion that these Christian Scientists and Peculiar People have a good deal to say on their side. In many illnesses—indeed, in all those which spring from disarrangement of the nervous system—faith, which is but another name for hypnotic suggestion, must enter largely into a cure. If a man is told that he is going to get well, and if he believes implicitly what is told him, he will get well. . . . Now I should like to say a few words on scientific medicine. The fault of same is, that it ignores the mystic and takes no account of occult or hidden forces, and I shall go on to preach my views on this subject, in spite of opposition. . . . The doctors of the British school are becoming less slaves of the drug. We have the open-air cure now, sun baths, mud baths, electric baths, and so on. Drugs are of course useful and necessary. There are certain cases in which they act directly at the seat of the trouble. It is the indiscriminate use of drugs of which I complain—the mixing up of something for every ailment. There are some ailments which drugs do not benefit. In this connection I will read an extract from the orthodox British Medical Journal. In its issue of June 9 last it calls attention to the Pope's recent attack of gout, and says:—"His Holiness arranged a great variety of drugs on a shelf in front of him, and remarked, 'The idea of taking all these drugs produces such an effect that I feel as if I had been cured.' Commenting on this, the British Medical Journal says:—"At any rate, the Pope has grasped the secret of a therapeutic factor, of whose potency the medical profession as yet has scarcely shown an adequate appreciation. Suggestion supplies the key to the successful treatment of many diseases due to the disorders of the nervous system, and brings much that might otherwise appear miraculous within the range of the natural." . . . Now, having said so much, I must end with suggestion. I should like to perpetuate my memory and leave successors. The only way to do this would be to found a school of occult medicine and surgical treatment of diseases, and to revive much forgotten knowledge. Doubtless some of you may have read what is going on in Paris owing to the action of the occultists in France. A school of massage and magnetism has been founded in the capital, with M. Durville at its head. This school has received the sanction of the French Government. The orthodox school of scientific medicine has taken alarm, and held a congress for the discussion of quackery in all forms. . . . Although I favour bloodless surgery, my methods are quite as applicable to medicine, or more so. It is in medical treatment, indeed, that one sees the power of suggestion more than in surgery, for though I believe in the administration of drugs, I believe still more in personal equation, which really means personal magnetism.

At the conclusion of the lecture, Dr. Bodie introduced several of his old patients whom he had treated for paralysis, and who stated that they had come forward to bear testimony to his good work. Two fresh patients were then brought on to the stage, one a girl aged seven, who had suffered from infantile paralysis for five years, and another a boy of six, whose trouble was spinal disease and paralysis. Bloodless surgery, electricity, and Dr. Bodie enabled both the children to run off the stage.

The "Fred Locke" Fund is creeping up gradually, and the treasurer, Mr. J. G. Crichton, 9, Bridge-street, Glasgow, acknowledges with thanks the following additional subscriptions:—Graham Moffat, 10s.; E. H. Bostock, 10s. 6d.; Harry Elliston, 5s.; Harry Taft, 2s. 6d.; and Mark Lorne, 2s. 6d.

PAISLEY'S NEW HIPRODROME.

On Monday a new place of entertainment for Paisley people had an auspicious opening. Mr. E. H. Bostock, so well known in connection with the Glasgow Zoo-Hippodrome, has erected a first-class music-hall in the centre of the town, and styled it the Paisley Hippodrome. The external appearance gives an idea of a commodious interior, the beauty of which it is difficult to imagine without seeing. The entrance hall is beautifully embellished in warm colours, prettily designed, and in its comfort and convenience affords every desirable facility for patrons. A partition divides the entrance-way into two, one side being for pit and stall patrons, and the other for the "gods." Inside the main hall itself a chaste scheme of ornamentation has been carried out. An arched ceiling on the latest lines, with pretty floral decoration, gives a span of fifty feet. The gallery is roomy and well planned, and in the pit cushioned seats are provided, with linoleum under foot. Handsome tip-up chairs and a rich carpet add to the comfort of the stalls. Two boxes, one on each side of the proscenium, have been handsomely ornamented and finished. The proscenium itself is a beautiful example of plastic and decorative art. The opening is 26ft., and on the stage itself everything has been done to ensure safety. Asbestos lining and a water curtain have been provided, and two hydrants are also available. Fireproof paint has been employed for the scenery and in the dressing-rooms, which are placed at the rear of the stage. Every precautionary measure has been taken, therefore, for the safety of performers and patrons alike Mr. George Watson is stage manager, and the acting manager is Mr. Wilson. The music is under the direction of Mr. Tadma Parker, who has a life experience of the work. The building is lit electrically and by gas, and the footlights and battens are also electric. Emergency exits are numerous, and all are fitted with the patent push-bolt, which only requires a touch to open.

Messrs. Devonport and Co., Birmingham, are the architects and builders, and the celebrated A. R. Dean and Co., Birmingham, have the credit of the proscenium, besides supplying all the upholstery required for boxes, stalls, and stage. The stage curtains are of the tableaux design, lifting from the sides. Heating is by means of radiators, and altogether the hall presents a most elegant appearance. It is quite unnecessary to remark that the circus element does not enter into the Hippodrome. There is no ring, and the performances are of the variety order, on the lines of the Zoo-Hippodrome in Glasgow, there being two shows a night. Although Mr. Bostock has the full theatrical licence, he declines to have anything to do with the Inland Revenue licence, which confers the right to sell intoxicants.

There was a distinguished company present at the opening on Monday night, and the proceeds of the first house performance was, with Mr. Bostock's well-known generosity, distributed among local charities. The bill was a first-class one, including The Craggs, in their clever and amusing comedy sketch, Billy; or, The New Steward of the Channel Queen, which was brimful of genuine humour, merriment, and skill; the Brothers Dean, in their refined and graceful dancing act; Nina Gordon, Scottish mimic and society entertainer; The Meymotis (Harry and Ada), in a screaming musical interlude, Semi-Detached; Drew and Alders, eccentric comedians, and still more eccentric dancers; Jack Lane, the original Yorkshire rustic; the Alberto Troupe, head, hand, and wire equilibrists; and Lily Morris, star comedienne. A series of animated pictures by the Hippodrome Bioscope was also shown.

EALING HIPPODROME.

Once more the Hippodrome justifies its title as a home for equestrian spectacle, and in Mr. J. F. Preston's Rogues of the Turf a most acceptable successor is found to Mr. G. Ginnett's Turpin's Ride to York, staged here in February last. In the five scenes is presented a series of charming stage pictures, which offer a fine realisation of "racing life," and Mr. E. W. James is to be congratulated upon having secured an entertainment so thoroughly to the taste of his sport-loving patrons. The varying incidents of the "plot," the "forgery," and the "race," are followed with intense interest, and "honest" John Flaxman and his clever associates have to bow to repeated recalls. Dickens' excerpts are always well received, and Miss Arabella Allen, in her sketches, is most successful, only, somehow, one could wish to see so charming a personality engaged in the representation of a less obnoxious personage than Uriah Heep. The amount of fun a clever ventriloquist can manage to extract from his mechanical companions is apparently illimitable, and Mr. Horace White is very expert in his art; he is, besides, a capable pianist. One of the vocal successes of the evening must be credited to Mr. Frank Harwood, an actor-vocalist of considerable merit, who uses his fine baritone to excellent effect. Of his two numbers, the first, "December and May," is given with the utmost pathos; while the episodes of "Other lives," as told in the "mirror," are equally well delivered. Such an artistic combination of actor and singer is very welcome. The fame of those exceedingly "harmonious cats," the Borellis, is world-wide. Caterwauling is a universal Volapuk with which all and sundry are familiar, and the unanimous applause that greets the efforts of "Master Tom" and his "best girl" show how thoroughly everyone endorses their appreciation of the "musical cats." The comedy acrobats, Zaro and Arno, show many of the movements with which we are all more or less acquainted, but the comic man of the duo is responsible for something which is new, and his horizontal gripping of the upright bars of his apparatus proves the possession of most remarkable wrist strength. Miss Fatmah Daird, in her songs, "Scenes that are brightest" and "Entreat me not to leave thee," is pleasing.

Wizards appear to become more mystifying every day, and to this Germaine, in his medley of magical marvels, is no exception. Rags and flags are produced from nowhere, and vanish to an equally shadowy locality. However, the beautiful roses that the professor showered upon the ladies of the audience were substantial realities, and formed a most acceptable "curtain" to Germaine's refined and unique performance. The magnificent setting to Miss Mars' vocal scena adds greatly to the success of her two songs. Her first number, "I want Molly and she wants me" is given in a most enticing "Paul Jones" costume, which exhibits her fine figure to perfection. In her second number, "In the shadow of the Pyramid," she has an equally charming dress, and this dainty burlesque actress scores an instant and complete success. Mr. Fred Dunstone, in his parody of "The old apple tree" strikes a note familiar enough to all, and the gallery is soon keeping time with the popular vocalist. Equally welcome is his second number, "The hedgehogs in the hedge are sweetly singing." As usual, Mr. W. Neal's capable band contributes largely to the enjoyment of a delightful evening, and the overture, "Merrie England," left nothing to be desired.

Mr. and Mrs. John Nathan's silver wedding will be celebrated at the King's Hall Rooms, Holborn Restaurant, on Monday.

Mr. Editor.—Sir,—In your favourable report for Empire, Stockport, last week. I was described as comedian and contortionist. It should have been comedian and cartoonist.—Yours faithfully, Chas. Beanland.

DEATH OF HARRY HUNTER.

Last week we had to record the death of Mr. Lechmere Livermore, and now another well-known figure in the realms of negro minstrelsy—a world of shadows—has passed away in the person of Mr. Harry Hunter, one of the founders of the Mohawk Minstrels at Islington, a genial personality, and a most popular figure in the variety world. Mr. Hunter died at his residence in the Holloway-road on Friday, the 12th inst. He had been before the public at the time of his retirement in 1904 since 1867, when he started his career as a comic singer at "smokers" and sing-songs, accepting engagements wherever he could get them. Finding many of the songs such unsingable stuff, Mr. Hunter took to putting his own words to the popular ditties of the day. One of his earliest successes was, "I saw Esau kissing Kate," which became quite the rage when set to new music by Vincent Davies. Mr. John Alvey Turner it was who first encouraged the young singer to persevere, both in the rendering and writing of songs, and he afterwards married Mr. Turner's sister. Minstrelsy was then in the zenith of its popularity, and young Hunter, with a few others, started a burnt-cork troupe round the suburbs, and called it the Manhattan Minstrels. They were engaged at Weston's, now the Holborn Empire, and it was there that Mr. John Francis, who headed a similar combination, first met Mr. Hunter, and the happy suggestion for a joining of forces materialised in the establishment of the Mohawk Minstrels at the Agricultural Hall, a troupe that migrated to the St. James's Hall, and joined forces with the Moore and Burgess crowd in September, 1900.

THE LATE MR. HARRY HUNTER.

The history of the Mohawk Minstrels' uprising is most interesting. They began in a small way, and for a long time only about paid the expenses; but by pegging away and working hard, success came, and then, after a while, John Francis and David Day founded the well-known publishing firm of Francis, Day, and Hunter, and so issued not only their own songs, but those of many other composers and writers, and prosperity has crowned their efforts. Amongst the successes Mr. Hunter made as a writer of song words should be mentioned "His name is Joshu-a," "Will you be my hollyhock?" "Oh, Mr. Johnson," "The baby is the angel in the house," "The old songs are the best," "High, my Ringtum! Ho, my Riley!" "I've got the ooperzootic," "It has never happened yet," "Look at the price of coals," "Down in the valley where the daisies grow," and scores of others. On the Hunter benefit nights at the Agricultural Hall, "Harry" used to supply a programme made up entirely of his own compositions—on what might have been termed the "minstrel" portion of the show. The other portion of it was contributed by the leading music hall artists of the day.

THE FUNERAL.

That considerable local interest was taken in the funeral of the late Mr. William Henry Jennings, professionally known as Harry Hunter, was apparent by the crowds of people who lined both sides of the pavement in Holloway-road for some distance outside the residence of the deceased gentleman. It was noticeable, too, that all the blinds were lowered in the immediate neighbourhood, many of the shopkeepers having their shutters down for a few hours before the last that remained of Harry Hunter was taken from the house. An avenue was kept by the police from the gateway to the gutter, so that the mourners had a clear passage to the coaches.

The order of the carriages and the names of the principal mourners were as follows:—1st carriage, Mrs. Hunter (widow), Mrs. Pizzey (sister), Mr. Payne Jennings (brother), and Mrs. Turner; 2nd carriage, Mr. and Mrs. E. G. Butler (nephew and niece), Mr. H. Jennings (nephew), and Miss Wall (niece); 3rd carriage, Miss Turner, Mr. J. D. Hunter, and Mr. and Mrs. Couldrey; 4th carriage, Mr. Oswald Couldrey, Miss Couldrey, Mrs. Coley, and Mr. Wm. Jennings; 5th carriage, Mr. and Mrs. W. Francis, Mr. David Day, and Mr. Philip Rutland; 6th carriage, the Rev. Mr. Asker and Mr. and Mrs. Holland; 7th carriage, Mr. and Mrs. Sherlock and Mr. and Mrs. Pickard; 8th carriage, Mr. S. Dee and Mr. H. Mason; 9th carriage, Miss Cowper, Mr. W. Coley, Nurse Hardy, and Nurse Rigby, 10th carriage, Mr. F. Mathews and Mr. A. J. Whittard; 11th carriage, Mr. R. W. Reynolds and Mr. Matheson; 12th carriage, Staff of Messrs. Francis, Day, and Hunter.

The funeral service (Church of England) was held in St. George's Church, Tufnell Park, at 2.30, the Rev. Geo. Edward Asker, M.A., the vicar, officiating. From the church the funeral procession proceeded to Abney Park Cemetery, where the interment took place in a newly-opened family vault. Here again the beautiful burial service was conducted by the Rev. Mr. Asker. In addition to the mourners, there was quite a concourse of professional and other people, who, having known and admired the deceased in his lifetime, had now come to pay a final mark of respect at his obsequies. The coffin, which was polished elm with brass fittings, bore the inscription:—

William Henry Jennings,
Departed this life
12th October, 1906.
Aged 65 years.

Among the wreaths were many beautiful specimens of the florist's art. The widow's tribute consisted of white, red, and yellow roses, with the words, "To my lion of a husband—a remark of a great friend." Mrs. S. Jennings and Mr. W. Jennings (aunt and cousin) sent a wreath "In affectionate remembrance"; Mr. H. Jennings (nephew) forwarded a pretty cluster of lilies, and Miss B. Wall (niece) a wreath of arum lilies and white chrysanthemums. From Mr. John Jennings (brother) came a wreath of arum lilies, chrysanthemums, and maidenhair fern, "In loving memory, from Brother John." Others represented by the wreaths and floral combinations were Mr. J. D. Hunter, Annie and Willie Coley (niece and nephew), Mr. and Mrs. David Day ("In affectionate remembrance"), Mr. and Mrs. Harry Randall, Mr. and Mrs. Warwick Williams, Mr. Philip J. Rutland (solicitor), Mrs. Maddox and family, the nurses who attended him, Mr. J. H. Sandwell, Mr. John Francis, Mr. and Mrs. Oliver, Mr. and Mrs. G. W. (Pony) Moore ("In sorrow at the loss of a dear friend"), Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Stratton ("Deepest sympathy"), Mr. Herbert Ponton, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Rose, Mr. and Mrs. Couldrey, Dr. Matheson, Mr. and Mrs. Sherlock and family, and Mr. and Mrs. W. Francis and family.

Among the senders of telegrams and letters expressing sympathy were Mr. and Mrs. Harry Randall and daughters, Mr. and Mrs. David Day, Mr. Bertram Chevalier, Mr. and Mrs. G. W. Moore, Mr. and Mrs. Leslie Stuart, Mrs. Bailey, Mr. Fred Day and Mr. Will Francis (New York), Mr. H. Jennings, Mr. J. D. Hunter, Mr. and Mrs. J. Schofield, Mr. and Mrs. Holland, Mr. and Mrs. S. Turner, Mr. and Mrs. Couldrey, Mr. and Mrs. Donkill, Mr. S. R. Dee, Mr. George Clair, Major Williams, Mr. Charles Montague, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Freeman, Miss Chevalier, Mr. W. Henderson, Dr. Rygate, Mr. Arthur Payne, Mr. W. Wooding, Mr. H. Mason, Mr. and Mrs. Pickard, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Coborn, Mr. and Mrs. R. W. Reynolds, Mr. S. R. Bunt, Mr. G. A. Worley, Mr. and Mrs. Plucknett, Mr. J. Francis, Mr. and Mrs. Mordan, and Mrs. Herbert Campbell.

Many old members of the Mohawks, with which the deceased gentleman was for so long connected, were to be seen around the graveside during and after the burial service. These included Little Thomas, the seventy-five-year-old corner man; Mr. Celian Kottaun, the musical-director of the Mohawks; Mr. "Chappie" Lawson, Mr. Tom Birchmore, Mr. J. Schofield, Mr. J. Danvers, Mr. G. Miles ("Little Henry"), the harpist; Mr. R. Thomas, the first manager of the Mohawks; and Mr. Wally Scott. Others present at the sad ceremony were Mr. John Smith (manager for Messrs. Francis, Day, and Hunter), Mrs. Herbert Campbell, Mr. Will Freeman, Mr. John Guest, Mr. Will Bagley, Mr. Edgar Bateman, Mr. Harry Platt, Mr. R. Berridge, Captain G. W. James, and Mr. and Mrs. E. Bryett, Mr. Charles Wilmott, Mr. William Eyke, Mr. Arthur Francis (son of Mr. William Francis), Mr. Tom Stainton (a very old friend of the deceased, and, we understand, the oldest ratepayer in Islington), Mr. H. Randall, Mr. Victor Liston, Mr. F. J. Barnes and Mr. R. P. Weston, the last two being song-writers. Mr. Warwick Williams was prevented from attending owing to his being kept at home through illness.

RICHMOND THEATRE.

An excellent bill, with not a dull "turn" from beginning to end of the programme. Such is the menu provided by Mr. Kay Draco for his patrons this week at Richmond. Miss Clara Victor opens the programme with a coon ditty, "My starlight Sue," and very prettily she renders the eccentricities of the coon ditty, so much so that "Starlight Sue" soon wins many friends. Miss Victor is equally happy in her second contribution, "I wonder where you are to-night." For the third time under the present régime the Four Watsons appear. Their turn is altogether excellent, and, as both vocalists and instrumentalists, their performance is refined and interesting. A medley duet on popular ballads of the day is heartily applauded. Mr. Tom Parker gets a lot of fun out of the song "Stop as you are," and relates sundry stories of cycle mishaps with the lady of his choice and himself. His burlesque coon also proves to be a very comical effort. Mr. Parker dances, too, as well as he sings. Juvenile comedy is represented by Boden and Bell, a couple of Lilliputian artists who sing and dance quite prettily. The End of the Honeymoon, as presented by Beresford Maude and company, is highly diverting, and resulted in continuous hilarity on the part of the audience. A convict has escaped, and enters the room of a lady whose husband has gone to his club after a matrimonial disagreement. The convict insists on changing clothes with the lady, much to her disgust. Anon, Benedict returns from his club, having imbibed not wisely, but well. His wife, in convict garb, and with the aid of a formidable pistol, brings him to his senses, and he apologises for his conduct. The sketch is admirably played. The Villions troupe of clever acrobatic cyclists provided many marvellous novelties, including obstacle jumping, steeplechasing, and other wonderful feats—in short, what the Villions cannot do with a bicycle is not worth doing. Miss Millie Luid possesses a voice of extraordinary capacity and range; she scores a complete success in the ever-popular "Alice, where art thou?" and is applauded to the echo for her tasteful contribution. Matters musical are enhanced by the performance of a protean mélange, entitled In Her Boudoir. The success of this may be traced to the wonderful vocalisation of Miss May Beatty. Mr. Laurie's "quick changes" from musical professor to page boy, &c., are wonderful. In Her Boudoir is quite a pleasing trifle. Neat-handed and dexterous juggling is got through by the Cromwells, who successfully mystify the audience and leave them asking "How is it done?" The secret is the Cromwells'. The Bioscope concludes a genuinely interesting bill. Mr. Norfolk Megone is back again as musical director, and very admirably does the orchestra do its work. Both selections, "Off to Coventry" and "Pick o' the basket," are tuneful and capably rendered by Mr. Megone's musicians. Mr. Kay Draco enhances the popularity of house and programme by his unfailing courtesy and ability.

BARNARD'S PALACE.

Mr. Bert Dent, the energetic and popular acting-manager of this favourite hall, must be well satisfied with the result of his exertions when he hears the deafening applause with which the turns were greeted last week. After the overture had been brilliantly executed by Mr. William Skerry and his clever band, the first to appear was Mr. Ted Wells, who sang in capital style, "Don't be rudey dudey" and "Ask my mother"; next came the candy-store scene from The Belle of New York, in which McOlive appeared with great success as the whistler, a part made famous by Mr. Frank Lawton. He was ably assisted by Miss Daisy Baldry. McOlive also gave a capital rendering of "Killarney."

Rozel came next, and exhibited much grace and agility in several new gymnastic feats. Lillian Claire appeared with considerable success in the farcical sketch, entitled Married all of a Sudden, in which she was well supported by her company. Little Trixie Lee was warmly applauded in her pretty coon song and dance, and in "Marry the girl you love." She is a clever little artist, and well deserved her reception. Spry and Monti proved as popular as ever, their clever contributions including comedy, dialogue, coon duet, pianoforte solo, and sand dance. Dora Davis and company appeared in a costume comedy, entitled Kitty, which afforded much satisfaction. Violet Durham contributed a gracefully-executed dance, and sang in excellent style, "Wait till I grow older." Addie Dorina made a great hit in her protean entertainment, entitled How it was Done, appearing in five distinct characters. The programme also included Elmore and Davis, in the amusing turn, entitled The Stage-struck Page; Rene Ring, the charming and popular soubrette; and clever Miss Eileen Raymond, who is billed as the dramatic vocalist. A pleasant evening's entertainment was brought to a successful finish by Ruffell's Imperial Bioscope, which exhibited a new and interesting series of animated pictures.

THE SHOWMAN WORLD.

MARLBOROUGH FAIR was well attended by the best of the shows and riding machines on the circuit: Wm. Taylor's superb electric cinematograph theatre; Ridley's variety theatre; R. Dooner and Son's coliseum of living pictures and empire varieties; Wilson's fine art show; Wm. Symonds (of Gloucester), with switchback, gondolas, and gallopers; Jennings' steam circus and juvenile and gem sets of motor-cars and ponies; Messrs. Wilson and Matthews Bros.' shooting galleries; and jungles by Messrs. Edwards, Gillham, and Jennings; the boxing saloons of Prof. Gillham and W. Taylor. The olla podrida of the fair was provided by local caterers and the following itinerant traders: Messrs. Jones, Bunce, Matthews, Wilson, and Jennings.

AYLESBURY kept its October Hiring Fair on the 13th inst., and a right good fair it was. The shows were Sedgwick's menagerie; Wm. Taylor's cinematograph and variety theatre; and Ball's bioscope. The machines were Thurston and Sons' gondolas and motors, bicycle track, and switchback; and Wilson's gallopers. The rifle saloons were by Messrs. Attwell and Pickard; cokers by A. Smith; and the usual attendant throng of novelty and variety stalls and many local stallholders.

AT Warwick Fair were Charles Farrell, Chipperfield, and Wright, with their well-known exhibitions, great and small; Wm. Davies and C. Farrell, with riding machines; and the following fair-ground caterers, with rifle galleries, bottle batteries, Emma sheets, cokers, and varieties: Marsden, Wilson, Farrell, Wright, Connor, Carloman, and some local stall-holders, &c.

THE fair at Thame (Oxford) was well maintained by Alf Ball's Premier Bioscope; Knighton's peep show; Wilson's galloping horses; Wall's steam circus; Allwell's rifle saloon; bottle and egg batteries by Messrs. Wall, Knighton, and Ayers; and throwing games by Smith, Wall, Knighton, Allwell, and others.

AT Tewkesbury Fair were Purchase's menagerie; R. Dooner and Son's cinematograph; Chipperfield's show; John Studt's switchback and motor-cars; R. Chipperfield's peep-show; Hanks and Dobson's swings; Fossett's shooter, photo booth, and other attractions; Powell's rifle gallery and slipping the slope tower; and other varieties by S. White; and throwing games by Stanley, Buckland, Chipperfield, and others.

A LOCAL correspondent sends us the following interesting account of a visit to Sedgwick's menagerie: "Swindon was favoured with a visit of Sedgwick's gigantic American Zoo, one of the oldest and best-established concerns now travelling, on Oct. 6 and 8. On paying a visit to this mammoth collection of beasts, birds, and reptiles, I was surprised to note the condition of the exhibits. The herds of elephants, camels, and dromedaries at once arrest your attention. The caged animals comprise various species, and include twenty-four of the finest specimens of lions and lionesses I have ever had the pleasure of seeing in any zoological collection, either stationary or travelling. The chief attractions are the baby lions, baby leopards, baby wolves, and baby monkeys, all born in the menagerie whilst touring South Wales. It was a pleasing and interesting sight to see the renowned lioness Victoria with her five baby cubs, which were born at Pontydawe on Aug. 20. In the adjoining compartment were a splendid pair of baby leopards with their mother. They were born on Aug. 22 at Brynamman, on passing Mountain Ash. In the last compartment of the same carriage was the celebrated lioness Spitfire—who savagely attacked Alphonzo at Marple on March 28, 1906—majestically walking her carriage, nursing in succession her litter of cubs, two in number, and savagely guarding them from prying eyes. These cubs were born on Sept. 13, at Nelson. On carefully counting these figures I find that Mr. Sedgwick has been fortunate enough to breed and rear sixteen baby cubs in the short space of twenty-four days. On being introduced to the head conductor, who kindly passed round the enclosure with me, I was surprised to hear from him that Mr. Sedgwick had bred no less than forty-two baby lions, lionesses, and leopards in the incredibly short space of the last fourteen months, thus establishing a record never before known in any zoological collection travelling. On asking my friend to show me the father of the handsome family of lion cubs, I was immediately conducted to a large carriage containing—from my own point of view—one of the largest and most handsome African black-maned lions I think possible to maintain in a travelling collection. Whilst viewing the other various exhibits I was aroused by a stentorian voice announcing the various performances, Lorenzo stepping into the arena and introducing to your notice his Royal musical elephant, which goes through a very clever and pleasing performance. Mlle. Rosina commences the performances with the caged animals by performing the serpentine dance in the lions' den, after which Capt. Marko introduces a mixed group of performing animals, comprising singing, talking, and dancing bears, laughing hyenas, and leaping wolves. Lorenzo next introduces to your notice his mixed group of animals, which are without doubt the premier group of trained animals ever placed before the public, comprising lions, lionesses, and boarhound dogs, taking forty minutes to go through their tableaux performances. Again Mlle. Rosina brings to your notice her educated and performing pack of ravenous wolves, and Alphonzo brings these performances to a close by giving a true illustration of a lion hunt, lion fight, and subjection of the same. Mr. Sedgwick next brings before the public the great tug-of-war, which has been the rage of America for the past five years, viz., the elephant v. forty local men, thus ending one of the most pleasant evenings ever spent whilst following my occupation."

WITH regard to the proposed taking over of the Fleece Field by the Corporation of Evesham, the Showmen's Guild has taken energetic action. The whole of the members of the Corporation have been written to, and a marked copy of The Era sent to each councillor and alderman, containing our observations on the injustice of closing the field unless permission to pitch upon Merstow Green is freely accorded to exhibitions taking Evesham for private business. Our local correspondent, Mr. W. C. Sorrel, of Redditch, who also acts as honorary local agent of the Showmen's Guild, in his capacity as a travelling stall-holder, has also written to the Evesham authorities in the interests of his fellow-travellers on this round, pointing out to the Corporation the injustice of closing up a ground without providing another site. In an interesting letter to us, Mr. Sorrel points out the foolishness of the "dog in the manger" policy of some of the local showmen, who resent the opening up of this country to outside show-people. Mr. Sorrel concludes his trenchant letter (which we cannot give in extenso) with the pertinent remark, "I do not like such people as these; I believe in 'live and let live.' I do not like grabbers. When I send anything up to the "Showman World" it is meant for the information of, and for the good and welfare of all show-people."

THE showmen who take the small fairs in the county of Essex have a very good friend in Mr. Castledine, veterinary surgeon, of Writtle, near Chelmsford. For some time past Mr. Castledine has been in correspondence with the Guild Secretary, regarding the proposed abolition of Writtle Fair. The Guild executive, through our columns, warned the local showmen of the intending danger, and asked that these people so immediately concerned, should send in their permanent addresses, and hold themselves in readiness to defend their trade right and interests. But, we regret to say, that once more the Guild executive is left to fight the battle of trade defence without the active assistance of the local travellers. A petition will be sent to the Home Secretary in the interests of the whole body of travelling show-people, objecting to the abolition of the fair, and again we ask the local show-people to arouse themselves, and defend their threatened business. We give below the notice from the London Gazette, and issued by the Home Office:—

THE FAIRS ACT, 1871.

The Local Government Act, 1894.

WRITTLE FAIR.

The Secretary of State for the Home Department HEREBY GIVES NOTICE that a Representation has been duly made to him by the Rural District Council of Chelmsford, to the effect that a Fair has been annually held on Whit Monday at Writtle, in the County of Essex, and that it would be for the convenience and advantage of the public that the said Fair should be Abolished:

On the 1ST DAY OF NOVEMBER, 1906, the Secretary of State will take such representation into consideration, and any Person who may desire to Object to the Abolition of the Fair should intimate his Objections to the Secretary of State before that Day.

Home Office, Whitehall,
Oct. 1, 1906.

As illustrating the increasing interest in the educational and spiritual work of the Showmen's Guild, we give with great pleasure the following account of a meeting held at Sherborne on Sunday last, Oct. 14. The improvised church was Messrs. Anderton and Rowland's superb electrograph and variety theatre. The service, conducted throughout by the Rev. E. W. Legg, Sarum Diocesan Missioner to the Itinerants, was a mission service, consisting of prayers, hymns, and an address on the Stations of the Cross, fully illustrated, and at the close of the service Messrs. Anderton and Rowland exhibited their splendid animated picture of the Sherborne Pageant. A great many of the van-dwellers were present, as well as a large number of townspeople. The silver collection, after deducting a sum for expenses, was given to the Salisbury Diocesan Itinerant Mission Fund.

THE Bishop of Sheffield says that "In the midst of the great educational influences of the present day, the gospel of relaxation is all important."

AT the Markets Committee of the Aberavon Town Council, on Tuesday, a special meeting reported upon the question of the two fairs held annually by Mr. Henry Studt, and it recommended that in future the fairs be carried on by the Corporation.

Mr. J. M. Smith: I totally disagree with the recommendation.

In reply to a question regarding the right of Mr. Studt, the Town Clerk stated that in 1896 counsel's opinion had been taken upon the matter, and that coincided with his own opinion, which was that they could not stop Mr. Studt carrying on a pleasure fair, as a pleasure fair did not come within the scope of the Markets Act.

Alderman Owen: There would, therefore, be nothing to stop Mr. Studt holding a fair in his field at the same time?

The Town Clerk: No.

Mr. J. M. Smith: In face of that it would be usless trying to run a fair, and it would be much better to approach Mr. Studt and to come to some arrangement with him.

Mr. Percy Jacob: Has Mr. Studt been approached as to what amount he would be prepared to give.

Mr. Moses Thomas: Not officially, but he probably knows all about it.

Mr. Moses Thomas proposed the adoption of the recommendation of the sub-committee. He pointed out that the Neath Corporation made £300 a year by running the fair themselves. He suggested that the right of running the fair be advertised, so that everyone would have a fair chance, and that the privilege be given to the best offer.

There was no seconder.

Mr. J. M. Smith said that Mr. Thomas's arguments regarding Neath were entirely wrong. He proposed that Mr. Studt be allowed to run two fairs a year on payment of a sum of £100 per annum.

Dr. J. H. Williams seconded.

Alderman T. Owen said that the conditions were entirely different at Neath, as there the Corporation had full control, whereas at Aberavon Mr. Studt had a field of his own adjoining the fair ground.

The proposition was carried by ten votes to one.

THE October Pleasure Fair at Leicester has been the scene of much revelry and enjoyment, being patronised by many thousands of people, who have enjoyed to the full the varied amusements provided for their delectation. On Saturday the fair was packed to suffocation, and business all round was particularly brisk, no doubt owing to the enterprise displayed by Mr. P. Collins. The chief shows on the ground included Buffalo Bill's wild beast, Mrs. F. Collins's cinematograph and variety entertainment, Messrs. P. Collins and Sons' excellent bioscope show, Harry Cullis's boxing booth, and White's variety show. All the machines were of an elaborate character, and included P. Collins's helter-skelter and other machines, John Collins's motor-cars, &c., and many other attractions in the same direction provided by well-known showmen. The fair terminated on Tuesday night, having lasted from the previous Thursday.

AT Sherborne Fair, Dorset, there were shows by Anderton and Rowland and John Jones; boxing booth by Alf. Wright; giant lady by Prof. Barber; Kaffir performers by Reader; freak exhibitions by Reader and John Gratton; swing boats by John Smith, Russett, and Petersen; galloping horses by Brewer; motor track by Marshall Hill; strikers by Wynn and Jack Bratton; rifle saloons by G. Russett, John Jones, John Gratton, W. Conelly, and J. Herbert; cokers by John Granton, John Smith, and R. Buckland; and various small booths of the usual kind, sheets, &c.

SHERBORNE Fair was largely attended, and gave great pleasure to the crowds daily thronging the fair field. Anderton and Rowland's grand show easily taking premier place amongst the many attractions provided. Mr. John Jones, with his talented family, gave their well-known and excellent variety show, which was largely and deservedly patronised.

AT Wadbrook's Electrograph, Merstow Green, Evesham, a benefit was given for the Cottage Hospital, and the handsome sum of £16 8s. 6d. was taken. The benefits during the last three years have amounted to the generous sum of £61 18s. 6d., contributed by Mr. Henry Scard, proprietor of Wadbrook's Electrograph.

SHOWMEN'S GUILD subscription for 1906:—Mr. W. Shuttleworth, £1 1s.

STYLO, juggler, while packing his basket last Saturday at the Empire, Stockport, discovered a diamond ring inside. He is inclined to think that the trinket has been stolen and dropped into his basket for some reason, as no one in last week's company lost a ring.

HULL FAIR.

By the Rev. T. HORNE.

There are three great fairs in mid-England, following one another in close sequence of time, that illustrate fully the remarkable advance of the show business that marks the opening of the twentieth century. We refer to Birmingham, Nottingham, and Hull Fairs.

Nottingham gives us the best existing example of the adaptation of the mediæval fair to modern conditions in a town rich with historic memories—a fair that has never lost its continuity with old-time privileges, and is still held in the old Market-square, and still surrounded by the admirable setting of grand old buildings, hoary with venerable age, and still streams from its great source and centre the fair-ground, and runs along in vivid streams of life the Long-row, Angel-row, and other thoroughfares of the city. That is the ideal of a fair at which the town and country-side make merry.

Frankly, and without any utilitarian pretence of enjoying the fair in the interval of business hours. No, Nottingham gives itself utterly (and with a bold and open abandonment) to the enjoyment of the fun and the frolic of Goose Fair. It is a sight you can see nowhere else. It remains to-day unique and without a compeer—the ancient and the modern combined, and the result is the best fair under the best conditions in the world.

Nottingham Goose Fair is preceded by the new-old Birmingham Great Onion Fair. Here again we have a huge modern fair under conditions that fully attest the up-to-date business ability of the enterprising modern showman, and also proves beyond all doubt and cavil that the love of the fair is so deeply rooted in the public heart and mind that no corporation, however strong and however determined in its policy to abolish the people's holidays and open-air amusements, can succeed in their short-sighted and mistaken schemes to rob the people of their fairs. Birmingham Corporation, in direct contradistinction to the Corporation of Nottingham, strained its local governing powers to abolish the fair by refusing to let ground in the old central site of the fair. The authorities vainly imagined that, if they used their power to prevent the fair being held on its accustomed ground, therefore the fair would cease.

But the authorities forgot, or, in the arrogancy of their power, neglected to consider the other side of the question; in fact, they ignored the most important elements in the matter. They ignored the will and mind of the people of Birmingham, and they forgot the business loss that their ill-judged and arbitrary action inflicted on the showmen and itinerant traders, whose daily bread depended on the continuance of the people's pleasure fairs. These two important factors were not going to submit without a struggle, and the struggle resulted in the continuance of the fair by the supreme will of the people and the business enterprise of the travelling showmen.

Mr. P. Collins, the principal roundabout proprietor on the Midland circuit, soon secured an admirable fair-ground—"The Old Pleck"—and there the Great Onion Fair, with its old name to link it with the glorious past, flourishes, and is to-day, from all points of view, the standard of all private-venture fairs. Mr. Collins knew the people of Birmingham better than the Corporation did, and when the fair was set in array on the Old Pleck Ground, out to the fair trooped the people in their multitude, without so much as "An' by your leave, messieurs," to the city fathers, and the city fathers were wise enough to recognise the majesty of the sovereign people's will.

Notice here the net result. The tolls which would have gone to the casement of the rates of Birmingham were lost, because the Corporation did not provide a new site, did not wisely remove the fair, but tried to abolish it, by the force of a resolution of the Borough Council refusing to let ground to either shows or stalls at the fair. This, they thought (because they knew not the enterprise of the showman, and had not realised the mind of the show-loving public) would effectively abolish the fair They reckoned without knowing that Patrick Collins and the multitude of the people would regard their resolution as not worth the paper upon which it was written.

Now, at Hull, we have a distinct type of a fair, under the most progressive and popular conditions. Like unto Nottingham and Birmingham, the fair was held in the heart of the town, around the church, and in the streets and byways of central Hull. This the authorities wisely recognised in time, and, in order to avoid the congestion of traffic, resulting from the rapid development of the port and docks, determined to provide a spacious new fair-ground. within easy access of the town by car, and also well served by the various railway companies, with local platforms to deal with the enormous influx of visitors by excursion trains from all parts of the country, Hull Fair, like Nottingham and Birmingham, being a time for far-away friends and relations to return once again to see the dear "old places and faces at home."

The huge fair-ground is approached from Walton-street, and the whole stretch of this thoroughfare is lined with stalls and small bazaars, a kaleidoscope of ever-changing life and colour. One of the main entrances to the fair—there are three separate and ample entrance avenues—is by the way of the toy and fairings bazaars—a thousand feet of toyland, a thousand feet of "Santa Claus and his treasure stores," made up of the travelling bazaars (a distinctive feature of Yorkshire fairs and feasts) of Messrs. John Seed, Howarth, Gledstone, Alfred Seed, and Johnson, and the local bazaar-keeper, Mr. Selle, with a two hundred foot long bazaar.

The central entrance, leading up to the great show-line, was occupied on the right by the photographic concerns of Messrs. Walton, Cunthorpe, Day, and others. Following these were the high-class shooting ranges, bottle and egg smashers, and rifle jungles and galleries, of Messrs. Cornwell, Richards, Watson, Goodall, Kelly, Payne, Ratcliffe, Lever, Lieske, and, at the extreme end of the row, Merrill's, the local caterers, with refreshment tent. On the left-hand side of the avenue were the steam yachts, flying motors, motor-car track, and other roundabout sets, of Messrs. Waddington, Marshall, Shipley, Ben Howden and Son, P. Collins, and others. The huge fair-ground is set out as a quadrangle, the show-line occupying one entire side of the square, and flowing over on to another side. Here we found Wombwell's, Bostock's menagerie, Sir R. Fossett and Son's circus (the "Bailey circus" of this fair), Chipperfield's menagerie, the Randall Williams premier show, Monte Bros., Capt. Tom Payne (a great local favourite in the city of Hull), with bioscope, Geo. Kemp's electric temple of protean delight, "Dreamland," Relph and Pedley's superb show ("a vision of beauty and a joy for ever"), Enoch Farrar's electric Coliseum of living pictures and Empire varieties, H. Testo's cinématograph, "the world in 'live' pictures day by day," Sidney Braham's unique and pretty ground booth, the lady conjurer and the trained birds, W. Le Neve and Norah Sullivan, in expert wrestling and Sandow feats of strength and physical culture; Westray's natural museum, and second show, the freak marvels; Hastings' two ground booths, the midget marvels and the giant lady; Professor Gibson and "Syko," the mystic experts in psychometry and occult wonders; S. Tower's new show, Japanese marvels and illusions; the up-to-date peepshow of Enoch Farrar; and Ling's Royal academy of art pictures; and that capital ground booth circus, Ingram's dogs and monkeys.

This is an aggregation of shows difficult to find at any other fair in the world.

Facing the show-line (and on the third side) continuing the line of marvels, were motor-car sets, gondolas, ostriches, cockerels, wheeling the wheel, ships in the air, gem horses, swings, and motor-cars switchback, and a new machine of weird build, exhibited by Messrs. John Collins, P. Collins, Wm. Murphy, Aspland and Howden, Lieske, R. Payne, Relph and Pedley, Marshall, Geo. Green, Morley, Houldsworth, J. W. Waddington, and local caterers.

Here, again, a group of concerns without a peer on any other fair-ground in the United Kingdom.

Who can set out in detail the three hundred other fair-ground novelties—avenues and long rows of throwing games, variety stalls, doll frames, football games, pannum stalls, refreshment tents, strikers, shooters, cokers, emma sheets—all the conglomerate marvels of a well-ordered and most modern fair. To our showmen readers it is enough to say that these side shows and fair-ground amusements were in the capable hands of such experts as T. Burgin, Rhodes, Thompson, Johnson, Payne, Doubtfire, Watson, Fisher, Middlebrook, Wright, Dearden, Jameson, Edwards, Turner, Jones, Veto, Holdsworth, and other caterers on the Yorkshire round.

A noticeable feature here, too, is the enterprise of local caterers and stallholders. Hundreds of smart local traders pitch their stalls on the line of march to and from the fair ground, and reap the well-won reward of their endeavour. To the Corporation, for its enlightened and progressive policy in making provision for the amusement of the people, every praise is due, and the city treasury will reap a rich reward, to the easement of public burdens, not only in tollage for shows and stalls, but also in the revenue of their splendid electric trams, loaded on the fair days to their utmost carrying capacity, taking visitors to and from the open fair and carnival in Walton-street.

A special word of praise is due to the expert official of the Corporation, Mr. Robert Grace, the superintendent of markets and fairs. Mr. Grace, in interpreting the policy of the City Council into actual fact, has brought to bear a remarkable ability for organisation and control, and Mr. Grace has his reward in the well-equipped fair, second to none in the United Kingdom. Every detail of management is thoroughly carried through under his immediate control. Every provision for the safety and comfort of the multitude, and for the use and benefit of showpeople, is provided by the City Council, and controlled by their courteous and indefatigable chief officer for the fair, Mr. Robert Grace. There were over six hundred separate standings let by the Corporation for the fair.

PROVERBS AND ANECDOTES.

"A still tongue makes a wise head." This is eminently untrue of the Doorsman.

"Punctuality is the soul of business." This is eminently true of the staff of that show that is always ready to begin when the "red hot coppers" are burning the pockets of the early visitors to the fair.

There have been three Andrews in the famous family of Purchase, of menagerie and waxwork renown. Two of the famous trio are with us, and there may be, for aught we know to the contrary, a fourth Andrew; but as his possible exploits lie in the future we can well afford to leave the fourth Andrew to the future historian. Our story is concerned with the founder of the family, Andrew Purchase, of waxwork celebrity. It concerns the far-away days when Wales was almost a terra incognita, and few and daring were the English showmen who successfully invaded the Principality. Purchase found himself in a one-eyed place, where shows were like the visits of angels, few and far between, and when they did visit this particular spot very rough and violent was the reception they obtained. The roughs of the district systematically demanded blackmail, and this the sturdy Andrew Purchase boldly refused to give them. They vowed terrible reprisals, and attempted to be as good as their word, for late the following evening some dozen of them returned and again demanded money. The bold Andrew went inside of his van, after he had failed to persuade them to depart, and, taking the blunderbuss used in a conjuring item in the programme, he came again to the front, and told the crowd, "If you don't go away within the next half-dozen minutes I'll give you a taste of this." They still clamoured for money, and Andrew found that he was in a serious dilemma, for, although he had powder, he had no shot.

The quick-witted showman was not resourceless, for when he had charged the weapon he deftly emptied a packet of half-inch tacks in the wide mouth of the blunderbuss, and, coming to the front, he said, "Now, you Welsh rapscallions, are you going once, are you going twice"—there was an angry growl, but part of the crowd began to waver—"are you going the third and last time of asking?" There was an instant turning of the crowd, and immediately, like a modern machine-gun, the blunderbuss speeded their farewell with the wide-spreading discharge of 500 tin-tacks.

Now comes the moral of the story. For miles and miles around the country surgeons did a thriving trade in extracting tacks from the scored bodies of the blackmailers, and it would have been very interesting to have collected and compared the various stories told by the blackmailers to account for the presence of the tacks in their anatomy. But the greatest of all results, and one that endures to this day, is that the roughs no longer attempt to blackmail the Sassenach showman within their borders.

"Where there's a will there's a way." The willing showman is on the highway to success, and the employee who is willing and ready when wanted makes his own way from the parade to a palace on wheels.

One of the characters of the past, known by name and reputation throughout the length and breadth of the land, was Patrick Feency, professionally known as "Malabar," who died at Glasgow in the year 1890. Our story is concerned with how he became a showman. His father was a small farmer in County Sligo. He "didn't learn much at school," he tells us, and adds, "I was a lazy boy. But by-and-by the wandering fit came over me, and I thought I should like to see a bit of the world. All that the dear old man could give me was thirty shillings, and with this in my fist I started out for Dublin." In the metropolis of his country thirty shillings did not last him long, so, still adventuring, he worked his passage to Liverpool. He had only been about an hour landed when he came upon a crowd in the street; a Chinese juggler was giving what was to the Irishman an amazing performance. There and then, like unto many a youth before him, he determined to enter the ranks of the wandering showmen. Like all beginners, he had to start at the bottom, and work his way up by hard labour and persistence. He started by carrying the carpet and the other traps of Tusang, the first Chinese juggler to busk on the streets of Merrie England. It was Tusang who christened Feeney "Malabar."

Thus it was, to quote his own words, "that I entered the purfession, gentlemen." After serving Tusang for more than twelve months he began on his own account.

MESSRS. HASTINGS AND WHAYMEN and their attendant throng have been doing excellent private business at Aldershot, and, with their usual generosity, have given a benefit performance for the funds of the Aldershot Hospital.

SHOWMEN MEETING AT HULL FAIR.

The Rev. T. Horne, honorary organising chaplain of the Showmen's Guild, continuing his public propaganda work, addressed a crowded meeting of showmen and townspeople at Hull Fair on Sunday last. The gathering was, in fact, the great event of the fair, and the public interest taken in the proceedings was of the most enthusiastic and appreciative character. It was held in Captain Payne's cinématograph theatre. The Mayor (Alderman Larard) presided, and amongst those present were Alderman Cohen, Councillors Pybus, Robins, Askew, J.P., T. G. Hall, Dean, J. W. Gould, Smurthwaite, Parker, ex-Councillor G. Sipling, Robert Grace (fairground superintendent), and other local gentlemen. The principal showmen present were P. Collins, V.P., G. Green, V.P., T. Payne, V.P., G. H. Kemp, V.P., J. W. Waddington, V.P., and the following members of the Executive Council:—J. Hastings, T. Burgin, T. Hartshorn, R. Monte, J. Monte, W. Gibson, and W. Pedley. Messrs. Westray and Son, S. Tower, M. Wilson, Goodall, Braham, J. Relph, J. Wentworth, W. Fisher, H. Testo, A. Barker, Chipperfield, J. Houldsworth, W. Le Neve, W. Ratcliffe, S. Brown, Scott, Gledstone, Parker, Murch, Williams, Hughes, Wright, Grey, and others.

In opening the proceedings, the Mayor welcomed the showmen to Hull, and in doing so expressed the desire of the Corporation to co-operate with the enterprise of the fairground, in order that the provision of entertainment for the people of Hull might be above either suspicion or reproach. Let there be nothing to appeal or to pander to the lower tastes of the people; let them maintain the high standard of amusement as provided by such exhibitions as Captain Payne's bioscope theatre, in which their meeting was being held, and he could assure them that the showmen would win and hold public support and be always welcome at Hull Fair. (Applause). He did not intend to emulate the bad example of a certain chairman who occupied fully two hours in introducing the invited speaker. When the speaker of the evening at last had his opportunity he turned the tables on the loquacious chairman by moving "that the best thanks of the meeting be given to their excellent chairman for the oration that he had delivered to them. He personally would not attempt the needless task of attempting to follow so excellent and exhaustive a speaker." He was fully aware that the meeting was gathered together to hear the Rev. T. Horne deliver an address on "British Shows and Showmen." He would therefore ask the honorary chaplain of the Showmen's Guild to deliver his promised address.

The hon. organising chaplain, on rising to begin his address, was received very warmly, and at the outset thanked his Worship the Mayor for having so admirably struck the keynote of the meeting, and he assured the Mayor and members of the Corporation and the wider constituency of the citizens of Hull, that the primary object of the Guild was the betterment, improvement, and uplifting of the character of the entertainments they took from town to town. They had, of course, other objects, but without that essential condition of their life and work they dare not appeal to the British public, they dare not ask for the support and presence of great corporate bodies at their meetings, nor could they hope to maintain their hold upon public sympathy. (Applause). He then proceeded to tell the story so familiar to our showmen readers of the rise and progress of the Showmen's Guild as an organisation to defend the trade interests, rights, and privileges of showmen, as a class in the community, against the oppression of individuals or public bodies.

They came to Hull Fair and held a public meeting in order that they might not only justify themselves in the sight of their own people—the showmen—but also because they desired to acknowledge publicly the cordial relationship that existed between the organised showmen and the progressive Corporation of Hull, that so wisely and so well co-operated with them in providing one of the best fairs of its class in the whole of the United Kingdom.

On Saturday night he was standing on the front of a show when a showman who had been on the road many, many years directed his attention to the "entrancing beauty and magnificent glare and glitter under the electric light, and to the whirl and excitement of the fair."

We gazed upon the sea of upturned faces, and looked upon the vast stream of life as it passed the show. My friend the showman told me that never had he seen such a sight, and never had he been at a better-managed fair, or where the crowd was more orderly. And I endorsed his opinion, and I say so after visiting the Nottinghim Goose Fair and the great fairs in Lancashire. I have never seen a better arranged fair or a better display on a show ground than I saw from that show front last night. (Applause.) Speaking of the growth of shows, he said it was calculated that 70,000 persons were directly and almost intimately connected in their trade and livelihood with enterprises on fair grounds. Showmen, he said, were as respectable as any other class in the community. There were, of course, black sheep in the flock—the proprietors of catch-penny shows which were a disgrace to the profession. Whilst those shows were admittedly among them, they were not of them, because the Guild would not recognise them as respectable showmen, and they would not have the profession maligned and traduced by those people who ran those shows. (Applause). He repudiated the statement that the days of shows were over, and instanced Bostock and Wombwell's—one of the finest shows in the country, he said—to show how a business enterprise could flourish on the show ground. George Wombwell started with one reptile; now there were four shows belonging to the Bostock and Wombwell family "on the road" in this and other countries. But the enterprise of the Bostock family was but an example—an illustrious one, he added—of the tremendous business enterprise of fairground traders.

Of the far-reaching influence of that business in the industrial world, an indication was afforded by one important branch of it—the steam and electrically-driven roundabout machines. It had been admitted in evidence before the House of Commons that over a quarter of a million of money was invested in travelling roundabouts alone. And he wished to emphasise the fact, so often misapprehended, that instead of fairs and popular holidays decreasing, they were increasing—that for every fair that had become obsolete, because of the migration of the population to the great centres of industrial life, there had sprung into existence half a dozen new fairs; but, of course, these fairs followed the people. He instanced great towns like Manchester, Liverpool, and Leeds, where the old charter fairs had been abolished, and he showed that in these great centres of life the abolition of the great central fair had called into existence half a dozen big suburban fairs within easy reach of the town workers, to supply the demand of the people for open-air entertainment and recreation.

The domestic life of the showman was pure, and his commercial life was honest. He carried on an extraordinary business, but he was an ordinary man. He had the same human feeling and convictions that others had, the same love of family, the same love of home, although it was on wheels, and he liked to feel that when he brought his amusement to relieve the brain pressure of the toil-worn workers, he liked to think that he was doing something that tended to the betterment and uplifting and well-being of the community of which, as an Englishman, he was proud to belong. (Loud applause).

Mr. Gibson, in proposing a vote of thanks to the Mayor for presiding, said he was voicing the feelings of his fellow-showmen when he said that they counted upon Hull Fair for months, and they always looked upon it as going to a place that was like home. There was always a feeling at Hull that made them think of it as their own home. (Applause). He paid a tribute to Mr. Grace for his management of the fair, and said there was never the bustle and excitement at Hull that there were at other fairs.

The Rev. T. Horne seconded the vote, which was carried with acclamation.

The Mayor, in acknowledging the vote of thanks, expressed for himself and the Aldermen and City Councillors the satisfaction they felt that their efforts to extend and improve the fair had been so successful, and he again assured them that everything they could do would be gladly done.

The after meeting was of a purely business character, and was restricted to show-people.

Mr. Horne explained the nature of the restrictions sought to be imposed upon showmen by the children's Education Bill, and also detailed the successful opposition the Guild had carried through with regard to that measure, and to invidious and injurious clauses in various Bills promoted by local authorities during the past Sessions of Parliament. An exceedingly useful and informing discussion took place with regard to the position and work of the Guild. In this conference the principal speakers were Messrs. G. Green, W. Pedley, J. Monte, T. Burgin, P. Collins, W. Gibson, T. Hartshorn, and Burns. The Rev. T. Horne was warmly thanked for his able address, and also for the continued and unfailing interest he manifests in the well-being of travelling show-people.

A number of new members were enrolled, and a subscription list carried round the booth by Mr. J. Monte met with a generous response.

The members enrolled were:—J. W. Waddington, £5 5s.; S. Towers, 10s.; G. Wright, 7s. 6d.; M. Westray, 5s.; Mr. March, 5s.; Mr. Williams, 5s.; Mr. Goodall, 5s.; S. Hughes, 5s.; J. Gray, 5s.; Wm. Gibson, 5s.; Mr. Wilson, 5s.; Mr. Parker, 5s. Additional subscriptions:—P. Collins, second subscription, £1 1s.; Geo. Green, third subscription, 10s.; Monte Bros., second subscription, 10s.; Relph and Pedley, second subscription, 10s.; J. Relph, second subscription, 10s. 6d.; Geo. Kemp, second subscription, 10s.; T. Payne, second subscription, 5s.; Chipperfield, second subscription, 5s.; J. Holdsworth, second subscription, 5s.; Mr. Wentworth (of Mari and Co.), third subscription, 5s.; Mr. Gledstone, second subscription, 5s.; T. Burgin, second subscription, 2s. 6d.; Mr. Fisher, second subscription, 2s. 6d.; Wm. Le Neve, second subscription, 2s. 6d.; J. Hastings, second subscription, 2s. 6d.; Mr. Wright, second subscription, 2s. 6d.; W. Radcliffe, second subscription, 2s. 6d.; Mr. Burns, 2s. 6d.; M. Brown, 2s.; S. Braham, 1s.; Barker, 1s.; H. Testo, second subscription, 1s.; Mr. Scott, 1s. 6d.; Mr. Ingram, 1s.

ANSWERS TO SHOWMEN.

W. B. (Hatfield).—Fire Insurance. We are writing you privately on the matter concerning which you require information. In the event of our letter not reaching you as soon as the paper, our advice is, do not renew.

Veritas.—The Showmen's Guild was the first organisation to defend the character and the business interests of all open-air amusement caterers. From the very first it has rigorously abstained from entering into the trade rivalries and jealousies that divide showmen, and has only attended to those matters that concern the whole and undivided body of amusement caterers. There have been various trade societies, and there still exist several such organisations, that champion the sectional interests of stall-holders and lessees. These sectional interests may be, and we have every reason to believe are, perfectly just and right, but the executive of the Showmen's Guild would limit its usefulness if it attempted to deal with these sectional interests.

BIOSCOPE SERIES.

A NEW DEPARTURE.

The Charles Urban Trading Company, of 45, Rupert-street, London, have inaugurated a new departure in the bioscope profession—the serial publication of films. This week are published the first two numbers of "Bonnie Scotland," a pictorial representation of all that is lovely and wild and weird in that land of historic associations. The production of this series of animated pictures, which reach the highest standard of photographic art—of which it is the purpose of the company to publish films from time to time—occupied a large staff of experienced operators during the whole of last season. It will form, when complete, the most comprehensive animated representation of Scotland and its beauties ever published. Many of the scenes will be revelations even to those supposed to be familiar with every phase of Scottish life, character, and natural advantages. Each point of beauty, from the border to the far north of the Outer Hebrides, has practically been covered, with the co-operation of the North-Western Caledonian, and Highland Railways, and David MacBraynes's steamers.

At Winchcomb Mop, the principal attractions were Hill's steam galloping horses, park swings, shooting saloons, and numerous side shows and variety attractions.

Tavistock Fair, one of the best fixtures on the Western round, was, as usual, held under the experienced management of Messrs. Hancock, who exhibited their cinematograph theatre and steam horses, and with these enterprising showmen was associated Dr. Lawrence with marionettes, Messrs. Lock and Ware with steam roundabouts, Messrs. Cribb and Dobson with photographic concerns, and Messrs. Ball, Horrell, Chapman Lock, Frampton, Whitelegge, Oldridge, and a number of other fair-ground caterers, with swing boats, big wheel, shooting concerns, throwing games, and stalls.

Following Cheltenham is the fair at Cirencester, well maintained this year by the shows and riding machines of Messrs. Jacob Studt and Son, R. Dooner and Son, and Cole Brothers, and with them, of course, many of the enterprising providers of minor novelties taking this round.

Abingdon Statute Fair, a very old "hirings," draws its patrons from an extensive agricultural district, and even under modern conditions supplies both the purpose of a statute hiring and a pleasure fair. The courteous and experienced clerk of the market, Mr. T. Falkner, jun., always sets out the fair to the best advantage, and gives the tenants of the fair-ground every attention and assistance. The principal shows this year were the well-known cinematograph concerns of Wm. Taylor and Alf. Ball; the stereoscopic and fine art galleries of Messrs. Bailey, Knighton, Wilson, and Warwick. Amongst the machines were Bailey's switchback, and the galloping horse sets of Messrs. Wilson, Bird, and Hill. The minor novelties, such as swings, shooting saloons, bottle-and egg-smashers, Emma sheets, cokers, varieties, and stalls were by Messrs. Matthews, Wilson, Bailey, Attwell, Brown, Bond, Pickard, Spurritt, Knighton, Rowe, Tyler, Roberts, and others.

At Worksop Hiring Fair the principal exhibits, as usual, were Tuby and Sons (the local showmen), with galloping horses, swings, and shooting gallery; Prince Samouda, with temple of magic; MacKie's natural museum; T. Harniess, with steam horses; Brannan and Reaney, with rifle saloons; and Illingworth, Hunt, and Rutter, with throwing games.

THE EDEN THEATRE,
HEMEL HEMPSTEAD.

APPLICATION FOR EXTENSION OF LICENSE. STRONG OPPOSITION.

By far the most important matter before the Hemel Hempstead magistrates at the Petty Sessions on Wednesday was an application for a licence in respect of the Eden Theatre for a further period of six months, upon the expiration of the present licence, which allows Mr. Alfred Whitmee to perform stage plays at a temporary structure in Bury-road until Nov. 12. The magistrates on the Bench were Dr. G. B. Turner, Mr. Percy Christopherson, and Mr. A. Marnham. The Mayor (Alderman W. J. Orchard) and the Deputy-Mayor (Alderman Maitland Thompson) were also present, but did not adjudicate owing to the fact that the Town Council was concerned in the opposition.

Mr. S. J. Ellis again appeared on behalf of the applicant, and Mr. T. Penny, of Berkhamsted, represented the opposition party.

The clerk, Mr. Smeathman, asked if there was any objection to his sitting as magistrates' clerk, seeing that he was also town clerk, but Mr. Ellis replied, "Certainly not."

At the outset Mr. Penny handed in a letter of objection to the application from the Hemel Hempstead Free Church Council, and said he also had a document signed by 721 persons against the application, as well as a letter from the Town Council.

Mr. Ellis then made formal application for the licence. He said that, with regard to the opposition, it must be, he supposed, upon several grounds, either that the character of the building was unsuitable, that the entertainment was not such as should be given, or that Mr. Whitmee was not a fit person to conduct a theatre. He did not know what his friend had to say about the point that the public did not require that particular form of entertainment, or that the character of the building was unsuitable, because it was not the first time that such an application had been made. It had never been seriously suggested that the building was unsuitable, and the Borough Council had never complained to them about it. He had present the medical officer of health for the Watford district, who had examined the building, and he would say that, so far as he could see, it was in every way suitable. The Borough Surveyor had never made any complaint about it. If it was held that the structure did not comply with the local by-laws, he was in a position to quote cases in support of his argument that the building did not concern the Town Council by-laws. As to the character of the theatre, he could assure Mr. Penny that there was nothing about the entertainment which was likely to prejudice the morals of the people of the district. He would remind the Bench that they had gone into the matter on previous occasions and had granted the licence. He, therefore, hardly imagined that they would now say that they were not satisfied with what they had done on previous occasions. He would call witnesses to speak as to the character of the place. The opposition seemed to have been the outcome of a lengthy epistle in the local paper from Mr. Ernest Robinson, and considerable correspondence followed. Mr. Robinson's point seemed to be that because a man went to the theatre he could not afford to buy a new pair of socks. (Laughter.) He (Mr. Ellis) suggested that such an argument was utterly foolish. Perhaps Mr. Robinson was a fair sample of the rest of the objectors. The great question the Bench had to decide was as to whether or not the public required the theatre. Mr. Penny represented 721 persons. He begged to say that he represented 2024, and had therefore three times the number in favour of the licence being granted. Some of those who had signed Mr. Whitmee's petition were gentlemen in responsible positions. They included the Revs. W. K. Weston and S. F. O. Huddy, the Catholic priest (the Rev. H. J. Hardy), the Hon. W. B. Wrottesley, Dr. Russell Steele, Dr. Kirkness, Dr. Dudley Buxton, Mr. Horace Johnstone, Mr. A. J. Parsons, Mr. H. G. Taylor-Jones, Mr. H. Ludd, and Mrs. Wishart Robinson. The petition comprised the names of people of all shades of opinion, and also included the local station-master and the manager of the gas works. (Laughter.) Mr. Penny's friends had been busy with their petition for two months, but the 2024 names on behalf of Mr. Whitmee had been obtained within the last fifteen days. The signatories had been classified, and he could say that mill-hands only numbered 360, and labourers 205. He submitted that 2024 persons represented a substantial majority of the population of the district in favour of the theatre. Of course, the 721 persons no doubt had reasons of their own why they wished not to have a theatre, but he could not understand what right they had to over-ride the wishes of such a large number who did not think as they did. There was a course open to them at all times, and that was to stop away from the theatre. The Bench had previously granted the licence, and he did not think it could be said that the place was badly managed, ill-conducted, or that the nature of the entertainment was bad. Having regard to the nature of the petition in favour, he did not think that the Bench could disregard the wishes of such a large number of people of all classes. The Borough Council had already taken the early action by increasing the assessment of the land upon which the theatre stood, and Mr. Whitmee had paid the rates upon it. He submitted that there was no reasonable ground why the application should be refused.

Alfred Whitmee said he was proprietor of the theatre. He was an inhabitant and ratepayer of Hemel Hempstead. Two previous licences had been granted him, and he had never had a complaint. He produced posters showing the class of plays performed—plays that had been performed all over England. He had never heard of any serious immorality as the result of any performances. As far as he could ascertain, all the persons who signed the petition were over 18 years of age.

Dr. King, Medical Officer of Health for Watford, said he had inspected the theatre, and considered the arrangements quite sanitary and suitable. The fire exits he considered ample. Cross-examined: It is a temporary building. I did not expect to find it a substantial building. I cannot say how long I should expect such a building to stand.

Mr. Penny: How long would you recommend Watford or any other place to allow this building to stand?

Witness: I don't think that is the point.

Mr. Penny: Would you be prepared to recommend at Watford this building as a permanent theatre?

Witness: I don't think I should be asked my opinion.

Mr. Penny: Is the place connected with the drainage?

Witness: I don't think it is.

Mr. Penny: Are there cloak-rooms, retiring-rooms, and other conveniences provided for the audience?

Witness: No.

Mr. Penny: Is the scenery made of inflammable materials?

Witness: I call the building a sanitary one.

Mr. Penny: Thank you. I won't trouble to ask you anything else.

Mrs. Johnstone, of Felden Heath, said she had been to the theatre on four occasions, and it was "most nice" in every way. There was nothing anybody need take objection to. She went just to find out for herself what sort of a place it was, and she was so pleased that she went again, and took the children. The acting was very nice and the words were said distinctly. The company seemed to do their best to make it a success. She said that it was extremely hard to try to take the licence away. The plays she saw acted were delightful.

Mr. Ellis: That concludes my application.

Mr. Penny then handed in a letter from the Town Council stating that at a meeting held on Oct. 10, the Council resolved to point out to the magistrates that the Eden Theatre was a building not in conformity with the Borough by-laws, and was considered to be a most unsuitable structure, and dangerous in case of fire. The Council hoped that the magistrates would not grant the licence.

Mr. Ellis: I object to the letter being put in unless it can be proved.

Mr. Penny: I will prove it. Continuing, Mr. Penny said that, in addition to the Town Council's letter, he would hand in a petition signed by 721 persons. It was not necessary for him to go over the only grounds upon which Mr. Ellis had said objection could be taken, excepting that he would like to say that there was no suggestion of anything against Mr. Whitmee personally. But the class of entertainment was a different matter, and would be for the Bench to judge. He produced a bill, which stated that the plays on certain evenings would be The Slave of Babylon and The Moat Farm Mystery. He ventured to suggest that these titles did not tend——

Mr. Ellis: But you have not mentioned the top one on the same bill. That is Jo, by Dickens.

Mr. Penny: No doubt the titles I have mentioned are there to attract the youth of the neighbourhood, and they appeal to the mill-hands, for the plays are given upon the nights when they are paid their wages. Continuing, Mr. Penny said that on the last occasion, the application was for six months, but doubtless the magistrates desired to have closer control over the matter, and only granted the licence for three months. He felt that the present application was somewhat in the form of an appeal against the previous decision of the Bench. If his friend were to talk of the theatre as a permanent building, he hardly thought that Dr. King would have been called to give evidence. He desired to lay special stress on the point that the material used in connection with the scenery was of a very inflammable character, and if a fire broke out there would likely be a most serious calamity. When the application was first made everyone thought that the idea was a temporary matter for a few months, but they now get application after application, until it became practically a permanent theatre for Hemel Hempstead. He contended that a permanent theatre should be built of brick and stone, and not simply a wooden erection, originally intended for travelling purposes. In regard to the correspondence, he could only say that the Town Council had nothing to do with it. A further point was that a monopoly in this particular form of entertainment was being given to Mr. Whitmee by the succession of licences being granted him. The 721 signatures included one alderman, four town councillors, eight leaders of religious bodies, fourteen foremen at mills, and twelve school teachers.

Mr. A. E. Usher, assistant town clerk, then proved the resolution passed by the Town Council.

Cross-examined by Mr. Ellis: The resolution was passed at an ordinary monthly meeting, but the matter was discussed in camera. The majority of the councillors were present.

Mr. Ellis contended that the 721 persons had no right to dictate to the wishes of the 2024.

Mr. Penny said that he had nothing further to say on the matter.

Mr. Ellis commented strongly on the fact that not a single person had dared to come forward and say a word against the theatre. If the Bench thought six months too long, his client would be satisfied with three months. He could only say that some of the very best plays were produced at the theatre, and that they were much appreciated by influential people who went there.

The Bench then retired for a quarter of an hour, and, on returning, the chairman said: I have to state that the Bench have given careful consideration to this application, and that they have found no objection to the manner in which the theatre is conducted; but, having regard to the letter before us from the Town Council as to the unsuitability of the building, which appears to be completely of a temporary character, the Bench feel that they cannot ignore to observe the points raised by the Town Council, who are the responsible authority for such buildings. Therefore, in order to judge fairly of the matter, the Bench propose to inspect the premises, and hope to give their decision on this day week.

In connection with the above application, and in answer to the attacks upon the theatre in the local Press, the Rev. T. Horne has sent the following letter to the Hemel Hempstead Gazette:—

IN DEFENCE OF THE STROLLING PLAYER.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE ERA.

Sir,—A member of my Guild, and one held in much esteem in his profession, is at the present moment beset by a somewhat strong form of opposition to his theatre. I have read all the controversy on the question in your paper, and as I understand the opposition to the renewal of Mr. Whitmee's dramatic licence is assuming a serious form, I venture to say a few words (based upon many years of actual experience and knowledge) in defence of the art and enterprise under modern conditions of strolling players.

In the first place let me plead for, as being of importance and educational value to the community the necessary provision of amusements for all classes of the community.

Shows and showmen have flourished in all parts of the world. Shrewd observers have expressed the opinion that the popular shows and amusements of the people form an excellent index to their character and illustrate the growth of national life. The sweet singer of the ancient civilisation, Homer, the poet, was an itinerant bard or minstrel, singing his songs of the people to the people. The greatest poet of all the ages, William Shakespeare, was a strolling player. He caught the passion of the drama from the strolling players who acted their plays to grammar school boys at Stratford-on-Avon in the school-room, upon whose very walls quite recently scenery painted in Shakespeare's time has been found covered with the Puritan whitewash of a later period.

The modern showman has no need to be ashamed either of his work or his position in the national economy. To cater for a people's natural relaxation involves no slight share of responsibility in the nation's well being. The strenuous toil of a highly-developed industrial system demands frequent opportunities of recreation and change.

We are beginning to find out that men and women, like horses, are all the better for a little time of rest. We can all rejoice that the close of the nineteenth century witnessed the return of the better mind of the employers of labour with regard to these things. Midway in the century the economists taught us that all abstention from work was an economic loss.

The new political economy, recognising more human and humane conditions, has produced a salutary reaction. Sir James Crichton-Browne, one of our ablest scientists, only the other day, at a meeting of Sanitary Inspectors, pointed out the value of recreation as being mental hygiene, the clearing out of the clogged-up or the over-worked brain cells of mental rubbish, that if not cleared makes for dementia. The eminent scientist demonstrated that relaxation from toil was not sufficient, but that there must be amusement as well, and therefore he preached a gospel of recreation and boldly asserted that it was the duty in these days of high pressure and specialisation for every doctor and for every social reformer to be preachers and teachers of the joy of life as expressed in recreation and amusement.

There is yet another and even more important argument in favour of the provision of popular amusements, and it was stated by no less a personage than the present Bishop of Ripon, speaking to a large gathering of actors. "If you take," he said, "what many people will describe as the Queen of Arts, the art of music, you meet a representative interest; you must cheer your entertainment with music, and so every art, whether it be the painter's art, or the sculptor's art, or the poet's art, is obliged in its turn to ask for musical assistance. And therefore music holds a unique position in the circle of the arts. But it must be admitted that you might take every phase of music and you would be obliged to ask at the end, 'Has it been able to teach directly any moral truth?' and you would be bound to answer that it had not. There is nothing in the music that could convey moral teaching.

"The simplest homily, if it only be sincere in spirit and lofty in tone, had more moral efficacy than all the works of the most pious painters and sculptors, from Giotto and Michael Angelo, or from the passion music of Bach, because it was reserved for art which finds its expression in words to give direct moral teaching. I am not quite sure that everyone of us who employs words for the inspiration and instruction of others must recognise that by the utterances of words we have the power at our command of directly appealing to the moral nature of man, and in that regard the dramatic art stands high. It has potency in it. It remains infallibly true that moral power resides in the hands of the man who has the capacity and the opportunity of using words. If I understand rightly, the most indirect and the best method of stimulating and helping the moral forces of mankind is through the suggestions that arise out of delineated characters. Life is an education and it is a test of character. The man who delineates character is always dealing with the moral forces if he deals with them truly, because he cannot touch them without touching those aspects and conditions which are continually bringing out the moral aspects which constitute the moral force of character.

So much for the Bishop as the guide of morals speaking on the ethical value of the actor's art.

I have another reason for putting the Bishop in the witness box in defence of the actor, and that is that I have before me in writing this letter the play bills of the Eden Theatre, issued during the past fortnight, and as there is not a single play on the programme that I have not myself witnessed, I am able to testify with some authority to their moral and educational force. Such plays as Fallen Among Thieves, Blow for Blow, The Maid of the Mill, Dred, Jane Shore, The Middleman, The Shaughraun, and The Robbery of the Mail, cannot, in my judgment, fail to teach (with all that vivid impressiveness that the Bishop's plea for the stage emphasises) lessons of domestic purity, honesty, moral worth, and, above all, the just vengeance of God upon all evil-doers, and as regards the lighter elements of the programme, such as The Private Secretary, there can be no doubt that its mirth-provoking power must be of value to those whom the hard grind of work drives to the theatre for amusement and relaxation.

We, preachers and teachers of the Christian ministry, cannot afford (if we are true to our mission) to ignore either the need for recreation and innocent amusement, nor can we neglect the possibilities of the mimic stage as a means for impressing upon the minds of our people great moral truths. He is a poor preacher and a dull teacher who never dramatises in the course of his sermon, and I think it will be universally conceded that the most successful preachers of the age are men who have in a singular degree dramatic ability. I venture, therefore to appeal to all Christian and liberal minded men and women in Hemel Hempstead to give the Eden Theatre encouragement, and if possible such patronage as shall convince Mr. Whitmee and his excellent company of actors, that in their art they are teachers as well as performers.

Lest it should seem to my brother ministers in Hemel Hempstead a strange thing that a clergyman of the Established Church should specialise as I have done with regard to shows and showmen let me say that this is no new work or enterprise. That with the sanction and blessing of the Bishops of the Church, and with the hearty co-operation of the local clergy, I have carried on in all times of freedom from parish work a mission for God and for good amongst them. For more than thirty years past I have been closely identified with all sorts and conditions of strolling players and itinerant performers, and it may be news to some to know that they form a very large industrious and highly respectable class in the community.

And it is gratifying to me that my ministry amongst them is not only much blessed and appreciated, but that in a recent interview with my Diocesan, the Bishop of London, he instructed me to submit a definite scheme of work (to take the whole of my time) amongst them. This I am hoping to accomplish in the coming year.

Although my work will touch the travelling showpeople, more than the theatrical, or the variety stage, yet at the same time there are large enterprises of a portable character staying for a long season in certain towns (like Mr. Whitmee's Eden Theatre), that will come under my direct ministrations, but, of course, with the hearty approval and co-operation of the local clergy.—Yours, ever for God and for good,

Rev. T. Horne,
Hon. Chaplain to the Showman's Guild.
5, Tavistock-street, Strand, W.C.

At Hartlepool were Bailey's cinematograph and Carroll's similar concern, Crow's steam horses, Newsome's swings, Kitson's bottle battery, and Watkins and Dear's throwing games.

At Morriston, Wales, for private business, were Crecraft's electric bioscope and Scarrott's athletes and boxers.

Messrs. Forrest Bros. and the excellent crowd of south-country showmen following their rounds, have been doing excellent business at Canterbury. The big outside and free sight show was Hermann, the prince of the high rope, Saunder's fine art show, Swales Forrest's wheeling the whirl and juvenile roundabouts, H. Forrest's big wheel, and the well-known fair-ground novelties and games of the Bros. Bolesworth, Pettigrove, Macklin, Saunders, Simons, and Body.

Twenty horses in a field near Northampton had their manes and tails cut on Sunday night, and their owner, the proprietor of Thurston's travelling roundabouts, estimates that their value has been depreciated by £50. One animal was rather badly cut about the neck. The police are trying to trace the perpetrators of the outrage.

The fine Palace orchestra, under the direction of that artistic musician and clever conductor Mr. Herman Finck, has been playing during the week, for the first time in any variety house Berlioz's "Le Carnaval Romain." Mr. Finck finds that audiences at the Palace appreciate very highly the best music, and he takes all possible care to secure worthy renderings.

Archdeacon Colley has promptly repudiated Mr. Maskelyne's claim to have won the £1,000 cheque offered by the Archdeacon should the conjurer produce from the region of the heart a vapour which materialised into a human being. The Archdeacon contends that Mr. Maskelyne did not fulfil the conditions contained in the letter making the challenge that at the time of the manifestation there should be present a committee of six gentlemen, three selected by Mr. Maskelyne and three by Archdeacon Colley, with a seventh gentleman to act as umpire. It is understood that the dispute will be settled in the Law Courts.

In our correspondent's account of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Gibbons's recent at-home, it was stated that the orchestra was conducted by Mr. Peterson, "the musical director at the Holborn Empire." That position is held by Mr. James Sale, who has filled it since the opening in the early part of the year.

The popular vaudeville company, "The Vagabonds," under the direction of Mr. Harold Montague, concludes to-day a most successful four weeks' visit to the Pier Pavilion, Clacton-on-Sea. The entertainments have consisted of original songs, sketches, dances, &c., and a comedietta at each performance.

Mr. Albert Spalding, the violinist, has determined upon producing a new orchestral work by British composers at every concert given by him in England, on the Continent, and in America. The first of his series of symphony concerts will therefore include a symphonic interlude by Herbert Bedford, entitled "Over the hills and far away."

"CAPTAIN KIDD;"
or, THE PIRATES OF WAPPING."

An Operatic Extravaganza, in Three Acts, the Libretto and Lyrics by W. J. Mackay, Music by Gilbert Wells, Produced at the Camberwell Empire on Monday, October 15.

Characters:

Captain Kidd ..... Mr. Dick Tubb
Bill, the Bosun ..... Mr. Syd H. Morton
Timothy ..... Mr. W. J. Mackay
Mrs. Salt ..... Mrs. Herbert Woodin
Polly Primrose ..... Miss Connie Dyke
Jack Salt ..... Miss Nellie Valentine

It really would not matter what title was given this merry little hotch-potch which the authors have named Captain Kidd; or The Pirates of Wapping. Every scene is reminiscent of certain popular musical comedies, comic operas, and pantomimes.

In the opening scene at Wapping we find Mrs. Salt, a poor lone widow, whose motto is "'Tis never too late to wed." She is the landlady of the waterside hostelry, "The Pig and Whistle," and her pretty barmaid, Polly Primrose, loves and is beloved by Jack Salt, a true British sailor. But the course of true love never did run smooth, so it is not surprising to find that Captain Kidd, the pirate King, has set his covetous eyes on such a trim little craft, and with the aid of Bosun Bill, his apprentice Timothy, and his gang of pirates, he successfully carries off to his ship Mrs. Salt, her barmaid Polly, and her lover Jack. Owing to a storm at sea the pirates' ship is wrecked, and we find all the principal characters escape from the wreck, and meet one another on Crusoe's Island, whereon Captain Kidd is seized with remorse, and claims the lone widow for his wife, and allows Jack to wed pretty Polly.

This simple story is interpreted in a bright and merry fashion by an excellent company. Mr. Dick Tubb in the title-rôle is all a burlesqued pirate King should be, his many topical and popular allusions winning him frequent and hearty applause. As the widow Mrs. Salt, Mr. Herbert Woodin is excellent. His many quaint feminine touches, added to a droll yet grim sense of humour, makes him the life and soul of many amusing incidents. He also proves himself a highly capable dancer. As Jack Salt Miss Nellie Valentine imbues her part with a naivete and charm that win all hearts, and her delightful rendering of her one-verse song, "The old, old story of love," secured the enthusiastic favour of the audience. Miss Connie Dyke as the pretty and winsome Polly Primrose invests the character with a bright girlishness that makes her a warm favourite from her opening song, "Jack the handy man," with its smart hornpipe to the finale, and chorus, "His home, his King, and girl." Mr. Syd H. Morton as Bill the Bosun, and Mr. W. G. Mackay as the elongated apprentice, Timothy, are inseparable. Their duet "We're just as bad as they make 'em," and their merry cross talk enlivens many scenes, and adds not a little to the general success. The strong chorus of sailors, Amazons, fisher girls, &c., are deserving of warm praise. Favourable mention should also be made of the scenery by Mr. Francis H. Bull, the elegant costumes by Messrs. H. and M. Rayne, the music arranged by Mr. W. W. Bright, the orchestration by Mr. Frank Hurst and his efficient orchestra, and the completeness of the production, for which Mr. Jesse Sparrow is responsible.

HAMMERSMITH PALACE.

There can be no difference of opinion as to the exceptionally attractive qualities of the programme submitted this week to the patrons of this old-established, but quite up-to-date, place of amusement; and crowded houses have been the result of Mr. J. C. Coe's generous catering. The engagement of Miss Marie Lloyd is in itself sufficient to attract a big crowd, for there is no comedienne of the present day who has attained a greater height on the ladder of popularity. And well does she maintain her enviable position. The piquancy and humour which have always distinguished her as a comedienne are still as conspicuous and as effective as ever. Miss Lloyd has had a flattering reception at Hammersmith. Amongst the comedians engaged here, Mr. Sam Mayo is well to the front. He has a style of his own which has been more or less successfully imitated by those performers who, failing to be original themselves, make it their business to follow closely in the footsteps of others; but none of his competitors in the line of business, the distinguishing feature of which is the immobility of the singer, have ever succeeded in getting quite the same quaint effect from an expressionless countenance as does Mr. Mayo. In the character of a Chinaman with a long name he offers an excellent specimen of his peculiar humour; but he contributes two or three other ditties, which excite the hearty merriment of the audience, and their enthusiastic applause as well.

The Two Bees (Mr. and Mrs. Blake) have introduced here their latest success, entitled The Man in the Moon. In the character of that mysterious individual, of whom we have all heard from the days of childhood, Mr. Blake, strikingly made up, pays a visit to the earth, and holds converse with a maiden. Together they render a duet all about "the man in the moon," and in this rôle Mr. Blake takes the opportunity of reciting rhymed lines, in which reference is made to topics of the day, both imperial and local. Most of these allusions are much to the point, and as a result they seldom miss fire. Judging by the cordiality of his reception at Hammersmith and elsewhere, the visit of the "Man in the Moon" is likely to be indefinitely prolonged. It should be added that Mrs. Blake gives excellent support as the young lady who welcomes the stranger to Mother Earth. The Misses Ella and D'Arcy Hope appear in a little musical sketch, one representing a servant-maid and the other a music hall star. The last mentioned sings a popular ballad in good style, and the "slavey" not only indulges in some amusing comic business, but also gives a clever imitation of a phonograph. They conclude a popular turn with a lively duet. Mr. J. P. Ling is successful in a mimetic monologue, in which he imitates a village quartette singing "Hail, smiling morn," a ludicrous effect being obtained through one of the vocalists singing flat. Other imitations include an amateur band, and the laughable attempt of a young gentleman, after imbibing two or three glasses of beer, to recite "The Wreck of the Hesperus." Zaro and Arno, in their comedy bar act, combine comedy and smart gymnastic work. Miss Edie Gray and her two coons are admirable vocalists, one of their most successful contributions being a hunting song, with a rattling "Tally-ho" chorus. The Dandies, under the direction of Mr. Henry J. Corner, score in their very acceptable musical melange, called Song, Mirth, and Dance; and Mr. Jack Lorimer, in Highland costume, proves himself to be a versatile entertainer, particularly distinguishing himself with an eccentric dance that sends the audience into fits of laughter. Bishop and Hanlon, comedians, work very hard, and employ various devices, both new and old, to amuse. Mrs. Sims Reeves gives a pleasing selection of her late husband's most famous ballads, and is well received; Dean and Dawson, in the comedy sketch, Stage Aspirants, and another couple, Bowman and Morton, in the amusing duo, "She loved a policeman," deserve favourable mention; as do also Mr. Harry Walker, comedian and raconteur; Miss Cissie Lupino, transformation dancer; Mr. Chas. Woodward, actor vocalist; and the Edisonograph, with pictures of the latest events. Mr. Lewis Vincent is the courteous acting-manager at this establishment, and Mr. J. H. Cleve is the able musical conductor.

THE MUSIC HALL LADIES' GUILD.

The above title has been chosen for a charitable organisation which is now in the course of development. The establishment of such a society had been discussed at intervals for some time past, and a few months ago the idea was taken up by Miss Lily Burnand and Miss Lil Hawthorne. Later on Mrs. Smythson spoke of it publicly in the provinces. The scheme was supported in London by Miss Burnand, Mrs. Fred Ginnett, Mrs. Fred Karno, Mrs. Kate Butler, and others, who held meetings, laid down a few rules, and passed some amendments. Miss Fanny Brough, of the Theatrical Ladies' Guild, was consulted, and Mrs. Carson was also communicated with. Both ladies endeavoured in every way in their power to assist the formation of the Guild. It has only been in existence for four weeks, and in that short space of time it has made wonderful progress. Mrs. Fred Karno has permitted the Guild the use of a flat, Miss Lily Burnand furnishing it. Mrs. F. Ginnett has supplied printing, and Mrs. Butler, Miss Constance Moxon, Miss Lily Burnand, Miss Lil Hawthorne, and Miss Marie Lloyd—who has been elected president—are all working very hard to make the Guild a success. The members in the provinces are trying to get up a bazaar; and the Canterbury Music Hall has been generously placed by Mr. Adney Payne at the disposal of the Guild entirely free of charge for a matinée in four weeks' time; the actual date is not yet fixed. The performance will be given entirely by ladies, and the matinée will be under female control. Mrs. Adney Payne has kindly promised to give her valuable assistance.

Amongst the objects of the Guild are to assist the wives of artists who through lack of employment, illness, or confinement are in want of help by supplying proper medical aid, food, coal, or other necessaries as may be required; also in cases of maturiay to lend a supply of suitable baby clothes for the first month, to be returned at the expiration of that time; to assist widows of artists to find suitable employment; to find employment for children of poor artists and orphans as programme sellers and call boys, or to obtain for them office work or other suitable employment; in cases where possible to assist them in obtaining parts in sketches where children's rôles are included; to supply necessitous artists with free clothing; to sell stage and other clothing to artists who may require them at a very nominal cost; to visit the sick; and to give toys, books, and games to the sick children of artists.

The above are only a few of the objects for which the Guild has been formed. As time goes on no doubt others will be suggested and carried out. The founders of the Guild earnestly request that all lady artists, no matter in what position, will join this Guild, and so help to assist a very noble cause. As already stated, Miss Marie Lloyd is the president of the Guild. The vice-presidents are Miss Lily Burnand and Mrs. Fred Ginnett; and the treasurer is Mrs. Fred Karno. The founders are Miss Lily Burnand, Mrs. Egerton (Liverpool), Miss Constance Moxon, Mrs. Louie Smythson, Mrs. Fred Ginnett, Mrs. Kate Butler, Miss Rosie Lloyd, Miss Belle Braham, and Miss Lil Hawthorne. All communications should be addressed to Miss Anna de Grey, 69, Primrose-mansions, Prince of Wales's-road, Battersea Park, S.W. Funds are urgently needed, and all contributions will be most thankfully received.

THE ROYAL ACADEMY OF MUSIC.

At the Royal Academy of Music, on Wednesday afternoon, Mr. Stewart Macpherson, F.R.A.M., continued his lecture on "The Evolution of the Symphony," referring this time to the symphonies of the great Beethoven. The lecturer said in his early days Beethoven began under the influence of Mozart. Mr. Macpherson here played on the piano a short example that might almost have been composed by Mozart. Beethoven was republican in his tastes, and was considered quite revolutionary in his musical ideas. He was thirty years old before his great work the "Eroica" saw the light, when it met with much hostile criticism. The lecturer here played a passage that the critics said would, they thought, make the audience laugh, and they compared his fresh and charming Second Symphony, composed in 1802, to "an immense wounded snake dragging on to its death." About the time this work was written Beethoven's mastery over the piano was greater than his command of the orchestra. In 1804 Beethoven greatly admired Napoleon, and wrote on the title-page of one of his compositions "Napoleon and Beethoven," but when he heard of his after career he said he had become a tyrant, and tore up the title-page. After the death of Napoleon, in 1821, Beethoven wrote the Funeral March. The lecturer played the first movement of the "Eroica" symphony, showing how the theme consisted of only four notes; the consummate mastery of the way in which this theme is worked out all the world knows. Beethoven wrote it for the Philharmonic Society of London, and it was performed by the Royal Academy in April, 1806. It was thought by many, the lecturer said, that all great works were composed red hot, but a reference to the careful studies in Beethoven's note-book showed this was not the case. In regard to the absurd methods of introduction adopted in the past, the lecturer gave some amusing examples. He said also that in the last hundred years music had made a wonderful advance, and we must either advance or go back. In the present lecture, he said, it was impossible to deal with the nine symphonies of Beethoven, therefore he only took the "Eroica."

MISS ELSIE EARLE, "the holly girl," will produce for the first time in town, at the Palace, Camberwell, on Thursday next, her successful scena, Holly and Mistletoe, written by Will Letters, author of The Lilac Girl, Sunshine and Shadow, The Synagogue, &c.

MR. HERBERT SIMS REEVES, son of the late Sims Reeves, the celebrated tenor, made his first appearance on the variety stage on Monday night, when he sang several songs with great success at the Camberwell Empire. He used to play his father's old parts in The Waterman and other works of a similar kind that have now been relegated to the lumber shelf.

RE APPLICATIONS FOR ENGAGEMENTS

All applications by either Artists or their Agents must be made to the Head Office.

Lowest terms must be stated, and distinction made between salaries required for larger and smaller towns.

Vacant dates should be stated. If a list of existing bookings be sent, it will render selection easier.

Artists employing Agents should accredit one only at one time, as the friction arising when several Agents are employed at the same time, all expecting the one booking to go through each of them, often renders it expedient to avoid that booking altogether rather than give undeserved offence to several Agents.

New Acts seeking Engagements, or turns not re-booked (possibly because they have played a series of dates without introducing new business), will facilitate matters by having their acts seen by our District Managers. Their Districts and Postal Addresses are as follows:—

MANCHESTER, LIVERPOOL, AND DISTRICT
MR. ALAN W. YOUNG,
Empire Theatre, Liverpool.

EDINBURGH, GLASGOW, NEWCASTLE, AND DISTRICT.
MR. S. GETHING,
Empire Theatre, Glasgow.

LEEDS, SHEFFIELD, HULL, BRADFORD, AND DISTRICT.
MR. T. GERALD MORTON,
Empire Palace, Leeds.

BIRMINGHAM, NOTTINGHAM, LEICESTER AND DISTRICT.
MR. HATTON WHARTON,
Empire Theatre, Nottingham.

SOUTH WALES DISTRICT.
MR. W. LEA,
Empire Theatre, Cardiff.

LONDON DISTRICT,
MR. WILLIAM COLLINS,
The Empire, Shepherd's Bush, W.

N.B.—Mr. OSWALD STOLL or Mr. FRANK ALLEN can be seen by appointment on all matters arising out of the above, and for the discussion of entirely new Numbers.

All Artists or Agents who communicate with our District Representatives must have made definite applications, in accordance with above directions, to the Head Office, at the same time, or just previously.

No. 500. "FOUR HOOLIGANS."
A MASTERPIECE OF MISCHIEF. DANCING WITH DASHING "DARE-DEVILRY"
Four boys, typical specimens of the London Street Arab, completely eclipse every preconceived form of mischief. They "pinch" an old swell's cigars. They pillage a coal van, and in a few minutes do enough mischief to keep a man occupied for some hours. They abscond with a street organ. They upset an "Ice Cream Jack." They crib some workmen's dinners and a lively chase follows. They then rob some rabbit hutches and bolt with the bunnies in a sack. This last daring escapade leads to their capture. THIS IS ORIGINAL AND OF BEAUTIFUL QUALITY RIGHT THROUGH. Length 475ft. Price £9 10s. net.

No. 519. "THE NIGHT OF THE PARTY."
A drawing room; a hole in the ceiling; some water. The Jam Closet. The Coal hole. The Visitors' Bedroom. A ROARING KID COMEDY. Length 430ft. Price £8 12s. 6d. net.

No. 478. "A LODGING HOUSE COMEDY."
Completely eclipses every COMIC PICTURE PREVIOUSLY PRODUCED. Length 310ft. Price £6 4s. net.

No. 1526. "THE PUPIL TEACHER."
An interesting drama of School Life. Full of humour and pathos. Length 500ft. Price £10 net.

NEW "NORWOOD" FILM.

No. N08. "HOW ISAACS WON THE CUP."
An exciting picture of a race between motors, combining much fun and fancy. Isaacs wins the cup by being stripped and flung into the river. A GENUINE MERRIMENT MAKER. Length 200ft. Price £4 net.

NEW "CLARENDON" FILMS.

No. 142. "THE STOLEN BRIDE."
A highly dramatic subject; will arouse the keenest interest. An irate and obdurate father. An unwelcome suitor. A forced marriage. A resourceful lover. A sensational intervention on the lover's part. A HARMONIOUS ENDING.
Length 660 ft. Price £13 net.

No. 141. "CAUGHT BY THE TIDE."
At the foot of the cliffs two lovers. An incoming tide. Retreat cut off. Sensational rescue up the face of cliffs by means of a rope attached to a traction engine. Length 365 ft. Price £6 2s. net.

PROVINCIAL THEATRICALS.

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENTS.)

ABERDARE.—NEW THEATRE.—Manager, Mr. Z. Andrews.—Messrs. Granville and Thorne's company is here this week in Napoleon the Great. Mr. Hugh Montgomery gives a masterful portrayal of Napoleon; Mr. Phil Harper is a manly hero as Colonel Meuron; Mr. Henry Earlesmere as the villain, Colonel Laverenne is decidedly good; Mr. B. Garth as Lacsinka, a Pole, is very successful; Mr. F. M. Thorne as Pierre causes roars of laughter, and is ably assisted by Mr. Albert Sinclair as Sergeant Choupin and Miss Marie Harcourt as Marcelle; Miss Maud Russell, as the heroine, Mlle. Marboeuf, is quite a favourite with the house; Miss Leslie Warner scores as Marie Walewska; Miss F. Thorne, as Mère Dumont, and Miss A. Cromer, as Lisette, are worthy of special note.

ABERDEEN.—HER MAJESTY'S THEATRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. Robert Arthur; Acting-Manager, Mr. H. C. Cavanah, C.A.—Mr. Harding Thomas and company are appearing this week in Saints and Sinners and The Middleman. The first of these pieces was presented on Monday, Tuesday, and Wednesday. Miss Elaine Verner played with marked power in the part of the betrayed minister's daughter, and Mr. Thomas acted with great skill and restraint as Jacob Fletcher, the Nonconformist pastor; Messrs. Percy Brown and Mr. Edgar Kent were also thoroughly successful in their portraitures of George Kingsmill and Captain Fanshaw.

PALACE THEATRE. — Managing-Directors, Messrs. Rosen and Bliss; Resident-Manager, Mr. Walter Gilbert.—Miss Cissie Curlette is even more successful than on the occasion of her former visits. Her resource and vivacity are unfailing. The Juggling Geraldos contribute a singularly dexterous act; and Mr. Tony Iveson, who is here for a second week, is enthusiastically received; the interesting and elaborate spectacle, "Around Paris," still proves a great attraction; and among the other artists who may be mentioned are Mr. Fred Dunstone, a clever patter comedian; Ward and Davis, in a diverting duologue, Wanted, a Typist; Miss Minnie Fenton, an exceptionally graceful dancer; and Billie Burns and Miss Mabel La Blanche, both of whose turns are appreciated. One of the most pleasing items of the performance is the series of pictures, "A Journey Round a Star," by Vernon's Bioscope.

ABERTILLERY. — THEATRE METROPOLE.—Lessees, Messrs. Arthur Carlton and Sam Duckworth; General and Resident-Manager, Mr. Geo. W. Ventom.—This week we have here Messrs. Ediscope and Barnum's Electric Animated Pictures and company of star artists. Sands and Vincent (Will and May), in their grotesque comedy act, are well received; Mr. Loder Lyons is good in his Irish humourist and ventriloquial act; Mlle. Pardoe, dancer, and Martin Hope, eccentric comedian, are clever in their respective turns. The company also includes Otto Otthordoe, juggler; Miss May, ballad vocalist; and Miss Florence, illustrated songstress.

ACCRINGTON.—PRINCE'S THEATRE.—Proprietor Mr. J. B. Ormerod; Acting-Manager, Mr. J. E Barnes.—On Monday Miss Annie Bell's company opened here with Sapho. Jean Gaussin was an artistic performance by Mr. F. Meinster; Caoudal was well played by Mr. Cringle Roberts; Father Legrand was in the safe hands of Mr. C. G. Beresford; and Mr. H. Langford must be complimented on his performance of Eugene Flamant. Mr. L. Kingsley was good as Paul Decheletti, little Doris Graham clever as Joseph, and Mr. G. Antley smart as Cesaire. Miss A. Bell gave a scholarly reading of Sapho.

HIPPODROME — Proprietors, Messrs. Willmot, Vandy, Potter, and Weisker; Acting-Manager, Mr. F. Carsons.—A really good bill is provided at the above hall this week. The Gragga keep the house in a roar by their clever sketch, U. C. Ugo is really a man of mystery, Robinson and Banks are smart speciality artists, Billy English is always a favourite here, Joe Conway is very good, Lily Black must be complimented on her singing, Walter Monro is an Irish comedian of the first water, and Bioscope pictures conclude the entertainment.

ALDERSHOT.—ROYAL.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Clarence Sounes; Resident-Manager, Mr. Geo. E. Williams.—Mr. Norman V. Norman's company is appearing with decided success in a repertory of plays. Mr. Norman is supported by a charming and talented actress in Miss Beatrice Wilson. On Monday The Adventure of Lady Ursula was presented, with Mr. Norman as Sir Geo. Sylvester and Miss Wilson as Lady Ursula. On Tuesday The Chevalier de St. George was played; on Wednesday David Garrick delighted an enthusiastic audience; whilst on Thursday the romantic story of Nell Gwyn was told. The plays are finely staged, and the costumes are in excellent taste.

ASHTON-UNDER-LYNE.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Sole Owner and Manager, Mr. Chas. Revill; Acting-Manager, Mr. Armstrong Fairbairn.—Miss Ida Molesworth and Mr. Mark Blow's company is here for the week with the successful American drama, entitled At Cripple Creek. Special engagements to play lead have been made with Mr. Stanley Bedwell and Miss Agnes Verity. The former gives a very fine delineation of a bluff, courageous, and honest specimen of the successful gold-digger. The latter gains favour by a clever bit of character-acting as "Dynamite" Ann. Mr. Chas. H. Lester as Martin Mason realises vividly the title given him as the terror of Cripple Creek; Mr. J. G. Maine as Manuel Alvarez sustains with much show of ferociousness and bluster, the character of the bully of the Creek; a word of commendation must also be given to Mr. Arthur D. Layland as the faithful Indian; to Sydney Benson as an amusing nigger; to Mr. Will Hook as Reggie Harwood; and to Mr. Tom Sharp as the Rev. Mr. Wilson. Little Rose Hopkins merits the applause which is liberally bestowed for her clever assumption of Little Tatto, the baby of Cripple Creek; Miss Daisy Carlton, Miss Lily Beagle, and Miss Norah Dillon each gives prominence and marked individuality to varied types of female character. The sensation scene of the attempted death of Little Tatto, where the Indian swings in mid-air out of a wild grape vine and catches the child in its fall, causes a furore of applause.

EMPIRE HIPPODROME.—Proprietors, Messrs. W. H. Broadhead and Sons; Manager, Mr. W. B. Broadhead; Acting-Manager, Mr. Percy B. Broadhead; Resident Acting-Manager, Mr. W. Leech. — The leading name on the week's bill at the Empire is the popular Dawson Dewick, a comedian who elicits loud applause in his latest comic ditties; Ford and Hanson, who style themselves the American musical millionaires, are a really good "turn"; the Esdales, novelty comedians, provide plenty of food for laughter; the O.H.M.S. animals, consisting of performing ponies, dogs, bears, and monkeys, provides a fund of entertainment; Selby and Myers are refined comedians and clever dancers; Mr. J. T. Macmillan, Scotch comedian, attracts attention with his native ditties and humour; the Sisters Volbecque are charming comedy duettists; and the Three Bordellas introduce some expert business. The Katos, the comical kidgets, are also good. On the bioscope is an additonal attraction.

ATTERCLIFFE.—THEATRE ROYAL, LTD.—Managing-Director, Mr. F. Macnaghten; Resident-Manager, Mr. G. H. Beagle.—Mr. Harry Starr, the versatile actor-author, supported by a good all-round company, is this week the attraction here with two of his own popular musical dramas, his latest one, The Unseen Power, being presented on the first three nights of the week and Carl the Clockmaker the latter three nights. Though this is Mr. Starr's ninth visit here, large audiences have testified their appreciation at both houses nightly. The principal characters in both plays are well undertaken by Messrs. Edwin Firth, William Miller, Will Hee, Fred W. Graham, Charles Cabe; Misses Ella Crossley, Madge Blundell, Lizzie Jacobs, Alsace Mathey, and Miss Kate Norris.

PALACE THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—Proprietor, Mr. T. Allan Edwardes; Acting-Manager, Mr. J. Lacy Lyne; Assistant-Manager, Mr. S. H. Laycock.—The programme this week is headed by Mr. Sidney Bacon's production, entitled The Maniac, in which Mr. Melville Bickford sustains the part of Nathan Black, the maniac, with intense dramatic power and feeling; an excellent turn is provided by the Jalvans, Oriental entertainers and top spinners; Mr. Leon Rolfe is an entertaining ventriloquist; Lambert and Hands do well as character and vocal duettists. Other items are furnished by Mr. Clayton with a good selection of Attergraph pictures; Miss Madge Daly, Mr. Johnny Worman, comedian, and Wake and Dean, comedians.

AYR.—NEW GAIETY THEATRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. R. C. Buchanan; Acting-Manager, Mr. Harry W. Day.—On Monday night the Scottish musical play, under the direction of Mr. J. D. Newton, A Trip to the Highlands, was staged for a three-nights' run. Mr. Wal Croft and Mr. Joseph B. Montague as the MacMutchkin and Timmins respectively, are a lively pair, clever with their "wut" and patter. The Right Hon. Viscount Lockington is typically played by Mr. Walter Southern; Fred is in the able hands of Mr. Frank Barclay; Sir Septimus Brown-Windsor is made breezy and gay by Mr. Gus Wheatman; while as Araminta, Miss Maisie Bilinger scores a great success; Miss Clara Moore is attractive as Miss Winnie, and Miss Kitty Clinton acts the part of her maid admirably. Little Miss Nan Dowling does well as Charley Chatterton; the Dexter of Mr. Arthur Poole is good. The bevy of Gibson girls are deserving of praise.

BACUP. — NEW COURT THEATRE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Frank Denman-Wood; Acting-Manager, Mr. Dudley Harcourt.—Miss Ethel Van Praagh and Mr. J. Edward Whitty's company is appearing here this week with An Unwedded Wife. Mr. J. Edward Whitty gives a capital interpretation of the part of Frank Armstrong; Mr. R. St. Clair Forbes may be commended for a striking performance of Philip Blackstone; Mr. Logan Darra is good in his delineation of John Hawthorne; and Mr. Henry Nisbett does useful work as David Drummond; Mr. Richard Pardon is decidedly funny as Napoleon D. Bloomer; and is ably assisted by Mr. Harry Townley as Parkinson Pimple; Miss Violet Wilson submits a sympathetic rendering of Elsie Langham; Miss Jessie Gillette appears to advantage as Caraway Crumpet; and Marion is cleverly represented by Miss Ethel Van Praagh; and Little Ella as Reggie adds considerably to the success of the production.

BARNSLEY.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Manager, Mr. A. C. Mitchell.—Miss Maud Hildyard's company is here this week in The Great Awakening. Miss Hildyard, in the principal part of Lola Selby, displays fine dramatic power, and is ably supported by Mr. Chas. E. Linney. Other parts are in capable hands.

PUBLIC HALL.—Manager, Mr. G. E. Hoey.—Mr. Jasper Redfern has a strong variety company here this week. The Elliotts and Savonas head the bill. Other artists are Lottie De Abbey, a pleasing vocalist and mimic; Senorita Eloina, a clever gymnast; Roose, in a wonderful acrobatic act; Joe Conway, miniature comedian; Miss Florence, a talented singer; Chas. Dixon, comedian and dancer; Kate Lynd, comedienne; Dolly Wright, comedienne; and some pleasing animated pictures conclude.

BARROW-IN-FURNESS. — ROYALTY THEATRE AND OPERA HOUSE. — Lessee and Manager, Mr. Hugh Robertson; Resident-Manager, Mr. George Stone.—Mr. F. Monillot's company is paying a return visit in A Message from Mars. Mr. Herbert J. Bentley is a convincing Horace Parker, and Mr. William H. Brougham plays the Messenger from Mars with admirable effect; Mr. Bruce Lindley's tramp is a clever piece of emotional acting; Miss Flora Hastinges is good as Miss Parker; and Miss Joan Ellis plays the unselfish Minnie Templer with marked success.

HIS MAJESTY'S THEATRE.—Lessees and Managers, Mr. and Mrs. Calvert Routledge.—Messrs. Silvanus Dauncey and Mr. V. Leveaux's company in The Walls of Jericho is paying a return call here. Mr. A. E. Anson is a finely effective Jack Frobisher, and Mr. Alfred S. Barber makes a characteristic Hankey Banister; Lord Marchmont has a good exponent in Mr. Wilfred S. Lane, and Miss Marguerite Cellier plays Lady Westerby with convincing force; Miss Nona Wynne is a capable Lady Lucy Darenham; and Miss May Taverner makes an interesting Lady Alethea Frobisher.

TIVOLI THEATRE OF VARIETIES. — Lessee and Manager, Signor Pepi.—Duncan's Royal Scotch Collies give a good turn, and the Sisters Belmore prove agreable singers and dancers. Ike Scott and Son give an amusing item, and the Bros. Lillian are clever gymnasts. Arthur Stacey, eccentric comedian and dancer, and Herbert Madden also contribute successfully.

BATH.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Egbert Lewis; Acting-Manager, Mr. Lewis A Long.—This week Mr. Charles Macdona introduces Mr. Popple (of Ippleton), who is cleverly played by Mr. Morris Harvey. Miss Maisie Brickwell, who is rapidly coming to the front, is the La Bolero, her singing and dancing being warmly received. Louise finds a dainty representative in Miss Lulu Louden; Miss Louie Rene and Miss Stella St. Andrie have small chances of showing their acknowledged talents in the rôles of Mrs. Doring and Mrs. Hennay, but both work hard to create an interest in those characters; Mr. Fred Maguire displays a good baritone voice as Jacques Kenyon; Mr. Tom May sustains Plat with humour; and Miss Claire Pridelle as Violet gains numerous encores for her effectively arranged songs.

PALACE THEATRE.—Proprietor, Mr. Frank Macnaghten; Manager, Mr. Chas. Schuberth.—The majority of those appearing in the current bill are on return visits, and include such well-known performers as G. W. Hunter, comedian and raconteur; Frances Haskell, in her popular illustrated songs; Stewart and Morgan, successful vocalists; Ted Saunders, impersonator; Horace Monto, musical speciality artist; Annie Laurie, comedienne; Cissy Dryden, male impersonator; and the Brothers Ethairen in their entertaining interlude. Raymond's Bio-Tableaux are the concluding item.

BATLEY.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Proprietors and Managers, Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Whitty.—A Queen of Villany (Mr. P. H. Sturgess's company) is the attraction here this week. Miss Edith Blande, in the title-rôle is cool, callous, and calculating; Miss Amy Ross Clyde is eminently successful in a character part; and Misses Jessie Crammonde and Cecilia Desmond are responsible for intelligent studies of their parts. Mr. Edward Heanley gives a sound rendering of the villain.

BEDFORD.—ROYAL COUNTY THEATRE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. E. Graham-Falcon; Acting-Manager, Mr. Walter R. Wilson.—This week the boards here are occupied by Mr. Cyril Keightley's company in The School for Scandal. Mr. Henry Crocker admirably impersonates Sir Peter; Mr. Edward Harrison makes an excellent Sir Oliver; Mr. Iden Payne as Sir Benjamin Backbite leaves nothing to be desired; Mr. Baliol Holloway as Joseph Surface meets with success; Mr. Cyril Keightley quite capably depicts the character of Charles Surface; and Mr. B. A. Pittar well sustains the humour of Moses. Miss Haidee Gunn acts with charm as Lady Teazle; and Miss Ethel Dane prettily interprets the rôle of Maria.

BELFAST.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Managing-Director, Mr. Fred W. Warden; Acting-Manager, Mr. James M. McCann.—Mr. J. Bannister Howard's company opened here on Monday with Hall Caine's play The Eternal City. A fine cast includes Mr. D. Lewin Mannering, who as Baron Bonelli was most successful in every scene, his clever acting gaining him quite a triumph. Miss Sara De Groot, a charming and talented actress, furnished a fine impersonation of Donna Roma Volona. Mr. Henry Deas presented a sympathetic impersonation of David Rossi; and much praise is due to Mr. Jack Fortescue for his dignified and able impersonation of the difficult part of Pope Pius XI. Mr. Herbert Legerton played the rôle of the detestable Charles Minghelli excellently; and Mr. W. O'Flynn acquitted himself creditably as the generous-hearted Italian, Bruno Rocco. Miss Eva Stuart was all that could be desired as Princess Bellini; and other rôles were admirably sustained by Miss May Fortescue, Miss Violet Campbell, Miss C. Stokes, and Messrs. J. Poole Kirkwood, H. Ainsworth, B. Comberbach, &c. Songs were beautifully sung by Miss Ethel Percival, assisted by Miss Violet Campbell and a well-trained choir of voices. Miss Ethel Percival deserves praise for her rendering of the Serenade in the last act. It should be added that the play was produced by Mr. D. Lewin Mannering.

PALACE THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—Proprietors, Warden, Ltd.; Managing-Director, Mr. Fred W. Warden; General Manager, Mr. J. De Freece; Resident-Manager, Mr. George Harris.—The star here this week is Yukio Tani, the clever Japanese wrestler, who furnishes a marvellous exhibition of Ju-jitsu, being nightly accorded a great reception. Mr. Tom Leamore's comic character songs have been hugely enjoyed; and the Eskimo Troupe appear in a most attractive scene, entitled Lapland. Wallan, the boy juggler, exhibits some interesting feats; and Miss Belle Braham, the pictorial songstress, exhibits some beautiful pictures; Miss Amy Elcock is a charming comedienne; and others appearing are Saxo, instrumentalist; and Miss Flo St. Roy, vocalist and acrobatic dancer.

EMPIRE THEATRE OF VARIETIES, LTD.—General-Manager, Mr. Frank Allen; Acting-Manager, Mr. John A. Walker.—Mr. Herbert Darnley's company provides the leading attraction here with the exceedingly humorous sketch, Muscles, or Muscular Development Personified. A great welcome has been extended to Mr. W. J. Ashcroft, who in song and dance is inimitable; Hillman and Russell, in their original vocal comedy duologue, The Somnambulist, have been accorded a capital reception; and the Wedburns are exceedingly droll comedians; Miss Ella Retford is a delightful comedienne, with good songs and fascinating style; Mr. J. H. Milton renews acquaintance with his host of admirers in Belfast; Mr. Edgar Budden, bone soloist and skate dancer, pleases immensely; as does Mr. Leo Tell, whose mimicry of animals is marvellous.

NEW ALHAMBRA THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—General-Manager, Mr. Henry T. Downs.—This week the Alhambra Dramatic Company presents the fine drama, The Lottery of Life. Miss Nina Blake-Adams, a charming actress, scores a great success by her sympathetic impersonation of Mabel, and Mr. Horace Denton is successful as the hero, Arnold Brierley; Mr. Percy M. Stevenson ably portrays the villainies of Captain Martin Dalton; a special word of praise is due to Mr. Cyril Grier for his clever acting as Mark Lattiker; and Mr. Tom H. Solly is admirable as Leary Jim. The humour of the piece is in the hands of Miss Effie Macintosh as Miss Features and Mr. H. Arnold Allen as Rev. Adolphus Babs. Miss Norah Caronne fills the rôle of Jess with much credit to herself, and Miss Alice Clarke as Nana upholds her reputation as an actress of much merit. Mr. Elmore Frith scores as Sir Geo. Brierley.

BILSTON.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee, Mr. H. Battersby; Manageress, Miss Battersby. — Miss Blanche St. Albans and Mr. J. Leicester Jackson's company is presenting Her One Great Sin for the first time in Bilston. As the hero of the piece, Reuben Warhurst, Mr. John Cecil plays naturally; Miss S. Albans has a fine part as Grace Warhurst, which brings out well her histrionic talent; Little Gracie has an intelligent and interesting exponent in Miss Maudie Lambert; Mr. J. Leicester ably fills the rôle of the heartless Squire Arnold Thornhill, and plays with much acceptance; Charlie, the flower-seller, finds a good representative in Miss Phyllis Damian. The humorous side is well cared for, having Mr. Fred Hodson in the part of Jerry Jumble; and Miss Nellie Lambert in the rôle of Nancy Winpenny.

BIRKENHEAD.—NEW THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee, Mr. W. W. Kelly; Acting-Manager, Mr. Charles Pell.—Mr. Frank Bertram's company opened here on Monday in The Breed of the Treshams. Mr. H Tripp Edgar secures a veritable triumph as Lieut. Rereeby, and the merits of a powerful and really meritorious performance were heartily recognised; Mr. Oswald Lingford skilfuly acts Viscount Dorrington; Colonel Hungerford is well represented by Mr. R. A. Green; and the Hon. Francis Tresham is capably undertaken by Mr. Cecil Klein. Mr. Florence Tressilian is a gentle and lovable Hon. Duff; Mr. J. Russell Bogue keeps the fun flowing as Nat Wilks; Miss Hettie Senior helps in the same direction as the maid; and Mr. Harold Wagner and Mr. Edward Jeffs do sound service. Mr. Francis Serle plays a useful part as Carn.

EMPIRE PALACE.—Resident-Manager, Mr. A. W. Matcham.—Chung Ling Soo, magician, is mystifying crowded houses here; an excellent turn is MacDonald's Melody Makers, and the singing and dancing of the Stella Troupe are applauded. The Arthur Lloyd Trio have a good comedy sketch, The Twin Sisters; Hanvarr and Lee appear as The Golfer and the Maid. The Penillion Welsh Wanderers sing with their usual success; Ray Mascall is applauded for her songs; Stelling and Revell are a smart comedy pair; and some pleasing dances are executed by Nettie Starr.

GAIETY THEATRE.—General-Manager, Mr. Albert Busbell.—Joe Elvin is at the head of the programme here. The popular Cockney comedian introduces about 100 auxiliaries in his sketch, Over the Sticks, which causes roars of laughter; Burg, Hand, and Wise and Martine and Son also come in for a good share of applause; the Three De Veres provide an excellent turn; Claude Fieldman's Beau Ideals Troupe of Juveniles are smart; Forest and King have a clever and artistic acrobatic act; Maude Vera is applauded for her songs, as also is Kitty Rayburn and Fred Lincoln.

HIPPODROME.—Managing-Director, Mr. Thomas Barrasford.—The programme submitted this week includes Fred Wright, jun., who is encored for his singing of popular songs from The Geisha and Cingalee. Austin Rudd keeps his audience in a merry humour, his songs being well applauded; Hallam and Stanton present a musical comedy sketch, A Broken Journey, which is appreciated. The Sisters Tree and Minonette Kokin are pleasing comediennes; Galetti's monkey comedians are highly amusing. Other popular turns are Tom Yorke, Satsuma, A. G. Spray, and James De Voy, with his entertaining horse "Billy."

BORDESLEY PALACE.—Resident-Manager, Mr. Edward Foster.—The principal item this week is a dramatic sketch, A Bolt from the Blue, presented by Harry Trevanion and company, who are all good in their respective rôles. The Clarkes are expert banjoists, their selections being well received; Josh Dixon and the New Macs add to the merriment of the programme; Cull-Pitt has a clever and humorous conjuring display; the Sisters Dorrell are pleasing in song and dance. The performance of Lora, the thought-reading parrot, is most amusing.

BISHOP AUCKLAND. — EDEN THEATRE. — Lessees, Messrs. R. Addison, Ltd.; Managing-Director, Mr. R. Addison; Acting-Manager and Secretary, Mr. J. Huntley.—Mr. Dickie Clare's comedians are being well received here in Lucky 'Liza. As Lucky 'Liza, Miss Madge Brownie is a favourite; Paul Pettitoe is admirably played by Mr. Leonard Maitland; Mr. Dickie Clare's Silas Slim is also productive of much merriment; the diverting character of William Biffins is capably handled by Mr. H. A. Griffiths; and Peter Pettitoe and Barnaby Blatherwick, the rival lawyers, have able exponents in Mr. T. W. Benson and Mr. A. W. Thompson respectively. Virginia is capably undertaken by Miss Vesta Brownie.

BLACKBURN. — THEATRE ROYAL.— Proprietor, Mr. Harry Yorke; Manager, Mr. Reginald C. Yorke.—Miss Claudia Lasell is visiting here with her bright musical play, The Sweet Girl. Her part of Lola suits her admirably. In both song and dialogue she is heard to advantage, and she was warmly applauded on Monday evening. She is ably seconded by Miss Alice Lethbridge, whose part of Fritzi Weyringe gives her opportunities for some charming dancing. Mr. Fred Eastman is one of the funniest of comedians and is thoroughly at home as Count Leibenberg. Miss Grace Hunter acts gracefully as Countess Lizzi, and Mr. Edward Russell sings well in the part of Florian; and Mr. George de Lara is good as Prosper Plewney. Mr. Lister Morrah is excellent as Dick Kenyon, while Mr. Algernon Newark, as Anthony Stroves, has been encored several times for his song, in which he impersonates well-known actors.

BURY ST. EDMUNDS. — Athenæum Hall. — Manager, Mr. E. Arnold Crack.—An overflowing audience greeted Mr. Bannister Howard's company on their return visit here on Monday in Florodora. Mr. Gus Danby, as Tweedlepunch, played in mirth-provoking style; Mr. Howard Crofton's acting as Frank Abercoed was all that could be desired; the Captain Donegal of Mr. Carnelly-Joye was frank and manly; Mr. Colin Johnstone was a satisfactory Cyrus Gilfain; and Mr. C. A. Road-Knight a capable Leandro. Miss Rosa Sullivan was vivacious as Lady Holyrood; Miss Daisy Lake displayed her fine voice to advantage as Dolores; and the singing and dancing of Miss Dorothy Dempster as Angela Gilfain drew repeated applause.

BUXTON.—Opera House.—Secretary and Manager, Mr. Arthur Willoughby.—On Monday and Tuesday this week we had Mr. Frederick Mouillot's chief company in The Geisha. Miss Louie Collier sang delightfully, and each number was loudly re-demanded. Miss Violet Kenyon played with tact as O Juliette Diamante, and Miss Florrie Saunders was a sprightly Molly Seymour. Miss Aubrey Ashton acted with seemly dignity as Lady Constance Wynne, and Miss Blanche Browne was good as Tommy Stanley. Mr. Cyril Thompson sang exceedingly well and acted with judgment as Reginald Fairfax, and Mr. S. Lockridge was a capable Dick Cunningham. Mr. J. Mansell Stringer sang well his pretty solo, "Star of the Eastern Sea," and Mr. Lionel Braham was a capital Marquis Imari. Mr. Edward Carlton as Wun-hi was quite irresistible. The opera was under the stage management of Mr. James R. La Fane, and Mr. Francis Knowles had charge of the orchestra. The Greek Slave was played on Wednesday.

CAMBRIDGE. — New Theatre. — Managing-Director, Mr. W. B. Redfern, J.P., D.L.—Another excellent musical play, The Blue Moon, was staged here on Monday. Mr. Alfred Clark was a capital Major Callabone; Mr. Alec Fraser has not a great part, but played Captain Jack Ormsby quite naturally; Mr. Reginald Switz as Private Charles Taylor succeeded at once in pleasing the audience, and was ably assisted by Miss Florence Imerson as Milly. This young lady, besides having a most attractive appearance, sang and danced very gracefully. Mr. A. Wykes Ashdown scored as Bobbie Scott; Miss Clarice Lockstone was a charming Chandra, her singing being a special feature; Mr. Alfred Beers made the most of Mooiraj; Mr. Arthur Soames presented a capital study of the Prince; Miss Kathleen Cartaret was a dignified Lady Brabasham.

CARDIFF.—Theatre Royal.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Robt. Redford.—Patrons of the Royal are favoured this week with an early visit of Pinero's comedy, His House in Order, and a large audience assembled on Monday night to witness Mr. George Alexander's company's rendition of this successful piece. Hilary Jesson was in the hands of Mr. Frank Fenton, and a more effective impersonation could not be desired. Miss Auriol Lee's delineation of Nina was a fine piece of acting; Mr. Cyril Harcourt gave a faithful rendering of Filmer Jesson; Mr. Adam Alexander and Mr. George Silver were quite at home in the parts of Sir Daniel and Pryce Ridgeley; while as Lady and Geraldine Ridgeley, Mrs. Kemmies and Miss Audrey Campbell acquitted themselves most creditably. Mr. Charles Tyrel made the most of Major Maurewarde, and a charming impersonation of little Derek came from Miss Carmen Woods.

King's Theatre.—Managing-Director, Mr. Samuel James; Acting-Manager, Mr. Albert C. Duncan.—A Wrecker of Men, a drama attracting large houses here, is presented in an elaborate manner by Mr. C. Watson Mill. The company is an all-round talented one, Miss Dora Price giving a fascinating representation of Risca Mallison, and Mr. Frederick Biron a particularly successful rendering of Jim Murley.

Empire.—Managing-Director, Mr. Oswald Stoll.—The programme here this week is a delightfully varied one. Neighbours is the title of the screamingly diverting sketch provided by the Albert and Edmunds Comedy Troupe; Alexandra and Hughes are as fresh as ever in their gag and melody; Ray Wallace, with her mimicry, is always a favourite in Cardiff; the Imperial Russian Troupe are good singers, and their dancing is something to remember; Edwin Brett and Emmeline Orford are a bright duo of humorists; and Ryder Slone, a clever character-vocalist; Boy Glen, an entertaining raconteur; George Brooks, an amusing comedian; and Lizzie Daniels, a promising comedienne, are responsible for excellent turns. The Bioscope displays an interesting series of pictures of Canadian wonders.

Stoll's Panopticon.—This spacious hall has been packed every night for the last month or so with enthusiastic audiences to see the excellent Bioscope performances presented by Mr. Stoll.

CARLISLE.—H.M. Theatre.—Lessees, Trustees of R. Stewart M'Kim; Manager, Mr. Stanley Rogers; Acting-Manager, Mr. Frank Stanley.—It is some time since Mr. Horace Stanley last visited this theatre with his popular drama, The 10.30 Down Express. He has again brought a capital company, who do full justice to the many thrilling scenes, which on the opening night thoroughly interested and pleased the audience. Mr. Stanley again impersonates Sam Wagstaff with his usual success. The heavy part is played with excellent judgment and considerable power by Mr. Chas. Burdon. Mr. George Beverley shines as the hero, and Mr. Edwin Clarke as the detective contributes a convincing and clever performance. The heroine is well played by Miss Elsie Capell. Miss Evelyn M. Walton is responsible for a lot of fun as Letitia Leigh, and Miss Josephine Lee displays tact and skill in her impersonation of Olive Coombes.

The Palace, Ltd.—Managing-Director, Signor Rino Pepi; Acting-Manager, Mr. A. E. Nicholls.—The Schenk Brothers, who head the bill this week, contribute an equilibrist display which is truly described as "sensational"; Baker and Balfe's performance on the xylophone is popular; Miss Ada Fawn shows considerable versatility in her three contributions; Carden and Price provide a smart up-to-date musical turn; Emmie Ames scores with a well-rendered topical song; Harry Bancroft is successful in descriptive songs; and the Two Bostons create laughter with their burlesque of a wrestling match. The Pepiscope, as usual, is a much appreciated item.

CASTLEFORD.—Theatre Royal.—Sole Proprietor and Licensee, Mr. Chas. Gadsby; Business-Manager, Councillor Hy. Masterman.—On Monday Mr. T. Edward Ward's company opened here with Her Fatal Past. Miss Ward's impersonation of Honor Symes is powerful; as Ruth Fernside and afterwards Bella de Sara, Miss Adeline Raby gives a strong and realistic portrayal; Miss Gertie Reid as Kitty Sprigwell is charming, and Miss Ettie Spalding is most capable as Martha Sprigwell. A good study of Mark Desmond is contributed by Mr. Stuart Lomath; Leonard Fernside is acted in a convincing manner by the stage-manager, Mr. Victor Rowlands; Mr. Wilson Coleman stands out prominently as the villain; Mr. T. Edward Ward provides much amusement by his clever work as Jonathan Buckstone Nobbs; and as Dicky Bird, Mr. Sydney Bryant causes much laughter.

CHATHAM. — Theatre Royal. — Proprietors, Messrs. C. and L. B. Barnard; Acting-Manager, Mr. Lionel Barnard; Secretary, Mr. Geo. G. Ridley.—This week's attraction takes the shape of the romantic play Her Love Against the World, presented by Mr. W. H. Hallatt and Mr. Walter Howard's company. The latter gentleman is the author of the piece, and acts the leading rôle of Eric Earl of Strathmere in fine style; his brother, Nello, being admirably represented by Miss Rossi St. John; while another convincing performance is Miss Ellen Snow's Iris Princess of Idalia. Mr. Mayor Cooke is sufficiently autocratic as Ulric Prince of Ravensburg. The entr-actes are enlivened by Lacey's Erascope with the latest animated pictures.

Barnard's Palace of Varieties.—Sole Proprietor, Mr. L. B. Barnard.—Much enthusiasm and excitement are being aroused here nightly by the efforts of various members of the audience to wrest from Peter Gotz his title of champion light-weight wrestler; Frederica has some cleverly trained terriers and a pony; Gertie Gitana's variety act is deservedly popular; Chas. Faning, Australian comedian, scores with his patter; while others appearing are Charles and Charles, cross patter artists; Max Duffek, musical contortionist; Mulvey and Miriam, in their comedy act, In the Studio; J. W. Ellison, comedian; and Mr. Lacey has fresh pictures to project by means of the Erascope.

Gaiety Theatre of Varieties.—Proprietor, Capt H. E. Davis; Manager, Mr. F. J. Donne.—Verno and Voyce give an enjoyable turn here; Chas. F. Best creates plenty of fun in a unique act; Ernie Mayne's parodies go as well as ever; Roma and Romani's selections please all lovers of music; the Sisters Belmont are capital dancers; Miss Blanche Vincent looks well in principal boy costume; Billie Burford's vocal contributions are appreciated; while the Edisonograph projects up-to-date pictures.

CHELTENHAM. — Opera House. — General Manager, Mr. H. Oswald Redford.—Mr. George Dance's company is paying a visit in Veronique. Miss Nellie Wigley is extremely fascinating in the title-rôle, singing in a charming manner and exhibiting considerable histrionic power; Mr. J. Warren-Foster appears with complete success as Florestan de Vallancourt; comic interest centres in the lively Monsieur Coquenard, smartly impersonated by Mr. Ellis Holland; Mr. Tom Seymour does full justice to the part of the amorous Loustot; Miss Agnes Jandy presents a well-conceived picture as the Parisian bourgeoise, Madame Coquenard; Miss Edith Devonshire makes the most of the humours of the Countess de Champ d'Azur; Mr. Scott Cullen as Seraphin sings in capital style; Miss Neste Laurel is the prettiest little figure imaginable as Denise; Miss Maud Leonard humorously assumes Aunt Benoit's peculiarities; Miss Ruth Massina as Sophie is a spirited lead.

CHORLEY (Lancs.)—Grand Theatre.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. G. T. Santé; Acting-Manager, Mr. Arthur Hemingway.—The United English Opera Company, under the direction of Mr. F. S. Gilbert, opened here on Monday, on which evening Maritana was presented. In the title-rôle Miss Elsa May gave an exceptionally fine performance; Miss Doris Gilbert was successful in her rendering of Lazarillo; Mr. F. S. Gilbert was in good form as Don Cæsar; Mr. J. Kneale Campbell did well as Don José; and Mr. F. H. Farrelly was effective as the King of Spain. Miss Kate White as the Marchioness, and Mr. H. Blagrave as the Marquis, were both well placed. The Bohemian Girl and The Daughter of the Regiment are included in the week's programme.

CLYDEBANK.—New Gaiety Theatre.—Managing-Director, Mr. R. C. Buchanan; Acting-Manager, Mr. Herbert J. Montagu.—These boards are occupied this week by the Russian drama What Men Dare, presented by Mr. Percy Norman's No. 1 company. Mr. Norman undertakes the part of the unscrupulous Drugin in a convincing manner; Mr. A. E. Forbes Rose does well as Richard Wilson; Mr. E. Hall acts cleverly as Nickola; and Ivan Brutoff has a good exponent in Mr. A. Balfour Mackay. Miss Maud Buchanan looks and acts charmingly as Olga Levin; Miss Ida Mackay is entertaining as Mary O'Brien; Mr. Ernest C. Edwards makes a good Stoopid; and Miss Bella Power is also worthy of mention in the small part of the dumb woman. The military drama A Woman Worth Winning is also billed.

COLCHESTER.—Theatre Royal.—Sole Proprietor, Mr. Charles Macdona; Resident-Manager, Mr. F. C. Upton.—Mr. Chas. F. Cooke and company opened here on Monday with The Trumpet Call. Mr. Chas. Cooke himself played the jovial rôle of Milligan in a manner which evoked genuine applause; the character of Prof. Ginnifer was portrayed by Mr. Joe Bracewell in a style which compelled the heartiest laughter; Mr. Leonard Yorke made a fine, manly hero, being most ably seconded by Miss Elsie Evelyn Hill as Constance. Mr. John Dennys proved himself a capable Richard Featherstone; and the exacting rôle of Astræa was capably enacted by Miss Doris Gilham. Mr. Freddie Bentley as Tommy and Miss Phillis French as Lavinia were capital in the lighter parts.

Hippodrome.—Joint Proprietors, Messrs. Fredk. Mouillot and Walter de Frece; Resident-Manager, Mr. Ben de Frece.—Hardeen, the handcuff king, heads the bill this week; Shrillo, siffleur, provides a musical treat; Lil O'Gorman is decidedly charming, and Flo Warner's powerful voice brings her the heartiest applause. Knoto is a clever contortionist, George Leonard a meritorious comedian; and the pictures, as usual, are good.

CONSETT.—New Theatre—Lessee, Mr Hugh Robertson; Resident-Manager, Mr. Lloyd Clarance.—Mr. Fred L. Conyngham's company is appearing here this week in the domestic drama A Mother's Love. Mr. Conyngham is highly amusing as Mat Ruddock; whilst Mr. Arthur Mervyn is exceptionally good as Paul Wingate; Mr. Arthur E. Pringle gives a forcible representation of the part of Geoffrye Mannering. Miss Rosa Mervyn gives a faithful portrayal of Winnie Wingate; and Miss Holly Haslewood is clever as Marjorie Wingate; Miss M. Lavinia Ellis is an able Elaine Mervyn; and Miss Dorothy Monkhouse gives entire satisfaction as Mary Stuart.

CORK.—Opera House.—Manager, Mr. John Horgan.—Mr. George Dance's company on Monday opened a week's engagement here in The Girl from Kay's. As Winnie Harborugh Miss Nancy Hervyn acts with with skill and sings with good effect; Miss Aimee Grey is a pretty Norah Chalmers; and Miss Chrissie Ralland a sprightly Ellen, her dancing being very effective. As Max Hoggenheimer Mr. Arthur Stigant evokes roars of laughter; Mr. Tom Shelford as the Hon. Percy FitzThistle is a capital dude; Mr. Buchanan Wake makes the most of the part of Theodore Quench, K.C.; and Mr. Herbert Franklyn wins applause as Harry Gordon. The Bamboo Trio, Miss Ella Linden, Miss Hilda Grundy, and Mr. Walter Bates, sing a very pretty pierrot number with good effect.

Palace Theatre.—Manager, Mr. Henry Kemble.—The programme here is a capital one, and includes the Seven Zerbinis in a spectacu'ar scena entitled The Enchanted Glen; Dome, comedy clay modeller; Rosie Bartlett, a refined comedienne; the Maddison Bros., burlesque boxers; the Three Orros, with a startling performance on the silver chains; Gladys Mavius, a graceful dancer; Alex. Lukos, actor vocalist; and Minnie Coleman, "the funny little woman."

COVENTRY. — The Opera House. — Proprietor, Mr. Wm. Bennett.—The Private Secretary is being presented here by a capable company, under the direction of Mr. Eugene C. Stafford. Mr. W. Hargreaves is humorous and merry as Mr Cattermole, sen.; Mr. Donald Price-Evans gives a capital rendering of the Rev. Robert Spalding; Mr. W. T. Elworthy is a good Mr. Marsland; Mr. James P E. Hussey is a capable Harry, and Mr. Vivian Gilbert is satisfactory as the Bond-street tailor. Mrs. Alfred Davis is well received as Miss Ashford; and Miss Cecily Wade (Mrs. Stead), Miss Beth Elliott (Eva Webster), Miss Dora Grey (Edith Marsland) all do well. My American Admirer precedes.

The Hippodrome.—Manager, Mr. T. M. Sylvester.—A crowded house on Monday witnessed a varied programme, headed by that veteran comedian, James Fawn, who was a great success. The Three Rickards present an acrobatic sketch, entitled Giddy Golfers; the Four Spanish Goldinis have a rather curious turn, which includes some clever juggling and manipulating of very large carpets; Eileen Douglas and Co. are well received in their scena, entitled The Cigar Brand; Sinclair and Parr are capable actor-vocalists; Stanley and Grenhop are expert banjo players; Charles Lilburn is a capable comedian; Blanch and Powell give a well-rendered comedy act; and Arthur Albert is a favourite descriptive vocalist. Animated pictures conclude the performance.

CRADLEY HEATH. — Empire. — Lessee and Manager, Mr. Jno. H. Morton.—Mr F Marriott Watson's company is appearing here in A False Wife. The talented actress Miss Florence E. Florence, plays the part of Lady Mansfield with great taste and feeling. She is ably supported by Mr. George Langham as Sir Colin Mansfield and Mr. W. Howard Barlow as Lieut. George Mansfield, both of whom act in a very finished manner; Mr. Elton Morgan gives an amusing rendering of Ben Rattler, and Mr. Owen Edwin scores as Archibald Brown Tee; Mr. F. Marriott Watson, the author, submits a clever piece of acting as Jean Beraud, whilst Mr. Chas. Osborne is well placed as Inspector Fulton and Mr. James Chippendale justifies his selection for the part of Zorak. Mr. Fred Levine makes a capital William Marlow, and Miss Flo Morgan is in her element as Sarah Bernstein. Miss Annie Hylton deserves praise for her careful rendition of Agnes Weyland, and Miss Minnie Leslie is a first-rate Bessie Blazer.

CROMER.—Town Hall Theatre.—Proprietors, Cromer Town Hall Co., Ltd.—Messrs. F. Ramsdale and A. E. Smith's company opened on Monday with the burlesque, The Babes in the Wood. Miss Lilian Ramsdale is a gallant Robin Hood, and in Miss Elsie Douglas a charming representative of Maid Marion is found. The Sisters Glynne appear to advantage as the Babes; as the Dame, Mr. Fred Ramsdale has much to do, and does it well; the wicked uncle is well played by Mr. J. H. Maxwell; Little Georgie is an excellent mimic and clever paper-tearer.

CROOK.—Theatre Royal.—Proprietors, Wallace Davidson, Ltd.; Managing-Director, Mr. Wallace Davidson.—The Master Criminal, played by Miss Winfred Chalmer's company, is the attraction here this week. In the title-rôle, Mr. Henry L. Osmond gives a wonderfully clever rendering of Telford Lestage, and Mr. Alexander Haviland is a manly Phillip; as Cecile, Miss Chalmers does exceedingly well, and Miss Katie Blair is a charming Mabel; a good deal of comedy is provided by Mr. Harry Cooke (Tommy) and Miss Mabel Tremere (Peggie).

CROYDON.—Grand Theatre. — Manager, Mr. Lawson Lambert.—Mr. George Dance's well selected company is winning applause here in Lady Madcap. Mr. Alex. Chentrens gives an admirable rendering of Count de St. Hubert and sings creditably; Mr. Percival Knight hits off to a nicety the rôle of Bill Stratford and dances uncommonly well; Mr. Oliver J. Round submits a capital character sketch of Pooh Jenkins; Mr. R. S. Comber is suited as Colonel Layton; Mr. Fredk. C. Leister is Major Blatherswaite to the life; Mr. Douglas Philips is an acceptable Captain Harrington; Mr. Rupert Sheffield is first-rate as Lieut. Somerset; Mr. Martyn Roland makes the most of his opportunities as Lord Framlingham; Mr. Hugh Henson is satisfactory as Palmer; Mr. Tommy Nelldon is entertaining as Corporal Ham; Mr. D. Gibson is exact as the Old Huntsman; and Mr. H. V. Surrey is quaint and curious in the rôle of Oroya Brown. Miss Vera Vere wins all hearts with her bright and racy rendering of Lady Betty Clarridge; Miss Maisie North is an attractive and ladylike Gwenny Holden; Miss Peggy Primrose makes a lively and pretty Susan; and Miss Florence Raymaur is a handsome Mrs. Layton. The dresses and scenery are magnificent; and the chorus ladies are fascinating. Mr. Ernest Hartmann leads the augmented orchestra.

Theatre Royal.—Managing-Director, Mr. Samuel James; Acting-Manager, Mr. Charles Herrick.—Messrs. Dottridge and Longden's company is here this week in The Midnight Mail. Mr. Alfred Goddard gives a good impersonation of Harry Steyne; the difficult rôle of Billy Brewer is ably sustained by Mr. Fred G. Evison; Mr. Robert Grey makes the most of Leonard Royle; Mr. Arthur Gilroy as Hassan Padisha is a striking figure; Mr. Chas. McCann is very impressive as Donald Craig; Mr. J. Mann is good as Gerald Eustace; Mr. J. Warburton is commendable as Edward Barclay; Mr. H. Dobell Lyle deserves much praise for his excellent representation of Jasper Thornleigh; and Sergeant O'Flynn and P.-C. Duncombe find good exponents in Mr. J. Ingledew and Mr. R. S. Morley. Miss Grace Chesterfield is a capital Mrs. Mildmay; Miss Phyllis Dailley makes a good impression as Lady Phyllis Eustace; Miss Mildred Carr admirably depicts Nancy Brewer; and Miss Ada Oakley, as Mary Steyne, deserves the warmest congratulations. This house is capitally managed by the energetic Mr. Chas. Herrick.

Empire Palace of Varieties.—Proprietor, Mr. Walter Gibbons; Manager, Mr. Eustace Jay.—The ever popular George Chirgwin heads the bill here and is being cordially greeted; the Six Brothers Luck are funny in pantomimic sketch, The Demon of the Cellar; the Three Sisters Jonghmans, lady Meister Singers, are much liked; Nellie Adams, "the lady at the piano," is clever; Dennis Drew, vocalist, is received with approval; Martinett and Wallace, coloured comedy artists and instrumentalists, submit an interesting turn; Aline Sudbury sings her Irish songs with effect; Charles Cardow, comedian, is exhilarating; Desmonti and Mora are great in their triple bar act; and a remarkably smart turn is Hayman and Franklin in A Matrimonial Agency. Mr. Archie Hully distinguishes himself as director of the excellent orchestra.

DARWEN. — Theatre Royal. — Lessee, Mr. Loader; Acting-Manager, Mr. F. J. Robinson.—Miss Grace Warner and company are paying a welcome return visit this week in The Scarlet Clue and other pieces. Miss Warner, who appeared on Monday as Scarlet Sal, gave another capital display of energetic and talented acting; Mr. George Gordon undertook the rôle of Michael Stanton in a praiseworthy manner; Mr. Reginald Brown, in the dual rôles of Jack and Harry Esmond, the twin brothers, was all that could be desired; Mr. J. L. Leigh kept the house in roars of laughter; and Miss Hilda Horne was a pleasing Elise Dane. Miss Kathleen Cranston as Mother Scrooge. Miss M. Stamco as the aunt, and Little Violet Palfrey added to the success. On Wednesday East Lynne was given, and The Little Widow is also in the répertoire.

DERBY.—Grand Theatre and Opera House.—Sole Proprietor and General-Manager, Mr. T. Allan Edwardes; Acting-Manager, Mr. Charles Denley; Assistant-Manager, Mr. Albert Orton.—Mr. Frank Curzon's principal company is here this week with The White Chrysanthemum. Mr. Horace Mills secures first honours as Lieut. Belmont, showing himself a master of humour, while his vocal efforts are also very entertaining. As the Admiral, Mr. W. H. Rawlins is another strong feature in the cast; Mr. O. E. Lennon, as the Chinaman, is wonderfully clever; Mr. F. Pope-Stamper as Reggie is admirable, both vocally and histrionically; and deserving of hearty commendation is Mr. Harry Paulton, jun., as Private Perks. An entirely charming Sybil is found in Miss Nora Guy, and her beautiful soprano is heard to advantage in her various numbers; while Cornelia is enacted in sprightly fashion by Miss Katie Vesey, who also dances to perfection. Miss Daisy Le Hay is a pretty and vivacious Betty. An augmented orchestra is under the direction of Mr. Leonard Hornsey.

Palace.—Lessee and General-Manager, Mr. T. Allan Edwardes; Assistant-Manager, Mr. Herbert Taylor.—The star turn here this week is F. V. St. Clair, whose topical songs secure him a flattering reception. Drum and Major, fun-makers of a hearty character, are also experts in staff-swinging; Vosper, an artist in crinkled paper, presents clever facial portraitures of public personages; Elsie Claire is a soprano with an excellent voice; the Three Zaracs are funny acrobats; Ingram and Irving, speciality artists, are favourably received; and the Ladderites contribute a turn of an unusually smart character.

DEVONPORT.—Metropole Theatre.—Manager, Mr. Geo. S. King.—The return visit of Mr. F. G. Kimberley's No. 1 company in the stirring military drama, Two Little Drummer Boys, is a great attraction. Miss Maggie English and Miss Lily Beverleigh as Jack Smith and Eric Carsdale respectively are warmly applauded for their successful renderings of their respective parts; Mr. Archie Helsby as Capt. George Darrell is excellent; Miss Margaret Rivers as the drunken Meg is lifelike in the extreme; and the humorous efforts of Messrs. Harry Lyndon and J. Magrath are greatly enjoyed.

DEWSBURY. — Theatre Royal. — Lessees, The Northern Theatres Co., Ltd.; Resident-Manager, Mr. J. H. Asquith.—The Geisha has been presented here this week by Mr. Mouillot's company. The humour and harmony of The Geisha retain a magnetic influence, and the acting and singing by principals and chorus yielded a most agreeable performance; Mr. E. Kipling appears in the whimsical character of Wun-Hi, a rôle he positively revels in; the tea-house owner is energetically played by Mr. Kipling; Mr. J. H. Booth has the advantage of imposing stature to aid his well-conceived version of the Marquis Imari, replete with dry and quaint humour; Mr. Wilfred Heath gives a natural and convincing presentment of Reginald Fairfax; no lack of vivacity is manifest in Miss Edith Adeson as Molly Seymour, and her dancing and singing have the requisite vigour, élan, and gaiety; an artist worthy of the highest commendation for the excellent quality of her work is Miss Doris Langdon, who embodies O Juliette Diamante with a delightful piquancy and charm; Miss Lydia Bland, who sang well although handicapped by a bad cold, gives a naïve impersonation of O. Mimosa San; Mr. E. Pollard establishes himself in the favour of his audience by his vocal work and acting in the character of Dick Cunningham; Miss Emily Lovell is a pert and self-assertive Tom Stanley; Captain Katana has an acceptable exponent in Mr. Hunter.

Hippodrome.—General-Manager, Mr. George Weldon. — Mr. Flockton-Foster's company (including Mr. A. Richardson) is appearing in the farcical sketch, Ferdie's Ma-in-Law, which causes great laughter. Poole and Poole (a comedy duo) exert themselves with success in songs, patter, eccentric and pedestal dancing; a Yorkshire soprano, Miss Bessie Hardman, finds much appreciation for her effective vocalism; the audience found plenty to laugh at in the eccentric legmania comedian, Stan Aubrey; a novel quick-change act is given by the Three Behans. Other artists are Leo Trainor (vocal comedian), the Bros. Hannaway (comedians and dancers), Henderson and Stanley's Quartette (harpists, acrobats, singers, and dancers). The Bioscope pictures are still part of the programme.

DONCASTER.—New Theatre and Empire.—Managing-Director, Mr. J. W. Chapman.—Henry E. Leigh's company on Monday presented The Varsity Belle. As Professor Septimus Stoney, Mr. James Danvers was highly successful; Mr. Edward Chester was seen to advantage as Sparkleton; and excellent service was rendered by Messrs. Maurice Holmes and Roy Barraclough as the two undergraduates. Mr. Frank Lilliput, of exceedingly diminutive proportions, was very smart as Runnyard; Miss Emma Rainbow played with care and effectiveness the rôle of Mrs. Barker; Miss Beatrice Egerton was piquant as Maud Stoney; and Miss Josephine Ellis did well in the title-rôle.

DOVER. — Theatre Royal. — Proprietors, The Dover Theatres, Ltd.; Chairman of Directors, Mr. B. Carter; Managing-Director, Mr. Fred C. Dew.—Mr. John Leopold's company in The New Frivolity is paying a first visit to Dover this week. The honours of the evening must be given to Mr. Barry Lupino as Sammy Vermiglio, an exceedingly talented comedian, whose clever business and droll delivery of his lines meet with hearty appreciation from the audience. Mr. John Leopold, jun., a smart eccentric dancer, plays Daniel Teething with great skill; a the part; Mr. Gilbert Childs as Bagnolet created great mirth; Mr. William Everard was seen in the part of Gaston Rigaud, and his tenor voice was heard to advantage in "It's no use crying for the moon." Mr. Leon Simkin as Mons. Michu played his part in a clever manner; Mr. Robert C. Harcourt was excellent in the rôle of Aristide Vert. The orchestra and chorus is under the able direction of Mr. Otto Manns.

PALACE THEATRE. — Managing-Directors, Messrs. Rosen and Blise; Acting-Manager, Mr. E. J. Dexter.—Miss Katie Lawrence is the attraction here this week, and she is received with great enthusiasm. The Bros. Ashley create great hilarity with their comedy boxing sketch; a capital turn is provided by Osborn and Brooks; The Crown Trio sing a number of songs with much acceptance; Harry Wright is an old favourite here; Nellie Gannon returns with new songs; and a clever display is given by Yettmah, a Japanese magician. Stanley Ross, comedian; Mlle. Dora, oboe soloist; and Vernon's Bioscope, complete a good programme.

GAIETY THEATRE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. R. A. P. Williams.—Messrs. Beaudyn and Livesey's company are paying a return visit with that thrilling drama A Traitor Prince. Mr. Geo. Montanini, who appears as the Indian Prince, is an actor of great ability and dramatic power. Miss Nesta Sandford is impressive in the part of Vashti; Mr. T. P. McBride is a dashing Lieut. Frank Derrick; and Miss Rose Routledge makes a sweet Lola Vane. Mr. Edmund O'Grady in the part of the cheery Billy Bright keeps the fun going, along with Miss Kitty Thomas in the part of Pansy Blossom, and Mr. Lex Phillip as the Hon. Bobby Vavasour.

EMPIRE THEATRE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Frank Percival.—Messrs. Armadale and Warren's company is here with The Face at the Window. Mr. Lionel D'Aragon in the character of Lucio Delgado, acts the part in a skilful manner; Mr. T. W. Dunscombe as Paul Gouffet, the detective, plays the part in a decisive style; Mr. Gilbert West is a capital Ducian Cortier, and makes a manly hero. Miss M. Leslie Cudd as Babette and Miss Eugene Magnus as Marie Brisson are seen to advantage in their respective parts.

EASTBOURNE. — PIER PAVILION — Manager, Mr. George Hayes.—Mr. Lewis Waller's company is reappearing here in Miss Elizabeth's Prisoner. Miss Lilian Hallows as Miss Elizabeth gives a performance marked by exceptional ability; Miss Leonora Braham is, as usual, charming as Mistress Williams; and Miss Phyllis Back is a pretty and clever Molly. Mr. C. Cooke-Beresford is an artistic and able Harry Paton; Mr. Franklyn Graham, an effective Major Colden; Mr. Fred Dark, a richly humorous Mr. Valentine; Mr. H. Grey Dolby, a satisfactory John Edwards; and Mr. Donald Young (Carrington), Mr. F. G. Martindill (Sam), and Mr. J. Thomas (Cuff), give capital help.

THE HIPPODROME.—Managing-Director, Mr. Sidney W. Winter; General-Manager, Mr. Harry Day; Resident-Manager, Mr. Walter Smith.—Atlas, Vulcana, and troupe top the bill, and give attractive weight-lifting, Vulcana also giving a very interesting show of muscular development. The Four Cecilians are popular in their turn, in which a versatile child is very prominent; Mr. Harry Zetler is an original and clever dancer; Miss Ethel Wilson, a charming singer; Percival and Morley appear in a smart sketch; the Brothers Ralston score in original and effective songs; Miss Nellie Chandos does well in song and dance; and new films are shown.

EDINBURGH. — THEATRE ROYAL. — Managing-Director, Mr. F. W. Wyndham; Acting-Manager, Mr. Wm. Whitehead.—Mrs. Russ Whytal is here this week, delighting her Edinburgh friends by her excellent acting as Mrs. Grey in Mr. J. M. Barrie's pleasing play, Alice-Sit-by-the-Fire. The impersonation is in every respect a delightful one; and with the admirable support given by an efficient company the performance has been most enjoyable. Colonel Grey finds an ideal representative in Mr. J. J. Bartlett; and Miss Beatrice Bramah's rendering of the part of Amy deserves to be described in superlatives. The Leonora Dunbar of Miss Lucy Verrier is another exquisite piece of work; and Miss Lilian Locke is to be congratulated on a distinct success in the rôle of Richardson. Miss Ada Marius and Miss Ninon Dudley do well as the authoritative nurse and the parlour-maid; Cosmo Grey is cleverly delineated by Mr. A. W. Baskcomb, and Mr. Aubrey Mallalieu makes a most agreeable Rollo. A curtain-raiser, entitled The Royal Flower, gives Mrs. Russ Whytal an opportunity of appearing in the picturesque guise of a romantic young Royalist marquis. Mr. Bartlett, Mr. Baskcomb, and Miss Dudley are included in the cast of this little drama, which is very nicely played.

ROYAL LYCEUM THEATRE.—General-Manager, Mr. Geo. T. Minshull.—Miss Julia Neilson, Mr. Fred Terry and company opened here on Monday with Dorothy o' the Hall. Messrs. Paul Kester and Charles Major's play affords excellent opportunities to the actress of the title-part, and Miss Neilson presents the high-spirited, impetuous girl to the life. Mr. Terry is manly, graceful, and chivalrous as Sir John Manners; Mr. J. Carter, who is still remembered in Edinburgh as an able actor of the old Theatre Royal stock company, gives an admirable piece of acting as the bluff Sir George Vernon; and Mr. Jerrold Robertshaw, in the ungrateful part of Sir Malcolm Vernon, plays with vigour and skill. Miss Miriam Lewis's impersonation of Queen Elizabeth is one of the best things in the play, and Miss Lilias Waldegrave lends charm and distinction to the character of Mary Stuart. Mr. Horace Hodges is genuinely clever as the jester, Perkin; and other parts which are excellently played are the Earl of Rutland by Mr. Frederick Groves, Lord Burleigh by Mr. D. J. Williams, an old retainer by Mr. Ernest E. Imeson, Lady Vernon (an amusing study by Miss Claire Pauncefort), and Jenny Faxton by Miss Mary Mackenzie. In response to loud calls for a speech at the close of the play Mr. Terry thanked the audience for the very cordial welcome of Miss Neilson and the company.

EMPIRE PALACE THEATRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. Oswald Stoll; Acting-Manager, Mr. W. Parham Wells.—The leading name this week in a good variety programme is that of Mr. Willie Edouin, who appears in a series of clever character-sketches. Deputising for the Mezettis, those old favourites the Haytors give one of their liveliest turns; and Miss Lena Brunton, taking the place of Miss Daisy James, contributes some excellent imitations of music hall celebrities. A surprisingly good performance is that of little Hanid Alexander, who shines equally as pianist, singer, and dancer; Boswell's Circus provides a diverting turn, the trained animals making a particularly good show. Mr. Eugen Joly proves himself an expert cornet player; Mr. Frank Sylvo is a clever juggler and eccentric comedian; Miss Katie Butler, burlesque artist, shows considerable talent and Mr. Ernest Ball gains favour as a meritorious actor-vocalist. Dene and Dawson are successful in an amusing sketch, entitled Stage Aspirants; and some smart work is done by Burley and Burley, comedy acrobats.

COOKE'S CIRCUS.—Proprietor, Mr. John Henry Cooke.—The Humels still delight with their marvellous trick riding; the Eugenes, in their gymnastic performance, make one wonder at the perfect ease and skill with which they go through their daring feats. The alertness and brightness of the clowns add to the entertainment of young and old, and numerous turns of horsemanship and acrobatic turns by the talented company form a bill of fare in which nothing is wanting to charm the eye or touch the sense of humour. The bioscope is a capital feature in a richly diversified programme.

ALHAMBRA THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. J. Fioni.—The Alberto Troupe of gymnasts, in a spirited performance; the Ringling Trio, in a clever and amusing act; Miss Helen Duncan, and the Brothers Brooke are the chief artists here in a programme which includes a form of cinématograph entitled the Fionoscope. A cake-walk contest has been a source of much attraction during the week.

EXETER. — THEATRE ROYAL. — Managing-Director, Mr. Edward J. Domville, J.P.; Acting-Manager, Mr. Percy M. Dunsford.—Mr. George Dance's company is paying a visit here this week with The Cingalee. Mr. Cyril Dane as Harry Vereker is excellent; Mr. Ethelbert Edwards as Bobby Warren is decidedly good, and the same may be said of Mr. Helier Le Maistre as Boobhamba. The success of the evening is scored by the dancing and singing of Mr. Jack Crichton as Chambuddy Ram and Miss Gladys Guy as Peggy Sabine, and they are deservedly recalled again and again. Miss Georgina Middleton as Nanoya is very pleasing, and the Lady Patricia of Miss Marjory Clark is all that can be desired. Mr. Grafton Williams ably portrays the part of Sir Jasper Loftus; Miss Essie Perrin as Angy is a charming dancer. The augmented orchestra is under the direction of Mr. Peter Flitcroft.

FALKIRK.—GRAND THEATRE AND OPERA HOUSE.—Managing Director, Mr. R. C. Buchanan; Resident-Manager, Horace W. Ebbutt.—The Sign of the Cross is the sole attraction at the theatre this week; and Mr. Wm. Greet's No. 1 company was favoured with a cordial reception on Monday evening. Mr. Frank E. Petley gives an interpretation of the noble character of Marcus which calls for the highest praise. The Mercia of Miss Marie Leonhard is a very successful study, and her delineation of the pure-souled Christian girl could scarcely have been improved upon. Mr. C. Yorke failed not in the slightest detail to bring out the vanity and gross voluptuousness of Nero; Mr. Chas. Aldred as Tigellinus and Mr. J. Weatherall as Licinius Ædile filled their parts with success. Mr. Frank Wood as Glabrio was cleverly got up as a worshipper at the shrine of Bacchus; the part of Stephanus was intelligently undertaken by Miss Effie Dane; Miss Mary Newcombe as Poppœa, Miss Gertrude Price as Berenice, and Miss Cissie Carlton as Dacia all suited their respective parts. The minor characters were also well placed. The scenery and dressing were very appropriate.

FLEETWOOD.—QUEEN'S THEATRE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. H. J. Snelson.—This week Mr. T. Arthur Jones and company are presenting here Life's Sweetest Sins. Mr. T. Arthur Jones in the leading part of Capt. Marston is excellent; Mr. Oswald Douglas and Mr. Clem Horlock as the two villains are both good; humour is successfully supplied by Mr. Edgar Morgan and Mr. W. D. Beck; and Mr. Frank Thornton as Capt. Rawlins is also very good. Miss Mary Ainslie as Fay Colbrooke gives a striking impersonation; Miss Elsie Walton and Miss Hazel Dent both do well in strong parts.

FOLKESTONE.—PLEASURE GARDENS THEATRE.—Manager, Mr. H. W. Rowland.—All-of-a-Sudden Peggy is here this week. Mr. Frank Bayly is well placed as Anthony; Mr. Lionel Glenister plays the part of the Hon. Jimmy Keppel in an admirable manner; Mr. Henderson Bland is praiseworthy as Major Archie Phipps, and Mr. Harold Weston makes the most of Jack Menzies; Miss Kate Wingfield is an excellent Lady Crackenthorpe; Miss Violet Barton-Astor is a pleasing Millicent Keppel; Miss Estelle Deepa scores a success as the talkative Mrs. Colquhoun; Miss Annie Brophy is a capable Mrs. O'Mara, and Miss Decima Moore's Peggy is a capital portrayal. The piece is preceded by Jerry and a Sunbeam.

GATESHEAD.—KING'S THEATRE.—Lessee, Mr. M. S. Hammond; General-Manager, Mr. J. H. Stringer.—Occupying the top line on a very acceptable programme are Vay's Juveniles, in a comedy-scena, entitled Life in the Slums, which is received with applause; Henry Carlton and company provide much amusement with an absurdity named One Night Only; the Three Royal Dreadnoughts are skilful rifle-shots; the Sisters Terry make a hit with their vocal entertainment; Billy Hobbs, a coon comedian and dancer, provides an excellent "turn"; Gregson's Comedy Trio, in a speciality act entitled The Dummy, cause much merriment; Helene and Emilon, novelty gymnasts, are clever; Lade Henderson, descriptive vocalist, is appreciated; J. W. Bray, another descriptive vocalist, has numerous admirers; Jennie Lee, a child comedienne of much ability; Stylo, hoop juggler; and pictures, shown on Vernon's Imperial Bioscope, complete the "show."

QUEEN'S THEATRE.—Proprietors, Messrs. Bolam and Bacon; General-Manager, Mr. Sidney Bacon; Acting-Manager, Mr. Stephen Smith.—The acommodation here has been taxed to the utmost this week, the attraction being Messrs. H. Armitage and Arthur Leigh's company in East Lynne. Mr. Alfred Beaumont makes a handsome Archibald Carlyle; the villainous Frances Levison has a capable exponent in Mr. Harry Nunn; Mr. Alfred Yate as P.C. Bullock and Mr. Spencer Goodwin as Lord Mountsevern are successful in their respective parts; Mr. G. C. Grattan gives a powerful delineation of Justice Hare; much praise is due to Miss Julie Kennard, who faithfully portrays Lady Isabel; Miss Ethel Hardacre is well suited as Cornelia Carlyle, and other parts are in capable hands.

METROPOLE THEATRE. — Lessees, Messrs. Bolam and Bacon; General-Manager, Mr. Sidney Bacon; Acting-Manager, Mr. Thomas France.—The Gateshead Amateur Operatic Society is staging The Gondoliers here this week for the benefit of local charities.

GILLINGHAM (Kent).—HIPPODROME.—Lessees, The New Bioscope Trading Co.; Managing-Director, Mr. F. R. Griffiths.—The animated pictures continue to attract large audiences here, and another varied and interesting series is presented this week. Variety turns are also given by Mr. Tom Vine, who scores his usual success with topical and extempore verses, and Vosco, in a comedy conjuring act. The orchestra is under the direction of Mr. Harold Price.

GLOSSOP.—THEATRE ROYAL. — Proprietor and Manager, Mr. Sydney Spenser.—Mr. Frank E. Burdett's company in The Indian Mutiny is here this week. Mr. Cyril Harrison as Capt. Manley gives a good delineation; and Mr. George Steel as Lieut. Manley is effective; Mr. John Davidson makes a praiseworthy Major Ingleby; Mr. G. Birch as Ensign Blake is to the fore; Mr. Villiers Stanley as Nebu Singh gives a powerful reading; and Mr. F. H. Shedden cleverly handles the part of Abul Khan; Mr. Chas. Boult as Ra Goonga submits a good portrayal; Mr. Cecil Morand as Terry O'Brien excites much mirth, and renders a good song. Miss F. Melrose Millett as Ghuz-na, Brahmin priestess, artistically depicts this arduous character; Miss Lillie Grey as Mrs. Major Ingleby and Miss Agnes Kingston as Kate Ingleby are seen to advantage.

GLOUCESTER.—PALACE (late Theatre Royal). —Owners, Messrs. C. W. and J. R. Poole; Manger, Mr. Rea.—Topping the bill are the Seven Wulfrunas in their acrobatic speciality, Fun in a Café. Miss May Lilian Levey gets probably "the" reception of the evening for her songs; the Howards give a thought transmission act that is worked smartly; Mlle. Sara's Marblesque Trio pose in a graceful manner; Ward and Wylie in a travesty are very good; the Two Etons on the horizontal bars are humorous performers; Theodore Jones and Co., in the vocal scena, Jack Sheppard, are warmly applauded; and Arthur Boyne, billed as "the Funny Man," fairly earns that title. The Le Vere Freres are highly successful in their equilibristic act; and Sword and Robb, comedians and dancers, are quite to the liking of the audience. The Bioscope completes the bill.

GOOLE.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee, Mr. John E. Tomlinson.—Messrs. Mathew H. Glenville and Fred Osmond's company is appearing here in The Still Alarm. Mr. Mathew H. Glenville gives an excellent portrayal of John Manley; Mr. George Arthur is a powerful John Bird; Mr. Fred Osmond is a highly amusing Doc Wilber; and Mr. Tom Beasley is well placed as Willie Manley. Miss Hettie Zillwood is handsome and convincing as Cassie Wilber; Miss Maud Warburton does justice to the rôle of Elinor Fordham; and Miss Mabel Veriton is an excellent Mrs. Manley. Songs are introduced with success by Miss Hettie Zillwood, and the Lyric Comedy Four are also applauded.

GRAVESEND.—GRAND THEATRE OF VARIETIES, LTD.—General-Manager, Mr. David Hart.—A particularly good company is in evidence here this week. First and foremost are the Virginian Piccaninnies, whose revels in Coon Town meet with an enthusiastic reception; Lilian Trayelle, comedienne, have done admirably; Sam Dalton's comicalities evoke roars of laughter; Agnes Molteno's operatic selections and ballads are highly appreciated; Arthur Slater, "the whistling man in white," has done well; Jack Feeney is a good baritone; and lastly Henry Lawrence's No. 1 Co. in their great detective drama, Bank Robbery, stamps itself as being one of considerable histrionic merit and power.

GREAT YARMOUTH.—ROYAL AQUARIUM — Proprietor and Manager, Mr. J. W. Nightingale. —The production of the popular melodrama, The Streets of London, by Mr. Eade Montefiore's company, has attracted good houses this week. Mr. William Rokeby is very successful as Badger; Mr. Riddell Robinson depicts admirably the scheming Gideon Bloodgood; Mark Livingstone is well played by Mr. Reginald Palgrave, and Mr. Clifford Armitage and Mr. Charles Kean are effective as Capt. Fairweather and Paul. The comic element is capitally sustained by Mr. Jerrold Manville and Miss Adelaide Gracey as Mr. and Mrs. Puffy, and Miss Florence Moore as Dan; Lucy Fairweather finds an able exponent in Miss Winifred Ingham; and Miss Dorothy Casey is excellent as Alida Bloodgood.

THE HIPPODROME.—Proprietor, Mr. Geo. Gilbert.—This favourite place of amusement reopened on Monday evening with an excellent programme. The greatest novelty is the Novellos Troupe, who give a clever performance, entitled India in Europe, the well-trained elephants, horses, and hounds assisting greatly in the acrobatic performance. Will Godwin, author and composer, contributes some well sung songs; other artists winning favour are Black Eagle, North American Indian chief; Ariel and Astarte, aerial gymnasts; Mr. Dainez and his wonderful performing pony and famous animals, and the Lynches, song illustrators. Doodles and Albini supply any amount of fun, and new pictures are shown on the Bioscope.

GREENOCK.—ALEXANDRA THEATRE.—Proprietors, The Greenock Theatre Co., Ltd.; Managing-Director, Mr. R. C. Buchanan; Resident-Directors and Managers, Messrs. A. B. and J. J. Wright.—Mr. George Stephenson and company are paying a return visit here this week with their merry musical comedy Kitty Grey. Miss Hilda Guivere again appears in the title-rôle, and the hearty reception by which her efforts are rewarded is fully merited; Lady Binfield is cleverly represented by Miss Marie West, and Miss Elsie Skillings appears to advantage as Sadie-de-Poulson; the character of Mrs. Bright as depicted by Miss Nellie Laurine is very amusing; Mr. George Stephenson in the rôle of Sir John Binfield is seen to much advantage, and the part of Lord Plantagenet is ably portrayed by Mr. Leslie Steward, his dancing being much appreciated, while the amorous King of Illyria in the hands of Mr. Lauri Lisle is all that could be desired.

EMPIRE THEATRE OF VARIETIES. — Lessee and Manager, Mr. H. L. Skivington.—A good all-round programme includes Mr. C. Collette and Joan Derry who submit an admirably acted sketch, entitled Tea for Two, which is well received. J. H. Greener the singing pit lad, is much appreciated; Carl Lynn is an accomplished animal mimic; Gravetta and Parr are very good in a pot-pourri act; Jennie Sydney is a clever singer and dancer; Regan and Ryan are successful in a high-class comedy act, while Cyclumina gives a smart cycle performance, which is enhanced by the pretty electric effects; the Empire pictures are also interesting.

PAVILION THEATRE. — General-Manager, Mr. Saml. Lloyd; Resident-Manager, Mr. Charles A. White.—Zeta Grey and company head the bill here this week in a comedy scena entitled The Lancashire Lass, which proves a big success; Arthur Croxon is a refined comedian, and Clive Watts is much applauded for his smart dancing; Agnes Asher (comedienne and dancer) submits an excellent turn, and Callie and Walker (comedy artists) are also good; the Three San Remo Girls (comediennes and speciality dancers) deserve mention, and Brent Brantford (comedian) is much appreciated. The Paviscope pictures complete the bill.

HALIFAX.—GRAND THEATRE, LTD.—Resident-Manager, Mr. S. Winks.—Enormous business is being done here this week with Baron Harris's No. 1 company in The Prince of Pilsen, which is on its first visit. A firm favourite is found in Mr. Harry Kilburn, whose efforts as Hans are decidedly quaint; Mr. Frank Crimp looks the part of the lover well, and sings and acts with plenty of spirit; Mr. Roy Sydney strengthens the musical portion of the piece as Lieut. Tom Wagner; and Mr. Ernest Gifford is full of humour as the concierge. As the New York widow (Mrs. Madison Crocker) Miss Sophie Harris is delightfully piquant, and full of chic, her satire on the American girl being also most amusing. Miss Connie Leon shows decided ability as Sidonie; Miss Dorothy Grasdorff is a capable Nellie Wagner; and Miss Mollie Wynne makes the most of her opportunities as the Bell Boy.

THEATRE ROYAL, LTD.—Managing-Director, Mr. Wm. Robinson; General-Manager, Mr. Otto C. Culling.—It is exactly thirty-nine years ago since J. W. Rowley made his initial appearance in Halifax. He is with us again this week, and on Monday was accorded a most loyal reception, being persuaded to sing "Starry Night," which brought back memories of the good old days to the older patrons. A good sketch with humour in the dialogue is Cuckoo, admirably presented by Kitts and Windrum; Hy. Thorpe and Zoe Coe are popular in their neat and cleverly-conceived episode, My Burglar; Frank Harwood sings and recites admirably; and Ella Dean, ballad vocalist, does well; and Kioto, Japanese equilibrist; Picitt and Lizzette, in The Crazy Cook, an illusionary act; and Susie and Protti all score well.

PALACE THEATRE, LTD.—Sole Lessee and Manager, Mr. Frank Macnaghten; Manager, Mr. Edward Harrison.—Dutch Daly is here again this week, playing his tuneful concertina and cracking wheezes as he only can. Valazzi is being cordially received in some really smart juggling; a picturesque statuary water fountain is staged by Maurins; and the Gladenbecks in a balancing speciality; Violet Morgan, mimic; and J. C. Scatter are favourably received.

HANLEY.—THEATRE ROYAL, LTD.—Managing-Director, Mr. Chas. Elphinstone; Manager, Mr. Douglas Elphinstone.—A welcome visit is being paid this week by Mr. William Greet's company in that powerful play, The Shulamite. As Deborah, Miss Evelyn d'Alroy is distinctly successful, her portrayal showing true ability; Mr. Chas. Weir, as the Boer farmer, Krillet, is capital, his reading being truly artistic; Miss Mary Griffiths, as Krillet's sister, contributes a clever portrayal; as Ian Vanderberg, Mr. Reynolds Denniston is all that can be desired; and Miss Marcella Hudson is most capable in a small part. The piece is preceded by The Widow Woos.

GRAND.—Managing-Director, Mr. Chas. Elphinstone; Manager, Mr. Alfred Edwardes.—George Lashwood, who heads the bill here this week, meets with his usual success, contributing no less than four songs on Monday; the Anartos in their sketch, The Moving Mail, score a distinct success; Mason and Bart are gymnasts of extraordinary ability; Spencer and Marks present a capital scena, The Stage-struck Waifs; Jake Friedman, the one-man opera, provides an acceptable turn; Ambrose Thorne, comedian, is refined and amusing; Esme Gordon is a capable comedienne and dancer; and Viviana adds to the excellence of the programme by her capital dancing. Urbanora shows several capital pictures.

HARROGATE.—GRAND OPERA HOUSE.—Managing-Director, Mr. Wm. Peacock; Acting-Manager, Mr. C. Fielding-Smith.—The first three nights of this week Mr. Chas. Macdona's company in The Toreador occupied the theatre. Mr. Harold Batt as Pettifer easily won first honours; Mr. George Austin made the most of the part of Augustus Trail; and Mr. Sidney Granville was good as Carajalo. Miss Earle was fair as Dora Selby, and Miss Leah Howard was a pretty Susan; Miss Beresford scored as Nancy Staunton; Miss Nina Cailton played Donna Teresa, and Mr. Walter Champney Sammy Gigg; Mr. Ralph Lynn appeared as Sir Archie Slackett.

HARTLEPOOL.—EMPRESS.—Proprietors, Messrs. Councillor Everton and J. W. Cragg; Manager, Mr. Harry Burns.—The principal attraction this week is Fasola, who with ten illusions, some of which are quite new, completely mystifies his audience; Pete and Juno in their novelty dancing-to-win please immensely; Les Sados give a smart exhibition of juggling, into which is introduced some amusing comedy by-play; Spry and Monti have appeared here before, and their welcome is a flattering one; smart comedy cycling is done by the Bristons; the comicalities and legmania dancing of Charles Ashdowne is a strong item, and other attractions to be reckoned with are Frank Newbury, an expert whistling comedian, the Alex. Victor duo of harmonising juvenile vocalists, and pictures on the bioscope.

HASTINGS. — GAIETY THEATRE.—Manager, Mr. H. W. Rawlings; Resident Acting-Manager, Mr. Charles E. Scutt.—The tour of Mr. Alfred Sutro's new play, The Perfect Lover, is here with Mr. Harold V. Neilson and Miss Beatrice Forbes-Robertson in the leading rôles, supported by an excellent company. Joseph Tremblett is admirably portrayed by Mr. Neilson, and he has admirable assistance from Miss Dorothy Milne as Martha Tremblett and Miss Margaret Fareleigh as May. The unscrupulous money-maker, William Tremblett, is a lifelike presentment of character by Mr. W. Lemmon Warde; Miss Forbes-Robertson gives a refined and artistic conception of Lilian Tremblett; and prominent mention is due to Mr. Arthur Burne as Lord Cardew and Miss Elizabeth Watson as the Hon. Susan Lesson. The blackmailing John Collis is a well-drawn character by Mr. John Detliv.

HIPPODROME.—Resident and General-Manager, Mr. Walter Norman.—The new management opens with a full and interesting programme. Miss Blanch Marion is an attractive comedienne, both as dancer and singer; a laughable duologue is given by Freeman and Tench; some good films are shown by Ruffell's Bioscope; the Boston Twins are amusing entertainers; a clever skate dancer is seen in Willie Gardiner; as a vocalist and graceful dancer Nora Doon is a decided success; a feature of the evening is the appearance of Johnny Danvers, comedian, whose droll style is greatly applauded; some delightful harmony is introduced by Luigo's Six Serenaders.

HEREFORD.—GARRICK THEATRE.—Manager Mr. H. P. Barnsley.—This week we have a return visit of Montagu Beaudyn and Sidney Crowe's company in The Way of the World. The part of Adela de la Roche is assumed by Miss Sidney Crowe, a charming actress, who presents the character in finished style; Mr. Herbert Skardow's Cecil Montague is distinguished by sound and careful work; as Matthew Malyon Mr. Clarence Temple is powerful; Captain Fred Slade is portrayed in sinister style by Mr. Victor Gordon; Miss Marie Fontaine's Kate Montague is excellent; Miss Vollette Vivienne as Polly Bell imparts much fun to that character; and a capital Horatio Bluff is seen in Mr. Augustus Hammond.

HORWICH.—PRINCE'S THEATRE.—Lessee, Mr. Fred. Lewis; Business-Manager, Mr. Lewis Grainger.—The theatre reopened under new management on Monday evening, with Messrs. Levy and Cardwell's Beauty and the Beast juvenile pantomime. Miss Dolly Dodds as Beauty plays the part admirably; Miss May Gibson is a fascinating fairy queen, Silver Star; Miss Beattie Townshend as Evilheart, the witch, is decidedly good; Miss Kitty Trewhitt as Prince Charming; Miss Daisy Fielder as Will Scarlett; Miss Isa Gibson as Maid Marion; Miss Gladys Skipp as Tommy Tucker; Miss Edie Camm as Marjorie Daw; and Misses Annie Brumby, Nellie Adamson, Olive Woodbridge, and Flo Edwards as Patience, Virtue, Innocence, and Grace do well in their respective characters. In Master Jack Harrison as Baron Hardup is seen a promising comedian; the Brothers Armstrong score as the Baron's elderly daughters, Dressalinda and Marrigolda; and Messrs. Doyle and Gibson as the broker's men, Flip and Flop, are full of genuine comedy; Mr. Will Orston makes a typical Beast; the appearance of Pip, the Baron's page, in the person of Wee George Wood, created quite a sensation. Among the specialities calling for notice are Miss Edie Camm's baton swinging, the Marguerita Quartette of dancers, and the barefoot dance of ten pretty little girls.

HOYLAND.—METROPOLE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Geo. S. King; Acting-Manager, Mr. Geo. R. Baker.—On Monday Miss Loie Esmond's company, under the direction of Mr. E. Neville, opened with The Anarchist Terror. Mr. Fletcher in the title-rôle, Ravagon, is all that can be desired; Mr. Arthur Sweet is a manly Lieut. Armstrong; Mr. Bert Lando is an able Ishmael; and the humour is safely entrusted to Mr. Edward Neville as Mickey Doolan and Miss Loie Esmond as Kitty Malone. Miss Florence Esty is very good as Marita, and Miss Rosie Neville excellent as Columbia.

HUDDERSFIELD.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Proprietors, Messrs. Milton Bode and Edward Compton; Resident-Manager, Mr. W. J. Andrews.—Mr. J. Bannister Howard's company is appearing here in the new play entitled The Four Just Men. Produced only a fortnight ago, little remains to be said in addition to the full notice already given, except that the prophecy ventured upon at that time seems likely to be justified to the fullest extent. The piece grips the interest right at the start, and holds it unchecked to the very end. The cast is an admirable one, and it is no reflection on the others to say that much of the success is due to the brilliant work of Mr. H. A. Saintsbury as Brown, the chief of "the four."

HIPPODROME LTD.—Resident Manager, Mr. N. M. Robinson.—At the top of the bill is Zertho, with his large troupe of cleverly trained dogs; also in the programme are the Sisters Marion, juvenile duettists; Barlee and Smith, in a humorous duologue; La Belle Nello, a clever and pretty lady contortionist; Chas. Stevens, comedian; Diamond and Beatrice, in a refined musical turn; Madge Osmond, comedienne; Harry Taft, a comedian of originality and a fine whistler; the Three Onettis, in a novel act on the revolving trapeze; and new pictures on the Biograph.

HULL.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Sole Lessee, Mr. W. Morton; Resident-Director, Mr. W. F. Morton.—The clever play, Raffles, is the attraction here this week. That fine actor, Mr. Leonard Boyne, invests his rôle with the stamp of virility; Mr. Clifford Brooks displays all the necessary powers of intuition and inventiveness expected from so adroit an investigator of crime; the burglar of Mr. D. Heron was a well-thought-out study; the same applies to his associate, the Maid Marie, entrusted to Miss B. Fitzgerald. The Bunny of Mr. L. Edgard is a manly interpretation; Gwendoline Conran, played by Miss Hazel Thompson, is an admirable interpretation. Miss Hilda Stewart reaches a high standard in her reading of the rôle of Mrs. Vidal. A pleasing little curtain-raiser, A Lesson in Shakespeare, meets with much approval.

GRAND THEATRE AND OPERA HOUSE.—Managing-Director, Mr. John Hart; Resident-Manager, Mr. Wyn Miller.—The Earl and the Girl is paying a welcome return visit. Mr. William Stephens as the pseudo earl is most amusing; the love interest is charmingly sustained by Miss Frances Earle as Elphin Haye and Mr. A. Harrold as Dick Wargrave. Miss Mary Morison is a pleasing Virginia Bliss. An augmented orchestra combined with a capable chorus add to the general enjoyment.

ALEXANDRA THEATRE.—Mortons, Ltd.—General-Manager, Mr. Geo. Morton.—Held in Bondage is being played here this week. Irvan Dronski, the hero, is painted in striking tints by Mr. C. Sterling. Miss Grace Baring gives the requisite colouring to the rôle of Leonie Devigne. Miss Maude Merrick and Mr. Geo. Scully furnish the requisite comic relief.

THE HIPPODROME.—Lessee, Mr. Alfred Graham; Manager, Mr. Ivan Luna.—Ray and Calder appear in a funny comedy act; and Terry and Bentley are smart in a comedy sketch, The Hunt. Phil Ray, Kendrick and Laura, the Rushforths, Austin and Cowen, and King Leo, complete an excellent bill.

THE EMPIRE.—Lessee, Mr. Alfred Selwyn; Manager, Mr. Harry Slingsby.—Appearing here are Cliff and Kean, Noel, Phinas and Ada, Sisters Lyle, Nellie McMerry, J. H. Carney, Gardens, Royal Quintette, and Daisy Pearl.

THE PALACE.—Proprietors, Moss' Empires, Ltd.—Winifred Hare's charming songs and voice gain her much popularity; Harry Ferd's songs are much appreciated; Frank and Jen Latona give a very clever performance, the lady's piano playing being a special feature. Other turns include Lady Mansel and Juveniles, Goodfellow and Gregson, Frank Maura, Fred Clements, Rose Naynon, and Jessie Burnett.

THE CIRCUS.—Manager, Mr. E. Emerson.—Singing and animated pictures are a big feature here.

HYDE.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Sole Lessee, Mr. Fred Granville; Acting-Manager, Mr. A. R. Feather.—This week Messrs. Stillwell and Teulon's The Branded Woman company is doing good business here. A vigorous impersonation of the hero, Philip Maurice, is submitted by Mr. James Stillwell, who, with Miss Katherine Barnett, a charming and sympathetic Marie, soon finds favour with the audience; Mr. Paul E. Teulon plays naturally, but none the less effectively, the rôle of Leon Baron Hanber, and his companion in villainy, Louis Duroc, is cleverly depicted by Mr. Duncan Bell; Miss Zana St. George powerfully portrays the title-rôle; and Miss Violet B. Clarke makes an excellent Rudolph; Zarka has an efficient exponent in Mr. R. Bradbury; Mr. Harry Liddle creates considerable merriment as Dick Brown, and finds a pretty and vivacious partner in Miss Cissie Clemmet, as Jasqueline.

ILKESTON.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Licensee and Manager, Mr. F. A. Rogers. — Bonny Boy Blue is the attraction here this week. Miss Lena Stanton, is smart as Bonny Boy Blue; and Miss Norah Neville is a pleasing Dolly Dickory; as the Dame, Mr. Bruce Green is quaint; Mr. Adrian Romer and Mr. Will Terry are successful respectively as Squire Longacre and Lawyer Copall; Little Keeno makes a big hit with song and dance; the Orient Troupe of dancers are worthy of mention.

IPSWICH.—LYCEUM THEATRE.—Acting-Manager, Mr. Leonard Greg.—Mr. Edward Terry is playing a round of his favourite characters here, and is well-supported in Liberty Hall, Sweet Lavender, and The Magistrate.

HIPPODROME. — Proprietor, Mr. E. H. Bostock. — The chief turn here is a successful sketch, entitled, Would-be Actors, in which Mr. Carter Livesey plays the leading part. Miss Bertha Winder gives a pretty display of dancing; Letta and Minni, as hand jumpers, are clever; De Vere and Kenwick are amusing comedians; and other artists include Wyndham and Waters, sketch artists, Wal Robins, and Bicknelle, clay modeller.

JERSEY.—OPERA HOUSE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. C. Robert Perkins.—Monsieur Beaucaire is being played here this week by Mr. Norman Macowan's London company. Mr. Macowan, who takes the title-rôle, is admirably fitted for the part physically, and his acting is both polished and forceful. Miss Violet Sterne makes an admirable leading lady, and her conception of the part of Lady Mary Carlisle leaves nothing to be desired. The principals are supported by an excellent all-round company. Mr. Murray Hathorn is well placed as the Duke of Winterset; Mr. P. Ramsey Forman admirably fills the part of the bloodthirsty Captain Badger; Beau Nash is safely entrusted to Mr. Robert Entwistle; and Mr. Hans Schlesinger makes a soldierly figure as the Marquis de Mirefoix. The rôle of Lucy Rellerton is cleverly played by Miss Emilie Leslie.

KEIGHLEY.—QUEEN'S THEATRE. — Proprietors, Messrs. Carson and Kendall; Acting-Manager, Mr. W. Carson.—Mr. Van Biene is here on a return visit in The Broken Melody. His exquisite 'cello playing has delighted large audiences; he is supported by a capable company, including the charming actress, Miss Lena Burnleigh.

KETTERING.—AVENUE THEATRE.—Proprietor, Mr. Frank Payne.—This week we have Miss Bonwin Carlton's company in The Plucky Nipper. Mr. Edward Stream is an admirable Frank Leslie, and Mr. Fred Rivers does full justice to the part of Richard Vanbrugh. Mr. Douglas Campbell is amusing as Tommy Atkins. Mr. Edward Surrey is responsible for some clever acting as Bill Burgess, and Miss Bonwin Carlton as the Plucky Nipper is enthusiastically received.

VICTORIA THEATRE.—Manager, Mr. H. Fowkes.—Mr. Bannister-Howard's company opened here on Monday with The Silver King. Mr. Horace E. Herbert gives a fine rendering of Wilfred Denver, and Miss B. Doyle plays Nellie Denver in true sympathetic style. Captain Skinner finds an able exponent in Mr. Oswald Empire Palace.—Moss Empires, Ltd.; District-Manager, Mr. T. Gerald Morton; Resident-Manager, Mr. Alex. Galley.—The Boisset Troupe are again appearing in their uproarious comedy sketch, The Bricklayers, here, and the presentment is vastly enjoyed. The Selbinis perform feats on cycles which are nothing short of sensational; a charming vocalist, Beatrice Willey, appears with conspicuous success in a pretty song-scena; and Les Voces render duets in accomplished style; a trio of capable comedians, Dion Wade, Phil Hermann, and Johnny Gilmore are in the bill, and provide thoroughly enjoyable turns. Frances Letty has a pleasing style and a good voice, and succeeds as a comedienne; and in a similar line Bessie Butt earns much appreciative applause.

Hippodrome. — Proprietor, Mr. Thomas Barrasford; General-Managers, Mr. Claude Shayler and Mr. Chas. Weldon.—A strong Hippodrome bill is headed by Bob Hutt and company, whose extravagant musical mélange is most entertaining. Charles Prelle presents an eccentric novelty act with success; Harry Edson's intelligent canines go through an interesting exhibition; the Carina Sisters are doing well with accomplished musical specialty; that clever pair of comedy eccentrics, Downes and Langford, provide an entertaining interlude; Mac and Hill also subscribe a smart comedy turn; that popular vocalist, Frank Cass, has a host of appreciative admirers; and Elton and Elma introduce a successful comedy bar act. Will Lytton and Jack Hylton, with clever eccentric comedy business, complete the show.

City Varieties.—Proprietor, Mr. Fred W Wood; General-Manager, Mr. J. C. Whiteman; Acting-Manager, Mr. S. Jones.—Those popular vocal entertainers, King and Benson, lead the bill here. A capital comedy sketch, Always Moving, by Rose, Ross, and Rosert, is provocative of much merriment; Harry Wenburn and Ventom Swift also provide a good comedy entertainment; George Bendon again sings coon ditties in clever style; a charming vocal turn by the Sisters Hall gets well-deserved appreciation; the Mystic Mahatma is displaying her wonderful powers; and Los Rupertos, novelty equilibrists, are another popular line.

Coliseum.—The William Hamilton's Excursions opened their annual visit here on Monday, and their beautiful scenic and panoramic display—agreeably varied with some entertaining variety turns—is attracting appreciative audiences.

Leicester.—Royal Opera House.—Proprietors and Managers, Messrs. Milton Bode and Edward Compton; General and Business Manager, Mr. Henry Dundas.—Mr. Lionel Rignold and Miss Ada Blanche's company in What the Butler Saw is the attraction here this week. Mr. Lionel Rignold makes a conspicuous success with a really mirth-provoking performance as the butler. Miss Ada Blanche, a versatile and clever actress, delights all with her fascinating enactment of Mrs. Barrington. Mr. Charles Fawcett is deserving of the highest praise as Jack Barrington; Mr. Reddick Anderson is good as Sir Charles Foden; and Mr. Harry R. Rignold as Abraham Weinstein, Mr. Roy Byford as Professor Shale, and Mr. George Ascott as General Dunlop also give portrayals of merit. Miss Marie Daltra makes a capital Miss Foden, the same remark also applying to Miss Jennie Wigney as Nora, Miss Dorothy Garth as Maria, Miss Annie Goward as Mrs. Hake, Miss Violet Gould as Mrs. Fleming-Smyth, Miss Hylda Davies as Miss Clarissa Dunlop, and Miss Vera O'Connell as Miss Selina Dunlop.

Theatre Royal.—Sole Lessees and Managers, Messrs. Milton Bode and Edward Compton; Business-manager, Mr. R. R. Beaumont.—The Woman Who Gambles, presented by Mr. Morton Powell's company, holds the boards here this week. At the Countess, Miss Gertrude Hunt makes a favourable impression, and Mr. James Duncan as Count Otto Steinback and Mr. Horatio Sinclair as Baron Cratzlaw are both exceedingly good. Mr. Reginald Fox makes an excellent Lieutenant Carl Czarteryski, and as Cora Gouldhart Miss Florrie Halton is a success; Mr. J. O. Stevenson is amusing as the Hon. Bertie Bray; Miss Lily Malvern does well as Stella Malakoff. Others who also deserve mention for portrayals of merit are Mr. Ernest H. Clarke as M. Stambuloff, Mr. Fred Prior as Peter Peteroff, Miss Brenda May as Zannette, and Miss Florrie Hall as Mlle. Zila Zeyelda.

Palace Theatre, Limited.—Managing-Director, Mr. Oswald Stoll; District-Manager, Mr. Hatton Wharton; Acting-Manager, Mr. C. Finch-Hatton; Assistant-Manager, Mr. Bertram G. Iles.—Heading this week's programme is Mr. Charles Carte and company, who are presenting the sketch A Noble Brother, the part of Jerry, the tramp, giving full scope for the display of Mr. Carte's versatility. Others in an efficient cast are Miss Doris Brooks, Miss Dora Bedford, Miss Kate Cameron, Mr. Howard Thirne, Mr. Barton Ford, and Mr. J. Ansdel Wilson. Kelly and Gillette create a vast amount of laughter, being especially clever on a billiard-table. Ginnett's Rejected Remounts also furnishes a merry and clever show. Die Obersteirers are accorded a warm welcome for their delightful singing and dancing turn; Carlotta Levey sings her sensible songs in a manner meriting the high commendation received; the Vernon Troupe of xylophonists score a well-deserved success; the Lyons Trio of pantomimists and dancers are good; Charles Vincent's medley of songs are appreciated; Dorothy L. Clarke is an entertaining vocalist.

Pavilion Theatre.—Proprietor and Director-General, Mr. Frank Macnaghten; Acting-Manager, Mr. Walter Lapworth.—The chief item in an entertaining bill here this week is Miss Patey Trounsell and company, who are presenting in good style the naval dramatic episode, Temptation. Gus Harris is scoring a well-deserved success in his latest creation, The Synagogue; the Five Bon-Bons create much merriment with their cleverly worked pantomime scena, A Hot Time for One; the Ideal Trio introduce a refined musical and singing act, entitled The Musical Outcast, in which Mr. Cyril Godwin (a clever violinist), Miss Dot Williams (soubrette), and Mr. Bert Mortimer (pianist) appear. Gracie Bard is a capital character and coon speciality artist and dancer; the Three Coopers, harmonising and descriptive vocalists, are a popular turn; Walter H. Pallister's Bioscope is a special feature of the programme; Edna Knollys, with her excellent illustrated songs, is remaining over another week.

Leigh.—Theatre Royal and Opera House.—Proprietor, Mr. J. W. Cragg; Resident-Manager, Mr. Harry Rousby.—Miss Florence Baines and company are here in the farcical comedy, Miss Lancashire, Limited. In her impersonation of the "lass fra' Lancashire," Miss Baines embodies the qualities of good acting and brilliant singing, and merits the unstinted praise accorded to her. Miss Annie Mitchell is winsome and effective as Ena Lancashire; Mr. David Donaldson cleverly enacts the part of John Higgins; Mr. Walter Hicks is highly amusing as the manservant Grant; Mr. Burt Burton makes a typical Jew; Mr. Will Casey is a distinct success as the solicitor, Herbert Fox; and Mr. Payne Fletcher presents a good character sketch as William Thompson.

Leith.—New Gaiety Theatre.—Managing-Director, Mr. R. C. Buchanan; Resident-Manager, Mr. John Darlison.—The members of Mr. Herbert Ralland's company give a good account of themselves in the popular comic opera, La Poupée, now paying another return visit to Leith, after a comparatively short absence. Mr. Harry Brayne is exceedingly happy in his delineation of the eccentric Hilarius, and Alesia is represented with spirited effect by Miss Mysie Devine; Miss Edith Hunter is a good Madame Hilarius; and Miss Miss Dorris Dickens, a very pleasing Henri; while Miss Dora Dickens and Miss Nita Cree personate the first and second dolls quite cleverly. Lancelot is successfully portrayed by Mr. Arthur Cozens, Father Maxime is well rendered by Mr. Walter Balfour, and Baron Chantrelle and Loremois find characteristic exponents in Mr. Fuller Allen and Mr. Arthur Dennis.

Leven.—Town Hall.—On Monday night Miss Inez Howard's company presented the drama, Man to Man. George Gordon was played in manly fashion by Mr. Gordon McLeod; Mr. Chas. Clifford sufficiently realised the duplicity of Richard Ellerton; Mr. Alfred Mortimer was successful as Matthew Ellerton; Mr. Arthur Plummer as the Rev. Philip Ormond was decidedly good. Messrs. Sidney Dean and David Hamilton were amusing as Samuel Plumtree, Esq., and Bill Burkley. Miss Maud Camfield as Ethel Maythorne was winning and sympathetic; Miss Sassie Evelyn was excellent as Miss Lavinia Dove; Miss Cora Linda made a capital gipsy Madge, and Miss Nelly Walters a lively maid servant.

Limerick.—Theatre Royal.—Manager, Mr. Robert Fogerty.—This week the boards here are occupied by the powerful Hoggan-Armadale Dramatic company in The Bells. As Mathias Mr. E. Hoggan-Armadale was excellent, and the rôle of Christian was efficiently acted by Mr. F. Wilberforce. Mons. Bossey had a clever interpreter in Mr. Cotton Holmes, and as Father Hermann Mr. David Beattie was exceptionally clever. The rôles of Fritz, Kasper, Dr. Franz, and the dual parts of judge and Jew, were capably played by Messrs. T. G. Westland, George E. Liddle, Hartley, and Mr. Arthur Rose. As Madame Mathias Miss Violet Macaree was pathetic, the rôle of Annette was delightfully portrayed by Miss Marion Spencer, and Lucille was in the artistic hands of Miss Elaine Grant.

Lincoln.—Royal.—Sole Proprietor, Mr. Frank King.—This week we have a return visit of The New Barmaid, by Mr. C. Edwardes' company. Mr. Leslie Austin is an excellent Captain Lovebury, Mr. James Grant creates great merriment as Col. Claymore, and the leading comedy parts are in the able hands of Messrs. Chas. Adeson, Alexander Loftus, and W. E. Chewd. Miss Winifred Preston is good as Lady Moultin, and a charming trio are Dora Heather, Brenda Louth, and Ethel Joy, as represented by Miss Violet Osmund, Miss Grafton, and Miss Amy Preston. There is a strong chorus.

Palace.—Sole Proprietor, Mr. Frank Macnaghten; Manager, Mr. Sydney Arthur.—Dronza, the marvellous talking head, is the principal turn, and is really a mystifying item; Helen Martin sings brilliantly; Rowland Hill and Harry Thurston score as comedians; Captain Slingeby's ventriloquism is extremely clever; the Olive Trio do well as singers and dancers; Daisy Morell sings ably; and Captain Cupid is the bright sketch presented by Geo. C. Doughty and company, the entertainment being wound up by Raymond's Bio-tableaux with new films.

Liverpool.—Royal Court Theatre.—Managing-Director, Mr. Robert Arthur; Acting-Manager, Mr. Arthur Lawrence.—A splendid reception has been accorded here to Mr. Martin Harvey and his company, playing to excellent business. On Monday evening The Corsican Brothers, charmingly staged, was presented, Mr. Harvey undertaking the rôles of Fabien and Louis dei Franchi. The weird story was followed with the closest attention, the audience at times being spellbound by the fascinating acting of the distinguished artist, who was seen to great advantage. Around him were able supporters. Miss Mary Rorke displayed dignity and tenderness as the mother, Madame Franchi; Mr. Vincent Sternroyd was impressive as Renaud; Mr. George Cooke handled the rôle of Baron Martelli with every care and satisfaction; a capital Montgiron came from Mr. Albert E. Raynor; as Colonna Mr. Fred Wright, sen., created a deal of amusement; Miss Coleridge played sweetly as Emilie de Lesparre; and Mrs. Alfred Mansfield proved a pleasant Meynard. The list of the week also comprised Boy O'Carroll, Hamlet, and The Only Way. At the fall of the curtain on Monday evening Mr. Harvey, in response to a loud call, made a few remarks.

Shakespeare Theatre, Ltd.—Manager and Secretary, Mr. John Gaffney.—An altogether excellent production of The Little Cherub, which makes its first appearance in this city, has been given here during the week. Mr. George Edwardes certainly sent a first-class company, while the staging and dresses earned general praise. Miss Queenie Leighton, who was in good form, made a charming Molly Montrose, acting and singing in a manner which earned for her several encores; the able Mr. J. Robert Hall was a lively Lord Congress, his sprightly dances being rapturously applauded; Mr. A. Longley displayed all his well-known quiet humour in the character of Algernon Southdown; Mr. Lennox Pawle made his audience roar with laughter in depicting the adventures of the Earl of Sanctobury; Miss Fanny Dango and Miss Valli Valli, as the daughters, sang and danced very tastefully; Mr. Fred Winn made an admirable Shingle; and other artists who distinguished themselves were Mr. Nelson Keys as Ethelbert. Mr. Colin Coop (Alderman Briggs), and Mr. Edwin Rutland (Mr. Grimble).

Rotunda Theatre.—Manager, Mr. M. Montgomery.—A return visit of The Ugliest Woman on Earth has done most satisfactory business here this week. Miss Beatrice Homer, in the title-rôle, acted with discretion, and earned well-merited applause; Mr. Philip Darien ably presented Jack Merriman, speaking his lines with clearness and effect; Mr. Charles Barratt proved eminently creditable as Antonio Luchesi; Mr. Leyton Cancellor made a despicable Hubert Gold; a deal of humour emanated from the efforts of Mr. Tubby Edlin as Tubby Herrick and Miss Nellie Jackson in the character of Aggie Brown; Miss Nell Oliver was an unscrupulous Rose Courtenay; Mr. W. Wallace-Aston submitted a truthful picture of a London hooligan, in the rôle of Raggles; Mr. Leonard Thackeray did the most with Dr. Carr; and Miss Margaret Watson acquitted herself well as Morita.

Lyric Theatre of Varieties.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Henry C. Arnold; Directors of Entertainments, Messrs. T. Barrasford and F. Willmot; Acting-Manager, Mr. Fred Coles. — A good programme is billed this week. Claude Emmett and company are heartily received in the sketch, Dick Turpin's Ride to York, wherein Claude gives a capital display; Moon and Morris are a laughable pair; the Four Kweeries are loudly applauded for their clever and mystifying feats; McCann's dogs do credit to their trainer; Bert Williams' turn as a ventriloquist is applauded; Helen Charles is a capital mimic; in the sketch I'm Coming Upstairs Alsopp and Beckwith are very laughable; and the Anidow Sisters are clever musicians.

Star Theatre.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. Harris Fineberg.—One of the most important bookings this popular place has ever had comes this week in the shape of Leah Kleschna, and the demand for seats has been very great. Messrs. Armitage and Leigh have certainly provided an excellent company, while the scenery is that which was used at the New Theatre, London. The public appreciation has consequently been of a gratifying character. Mr. Paul Belmore was never seen to better advantage, his Kleschna making a great impression; Miss Bessie Rignold thoroughly grasped the possibilities of Leah; Mr. William F. Grant made a dignified Paul Sylvaine; Mr. Campbell Goldsmid was a finished Schram; Mr. Hamilton Deane afforded the utmost satisfaction as Raoul Berton; Mr. Roland Daniel handled well the part of General Berton; and the rest of the cast lent valuable support.

Queen's Theatre.—Proprietor, Mr. Lingford Carson; Manager, Mr. Fred L. Arthur.—A return visit of The Golden Ladder has proved a strong attraction here. Miss Mary Austin gave a most meritorious representation of Lilian Grant; Mr. William Clayton infused a deal of earnestness into his portrait of the Rev. Frank Thornhill; Mr. E. Vivian Edmonds played with dramatic force as Michael Severn; Mr. Joseph Rowlands, a most humorous Samuel Peckaby, was ably assisted by Miss Mimi Edwards as Mrs. Peckaby; and Mr. E. G. Winsford made his Peranza stand out with telling prominence.

Royal Hippodrome. — Managing-Director, Mr. Thomas Barrasford.—Top of the bill here this week is George Gilbey, a comedian whose songs and patter are keenly relished; Hal Godfrey, with his amusing "educational problem," A Very Bad Boy, keeps his audience in a merry mood; Frank and Fred, a pair of smart comedy artists, earn loud applause; a much appreciated farcical episode, Barmaids, is provided by the clever Hodgson and Lowther company; Flo Cecil sings and dances very neatly; the correct playing of Mabel Kessler is an acceptable item; a smart all-round performance is provided by the Five Whiteleys, acrobats, wire walkers, and musicians; Gracie Taylor proves herself a charming comedienne; Arthur Reece has a number of good songs; the talking and singing of Harris and Worth, a lively pair of comedians, provoke endless laughter; and Martinetti and Grossi, novelty surprise artists, are also in the list. The Barrascope projects "Bill goes to an evening party."

New Parthenon. — Proprietor, Mr. Edwin W. Smith.—Fred Wyze and Ada Adna are prominent here this week, delighting everyone with their capitally-rendered operatic duets; Grapho and Jackson (Herbert and Billy) present a merry act, In a Restaurant; Bertha Duckett, a charming young burlesque artist, had a grand reception on her re-appearance, receiving encores for her singing and dancing; some taking songs came from Wat Tyler, descriptive vocalist; as a stump orator and negro comedian Billy Bowlby caused general laughter; and Alexander Royal sang several appreciated numbers. The Royal Bioscope showed some up-to-date pictures.

Royal Palace of Varieties. — Manager, Mr. M. Montgomery; Acting-Manager, Mr. Frank O'Toole.—The dramatic sketch A Woman's Love, given here this week by the "Royal" stock company, has proved popular. The humorous rôle of Solomon Hogg was in the capable hands of Mr. Percy Boucher; Mr. Sydney Grant did justice to the part of Sir Philip Grandleigh; an able Silas Grimm came from Mr. Cecil Ravenswood; Mr. E. D. Allen held the part of Alfred Grandleigh; Mr. Harry Tresham was powerful as Horace Fairbright; Mr. Robert Wilton played excellently as Bashem; Miss Florence Palmer gave full effect to Edith Grandleigh; and Miss Beryl Ravenswood made an impressive Miss Holbrook. The Royal Bioscope presented "The Unscrupulous Man" and other fine pictures.

Park Palace, Ltd. — Managing-Director, Mr Walter de Frece; Director of Entertainments, Mr. Fred Willmot.—Top here this week are Benson and Geoffreys, in their laughable sketch, Checkmated; Barney Stuart, a man of many parts, presents a smart ventriloquial absurdity, "The Judge"; some wonderful shooting is gone through by Winona and Captain King; Flo Wood sings several taking songs; some clever juggling is executed by the boy Massona; Will E. Haines acquits himself as a vocal character comedian; some quaint coon singing and dancing is provided by Amber Austa; and others who appear include Wallace Whitney, eccentric comedian; and Beatie Foster, serio vocalist. The Park Palace Bioscope has some pretty pictures.

Westminster.—Lessee, Mr. Fred B. Welsker; Acting-Manager, Mr. G. Montgomery.—An attractive programme is given at this popular hall this week, with the result that good business has been done. Principal are Cullen and Carthy, with Little Cluley, a trio who create continuous laughter; the Jackley Wonders, with the whistling comedian "George," provide a merry entertainment; Percy Farrimond, the Lancashire singing collier, has several capital songs; Adey Spencer renders some catchy pieces; dainty comediennes and dancers are the Sisters Brooks; as coloured duettists Liggins and Murlone give a pleasing turn; and Kisbey, the call boy, also appears.

Olympia, Ltd. — Manager, Mr. A. W. Young.—The always-popular Bella and Bijou head the bill here this week, and bring old and new favourites; a capital dramatic sketch, A Drummer of the 76th, produced by Matthew Brodie and company, meets with every approval, and wins loud applause; a smart musical trifle, The Spider and the Fly, is submitted by Talbot and Pearce; an uncommon turn, "Paper-picture making," showing much talent, comes from Playfair and Nikola; Cliff and his dog interest the audience immensely; R. H. Douglass, with his witticisms and character sketches, goes as strongly as ever; Charles Matthews, assisted by Miss Dorris Reece, gives a remarkable exhibition of jumping; the Picquays astonish everybody with their upside-down sand dancing; and Flo Esdaile, possessor of an excellent voice, renders some appreciated songs. The American Bioscope has several capital pictures.

Empire. — Proprietors, Moss' Empires, Ltd.—An acceptable and diversified bill of fare is offered here this week. The merry Mark Sheridan stands out prominently and meets with a grand reception for his funny songs and sayings; Tom Tindall and company provokes roars of laughter with their burlesque Behind the Footlights; juggling by the Debreans causes surprise; Albertine Melich shows a number of wonderfully well trained birds; an unusually clever wire act comes from Lucia and Viata; the singing and playing of the Three Dumonds gain much aplause; a most pleasing performance on the silver bells and chimes is given by Will Cornish; Fielding and Hull, medley vocalists, are a good turn; Gertrude Bradshaw renders several songs in pleasing style; and Frank Darwin, actor vocalist, also appears. The American Bioscope has fine pictures.

Haymarket.—Licensee, Mr. J. S. Childs.—Top of the bill here this week is Will Bingham with his Ju-jitsu wrestling; Mark Anthony causes a deal of laughter with his merry stories and mimicry; Edward Ind has several capital songs; Bella Leaburn, a smart comedienne, remains another week; Ben Evens, the singing blacksmith, affords much pleasure with his vocal efforts; Jim Hegarthy, a local favourite negro comedian, is as funny as ever; and the Silver Gleam prize band, still retained, proves an excellent turn.

Roscommon.—Lessee, Mr. Fred Willmot.—The popular Frank Caffrey is foremost here this week with his inimitable Irish songs; W. H. Downs, the coloured Australian ballad vocalist, has some taking numbers; as comedy duettists and dancers Urley and Mora acquit themselves creditably; Lilian Victoria, a rising young character vocal comedienne, makes a hit with her smart songs; Carney Bros, are a most capable couple of comedians and vocalists; some remarkable hand-balancing and staircase walking is shown by the Bonanzas; the Zano Bros. perform smart work, accompanied by comedy, on the triple bars; and Walker and Lake keep everyone in a good humour with their incessant patter. The Roscommon Bioscope has the latest picture, "The Village Witch."

Llandudno.—Prince's Theatre.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. C. R. Chaplin.—On Monday and Tuesday Mr. George Kirk and Miss Mary Neil presented Her Luck in London. As the Hon. Fitzgerald O'Connor, Mr. Chas. A. Leicester was a typical hero; Mr. Valentine Henry as Richard Lenowen (the villain) was all that could be desired; Jerry Gotobed was well played by Mr. J. Telly Dillsen; Miss Ada Roscoe as Madame Gabrielle gave a good impersonation; Miss Frances Bruce as Lilian Harborne was simplicity personified; Miss Mary Neil as Nellie Harborne was excellent.

Llanelly.—Royalty Theatre.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. Z. Andrews; Acting Manageress, Miss Alice Rocheforte.—Mr. Lingford Carson's company, in The Drama of Life, is here this week. The leading parts of Harry and Sylvia Beech are excellently undertaken by Mr. Edward M. Hamilton and Miss Kate Hallam; Mr. John J. Hooker is good as Walter Beech, as is also Mr. Harwood Roberts as Sir Dobson Wilde; the parts of Jack Lawton and David Crane are ably sustained by Messrs. H. Maxwell Payne and Sidney Fiennes; Mr. Edward Van Bienne, in the part of Count de Foi, is deserving of great praise for an artistic rendering. An old Llanelly favourite in the person of Miss Nellie Birchenough does splendidly as Betty Black; Miss Florence French is good as Lady Wilde, and Miss Elsie May as Little Robert Beech is also excellent.

Longton.—Queen's Theatre.—Manager, Mr. H. L. Howard.—Monte Cristo is presented this week by Mr. Junius Booth's company. The interesting features in the play were maintained throughout in unflagging manner by Mr. Junius Booth as Edmond Dantes (Monte Cristo), Mr. E. H. Templeton as M. Nortier, Mr. Walter Huron as M. Villefort. Mr. J. W. Braithwaite as Caderousse, Miss Emma Robberds as La Carconte, and Miss Clare Elstob as Mercedes.

Loughborough.—New Theatre Royal.—Proprietors, Messrs. W. Payne Seddon and George Robertson; Acting-Manager, Mr. Lindsey Edwards.—Mr. E. Lockwood's company in Sergeant Brue is on a welcome return visit. Mr. J. Harold Carson in the title-rôle is screamingly funny; Mr. Albert James's embodiment of Crookie Scrubbs is laughable; as Michael Brue, Mr. Robert Selby is successful; Miss Florence Spurgeon as Aurora Brue acts in a graceful manner, her songs being well received; and the Lady Bickenhall of Miss Raydon Dallas is charming and clever.

Lowestoft. — Marina. — Managing-Director, Mr. E. A. Smith.—Mr. J. A. Campbell's company, in The Sin of Her Childhood, is the attraction this week. Mr. Chas. Fancourt is highly successful as the Vicar of Northfield, and Mr. Austin Milroy is equally praiseworthy in doubling the arduous characters of Stephen Haysel and Hy. Grainger. Capt. John Thornton is ably represented by Mr. C. W. Hulse; Miss Madge Devereux wins the sympathies of all for her careful study of Mary Haysel; little Ivy Rochfort does exceedingly well as Eric Dugdale, and able assistance is rendered by Messrs. Hugh Brady, Sam Edwards, and the Misses J. D. Hicks and Nellie Hook.

Luton.—Grand Theatre.—Proprietor, Mr. E. Graham Falcon; Business-Manager, Mr. L. J. Beard.—A visit of Mr. Edward Marris's No. 1 company, with the successful play, As Midnight Chimes, opened to a good house on Monday evening. The eccentricities of Tat Spavvin, as portrayed by Witty Watty Walton, are most diverting, and keep the audience in continual merriment; Mr. Leonard Dalrymple sustains the part of Nat Wilson, a coastguard man, in a very forcible manner, and Mr. Belmore is well placed as Ezra Gamble; Luke Dezzard, Dave Stannard, and Capt. Trevethick are effectively represented by Messrs. Percy Maitland, Lewis, Leslie, and H. B. Peppin respectively; Suzette, a French maid, is in the able hands of Miss Madge Beresford, who very soon made herself a favourite, and Miss Maya Hart, as Zamora, a Hindu girl, acts with much charm; Miss Jessie Harwood as Stannard's wife and Miss Denville, as his son win great credit in their respective parts.

Macclesfield.—The Royal.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. W. K. Gatley.—A capital presentation of The Best Woman in the World was given here on Monday by Mr. Gordon's company. Mr. A. Curson as Sir Arthur was exceedingly good; Mr. B. Mitchell was a powerful Dudley Stewart; Mr. T. Smyth as Fitzherbert gave an excellent portrayal; Mr. J. V. Gordon as Solomon was satisfactory; Mr. J. W. Boyling admirably impersonated the part of Richard Thorpe; Mr. G. Lee was an acceptable Brooks; Miss Lily Annesley was charming as Muriel Clifford; Mr. Phyllis Esdaile was a satisfactory Trixie; Miss Marion Herbert a capital Grace Beale; and Maggie French was good as Mary.

Empire.—Sole Lessee, Miss N. Harrell-Palmer; General-Manager, Mr. J. Rolmaz.—Opening for the first time on Saturday evening, the place was packed to the utmost extent, many having to be refused admittance. The star turn is undoubtedly Tom White's Arabs, who give an amusing comedy act; the Two Deroneys, in Fun in a Garden, cause roars of laughter; Miss Pattie Burton, soprano, meets with a good reception; Miss Cynthia Carrington, coon comedienne, is pleasing; Sam Paul, singing actor, deserves special praise; another smart turn is the Two Musical Forsyths; Two Lindsay Sisters, dancing duettists, are a good turn; and the Harrell-Palmer, cosmopolitan part songs; P. J. Wyman, sensational skater; Durney, globe walker; and the Girl in a Trance are other attractive features of the programme.

Maidenhead.—Town Hall.—Secretary, the Town Clerk.—Mr. G. W. Bowes is to be congratulated on bringing here on Tuesday such an excellent show as Mr. Mouillot's company in The Blue Moon. Mr. Victor Wallace puts much "gusto" into the rôle of the Major; Jack Ormsby and Bobbie Scott were well represented by Messrs. Arthur Radcliff and Basil Mercer; Charlie Taylor was an entertaining personage as played by Mr. Charles Stephenson; and the Moolraj of Mr. Ainslie Burton was mirth-provoking in the extreme. Miss Dorma Morgan did well as Evelyn Ormsby; Miss May Audrey was bright, and danced well as Millicent Leroy; and Mlle. Marguerite Naudin was picturesque as Chandra Nil.

Manchester.—Theatre Royal, Ltd.—Acting-Manager, Mr. Edmonstone Shirra.—A good house here on Monday watched with great interest the performance of Hall Caine's successful drama, The Prodigal Son. The play is distinctly of the tearful order, and furnished excellent opportunities for quite a number of the characters to score in emotional scenes. Mr. Norman Partridge and Mr. Herbert Hewetson are well suited to the rôles of Oscar and Magnus Stephenson, and Mr. Henry George gives a finished depiction of Stephen Magnusson. Miss Lily Hall Caine has special chances in the dual rôles of Thora and Elin, and acquits herself well; while as Anna, Stephen's wife, Miss Alma Murray is entirely successful. Miss Cecil Cromwell as Helga, and Miss Mima Renouf as Margaret Neilson, are also commendable; and quite satisfactory is the Oscar Neilson of Mr. Fred Epitoux. The remaining parts are all capably filled, and the staging is exceptionally fine.

Prince's Theatre, Ltd.—Acting-Manager, Mr. George Lee.—Considerable interest was attached to the presentment here on Monday of Mr. Robert Courteneidge's successful musical play, The Blue Moon, which brought also a number of local favourites in the cast. The piece is bright, clever, and tuneful, and there is not a dull moment from first to last. In the title part Miss Florence Smithson is very dainty and charming, and her songs are invariably well received, as they deserve to be, for their rendering and their intrinsic musical quality. Mr. Edward Lewis as Modraj is, of course, highly entertaining, and as Private Taylor Mr. Bert Gilbert is always smart and amusing. Mr. Herbert Clayton as Captain Jack Ormsby has not so much to do as might be wished, but he fills the part so far as it goes to perfection. Mr. George Mudie, jun., is a capital Bobby Scott, and Mr. Leslie Gaze makes a lively Major Callabone. Miss Daisy Revett is a clever and pleasing Evelyn Ormsby, and as Millicent Leroy, Evelyn's maid, Miss Lulu Valli adds to her reputation. Others well worthy of commendation are Mr. Thomas Holland as the Prince, Miss Mabel Lorrei as Lady Brabasham, and Miss Olive Crellin as Oma. The chorus and staging are all that could be desired.

Gaiety Theatre, Ltd.—Acting-Manager, Mr. H. M. Thorburn.—Amorelle, always popular here, drew a good house to this theatre on Monday. Miss Stella Gastelle retains her part as "Ripples," and is as charming and successful as ever. Dr. Crow is played by Mr. W. H. Powell, who has already made his mark in local pantomime, and who achieves quite a success in his impersonation of the eccentric charlatan. Another marked success is the Dotard of Mr. Fred Seymour, whose characterisation is admirable. Capital work is done also by Mr. Aubrey Carr as Jules, Mr. Frederick Hobbs as François, Miss Kitty Cavendish as Lesbia, and Miss Avis Grahame as Marina; while Mr. William Griffin presents a neat and clever impersonation of the Count de Cideaux. Chorus and orchestra add to the effect.

Royal Osborne Theatre.—Manager, Mr. W. B. Broadhead; Acting-Manager, Mr. P. B. Broadhead.—Under Two Flags, played by Miss Ida Molesworth and Mr. Mark Blow's company at the Grand Junction theatre last week, is attracting good houses to this theatre.

Metropole Theatre.—Manager, Mr. W. B. Broadhead; Acting-Manager, Mr. P. B. Broadhead.—Dinah Morris and company in their successful musical comedy, The Lost Coon, top the bill here this week. Prominent also is H. O. Wills, an excellent comedian; while Keith and Merson submit a capital novelty act, Crossing the Alps. Other enjoyable turns are offered by Johnson and Best, in a comic act; Cailler, a strong man; T. E. Johnstone, actor vocalist; Mary M. Glenn, a pleasing singer; France and Francis, acrobatic comedians; and the Weimars, in a lively comedy act.

St. James's Theatre.—Lessee, Mr. R. Flanagan; Manager, Mr. Gus Flanagan.—A return visit of The Throne of Terror is to be recorded here this week. It is played by a clever company, headed by Mr. William J. Miller, who gives a powerful rendering of Robespierre, while Miss Katherine Maude Davies adds a pleasing and impressive performance as Marguerite Roquefort. Mr. Roy Milton makes a satisfactory De Lisle, the young patriot; and Miss Ethel Lanyan-Maude is also provided with a telling part. Acceptable humorous relief is furnished by Mr. Bert Ellis as Joujou and Miss Eva Norman as Peppietta.

Grand Junction Theatre.—Manager, Mr. W. B. Broadhead; Acting-Manager, Mr. P. B. Broadhead.—Last week's attraction at the Royal Osborne Theatre, The Little Breadwinner, played by Mr. J. A. Campbell's company, is staged here this week.

Empire.—Managing-Director, Mr. Oswald Stoll; Acting-Manager, Mr. H. Hall.—A fine turn here this week is the playing of the Wingates Prize Band, a truly excellent combination. The Achmed Ibrahim troupe of whirlwind acrobats are also here in their surprising feats; and clever turns are added by Bob Hamilton, a really amusing Scotch comedian; La Danseuse, a smart juvenile dancer; Lively Lily Langtry, the brisk comedienne; Boyd and Gilfain, in a clever burlesque sketch; Bennett and Martell, quaint comedians; Wyndham and Kitty, who give a remarkable performance on the wire; and Randall's Middies and Maids, in a clever vocal scena. The pictures are, as usual, very good.

Palace.—General Manager, Mr. Walter De Frece; Secretary, Mr. Peter Watson; Acting Manager, Mr. Nelson Barry.—This week's big attraction here is Harry Lauder, whose comicalities are filling the house at every show. Pringle and Piddock's company in The Romany King, a clever musical sketch, is also a good turn; and Dan Thomas, "dame" comedian, works well up to his reputation. Pleasing business is added by Clive and Clark, black-and-white comedians; the Bros. Bright, accomplished gymnasts; Keir and Kempton, vocal duettists; George Antill, the evening shadow; Mlle. Oura, a charming equilibrist; and Gladys Huxley, "chic" comedienne. The latest events are portrayed by the Palace Pictures.

Hippodrome.—Managing-Director, Mr. Oswald Stoll; Acting-Manager, Mr. E. P. Morgan.—Mr. Hengler's spectacular pantomime absurdity, entitled Harum-Scarum, tops the bill here this week, the whole of the company working very hard. Will H. Sloan creates much laughter in a capital comedy sketch, The Plumber; charming Gwennie Hasto sings and dances nicely; Datas has a marvellous memory; and some excellent dancing is done by the Brothers Dion. James H. Jee goes through a wonderful performance on the wire; Norman and Saxon, operatic duettists, are well received; and Alburtus and Bartram are clever and amusing in a club-swing speciality. Two vocal items are contributed by the choir, and enjoyable pictures are depicted on the Bioscope.

Tivoli. — Managing-Director, Mr. Charles A. Wilkes; Acting-Manager, Mr. Arthur B. Wilkes.—Harry Rogers, assisted by Lillian Dundas, is the attraction here this week, and is seen to advantage in a dramatic episode entitled Told in a Flat. Tom Woottwell, eccentric comedian, makes a big hit with a capital song, "The Little Shirt My Mother Made for Me"; Lilian Boanas, Australian vocalist, sings well; the Raymond Trio are good in a musical and dancing act; Miss Omega is clever on the wire; and Phil Sefton is a first-rate descriptive vocalist. Smart turns are also those of the O'Natis troupe of Algerian jugglers; Patty McCarthy, comedienne; Emily Lyndale, burlesque artist; and Phil Rabey, comedian. Raymond's Vivagraph Pictures complete the bill.

King's, Longsight.—Manager, Mr. W. B. Broadhead; Acting-Manager, Mr. P. B. Broadhead.—After a most successful week at the Manchester Hippodrome, Mr. Sidney Bacon introduces The Duchess of Tooting to the patrons of the King's, much to their delight. The Gondoliers (in costume) are excellent singers, and are well received; the Saletos offer a graceful and clever head and hand balancing act; Percy Curry, comedian, proves very popular; Dolly Denver is a smart buck dancer; Jas. Alston makes a hit with his funny parody, "Starve Her, Jo"; Little Beattie is a clever comedienne and dancer; and highly amusing are the Errolls in a smart act, including some marvellous leaping. "Saved by Rover" is the subject of the Bioscope.

Queen's Park Hippodrome.—Manager, Mr. W. B. Broadhead; Acting-Manager, Mr. P. B. Broadhead.—Billy Williams, a capital comedian, is the attraction here this week, and meets with a flattering reception. A dramatic episode, Kismet, is presented with success by Oscar Luck's company, including Miss Mary Vaughan, Miss Cissie Murdoch, and Mr. Heaton Grey. Edie Grey and Coons sing in capital style; Smith and Johnson, coloured duo, are entertaining; and Lachie Thompson's Top-Weights (Tom and Ned) are smart boy athletes, who wrestle, box, and club-swing. The Seddons, lady juggler, and comic waiter, are clever and amusing; Avon and Crest are good in a comedy act; and Little Ada Merry, dancer and comedienne; Harry Village, comedian; and "The Missing Legacy," shown on the Bioscope, complete a good entertainment.

Hippodrome, Hulme.—Manager, Mr. W. B. Broadhead; Acting-Manager, Mr. P. B. Broadhead.—The Eight Lancashire Lads are the top "star" attraction here this week, and their excellent singing and dancing are highly OXFORD PALACE.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. Alf. Graham.—A varied and interesting programme is submitted here this week. The musical act by the Four Jumels is a feature of the programme. Alf Gibson proves himself a favourite comedian, and Ross and Grayson provide a clever singing and dancing turn. Arthur Bromley and Ada Fontein cause much merriment in their comic operetta, A Musical Birthday; and Chas. Sloman, comedian, does well. Other acceptable items are provided by Agnes Hanson, comedienne; The Cosmans in their comedy act, and the Palascope.

MORECAMBE. — ROYALTY THEATRE AND OPERA HOUSE. — Sole Lessee, Lieut. Julian Malvern; General-Manager, Mr. Chas. M. Julian.—Messrs. Fred J. Webb and Wilson Benge's company has been appearing with success in The Two Hussars. Mr. Webb has proved an able Capt. Villiers, and Mr. Benge has equally well sustained the part of Harry Alford. Mr. J. Stuart has succeeded as Col. Manners; Miss Danvers-Smith has had a suitable part in Ellen Maythorne, and as the boy Gunstock in the later acts she played with spirit. Other parts have been well sustained by Messrs. Louis Stanton, R. Bell, G. Paradis, and Misses Sadie Smith and Lallah Price.

MOTHERWELL. — NEW CENTURY THEATRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. R. C. Buchanan; Resident-Manager, Mr. Reginald Grant.—Messrs. G. M. Polini and Austin Melford's company is this week appearing in the ever-popular play, The Silver King. Wilfred Denver is well acted by Mr. Fred D. Daviss, a young actor of merit; Nellie Denver is admirably sustained by Miss Daisy Scudamore, and the child part is played in a charming and most natural manner by little Miss Flossie Hale Daviss. Mr. T. St. George Lowther as the Spider is the embodiment of polished villainy, and his confederates, Combe, Corket, and Cripps, are well sustained by Messrs. Arthur Wright, A. Hornby Warburton, and A. Warliss Lindon; Miss Dorothy Radford makes the most of her opportunities as Olive Skinner; Mr. Edward J. George contributes an excellent piece of character acting as Jaikes.

NELSON.—NEW GRAND THEATRE.—Lessee and Manageress, Mrs. T. Greenwod Croft; Business-Manager, Mr. George E. Mudd.—The Love that Women Desire, presented by Mr. G. Carlton Wallace and powerful company, is here this week. Mr. J. O. Stewart gives a clever impersonation of Squire Abingdon; Mr. G. Carlton Wallace, in the character of Richard Abingdon, deserves the highest praise. Mr. Fred Lloyd gives a fine portrayal of Philip Carnaby; Mr. Leonard Montgomery as Frank Hardy, the outcast, does some really good work; Mr. Jno. Hignett ably sustains the part of Dennis O'Rourke; Mr. J. W. Wilkinson makes a typical P.c. Sowerberry; Mr. Gilson Brooke is good as Dr. Brandeth; Mr. Hugh Wallace ably takes the part of Rev. Arnold Catherine. Miss Lalla Stanhope is responsible for the part of Sybil Thornburn, which she plays to everybody's satisfaction; Miss Alice N. Livesey is to be commended for her representation of Madge Abingdon; Miss N. Griffiths does well in the rôle of Mariquinta, an Indian maiden; Miss Nita Imeson is amusing as Pattie Swift.

NEWARK.—IMPERIAL THEATRE.—During this week Mr. J. H. Clyndes, supported by his Royal Revenge company, has been fulfilling a special engagement here. In the dual rôle of Estevan Alverez and Pedro de Castro, Mr. Clyndes was heartily received. Miss Aimée Grattan Clyndes as Cora Casilda played in truly artistic style; Miss Enid Edoni interpreted Inez Alverez with much success, and Mr. Fred Ingleby as an old miser was most effective; Mr. Geo. Foster made a dashing young soldier. Able performances were given by Mr. A. F. Dudley as Azan Ben Musid and Count Ulric Uzeda, two very different rôles. Dignity marked the deportment of Miss Ethel Whiteley as the lady superior of the convent, and of Mr. Leslie Parker as the King's Confessor. Mr. H. W. Bradford was well placed as the King of Spain. Comedy figured prominently, and was in the capable hands of Mr. Walter Kenion and Miss Emmeline Roselle.

NEWCASTLE-ON-TYNE.—TYNE THEATRE AND OPERA HOUSE.—Managing Director, Mr. F. W. Wyndham; Business-Manager, Mr. F. C. Sutcliffe. —Mr. George Dance's company in A Country Girl is always a favourite with audiences here, and another visit from this sparkling melodious comedy shows that it has by no means exhausted its powers to attract. Mr. Charles Walenn is the life and soul of the performance as the irrepressible Barry, singing, acting, and dancing throughout with great success; Mr. Percy Carr is very acceptable as Geoffrey Challoner; Miss Addie Lennard, as Madame Sophie, ably assists Mr. Walenn in his duets, acting and singing with great vivacity and charm; as the unconventional Nan Miss Maisie Gay is excellent, her assumption of the country dialect being admirable; Miss Winnie O'Connor uses her fine voice to advantage as Princess Mehelanah; the dignified Rajah of Bhong is well sustained by Mr. St. John Hammond; and Mr. J. C. Graves does all that is possible in the rôle of Sir Joseph Verity, whose son, Douglas Verity, is also ably played by Mr. Robert Corray. Miss Catherine Ronayne makes a stately Lady Ancaster. Other members of the company include Mr. F. W. Pedgrift (Granfer Mummery), Mr. Percy Corray (Lord Ancaster), Miss Florence Linton (Miss Carruthers), Miss Violet Worth (Miss Egerton), Miss Ena Carruthers (Mrs. Powyscourt), Miss Violet Wake (Miss Courtly).

THEATRE ROYAL. — Managing - Director, Mr. Robert Arthur; Acting-Manager, Mr. F. Teale Lingham.—Mr. and Mrs. Kendal and company are paying a welcome visit here this week, their répertoire, including The Elder Miss Blossom and The Ironmaster, two old favourites, and The Housekeeper and A Tight Corner, two plays new to Newcastle playgoers. On Monday evening The Elder Miss Blossom was staged, the parts of Andrew Quick, F.R.S., and Dorothy Blossom being played with splendid naturalness and artistic discretion by Mr. and Mrs. Kendal; Mr. Ernest Hendrie and Mr. Metcalfe Wood, the joint-authors of the comedy, were excellent as bluff old Christopher Blossom and Withers, the valet, respectively; Mr. Bassett Roe was a breezy Twentyman; and Miss Moore-Lane imparted rare grace and charm to the rôle of Sophie Blossom; as the golfing curate and lover, Mr. Maurice J. Toke fulfilled his part well; and other characters were ably taken by Mr. R. Burnett, Mr. W. M. Rutherford, Mr. A. B. Tapping, and Miss Kate Bishop.

PALACE THEATRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. T. W. Rowe; Business-Manager, Mr. E. B. Clarke.—Mr. G. R. Sims's play, For Life—and After, performed by Hardie and Von Leer's company, is paying a visit here this week. Mr. Vernon Sansbury acts with great success the part of Richard Grey; Miss Grace Heywood, as Marion Grey, displays great feeling and power in that rôle; Mr. Charles Osborne is good as Rube Hexlam; and Mr. Sidney Vautier is a life-like surgeon as Gilbert O'Neil. The comedy element is supplied by Mr. Chris Mason as Joe Grimfed; Miss Muriel Dean was clever as Doris Grey; Mr. Henry Hare, Miss Barnwell, Miss Vayne, also do well in their respective parts. The scenes, which include Henley Regatta and Epsom Downs on Derby Day, are extremely effective.

GRAND THEATRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. Sydney Bacon.—The romantic drama, A Warning to Women, occupies the boards this week. The author, Mr. C. Watson Mill, in the chief part of Dr. Marcus Bread gives a fine representation of the rôle; Miss Rosalind Tate acts with great power as Moira Kennion; Mr. Howell Travis is clever in the rôle of Shaun, the wandering minstrel; and Mr. Norman B. Cannon is admirable as Fergus McNaughton; Mr. Henry Rutland ably sustains the part of Squire Kennion; Mr. Henry P. Kennedy makes a comical Mike McQuade; Miss Edith Rutland, as the cripple, Miles O'More, is pleasing; and Miss Emmie Barton is a charming Sheila Kennion.

EMPIRE THEATRE.—Proprietors, Moss' Empires, Ltd.; Managing-Director, Mr. Richard Thornton; Resident-Manager, Mr. George Andrews. — The Fighting Parson, which heads the bill here this week, owes its popularity to the able manner in which it is played by Mr. George Gray and company; Ben Albert scores with his funny melodies; Walter Curtis is a comedian rapidly coming to the front, and is a great success; the Sisters Finney performed wonders under water in a tank; the Maples are a couple of expert dancers, who introduce a novel method of waltzing; while the Eight of Hearts give a capital ballet performance. Henri Taylor Trio give a smart performance; and Maxwell and Francis in their comedy act score heavily; E. J. Sheldon makes a quaint comedian; and the Bioscope picture, "The Stolen Bride, is distinctly funny.

PAVILION THEATRE. — Managing-Director, Mr. Thomas Barrasford; Manager, Mr. Will H. Boardman.—The management of this popular house have to regret the non-appearance, through serious indisposition, of Hetty King, but have none the less an excellent bill to place before their patrons. The clever manipulation of the cornet and other brass instruments by Alice Raymond is an item that is well appreciated; the Lavalls' performance, in the aerial trapeze line is novel, and as sensational as one could wish; Harry Rogerson, comedian, scores well; Damerel Rutland and company appear in their sketch, A Housefull, and never fail to evoke roars of laughter. In another sketch Johnny Holland has an opportunity of displaying his humorous ability, and he has excellent support from his small company; Gus Garrick gives a laughable portrayal of people seen on the stage; Tatton Hall is another good comedian; the Valdos, in their comic absurdity, and Babs Lloyd, a miniature artist, complete the bill

NEWPORT.—LYCEUM.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Sydney Cooper.—Mr. Arthur Bourchier's company, under the management of Messrs. Silvanus Dauncey and M. V. Leveaux, with The Walls of Jericho, is paying a return visit here this week. As Jack Frobisher Mr. Herbert Bunston contributes a really fine piece of acting; Mr. George A. Brandram as Hankey Bannister displays the breeziness that the part demands; and Miss Florence Jackson as Lady Alethea scores her greatest success in the reconciliation scene; Miss Molly Carlton as Lady Lucy is in turn serious and amusing; Mr. Cyril Baleine gives a fine representation of the Marquis of Steventon; and Miss Lydia Busch's portrayal of Lady Westerby is touching and impressive.

EMPIRE.—Moss' Empires, Ltd.—Managing-Director, Mr. O. Stoll.—Mr. Fred Karno's The Mumming Birds heads the bill here, and is well received; Dan Crawley earns encores with his catchy songs; and Silent Tait, eccentric wizard, presents a good comic conjuring turn; the Molasso Quartette in whirlwind dancing are clever; Lilian Bishop is a clever male impersonator; Jack Charman sings a couple of acceptable songs; and Lilian Lea secures a well-earned encore for an operatic selection; the Bioscope completes the bill.

NORTHAMPTON.—OPERA HOUSE.—Proprietors and Managers, Mr. Milton Bode and Mr. Edward Compton; Resident-Manager, Mr. Frank Seddon.—Mr. J. Bannister Howard's No. 1 company in Florodora is here this week, and the performances are as attractive as ever. Mr. Duley Cooper (Tweedlepunch) is with us once again, and his clever local allusions get home every time; Mr. Jos. R. Tate is good as Cyrus W. Gilfain; Mr. R. Courtier Dutton is an excellent Frank Abercoed; Mr. Harold Perry scores as Captain Arthur Donegal; Mr. Edwin Oxlee is a capital Leandro; Miss Edith Housley gives an effective representation of Lady Holyrood; Miss Gladys Elvey wins favour as Dolores, whilst her singing and dancing are full of vivacity; Miss Nellie Bowman is a charming Angela Gilfain, and her incidental songs and dances are well received. The chorus and orchestra are under the able baton of Mr. B. J. Paterson.

PALACE OF VARIETIES.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. Fred H. Anderson; Representative, Mr. Edwin C. Jazon; Acting-Manager, Mr. T. A. Evans.—The Sisters Lunelle, who gain great applause, are two refined and dashing soubrettes and dancers of ability; Walker and May, coloured comedians and dancers, also secure a hearty reception; Arthur Royce is an eccentric comedian with some funny patter and tricks on the piano; Frankie is a clever boy juggler; A. Woodville, swell comedian, is well received; Madge Morley and company give an amusing comedy sketch, After the Races; Floretti and May appear in a jumping act; and C. Vincent shows some excellent Biograph pictures.

NORTH SHIELDS.—THEATRE ROYAL. — Lessee and Manager, Mr. Arthur Jefferson; Acting-Manager, Mr. Horace Lee.—An admirable programme has been presented here this week by Mr. Edmund Tearle and Miss Kate Clinton's company, which opened on Monday with the ever-popular Virginius. Mr. Tearle's portrayal of Virginius was highly appreciated; Mr. G. F. Greig as Appius Claudius deserved the highest praise; Mr. Clifford Marle was clever as Caius Claudius; Mr. R. H. Lace was good as Marcus, and Mr. R. H. Stephenson made the most of Julius; Mr. Sidney Leyton scored as Lucius, and Mr. Frank Fuller gave a satisfactory impersonation of Numitorius. As Virginia, Miss Esther Tearle was seen to great advantage; Miss Mary Campbell was an able exponent of Servia, and Miss Vera George was pleasing as Ishlar. Hamlet, The Ticket of Leave Man, Ingomar, Jeanie Deans, and The Octoroon have also been presented during the engagement.

CENTRAL PALACE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Wm. Mould.—Mr. Raleigh Abraham's company, with Fun in a Pawnshop, tops the bill here, and is well received. Primavesi, juggler, performs some clever feats, and the Lizette Troupe of acrobats are smart; Mr. Percy Hannen, a young baritone, renders his songs in good style; Miss Molly Augarde, vocalist, goes well; and Mr. Fred Horsfal, double-voiced vocalist and mimic, and the Bio-Photoscope are popular.

NORTHWICH.—CENTRAL THEATRE.—Proprietress, Mrs. S. Golden; Secretary, Miss E. Golden.—Miss Evelyn Moore's company in The Crimson Club is this week occupying the boards of the local theatre. Miss Florence Delmar gives a fine reading of the part of Julia Marsden. Mr. Fred G. Kay does well as Sir Philip Garside; Mr. Will Shaw is a manly Richard Fenton; Mr. Percy Shaw, the whistling comedian, appeared as Reginald Adolphus Garside; and is well supported in his efforts by Miss Kitty Elliott as Sophonisba. Miss Sydney Barrasford, as Muriel Lockwood, is a charming heroine.

NORWICH.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Sole Manager, Mr. Fred Morgan.—Messrs. H. Armitage and Arthur Leigh's company occupy the boards this week, and is giving a capital rendering of Lucky Durham. Mr. Edward Kennedy as John Durham acts well. Mr. Robert Forsyth as Lord Mountfallon is very good, whilst Mr. Arthur Leigh as Reginald Steighton is very amusing. Mr. A. E. Walker is successful as Mr. Allerton, and Mr. W. V. Simmons-Lynn does well as Arthur Walcome. Mr. W. F. Clitheroe ably assits as the Israelitish money-lender. Miss Alice Esther Belmore is successful as Helen Vallerbon, and Miss Florence Dulhuntz deserves praise as the Hon. Margaret Steighton. Miss Louisa Gourlay most charmingly acts the part of Mrs. Durham, and is well received throughout.

HIPPODROME.—Proprietors, Messrs. E. H Bostock and F. W. Fitt; Manager, Mr. Councillor, F. W. Fitt.—An excellent and attractive programme is presented, it being anniversary week at this popular place of amusement. Foremost among the artists is Lottie Lennox, with her pleasing songs; the Lukushima Troupe of Japanese are no strangers here, and fully sustain their reputation; Harold Montague's Vagabonds as strolling players of bygone days are well received; Capt. Devereux's dogs, with their marvellous training and intelligence, are interesting; Dolly Harmer is a pleasing comedienne; whilst the Vikereys are dexterous and accomplished banjoists. Fred Curran, comedian, and Grant and Allen, burlesque comedians, with the Hippodrome Bioscope, complete a capital programme.

NOTTINGHAM.—THEATRE ROYAL. — Managing Director, Mr. Robt. Arthur; Acting-Manager, Mr. Howard Finney.—Mr. Popple is presented this week by Mr. Charles Macdona's company. Mr. G. P. Huntley as Freddy Popple is the life and soul of the piece, his effervescing humour, bubbling at all points, provoking the audience to genuinely unrestrained laughter. Miss Millie Legarde plays La Bolero with admirable piquancy and coquettishness and sings with dainty effect. Miss Eva Kelly appears as the American girl, vocalising with ability and spirit. Miss Kate Forster capitally sustains the zealous Mrs. Doring, and Miss Ella Daincourt smartly acts the tearful Mrs. Hennay, her songs also winning general favour. Mr Arthur Grover as Jacques Kenyon displays his cultured voice in a couple of songs, and Mr. Basil S. Foster entirely grasps the humour of his part as Norman Popple. Mr. C. M. Daly gives a diverting performance of Platt, and droll representations of George Hennay and Henry Doring are furnished by Messrs. Sydney Young and James Stephenson respectively. A vivid display of colouring is seen in the dance of the "Scarlet Runners," a bright and alert bevy of girls, and Mr. Julian Rutt's augmented orchestra do full justice to the music.

GRAND THEATRE.—Manager, Mr. Charles P. Cooke. —Excellent houses are this week welcoming Mr. James Willard's company in the exciting production, A Woman's Pluck. Mr. Austin Mortimer essays the gentlemanly villain, Dick Darrell, with conspicuous success; Miss Grace Lester plays Grace Daremont with a brightness and energy that gain her many expressions of approval; Miss Violet Carr portrays the heroine, Jessie Pope, in a quiet and refined manner; and Matthew Pope is excellently pictured by Mr. Harry Emerson. Mr. John Campling is thoroughly effective as the senile old General, and Miss Tina Shaw causes hearty laughter by her assumption of Bertie Daredevil, Mr. Dicky Bird as Roger Pippin and Miss Nellie Freeland as Ophelia Pippin add considerably to the hilarity, and good work is also shown by Misses Helen Elmar, Kitty Emmerson, Margaret Smart, and Messrs. Frank Etheridge, H. T. Wood, and Fred Norburn.

EMPIRE THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—Managing-Director, Mr. Oswald Stoll; Acting-Manager, Mr. Charles H. Bowmaker.—Ancilotti presents a cleverly-trained dog in a thought-reading entertainment, which secures a favourable reception. A charming number is provided by the Scottish Meisters, who display a good quality of voice, with some quiet humour that wins general approval. Mount and Correlli contribute an attractive "turn," the gentleman vocalising with considerable skill. The ventriloquism of Fred Russell and his amusing patter compel hearty laughter, and the quaint mannerisms of George Formby are another source of hilarity. The acrobatic dancing of the Three Amarantha leaves nothing to be desired, and the Barowsky Trio neatly execute some gymnastic feats. Mark Melford and company submit a sketch that provides several merry moments, and the programme is further enlivened by Madge May, comedienne, Little Ganty, and the American Bioscope.

NUNEATON.—PRINCE OF WALES' THEATRE AND ENTERTAINMENTS CO., LTD. — Managing-Director, Mr. A. F. Cross; Acting-Manager, Mr. Walter J. R. Bryan.—Mr. Edward Graham-Falcon's company is occupying the boards here this week with Blue Bell in Fairyland. Miss Lily Eyton gives a very winning portrayal of Blue Bell; Miss Vera Vizard sings and acts capably as Blue Bell's good Fairy; Mab and Winnie are capably impersonated by Miss Maud Harris and Miss Rena Robertson; Mr. Lawrence Emery submits a pleasing conception of Dickie; Mr. Frank Lennard is good as Mr. Joplin; and Messrs. Harry Vernon and W. L. Clement cause an amount of fun as the two footmen. The chorus is a strong one, the music bright and catchy, and the scenery and effects are above the average.

OLDHAM.—EMPIRE THEATRE.—General Manager, Mr. E. Dottridge; Assistant Manager, Mr. J. Hulme.—A well filled house welcomed The Christian on Monday evening on a return visit, and Mr. Wentworth Croke's company gave a capital performance. Miss Grace Chalmers submitted an excellent rendering of the part of Glory Quayle, Mr. Frank Tennant was an admirable exponent of the exacting rôle of John Storm, Mr. F. Scarth was a very good Lord Robert Ure, and Mr. W. Briscoe Owen portrayed Horatio Drake in a capital manner. Miss Vashti Wellborne scored as Polly Love, and Miss Molly Hayden made the most of Mrs. Callander. Mr. Chas. E. Dering did well as the Archbishop Wealthy, as did also Mr. Wilfred Noy as Brother Paul. Mr. C. Hill was successful as Parson Quayle, and Mr. Edward Ling was good as Father Lamplugh. The remaining characters were ably played by Misses Dudley, White, Rokeby, Lee, and Weir, and Messrs. Conway Pounds and Kingston.

COLOSSEUM. — Manager, Mr. W. Eastwood.—Mr. Augustine Knight opened here on Monday with the sensational drama, The Assassin, and met with a good reception. Included in a first-class company are Miss Ella Vane, who appears in the title-rôle as Countess Wanda, and she makes an admirable foil to the scoundrelly Prince Demetri, well portrayed by Mr. Knight. Mr. E. E. Ashby is a manly hero as Ivan Ipanoff, and Mr. Theo Balfour is an aristocratic Duke Carl. Mr. Cecil H. Raymond is funny as the Baron Alphonse, and General Nichol is well represented by Mr. Chauncey Morris. Miss Hettie Senior is an excellent Connie Johnathan, and Miss Francis Waring a sympathetic Nita. Miss Edith Woodward is good as Olga Stadt, as is Miss Ada Douglas as Nadia. Miss Marie E. Robertson is the maid Katrina, and Mr. Tom Taylor scores as Peter. Mr. Edward Jenner is a capital Captain O'Neil, and Mr. Jack H. Smith appears as Evangie.

ROYAL THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—Manager, Mr. E. Dottridge; Assistant-Manager, Mr. W. Howgate.—A first-class company is appearing this week, at the head of which stands Madame Ada Colley, and she received a hearty welcome. Mr. Leo Dryden, actor-vocalist, is a capable artist. A prime favourite here is Jenny Johns, the sparkling soubrette; Bosanquet, the musical marvel, is also well received. The Mario Dunham Trio gives a smart and novel gymnastic display, and the Three Sisters Hayden are good comediennes; Harrigan and Holt, comedians, cause roars of laughter; and Alec Kendal is a funny comedian. "The Dog Detective" is a popular turn, as shown on the Royal Dottoscope.

HIPPODROME. — Manager, Mr. E. Dottridge; Assistant-Manager, Mr. Nuttall.—The Kurios are topping the bill with a Komical Kombination of Kuriosities. Harry Coates, singing navvy, is a capital double-voiced vocalist; Grace Langley is a smart comedienne; and the Brothers Montes appear in their latest novelty, Mishaps on a Motor-Car; Warden Reed and Co. have a good duologue; and Fred Mason, whistler and comedian, is excellent. The Lowenworth Brothers, Hebrew comedians, also appear, and the Dottoscope concludes the programme with "The Motorist."

OXFORD.—NEW THEATRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. Thomas Lucas, J.P.; Acting-Manager, Mr. C. C. Dorrill. Mr. James Welch opened here on Monday with his company in When Knights were Bold, and had an extraordinarily enthusiastic reception from a crowded house, who simply roared with laughter right through the play. Mr. Welch's impersonation of Sir Guy de Vere was irresistibly funny, and there was not a single dull moment. Admirable support was given by Mr. Edward Sass as Sir Brian Ballynote, Mr. A. Grenville as the Jew Isaacson, Mr. Chesney as the Dean, and Messrs. G. F. Tully, G. Tomkins, and H. J. Ford as Wittle, Barker, and Widdicombe respectively. Miss Audrey Ford scored a great hit as Rowena Eggington, Miss Daisy Cordell made a fascinating and handsome Jewess, and the other ladies' parts found capable exponents in the Misses Emma Gwynnes, Estelle Winwood, Enid Sass, Mabel Wentworth, and Annie Chippendale. That amusing little curtain-raiser, The Lady Burglar, was performed in bright and pleasing fashion by Mr. H. J. Ford and Miss Estelle Winwood.

TOWN HALL.—Managers, Messrs. Lyndney, Acott, Harris, and Co.—Miss Camille Clifford on Tuesday gave a flying matinée here, assisted by Miss Margaret Cooper, Ethel Legniska, Ivy Angove, Alan Turner, and that clever veteran, Lionel Brough. The matinée was a great success, the spacious hall being well filled and the audience most appreciative.

PAISLEY.—PAISLEY THEATRE.—Sole Proprietor and Manager Mr. J. H. Savile.—Beside the Bonnie Brier Bush is being played here for the first time by Messrs. Durward Lely and William Mollison's company, the play, scenery, and staging being quite up to the highest expectations. That sound actor, Mr. William Mollison, plays with consummate skill the rôle of Lachlan Campbell; Mr. W. A. Mackersey makes William MacClure an attractive personality; the Rev. John Carmichael is capably sustained by Mr Durward Lely; Mr. D. Lyall essays with considerable success the part of the Earl of Kilspindie; Lord Hay is impersonated in a satisfactory manner by Mr. Archie W. Chappell; Mr. Kendall Chalmers is to be complimented on his portrayal of Tammas Mitchell; and Mr. Alec F. Thompson as Archibald McKittrick has a part particularly suited to his capabilities. Miss Evelyn McNay's rendition of Flora Campbell is a realistic and graceful performance; Kate Carnegie is capitally played by Miss Alice Francis; Margaret Howe is finely and characteristically sketched by Miss Josephine Woodward; Miss Edith Blair Staples makes Annie an interesting study; and Miss Martha Stewart and Miss Jeannie Fitzgerald as child actresses are warmly applauded for their clever acting.

HIPPODROME.—Sole Proprietor, Mr. E. H. Bostock; Acting-Manager, Mr. Frank Wilson.—The best turn in the bill this week is submitted by Harry Tate's Motoring sketch, which is most amusing and greatly applauded. The Silbons' American vaudeville circus and feline funnioslties are well received; Ernesto, expert juggler and musical equilibrist, gives a pleasing show; the Custances present a bright and sparkling comedy duologue, A Game for Two; Brown and Robinson are applauded for their excellent singing; Fred Herbert, topical vocalist, has a good reception; Andy Fagan is a talented comedian and dancer; and Harry Clyo and Rose Rochelle, in their sketch, The Antics of an Actor, are amusing.

EMPIRE.—Lessee, Mr. J. H. Savile; Manager, Mr. Delno Fritz.—Clark and Glenny, who are here this week, evoke enthusiasm with their funny comedy act, The Haunted House; Stuart and Worth, refined comedy entertainers, supply an excellent turn; Louie Hurman, comedienne and dancer, is exceedingly well received; the Lennards score in their unique pictorial songs; Claremont and Victor are accomplished Continental acrobats; Jack Crawley wins favour in his entertainment of "Song and Story"; and the Empire Animatograph adds to the attraction.

PENTRE.—LYCEUM THEATRE.—Sole Owners, Messrs. Carlton and Duckworth; Manager, Mr. Sam Duckworth; Resident-Manager, Mr. Harry Coursell.—Mr. Frank Bertram and company are here this week with The Convict's Daughter. Mr. Bertram is exceedingly good in his varied impersonations of Weary Willy, Michael Grahame, and Convict 99. He is admirably supported by a strong company.

PERTH.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Sole Lessee and Manager, Mr. J. H. Savile; Acting-Manager, Mr. Frank Aldridge.—Mr. Edward Marris's No. 1 Company, under the direction of Mr. W. H. Kirby, is here this week in Somebody's Sweetheart. Mr. W. H. Kirby himself creates unrestrained mirth throughout as Martin Slabs, and Miss Molly Hackett is accorded a warm reception in the title-rôle; Mr. E. H. Bertram sustains the part of Stanton Ashleigh with marked ability, and Miss Millie Gordon is advantageously placed as Freddie; Mr. Douglas B. Watson successfully represents the arduous rôle of the conspiring Stephen Leverton, and Mr. J. Templer Ellis is a capable Lem Lee; Mr. Reg. Hugh Hamber as Old Joe receives a special ovation for his vocal contribution; Miss Cordelia Knight shows talent above the usual in her clever portrayal of Zora; Miss Norah Melton makes an ideal Mrs. Ainslie; the Misses Rosie Chandler and Dolly Payne are well received as Molly and Kitty, two barmaids, their dancing attracting favourable notice; Messrs. William Brown and John Cronin are capable exponents of Pete and Sambo.

PETERBOROUGH.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Manager, Mr. A. Darville Vernon.—Mr. E. Hill-Mitchelson and Harris Fineberg's company is here this week with The Traitor. Mr. Bensley Evans submits a finished piece of acting as Prince Rudolph; the Chief of Police is excellently represented by Mr. Stephen E. Scanlon; Mr. T. W. Hurst plays well as Captain Ross; the humorous element is ably sustained by Mr. Frank Sutherland as Jack Boult; Miss Ruth Shepperd fills the rôle of Zula in a way that leaves little to be desired; Miss Gwynne Warren acquits herself well as Countess Zicka; and Miss Katherine Vere is seen to advantage as Elsie Dupres; Miss Maud Stuart as Cen Cen and Miss Isabel Hunt as Lieutenant Nicholas give satisfaction.

PLYMOUTH.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. C. F. Williams; Acting-Manager, Mr J. Langdon Lee.—Notwithstanding A Royal Divorce has been before the public for some sixteen years its popularity evinces no signs of waning, judging by its reception at Plymouth on Monday. Principal interest centres round Napoleon and his two wives, and as the former Mr. Frederick Victor gave an excellent representation; as Josephine, Miss Edith Cole played with her customary ability, and despite her lengthy association with the part was free from any suggestion of "staleness"; while Miss Agnes Imlay as Marie Louise was warmly applauded, though her part is by no means an acceptable one. Mr. Graham Woods proved himself a clever actor as the cowardly villain the Marquis of Beaumont; Miss Helen Richmond was vivacious as Stephanie; and Miss Maggie Cardiff as the Little King of Rome is deserving of especial commendation.

GRAND THEATRE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. C. F. Williams; Acting-Manager, Mr. Percy Williams; Assistant Acting-Manager, Mr. J. Langdon Lee.—Mr. Percy Williams' company is here in the naval drama The Mariners of England. Mr. Edward Lloyd as the hero Harry Dell gives a dashing embodiment; Mr. Clavering Craig is a dignified Lord Nelson; Mr. J. Durford Geddes has a realistic make-up as Capt. Hardy; Mr. Alfred Brandon is capable as the villain Capt. Lebaudy; while Mr. Tommy Gough extracts plenty of fun out of the part of Old Tripp. Other members of the company include the Misses M. C. Livesey, B. Whitney, and Ethel Kay.

PALACE OF VARIETIES.—Manager, Mr. Jack Field.—Darc's Marionettes are among the leading attractions here; Griff, the clown-juggler, is well received, his quips and wheezes causing much merriment; Charles Austin is a comedian of quite an original style; the Jupps have a humorous burlesque acrobatic turn; Otto and Olga were successful in a mock operatic act; and Miss Ivy Galland is a high-class comedienne and dancer. Others contributing to a capital programme are Miss Nell Richardson (vocalist), E. W. Selmon (comedian), and Vernon's Pictures.

PONTYPRIDD. — ROYAL CLARENCE THEATRE.—Owners and Proprietors, Mrs. Trenchard and Miss L. Jones; Manager, Mr. Charles Trenchard.—This week the attraction is provided by Mr. Samuel James's company in Why Woman Sins. Lieut. Maxwell is ably portrayed by Mr. Harry Cullinford; Captain Carlton is in the able hands of Mr. Jackson Hayes; Mr. George Ellis is seen to advantage as Cecil Spencer; Mr. George Claremont capably impersonates Jim Rainbird; Mr. Edwin Wilde skilfully plays Oliver Desmond; Miss Hilda Baynton is a pronounced favourite as Nell Desmond; Miss Gertrude Netterville shines as Ida Valette; Miss Hettie Graham is successful as Nancy Nibble; Miss Nellie Sheffield as Lily De Vere could scarcely be excelled; Mrs. Benbow is well sustained by Miss Alice D'Arville.

Boughton; Acting-Manager, Mr. Armstrong Bell.—Mr. George Dance's No. 1 Company with The Country Girl is paying a return visit this week. Miss Barbara Babington sings with expression, and puts in good work as Marjory Joy; Nan finds an able exponent in Miss Ellaline Thorne; Miss Ernestine Desborough is an excellent Princess; and Miss Muriel Johnson a bright and vivacious Madame Sophie; Mr. John M. Hay acts with refinment and sings well as Geoffrey Challoner; Mr. F. J. Rooney sustains the part of Mr. Raikes with distinction; Mr. Arthur Jackson is a droll Sir Joseph Verity; and Mr. Comingsby Brierley an irrepressible Barry.

PRINCE'S THEATRE.—Licensee and Manager, Mr. J. W. Boughton; Acting-Manager, Mr. T. E. Agate. —A cordial welcome was given to Mr. Jack Haddon and company in Under the Russian Flag, presented for the first time in Portsmouth on Monday by arrangement with Messrs. Paumier and Howard. Ivan Romanoff is portrayed in manly style by Mr. Cecil Melton; Michael Romanoff is played with the utmost sangfroid by Mr. Edward Avinal; the outspoken Captain Demetrius is convincingly and ably taken by Mr. Jack Haddon; Mr. Charles Siddon in the part of Wolf Marischle gives a clever and sombre impersonation; and Mr. George Herbert fittingly plays General Romanoff; the trying part of Luke Marischla is played artistically by Miss Maria Rayner; Vera Vassiloff is well sustained by Miss Elaine Vanbrugh; and Miss Violet Lytton does well as Ogarita.

EMPIRE PALACE.—Secretary, Mr. W. Pratt.—The attractions here for the week are many and varied Barney Burke and Bray in a ludicrous and novel act, From Trafalgar Square to Madrid, provoke roars of laughter. Barney Vox, with his ventriloquial figures, makes for amusement; the Elvio Trio in Those Troublesome Slaveys are capital; the Musical Palmers as military music experts are very good indeed; Leslie Race, vocal comedian, is quite successful; Maxford and O'Neill, speciality artists, with their much appreciated patter, keep the fun going; W. J. Churchill, eccentric comedian, has a cordial greeting; the Three Victorias, vocal terpsichorean trio; Daisy Palmer, a pleasing soubrette, and Payne's Bio-Photoscope are also in the bill.

PRESTON. — THEATRE ROYAL.—Manager, Mr. Stephen Pritt. Mr. Geo. Dance's chief company is here this week with Lady Madcap. Mr. J. Knox Orde cleverly fills the rôle of Count de St. Hubert; Bill Stratford has an excellent representative in Mr. Bay Russell; and Mr. James Graydon is an amusing Posh Jenkins. Mr. Emlyn Davis as Colonel Layton, Mr. Ernest Crestan as Major Blatherswaite, Mr. Sheriff Clunes as Captain Harrington, and Mr. Frank Hilton as Lieutenant Somerset are quite successful in their parts. Mr. Oswald Marshall gives a good impersonation of Lord Framlingham, Mr. Vincent Erne is a mirth-provoking Corporal Ham, and Mr. Harold Parkes causes hearty laughter by his droll delineation of Oroya Brown. Miss Maude Davis is a pleasing exponent of Gwenny Holden, Miss Ethel Beech as Susan is dainty and attractive, Miss Gabrielle Lighton is seen to advantage as Mrs. Layton, and Miss Izabelle Dillon displays the requisite gaiety and charm in her portrayal of Lady Betty. The orchestra is under the direction of Mr. Leonard Leslie.

PRINCE'S THEATRE. — Proprietors and Managers, Messrs. Sawyer and Woodruff.—Mr. Fred J. Little and Fred Sarcy's company is appearing here this week in the well-known drama entitled The Executioner's Daughter. Mr. Stanley Radcliffe as Monsieur Roche shows great dramatic ability; Miss Nellie Howitt is distinctly successful in the part of Annette; Mr. Juan de Alberti deserves great praise for his conception of Felix Marius; Miss Evelyn Robson is an excellent representative of Felice; Mr. W. S. Stevenson acquits himself admirably as Kretch. Miss Bella Moody as Sally King and Mr. Willie Hicks as Tom Holmes supply some excellent comedy. Miss Maria Ada Dowsing gains the sympathy of the house in the rôle of Christina, Mr. W. Ruddle Brown makes an excellent Paul Rovel, and Mr. Geoffrey Chate is a mirth-provoking Vivian Ormonde.

ROYAL HIPPODROME.—Proprietors, Messrs. W. H Broadhead and Sons; Resident Acting-Manager, Mr. E. J. Linsdell.—The chief attraction here this week is The Casey Circus, a clever and amusing juvenile burlesque. Tom and

The other turns are the Canarys, in The Flying Kitchen; Harding and Preston, speciality dancers; Happy Attwood, comedian; Kroney Brothers, London's lazy coalmen; Annie Cohen, dainty descriptive vocalist; Arthur Holland, refined vocal comedian; and Sylvia Martin, a clever equestrienne.

SCARBOROUGH.—People's Palace and Aquarium.—Managing-Director, Mr. Wm. Morgan; Secretary and Manager, Mr. Walter Kitchingman.—Entertaining here we have Bert H. Delmar and Miss Edith Van Diene, who give an excellent entertainment; Charles Cardle, in coon songs; Mr. J. Hichens and Miss Frances Ferina, in a dramatic dialogue, Pity the Blind; Syd Bazley, comedian; Ferina and Hitchens, in a Motor Muddle; Miss Elliott, soprano; Mr. J. McCann, on roller skates; Mr. D. W. Watson, cornetist and coach-horn player; and the Two Neros, acrobatic comedians.

Theatre Royal.—Proprietress, Mrs. Henry Mayhew; Manager, Mr. Fred P. Morgan.—The Life of a Showman is being presented by Mr. George Testo Sante and company. Mr. Sante in the title-rôle gives exhibitions of strength. The mounting of the play is good, and all the parts are in capable hands.

SEACOMBE.—Irving Theatre.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. James Kiernan.—Mr. Charles Macdona's company provides the attraction here this week with Are You a Mason? George Fisher is well acted by Mr. Ernest Cassart; Amos Bloodgood is adequately personated by Mr. E. H. Patterson; Mr. Howard L. Tracey is a capital Frank Perry; and Mr. Edwin Millins causes plenty of fun as John Halton. Mr. Frederick Jacques is quite at home in the rôle of Hamilton Travers; and Ernest Morrison is well played by Mr. Dare Austin. Miss Adelaide Grace submits an admirable interpretation of Mrs. Caroline Bloodgood, the same remark applying to Miss Mabel Durrant as Eva. Annie and Lulu Perry find suitable exponents in Miss Babs Stuart and Miss Madge Merrique. Mrs. Halton is well looked after by Miss Dora Frank Harvey, Lottie by Miss Minnie Rayner, and Franchon Armitage by Miss Ploensgains. The principal piece is preceded each evening by The Ruby Heart.

SEAHAM HARBOUR.—New Theatre Royal.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. A. C. Harrison.—Mr. Bert Coote's company in The Fatal Wedding is here this week. Howard Wilson is powerfully depicted by Mr. Ernest Owtrim; the villainy of Robert Curtis is capably shown by Mr. Herbert Humber; Loto is a laughable part as submitted by Mr. C. H. Hughes; Schwartz is well acted by Mr. Cyril Melton; Miss Madge Haines is a sympathetic Mabel; the deceitful Cora finds a careful exponent in Miss Gertrude Harrison; Bridget is humorously drawn by Miss Julie Temple; Jessie is delightfully presented by Miss Marjorie Lawrence, a dainty juvenile. Specialities in Act. III. are introduced by a company of juveniles.

SHEFFIELD.—Lyceum Theatre.—Managing-Director, Mr. John Hart; General-Manager and Treasurer, Mr. J. E. B. Beaumont.—The annual visit of the Carl Rosa Opera Company has always given delight to local music lovers, and on Monday the Lyceum was filled with a representative audience when the curtain rose on Bizet's Carmen. Miss Doris Woodall sang dramatically as Carmen; Mr. Julius Walther repeated his fine performance of the rôle of Don José; Mr. Charles Victor was an effective Escamillo; and the rest of the characters were cast as follows: Zuniga, Mr. A. Richard; Morales, Mr. Arthur Thomas; Pastia, Mr. Felton; Dancairo, Mr. F. Clendon; Romendado, Mr. Arthur Hyde; Michela, Miss Burgess; Frasquita, Miss Ina Hill; and Mercedes, Miss Dorothy Mayfield. Band and chorus were excellent, and Mr. Walter Van Noorden conducted. The operas billed for the balance of the week were Faust, Il Trovatore, Maritana, Fidelio (first time in Sheffield for many years), Tannhäuser, and The Bohemian Girl.

Theatre Royal.—Managing-Director, Mr. John Hart; General-Manager and Treasurer, Mr. J. E. B. Beaumont.—Mr. Mouillot's company opened on Monday in The Toreador. Mr. Harry Buss made a funny Sammy Gigg. Mr. Howard Cridland as Sir Archibald Slackett submitted a quaint and laughter-provoking sketch; Mr. Fred Fowler was clever and agile as Pettifer; Mr. H. M. White made an imposing Carajola, and Mr. Alfred Majilton was lively and amusing as the Governor; Miss Rose Helena charmed the house as Nancy; Miss Katie May acted gracefully as Susan; Miss Zoe Gilfillan was a pretty and vivacious Dora; Miss Florence Burdett was full of humour as Mrs. Malton-Hoppings; and Miss Marie Adair looked handsome as Teresa and sang dramatically.

Alexandra Theatre. — Managing-Director, Mr. W. D. Forsdike; Acting-Manager, Mr. C. W. Ramsay.—The Fatal Wedding is again being played to large and enthusiastic audiences by Mr. Bert Coote's combination. Mr. Wilson Howard appears as Howard Wilson, and Mr. Guy Hastings is the typical fast New Yorker as Robert Curtis; and other characteristic impersonations are Mr. Edward Morgan's Toto, Mr. Jack Waring's O'Reilly, Mr. A. L. Raynor's Dr. Lancefort, and Miss Blanche Stanley's Bridget. Miss Leah Marlborough is a handsome and fascinating adventuress as Cora Williams, and the injured wife, Mabel, is represented in a sympathetic and graceful manner by Miss Catherine Clarke. The chief interest centres round the child, Jessie, "the little mother," a part played with delightful spirit by Miss Madge McCalla. The "children's scene," with up-to-date songs and dances, is still a big feature.

Empire Palace.—Proprietors, The Moss' Empires Co., Ltd.; Acting-Manager, Mr. Alan D. Dunbar.—The pièce de résistance this week is the lively musical farce in three scenes, The Mad Minstrels, produced by Mr. John Tiller and supported by Mr. Sam Poluski, jun., Mr. Harry Elliston, and a large array of pretty and accomplished ladies. The smart patter and dancing of that diverting duo, Messrs. Sandford and Lyons, bring down the house; Mr. Albert Le Fre does some clever characteristic dancing; Mr. Frank Lynne sings a ditty about his "new hat"; the Glenroy Troupe introduces several international dances; Mlle. Violi's musical act is cordially received; Atroy is an expert juggler and hoop manipulator; and Miss Irene Rose, comedienne, and Mr. George Reeves, comic vocalist, complete a good all-round company.

Grand Palace.—Proprietor, Mr. Frank Macnaghten; Manager, Mr. Richard Ralli.—Mr. R. Cochrane's company is appearing here in the farcical sketch, No Parson Required. The programme also includes the Evalos, jugglers, &c.; Mr. Percy Gallena; the Lovelaces, novelty entertainers; the mysterious artist known as Mr. E.; the vivacious Sisters Melba, duettists; and Pallister's Bioscope, with interesting new films.

SHREWSBURY.—Theatre Royal.—Licensee and Business-Manager, Mr. W. C. Dornton.—Mr. Geo. Dance's excellent company played the popular musical piece, The Duchess of Dantzic, here on the first three nights of the week. Mr. Frank Bradley made a fine Napoleon, and acted the part consistently well throughout; Mr. Bernard Collis sang effectively as M. D. Alagro; Mr. C. Burrunston Williams was a soldierly François; Mr. S. H. Curzon merited high praise as Adhemar; Mr. Frank Attree was most amusing as Papillon; Miss Florence Radnor acted with care and ability the part of Empress Josephine; Miss V. Kennerley and Miss M. Eastland were a graceful pair as Caroline and Pauline respectively; Miss Gladys Dale was an attractive Renee de St. Mezard; Miss A. Knolleys and Miss Kitty Quinn were successful as Mlle. de Legrande and Mme. de Chatel; Miss Isabel Vivian, a clever dancer, was smart as the gay Lizette; and Miss Elma Morris was vivacious, and sang in an accomplished manner as Catherine Marechal Lefebvre.

SOUTHAMPTON. — Grand Theatre. — Lessee and Manager, Mr. Fredk. Mouillot; Resident-Manager, Mr. Arthur Weston.—Mr. Lewis Waller's company is this week successfully appearing in Conan Doyle's Brigadier Gerard. Mr. Loring Fernie gives a capital impersonation of the title-part; Miss Maude Hoffman as the Comtesse plays most artistically; Mr. George Mallett's Talleyrand is a fine portrayal; and Mr. Arthur Somers looks well and acts convincingly as Napoleon.

Palace. — Proprietor and Director-General, Mr. Frank Macnaghten; Manager, Mr. William Trussell.—Frank Hardie and company are very successful in an entertaining sketch, Pedlar Sam; the Musical Johnstons, expert xylophone players; Ed. E. Ford, a wonderful facial artist; the Steinway Quartette of vocalists with "Songs of the Sea"; Radford and Valentine, a clever and comical couple; Will Driscoll, comedian; the Cullane Trio, in Pipple from Poppleton; and Anna Kenwick, comedienne, also contribute to a capital programme.

Hippodrome. — Proprietors, Messrs. Fredk. Mouillot and W. de Frece; General-Manager, Mr. J. de Frece; Acting-Manager, Mr. H. P. Howell.—Fred Karno's comedians, in The Dandy Thieves, are starring here, and draw crowded houses; Mr. George Hestor as the impossible Sergt. Lightning, creates roars of laughter; Calby and May are popular in their ventriloquial and doll act; the Ongars dance capitally; and Bert Lytton, a swell comedian; Penley and English, in a clever and amusing duologue; Rita Resdan, male impersonator; and George Prince, comedian, also prosper well.

Philharmonic Hall.—Crowded houses are filling this hall nightly, the attraction being the Eclipse Animatograph and Concert Company, under the management of Messrs. H. Richardson and F. H. Wyatt. The pictures, both serious and comic, are splendid, being both steady and clear, and the engagement is quite the event of the season. Excellent variety is imparted to the programme by the appearance of the Morrellis, who present a popular comedy act; and Mr. Harry Lesley, comedian.

SOUTHEND-ON-SEA. — Empire Theatre. — Empire Theatre Co., Ltd.; Managing-Director, Mr. Geo. Conquest; Acting-Manager, Mr. A. Lingham Power.—Mr. Ian Maclaren's Shakeperean and classical productions are proving both instructive and highly pleasing. The tragedy of Hamlet was given on Monday, when Mr. Maclaren in the title-rôle portrayed this difficult character with complete success, gaining rapturous applause. On Tuesday, Othello was staged, and chief honours fell again to the proprietor of this excellent répertoire company. He had valuable assistance from Mr. Whitford Kane, whose clever handling of Iago was a feature. Cassio found in Mr. Alfred Gray an able interpreter; Miss Edith Coleman gave a clever portrayal of Desdemona; and the Misses M. Jowett and G. Littlewood were capable exponents of Emilia and Bianca respectively. Romeo and Juliet was presented on Wednesday, The Merchant of Venice on Thursday, and The School for Scandal on Friday.

The Kursaal.—Secretary and Manager, Mr. P. T. J. Bacon.—A new feature of this week's attraction is the dancing in the ball-room, apart from the usual variety entertainment which is given in the Café Chantant, and this experiment ought to prove most popular. The Bric-à-Brac Vaudeville Company are presenting first-class concerts, and well merit the splendid reception they gain. Mr. Fred Allan is delightful in his songs; Miss Kate Oxford is pleasing and successful with her ballads; Mr. Geo. Croft provides hearty laughter in his humorous songs, and Miss Doris Wyndham sings with satisfactory results. The duologues are well rendered by Mr. G. Croft and Miss Doris Wyndham; whilst their novel novelettes also please immensely. The fantasie by the Living Marionettes and Fantoccios is a capital item. The concluding part of Monday's entertainment was devoted to a comedy sketch, entitled Lydia's Dilemma, which is cleverly acted by Mr. F. Mantell and Miss Edith Maynard as Frank Fairlove and Lydia Merton respectively. A Sailor's Love and The New Domestic are other items from an excellent répertoire.

SOUTHPORT.—Opera House, Winter Gardens.—Proprietors, The Southport Opera House and Winter Gardens Co., Ltd.; Secretary, Mr. R. Singleton.—The Belle of Mayfair, elaborately staged and dressed, was presented for the first time here on Monday evening to a full house by Messrs. A. and S. Gatti and Charles Frohman's capable company. Miss Alice Russon is an attractive and vivacious exponent of Julia Chaldicott, her vocal numbers being pleasingly rendered. She is ably supported by Mr. Vernon Davidson as the Hon. Raymond Finchley; Miss Maud Aston depicts the maid Pincott in a smart manner; the Earl of Mount Highgate has a capital representative in Mr. Percy Yorke; Mr. Charles McNaughton gives a good account of himself as Sir John Chaldicott; Miss Barbara Huntley submits a commendable portraiture of Lady Chaldicott; and the same may be said of Miss Rosa Snell as the Countess of Mount Highgate. Hugh Meredith is characteristically impersonated by Mr. Wensley Russell; Mr. Trueman Towers is versatile and diverting as Dr. Marmaduke Lawrence; the Comte de Perrier is well enacted by Mr. Robert Whyte, jun.; Miss Blanche Massey appears to advantage as Lady Rosaline Rockesly; and the Princess Ehrenbreitstein has a finished representative in Miss Joan Keddie. The augmented orchestra is conducted in a praiseworthy manner by Mr. Alfred C. Toone.

Pier Pavilion.—Proprietors, The Southport Pier Co., Ltd.; Manager, Mr. Charles F. Johnson.—The following attractive variety combination is appearing here. The Royal Tokio Troupe of Japanese performers; Gena Manon, soprano; Halma, society juggler; the Brothers Adderley, musical mimics; Messrs. Adeler and Sutton's company of comedians, including Charley Harvey, "the droll"; Elsie Steadman, comedienne; Clifford Morgan, baritone; Daisy Irving, soprano; William Strong, basso; and the Bio-Tableaux.

SOUTH SHIELDS.—Theatre Royal.—Lessees and Managers, Messrs. John and Fred Coulson.—Mr. W. H. Hallatt and company are appearing here in Two Little Sailor Boys. Miss Blanche Steele depicts Lola Grey in powerful style; the Mildred Grey of Miss Alice Defoe is sweetly and charmingly portrayed; the two little sailor boys, Cyril Grey and Tom Yorke, are both capitally performed by Miss May Day and Miss Ethel F. Greene; Mr. J. Heather, as Commander Noel Tregarthen, is an ideal hero; Mr. Ellerslie Pyne makes the most of Lieut. Richard Redstone, R.N. The comedy element is well supplied by Mr. Oscar Power (Jack Jolly), Mr. Tom E. Sinclair (Ben Baxter), and Miss Lizzie Chambers (Lucy Wilson). Mr. W. H. Hallatt is good as Captain Tom Yorke, and Mr. A Horton is effective as Jim Royston.

Empire Palace Theatre.—Proprietor, Mr. Richard Thornton; General-Manager, Mr. Frank Allen; Resident-Manager, Mr. Geo. F. Thompson.—Carl Hertz, assisted by Emmeline D'Alton and company, have had a good reception. The Bridal Chamber, a mystifying performance is shown, also some clever cabinet tricks, &c. A good laughing song is contributed by the Brothers Obo; the Mezzettis score in a comedy bar act, "The New Recruit"; Minnie Cunningham, Irish comedienne, sings sweetly; the Two Tees, musical grotesques; Walter King, comedian; Queenie May, the juvenile prize packet, G. H. Elliott, the chocolate coloured coon, all entertain, and the Bioscope completes the bill.

Tivoli.—Proprietors and Managers, Councillor J. K. Hall and Mr. Jos. Sweeney.—Fred Cary causes a good deal of laughter by his eccentric songs and patter; Mark Merry's contributions are much appreciated by the audience; good conjuring and illusions are introduced by Henry Bekker, assisted by Mlle. Maie; Jeannette Hall, Georgina Leonard, Little Rose Pink, and the Bio-Photoscope also attract.

STALYBRIDGE.—Grand Theatre.—Lessee, Mr. Louis Ellison; General-Manager, Mr. Eugene E. Hardie; Acting-Manager, Mr. J. D. Oswald.—Ossi Souplessi, described as the anatomical wonder and the flying serpent on the silver ring, is a marvel in his line. Robert Gilbert appears with his troupe of performing dogs and cats, and the remaining turns include Harry Bent, mimic; Golden and Grey, duettists; Carlotta Lunn, comedienne; Bessie Wallow, vocalist; Louis Kerno, comedian; the Sisters Selwyn, dancers; and an excellent sketch by Messrs. Hardie and Hardie's company, entitled Those Awful Kids.

ST. HELENS.—Theatre Royal and Opera House, Ltd.—Proprietors, the St. Helens Theatre, Ltd.; General Manager, Mr. McLeod Loader.—Messrs. Carpenter and Cooper's company is here in the new drama, entitled The Spider and the Fly. As Stella Gray, Miss Amy Venimore is well placed; Miss Nina Vaughan ably acts the rôle of Edith; Miss Ada Palmer makes a capital Jane Ellen; Mr. Stanley S. Gordon plays in a finished style as Cyril; as Romulus Roe and Remus Roe, Messrs. Fred Terriss and Charles A. Preece create much amusement; Mr. Ellis J. Preston effectively portrays the villain, Welby; as the village pastor, McAllister, and David Strong, Messrs. H. C. Lancelly and Frederick Ross have congenial rôles. The scenery and effects are exceptionally good.

Hippodrome. — Proprietors, Messrs. Barrasford, Will Sley, and F. Wilmot; Resident-Manager, Mr. A. V. Carnell.—This week's bill is headed by Mr. George D'Albert and company in the episode 'Tis Never Too Late to Mend, which is achieving a decided success. The Three Seabornes are equilibrists of no mean merit; Victor is a capital character-vocalist; the Violas are clever exponents of second-sight; Jack and Evelyn receive the welcome due to old favourites in the sketch, The Cigar Divan; the Three McDonalds give a clever and refined musical act, and Cardo mystifies all with his sleight-of-hand tricks.

STOCKPORT.—Theatre Royal and Opera House.—Sole Owner and Manager, Mr. Charles Revill; Acting-Manager, Mr. Wm. Revill.—Abundant patronage has been bestowed upon Mr. H. Hamilton Stewart and company, who are reappearing here in Sherlock Holmes, which has been excellently presented and greeted with much appreciation. A powerful impersonation of Sherlock Holmes is given by Mr. H. Hamilton Stewart, and a realistic character is Dr. Watson as portrayed by Mr. Stanley Logan. Mr. Fred Bell makes a capital John Forman, and Professor Moriarty is capitally acted by Mr. F. W. Stirling. Miss Constance Leigh fills the part of Alice Faulkner with charming grace; and Madge Larrabee is effectively given by Miss Lindsay Fincham.

Empire.—Proprietors, the Stockport Empire Theatre Co., Ltd.; Acting-Manager, Mr. Wm. Black.—An exceptionally talented company appearing here this week to excellent business includes The Orange Girl, presented by Miss Dolly Elsworthy and company. Miss Elsworthy as Nell Gwynne is the chief attraction, and has met with marked success. That genuinely funny comedian, Ernie Myers, has kept the audiences in roars of laughter; and Lily Lonsdale has, as usual, charmed everyone with her delightful vocalism. The Cumberlands display marvellous ability as acrobatic cyclists; a pleasing artist is Ada Twibell; Ted Young, character comedian, sings in good style; Fannie Humber, musical entertainer and skipping-rope dancer, is cordially received; and the Four Charles, in their clever acrobatic juggling act, are heartily applauded.

STOCKTON-ON-TEES.—The Palace.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. Phil. Reymond.—The present company is fully up to the usual standard. Mr. Nock Ohlson is a capital comedian, and his songs are well received; Miss Berris Forde sings charmingly; Mr. Gus Daniels, comedian and descriptive vocalist, is well applauded for his clever turn; Royde and Watson are a very entertaining pair of duettists and patterers, who cause no end of fun; Phil Reymond fully sustains his reputation, and is loudly applauded for several first-rate comic songs; and the Paragon sketch company conclude with a comedy sketch, Wanted, A Serio, which causes roars of laughter.

STOURBRIDGE.—Alhambra Theatre.—Manageress, Miss Maude Lynton.—There was a packed audience on Monday, when Mr. J. Bannister Howard's company opened for a three nights' engagement with Florodora. Mr. Gus Danby has been here on previous occasions, but his presentation of Anthony Tweedlepunch was received just as heartily as ever; Mr. Colin Johnstone was a capital Cyrus Gilfain; Mr. Howard Cropton as Frank Abercoed was well received; Mr. H. Carnell-Jove as Arthur Donegal, although suffering from a cold, proved a capable artist; Mr. C. A. Road-Knight was admirably suited for the character of Leandro. Angela Gilfain had a charming impersonator in Miss Dorothy Dempster; while the part of Lady Holyrood could not have been entrusted to a more capable artist than Miss Rosa Sullivan. Miss Daisy Lake as Dolores received unstinted applause for an admirable performance.

SUNDERLAND.—Avenue Theatre.—Director and Manager, Mr. Chas. E. Machin.—Miss Emma Hutchison and Mr. Percy Hutchison's company is here in The Freedom of Suzanne. Miss Mabel Love as Suzanne has a part that will rank amongst any of her former triumphs. Mr. Percy Hutchison's interpretation of Charles Trevor is bright, incisive, and manly throughout. The remaining parts are all in the hands of capable artists, notably Mr. Patrick Quill (Sir Horace Hutton), the admirers of the wayward Suzanne, Messrs. J. H. Batson, Townsend Whitling, and Rich. Neville as Lord Dachett, Harry Cecil, and Tommy Keston respectively, Miss Annie Stalman (Lady Charlotte), Miss Charlotte Mead (Fanny Minching), Miss Violet Ley (Lady Isabel), Miss D. Hart (Mrs. Tustail), and Mr. F. G. Thurstans (Fitzroy Harding).

Theatre Royal.—Managing-Director, Mr. C. E. Machin; Acting-Manager, Mr. Jos. Hemingway.—Mrs. Bulman's company in Sentenced for Life is here. Mr. R. Brancepeth Nevill acts the part of Sir Wallace Stillwell with acumen; Mr. Edward E. Louis plays Lieut. Roy Stillwell in a satisfactory manner; and Mr. Ernest Vaughan accounts for Capt. Derrick with satisfactory results. Mr. Morris Maud is good as the Rev. Martin Orris, and Messrs. Arthur Keand and Reg. Oldroyd score as the Two Convicts. Miss Madge Douglas effectively portrays the rôle of Adele Gray, and Miss May Neilson and Miss Mary Dalby suitably sustain the parts of Kate Rennel and Lady Stillwell respectively.

Palace Theatre of Varieties.—Lessees and Managers, Messrs. Rosen and Bliss; Acting-Managers Messrs. Browne and Stringer.—The bill this week is headed by John Lawson, in his well-known dramatic scena, Humanity. George French scores in his quaint and quiet way; Maude Mortimer proves a favourite; Daisy Mayer is an American sand dancer of merit. The bill also includes Nellie Rose, comedienne; the Sivronis, comedy artists; George Hyam, comedian; and the Bioscope pictures.

SWINDON.—Queen's Theatre.—Proprietor and Responsible-Manager, Mr. Alfred Manners.—Local music-lovers are enraptured with a return visit of the Moody-Manners Grand Opera company, under the business direction of Mr. J. St. Clair. The visit opened on Monday to a house crowded in all parts, with a really fine production of Carmen, with Mlle. Zélie De Lussan in the title-rôle. That renowned artist, who had been specially engaged for this work, made a great impression with her rich voice and vivacity. She was ably supported by Mr. Charles Carter, who stood out prominently as an excellent José, and Mr. Marshall Vincent, admirable as Escamillo; while Miss Lucie Lever as Micaela won hearty applause with her well-cultured vocalism. In smaller parts Misses M. Wood and M. Wilcocks, Messrs. R. Brookes, S. Lansdale, and G. Gorst did well. A feature of this production was the strong chorus and augmented orchestra under the bâton of Mr. H. Frewin. On Tuesday Faust was presented to another crowded house. The following operas are also billed: The Bohemian Girl, Il Trovatore, Tannhäuser, Lohengrin, and Maritana.

TONYPANDY. — Theatre Royal. — Lessees, Messrs. Carlton and Duckworth; General-Manager, Mr. Sam Duckworth; Acting-Manager, Mr. Ridgewood Barrie.—A sterling attraction is provided by the engagement of Mrs. Morton Powell's company in When It Was Dark. Mr. Austin-Lee as the Rev. Basil Gortre is all that could be desired; Messrs. G. H. Pitt and Riddell Robinson are suitably cast as Constantine Schwabe and Sir Robert Llewellyn respectively; Mr. G. Rammell plays Harold Spence in a convincing manner; Mr. Henry Hellier presents a capital rendering of Rev. Mr. Bynes; as Helena Bynes Mrs. Morton Powell proves herself an actres of undoubted ability; the trying part of Gertrude Hunt is sustained in a capable manner by Miss Mabel Mannering.

TORQUAY. — Theatre Royal. — Licensee and Managing-Director, Mr. W. H. Mortimer; Secretary, Mr. Arthur Pearse.—To a large and appreciative audience The Fascinating Mr. Vanderveldt was presented by Mr. Silvanus Dauncey and Mr. M. Leveaux's company on Monday. Miss Gladys Mason as Lady Clarice Howland made a charming study of that light-headed but good-hearted member of society; Mr. Reginald Dance played with considerable skill in the name-part; Mr. H. Lawrence Leyton made a capital Col. Rayner; Miss Mary Weigall an excellent Marchioness, and Miss May Brooke a satisfactory Lady Clementina. Mr. George A. Seager was a typical Judge, and Miss Helen Tyler a good Mrs. Mellon.

TREHERBERT. — Opera House.—Proprietors, Messrs. Poole; Manager, Mr. James Gunn.—Messrs. Thavis Green and Arthur Hinton's company is attracting excellent houses here this week in A Soldier of France. Mr. Arthur Hinton presents the part of Father Jean in a capable manner; Judas Delara is well embodied by Mr. Thavis Green; Mr. Dan. E. Clifford as Pollput Jollyboy is exceedingly amusing; Mr. Charles Langton, in the double rôle of Captain Louis Lorraine and Lieutenant Louis, scores a great success; Mr. Harry Cave as Duc de Laval is acceptable; Miss Leila Zillwood as Pauline Lorraine gives a refined reading; Miss Jennie Clare is excellent as Margot; and Master Freddie Cave in the part of Master Louis Lorraine deserves praise.

WAKEFIELD.—Royal Opera House.—Proprietors, Messrs. Sherwood and Co.—Messrs. Polini and Maitland's company is here this week in the drama The Coal King. Mr. Lauderdale Maitland gives a manly rendering of Tom Roberts; Mr. Lionel Thompson acts with power as Sir Reginald Harford; Mr. Escott Robson is successful as Walter Harford; Mr. Frank Dalton is well placed as Dick Shirley; and Mr. Alfred Terriss as Jim Williams and Miss Sybil Coghlan as Araminta Green are responsible for enjoyable comedy business; Miss Sinna St. Clair depicts with ability the rôle of Mad Ann, and Miss Gertrude Valentine gives an able impersonation as Grace Shirley.

Lucretia, burlesque artist, sings and dances nicely; Ivan and McQue, comedians, are funny; other items include Miss Lil Hartley, descriptive vocalist; Albert Kail, comedian; and Herr Blumenfield and his troupe of performing dogs.

WALSALL.—Her Majesty's Theatre of Varieties.—Proprietors, The Walsall Theatres Co., Ltd.; General-Manager and Secretary, Mr. W. H. Westwood.—Tschernoff's animal novelty heads the bill here this week; Clarice Netta is a charming vocalist. Other entertaining turns are Letine, the mysterious; Xley and Hamilton, in a burlesque opera; Howard and St. Clair; Tom Percy, comedian; Nat Clifford; and the pictures on the American Bioscope.

Grand Theatre, Ltd. — General-Manager and Secretary, Mr. W. H. Westwood.—Mr. Hilliard Vox and company, including Mr. Albert Rogers, occupy the boards here this week in Alaska. Mr. Hilliard Vox, who is a very capable actor, plays the rôle of Skookum Jim; Mr. C. D. Pitt is well placed as Ned Larson; Pompey Cæsar is commendably presented by Mr. Albert Rogers. Other characters are ably sustained by Mr. Bevan Fenten, Mr. John Ford, Mr. J. Howarth, Mr. E. Brookes, Mr. S. Lynch. Miss G. Hastings Walton as Alaska is all that could be desired.

WARRINGTON.—Royal Court.—Proprietors, Messrs. W. Johnson and J. Potter; General-Manager, Mr. Joseph Potter; Acting-Manager, Mr. Fred J. Preece.—The return visit of Mr. William Greet's company with The Earl and the Girl is proving a highly attractive one, and on Monday a large house received it with enthusiasm. The Jim Cheese of Mr. Walham Cromwell is a quaint and humorous impersonation; Mr. Robert Hyett is quite natural as Dick Wargrave; Mr. Stanley Harrison as the Hon. Crewe Boodle plays pleasantly, and a smart performance is given by Mr. Frank Cane as Downham. A good sketch of A. Bunker Bliss is submitted by Mr. A. E. Coleby, and Mr. Arthur Cassidy is well placed as Mr. Talk. Miss Florence Wix submits a really clever performance of Liza Shoddam, and both Daisy Fallowfield and Elphin Haye have charming representatives in Miss Eva Berrington and Miss Gertrude Simpson respectively. Miss Nellie Grant is an imposing Mrs. Shimmering Black, and as Virginia Bliss Miss Helen Langton is a dignified personage.

Royal Theatre of Varieties.—Proprietors, Messrs. W. Johnson and J. Potter; General-Manager, Mr. J. Potter; Director of Amusements, Mr. Fred Willmot.—Capital turns are given here this week by Mr. Charles Morritt, magician; a blind man with a remarkable memory; the Dagodets, comedians; Arthur Austin, ventriloquist; Dan Conroy, comedian; the Elgars, operatic vocalists; Edna Latonna, vocalist; the Waldrons, sketch artists; and the Royal Bioscope pictures.

WEST BROMWICH.—New Hippodrome.—Manager, Mr. H. W. Player.—There is another exceptionally strong programme at the Carters Green place of amusement this week. The Six Bros. Luck give an exceedingly funny show, The Demon of the Cellar; Charles Williams, strangely called a Scotch nigger, sings some clever songs well; Frank Coyal is a lively comedian; Matt Wilkinson and company appear in a really comical sketch with much success; and Ernest Rees is one of the drollest of comedians; C. Emlyn Jones and his Emerald Ladies' Quartette are accomplished singers whose work is warmly appreciated; the Dewars sing and dance well; and the extra turn provided by Sibb and Sibb, acrobats, is remarkably clever.

Theatre Royal.—Lessee, Mr. Thomas; Manager, Mr. Herbert Vere.—Mr. J. Bannister Howard's No. 1 Co. is appearing with marked success in the ever-popular musical comedy, Florodora. Mr. Alf. E. Passmore is a very successful Anthony Tweedlepunch, and keeps the audience in a continual state of merriment. As Lady Holyrood, Miss Kate Leinster has a part admirably suited to her; Miss Josephine Sullivan is a charming Dolores, and Miss Lily Gullick is delightful as Angela Gilfain. Mr. Stanley White as Cyrus W. Gilfain introduces into the character delightful touches, and Mr. Herbert St. John as Capt. Arthur Donegal is very fine.

WEST HARTLEPOOL.—Grand.—Sole Lessee, Mr. Fred Granville; Manager, Mr. J. A. Lewis.—The return visit of Mr. Louis Calvert's company in Sunday has been heartily welcomed. In the title-rôle Miss Emelie Polini is admirable; the quartette of "boys," Towzer, Davy, Lively, and Jacky, have excellent exponents in Messrs. William Lockhart, Sydney Rennel, Cecil Yapp, and Arthur Vezin; Mr. Ernest A. Douglas in the character of Tom Oxley continues to create a favourable impression; Colonel Brinthorpe has a capital exponent in Mr. Leonard Pagden; Miss M'Aimee Murray shows undoubted talent in her delineation of the character of Mrs. Naresley; Miss Muriel Pope and Mr. G. Wallace Johnston ably sustain the respective rôles of the Nun and Arthur Brinthorpe.

Palace.—Proprietor, Mr. Frank Macnaghten; Manager, Mr. Julius Simpson.—The account given by George M. Schilling of his walk round the world is full of interest; Bernar, the King of Marionettes, has a splendid reception, his life-like figures being watched with keen interest and repeatedly applauded; the humour of Andie Caine is amusing, as also is that of Fred Land; some graceful gymnastic poses and evolutions are contributed by Dora Martini; Rastus and Benks, the coloured Major and the Maid, meet with a gratifying reception; W. B. Raby, in quaint comedy, Rubie and Elsie Redfern, charming banjoists and dancers, and a new series of films are also strong items on the programme.

WESTON-SUPER-MARE.—Knightstone Pavilion and Opera House.—Manager, Mr. W. Payne.—Mr. Allan Wilkie's répertoire company is here this week, and on Monday Othello was staged. Mr. Allan Wilkie's interpretation of the title-rôle was intensely tragic. Mr. G. Alexander Marsh showed rare histrionic ability as Iago. Mr. Herbert Morgan gave an exceedingly fine impersonation of Cassio. Another excellent piece of acting was the Brabantio of Mr. Aubrey Mather. As Roderigo. Mr. George Munro was praiseworthy. Mr. C. W. Dockwray's Duke of Venice was worthy of commendation, as was the Montano of Mr. Ian Flemming. Mr. Wilton Ross (Lodovico) and Mr. Ernest Digges (Gratiano) both did good work. Miss Carrie Baillie looked remarkably handsome as Desdemona, and acted the part well. Miss Ivie Cameron displayed ability as Emilia, and Miss Ruth Nightingale's Bianca also deserves eulogy. Other plays in the bill are Hamlet, David Garrick, The Bells, The Corsican Brothers, The Lady of Lyons, and The Ticket o' Leave Man.

WEST STANLEY.—Theatre Royal.—Proprietors, the Stanley Theatre Co., Ltd.; Managing Director, Mr. Mark H. Lindon.—Mr. Samuel James's company is appearing here this week in As Good as Gold. Mr. H. H. Barrington makes a typical country gentleman as Mark Williams; Mr. Wm. Heilbronn is responsible for a strongly-marked portrayal of Lieut. Jack Stanton; the rôle of Sir Richard Wharncliffe is finely embodied by Mr. Richard Ferris; Mr. Norman Hall is good as Horatio Spanker; and Mr. Ern Carlton presents the part of Capt. D'Arcy James in an able manner. Miss Kate Froud makes an admirable Kate D'Arville; the rôle of the Kipper is in the clever hands of Miss Irene Tracey, and Miss Barbara Allison in the title-rôle wins admiration.

Victoria Theatre.—Proprietor, Mr. F. C. Raws; General-Manager, Mr. John Cassidy.—The attraction here this week is a fine variety company, giving, for the first time in the town, two performances nightly. The top of the bill is occupied by Miss Daisy de Roy, a capable and clever artist, well deserving her warm and enthusiastic reception. Miss Violet Robson renders some good songs; the Sages are responsible for smart dancing; the Musical Howards well deserve their title; Doris Middleton has some clever impersonations; Soros is smart in his mysterious performance; and a clever sketch is presented by Miss Mabel Wood, Miss Edna Reeve, and Mr. Clement Burge. The Bio-motograph presents comic and local pictures.

WIDNES.—Alexandra Theatre.—Proprietor, Mr. Jas. Kiddie.—Le Roy, Talma, and Bosco, the famous illusionists, are here this week, and a packed house gave the artists a great reception on Monday evening, when they appeared in their new mystery play, Lady Kinton's Necklace. The illusionists have the support of a capable company, and Lady Kinton's Necklace, quite apart from its "mysteries," is thoroughly well acted. Mr. Frank Melrose, in a novel make-up, does very well as Professor Le Gros; Mr. Harry Danson is a capable Robert Fenton; Mr. Stafford Smith acts impressively in the part of Lord Kinton; Mr. John S. Chamberlain is most effective as Bothwell Darraville; Mr. Thomas Burdett is decidedly humorous as a burly German trombonist; Mr. Willie Atom makes a great hit as Billy, a call-boy, and, in company with Miss Marie Ault as Annie and the ubiquitous Bosco, causes roars of laughter. Mr. Robert A. Innes is a capital Rufus Merrivale; Miss Queenie Fraser Brunner is a charming heroine as Lucie Darraville.

WIGAN.—Royal Court Theatre.—Proprietors, Wigan Entertainments Co.—The sensational drama, The Beast and the Beauty has had a very good reception here. The part of Jack Barrymore is cleverly enacted by Mr. W. S. Hartford. Mr. Bernard Mervyn as Henry Denver; Mr. Eric Campbell as Ned Samson, and Mr. Wm. E. Passmore as the Earl of Loman sustain their respective rôles very effectively. Miss Daisy Gwynne assumes the heavy part of Delilah Vane with power and subtlety, and Miss Alice Bowes as Violet, the Beauty, is the personification of innocence.

Hippodrome.—Proprietors, The Wigan Entertainments Co.—Hermann Melot is a marvellous conjurer; Harry Roxbury and company give a refined and mirthful sket

FIFTY YEARS OF THE DRAMA. 1850—1900.

(COPYRIGHT.)

In these columns it is proposed to give a strictly alphabetical arrangement of the titles of plays produced during the last fifty years. It will be the most complete list ever published, and should prove invaluable to authors desiring to discover whether a certain title has ever been used, and when. To members of the dramatic profession it will be useful in determining the dates of plays in which they have achieved successes. Our readers are politely requested to advise us of any omission or inaccuracy which they may notice.

This list as soon as complete will be published in cheap book form.

THE Crystal Palace concerts will be continued this afternoon by Miss Marie Hall, who will give a violin recital in the concert-room of the Palace. She will play Symphonie Espagnole (Eduard Lalo), Fantasia on "Otello" (Ernst), "Ave Maria" (Schubert-Wilhelmj), and "Hejre Kati" (Hubay). Miss Hall will be assisted by Miss Eleanor Felix and Mr. Willy Scott. On Saturday afternoon next a vocal recital will be given by Mr. John Coates, who will be assisted by Miss May Mukle ('cellist) and Mr. Haddon Squire.

THE Committee of the London County Council, sitting on the 16th inst., having considered drawings submitted by Mr. A. B. Jackson, showing certain alterations which it is desired to make at the Savoy Theatre, Strand, with a view to obtaining an entrance from Savoy-court, recommended that Mr. Jackson be informed that the Council has no objection to the arrangements shown on the drawing submitted provided the undermentioned conditions be complied with—that the gangway on the prompt side be continued, 3ft. wide, through the front row of seats; and that a 2½in. outlet fire hydrant connected to the Metropolitan Water Board's high pressure service by a 3in. rising main be provided in an approved position in the gallery and upper circle tiers.

ARBITRATION was resorted to in a dispute which took place at Birmingham last week. Walter Robbins and Frederick Robbins (better known as Melville) claimed from Clarence James Sounes, formerly the lessee of the Queen's Theatre in that town, £1,500 for dilapidation of the premises and £3,000 for the loss of the drink licence attached to the theatre. Evidence as to the value of a drink licence was given, and in the end the arbitrators awarded £350, the sum offered by the defendant, for dilapidations, but declined to grant any compensation for the loss of the licence.

THE Waldorf, about which so many conflicting statements have appeared, is to reopen in about a month's time, with The Social Whirl, a musical comedy, written by Mr. Charles Doty, and composed by Mr. Gustave Kerker, which has attained a sensational success in New York, where it was produced in April last. The piece will be given its proper significance by a company composed exclusively of American artists.

AT the Elephant and Castle, Mr. J. M. East is extending his stock season, which was originally only intended to last five or six weeks. The present company includes Messrs. Albert Ward, Horace Hunter, and Teddy Coleman, and Misses Kathleen Russell, Daisy Murch, and Agnes Paulton.

ROYAL OPERA, COVENT GARDEN.

On Saturday, Oct. 13, Puccini's La Tosca was performed for the first time this season. The indulgence of the audience was requested on behalf of Mme. Giachetti, but beyond her voice showing some effects of a cold this fine artist gave an intensely dramatic embodiment of the ill-fated heroine. Her efforts were most ably seconded by Signor Sammarco, who undertook the character of the villain Scapia in his forcible and incisive style. Cavaradossi was played by that excellent tenor, Signor Zenatello, with fine results; and the remainder of the cast was filled by skilful exponents. There was a large audience present, and Signor Mugnone ably performed his duties as conductor.

Gounod's popular masterpiece, Faust, was given on the following Monday, and a fine performance of this evergreen opera was witnessed by a large audience. Mme. Melba, in excellent voice, sang superbly, giving an especially brilliant rendering of the "Jewel Song," and acting with more than usual power in the Church scene. Signor Zenatello also deepened the good impression he has already made this season by his really fine impersonation of Faust, and his fervent and passionate singing of the lovely "Salve dimora" received most enthusiastic applause. The Mephistopheles of Signor Walter had many good points. He avoided conventionality in his acting, and sang the music with marked ability. Signor Scandiani's fine voice was heard to great advantage in the character of Valentine; and Signora Giaconia as Siebel and Signora Liviabella's Marta deserve much praise. Mr. Percy Pitt was the conductor, and acquitted himself admirably. It will be remembered that this clever English conductor appeared with success in this capacity during the last season, when the short opera Der Vagabund und die Prinzessin was given at Covent Garden. Madama Butterfly was announced for Tuesday, but owing to the indisposition of Mme. Giachetti Carmen was given, with Mme. Kirkby Lunn, Mme. Suzanne Adams, and Signor Zenatello in the cast.

Verdi's fine spectacular opera Aïda was performed on Wednesday night at Covent Garden in a manner that reflected credit on all concerned. Two newcomers—Signora Scalar and Signor Franceschini—appeared with complete success. Signora Scalar not only has great personal attraction, but her voice is of great beauty and power, while her ability as an actress was shown in every scene. Signor Franceschini, the new tenor, also created the most favourable impression by his fine stage presence and the really beautiful quality of his voice. Seldom has the famous air "Celeste Aïda" been better sung, a fact which the large audience speedily recognised. The success of Wednesday night's performance of Aïda was indeed chiefly due to these two talented artists, although the rest of the cast deserve great praise. Signora de Cisneros in particular gave a striking picture of Amneris, and seldom has the fine duet between Aïda and Amneris been better sung; while Signor Sammarco made a superb Amonasro. The dignified Ramfis was also admirably impersonated by Signor Walter, and Signor Thos made an effective Il Rè. The opera was handsomely mounted, and both chorus and orchestra shared in the applause, while Signor Mugnone conducted with great spirit.

"JOHN HUDSON'S WIFE."

(FROM OUR AMERICAN CORRESPONDENT.)

A substantial success was scored by the above-named play, recently produced in four acts, by Miss Alicia Ramsey and Mr. Rudolph De Cordova, at Weber's Theatre, New York. It is announced as a story of modern English life, its main theme, the old one of love, being "treated in a new and unconventional fashion." Honor Beauchamp marries a wealthy man, John Hudson, for whom she has no affection, her motive being to pay the debts of her undeserving father and brother and lighten her mother's lot. She enters into the marriage as a business contract, defining its conditions and limitations clearly to Hudson. In course of time she grows to love him, but does not admit it until certain dramatic but rather improbable complications have been unravelled. Honor Beauchamp's family is aristocratic but beggarly, and they bleed Hudson through his wife until their over-reaching avarice brings about their downfall. The elder Beauchamp is all selfishness, his one thought being to fill his pockets, and his son is cut after the same pattern. They steal some important documents belonging to Earl Seaton, Prime Minister of England, and sell them to the editor of the Forerunner, which, as subsequently develops, is owned by John Hudson. The latter falls under suspicion, but the wife clears her husband's name. He has been gradually freezing up in the cold shadow of his wife's neglect, but he is at length rewarded for his unfailing thoughtfulness and generosity by his wife's love, which is now manifested openly and unreservedly. The play is admirably acted. Miss Spong wins emphatic approval in the rôle of Honor Beauchamp, and Mr. Herbert Percy's John Hudson is a convincing portrayal. The character of the unprincipled father, Colonel Beauchamp, is ably represented by Mr. William F. Hawtrey, who has been specially engaged for this part, his engagement in The Two Mr. Weatherbys having terminated. Other members of the company deserving favourable mention are Miss Leila Repton, Mr. John Westley, Mr. Lionel Walsh, and Mr. Charles Rowan.

"THE MAN FROM NOW."

(FROM OUR AMERICAN CORRESPONDENT.)

A musical "fantasy" is the description given to the new play, in a prologue and two acts, by John Kendrick Bangs, Vincent Bryan, and Manuel Klein, which was recently produced by Mr. Henry W. Savage at the New Amsterdam Theatre, New York, where it had a short but very successful run. The time of the prologue is 1906, in which year Professor Forecasta, of Usona College, discovers a liquid compound, a drink of which will project one into 2906. Some idea of what the world will look like at the latter period of time is obtained by peeping through a wonderful telescope which the Professor has invented. Jack Raleigh, a student, looks through it and sees a vision of feminine loveliness. John Pennypacker, a billionaire, takes a peep, and discovers extraordinary opportunities for adding to his pile; and Steve Waffles, a tramp, fleeing from a rural constable, sees the possibility of escape into the future. These three, and the Professor, drink the potent compound, and are immediately whisked into 2906. The rural "sleuth," Eli Beasley, also takes a drink, and follows them. They arrive during an athletic festival at Gassar College, where Jack meets the feminine "vision" in the person of Samsonia, the lady captain of the tug-of-war team, while Waffles is appropriated by Matricula, the president of the College. The possession of money is unlawful, and because they offend in this regard the Professor and his companions are frozen by liquid air and taken to "Screamland," where they are put on exhibition as curious relics of a bygone age. The scene of the second act, the "National Amusement Park of 2906," is a sort of burlesque of Coney Island. Gasolina, an automobile maid, thaws out the prisoners, and in the finale all of the characters are brought back to the present.

Mr. Harry Bulger was very funny as the tramp Waffles, his quick repartee and effective way of singing comic songs making him one of the most popular of entertainers. Miss Helen Hale was a captivating Samsonia; and Miss Sallie Fisher won approval in a prominent rôle. Miss Hattie Arnold, as Matricula, did a roller-skating bit with Mr. Bulger that sent the audience into convulsions of laughter.

MISS DOT STEPHENS' SAD CASE.

Miss Doris Stephens, best known in the professional world as Dot Stephens, a very clever vocalist and dancer, met with a terrible accident late on the Saturday night of June 30. She had fulfilled an engagement at H.M. Theatre of Varieties at Walsall, and left the same night to go to Glasgow, where she was to have appeared the following week. On reaching Wolverhampton she had to wait some time to join the midnight mail on the London and North-Western line, and there met some professional friends. She went to the Hippodrome, Wolverhampton, and was afterwards accompanied to the High Level Station by a gentleman, who secured her a seat in a second-class compartment, and saw that the door on the platform side was properly fastened before the train started. On reaching Fordhouses, about three miles from Wolverhampton, the unfortunate young lady was found lying in the six foot way in an unconscious state, and terribly injured. She was conveyed to the Wolverhampton station, and thence to the General Hospital. She was found to be seriously lacerated about the head and body.

So sad a case has rarely, if ever, been brought before the dramatic and musical profession, whose record abounds in deeds of charity. The name of Miss Stephens is now to be added to the already full scroll of benevolent actions.

Miss Stephens was a clever vocalist, dancer, and actress, and first appeared with Mr. Bannister Howard as the Salvation Army lass in The Belle of New York, remaining with the company three years. She then joined Mr. George Dance for the part of

AMERICAN AMUSEMENTS.

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

NEW YORK, Oct. 10.—The Prince of India, a dramatisation of General Lew Wallace's novel of the same title, is playing to crowded houses at the Broadway Theatre. The drama was fully described when it was first produced in Chicago last March. Messrs. Klaw and Erlanger have spared no expense in making this one of the most complete and truthful representations in the history of the American stage; and as a spectacle it has seldom been excelled in magnitude and splendour. The scene showing the Moslem hordes hammering at the gates of Constantinople, the fall of the massive walls, and the hand-to-hand conflict between the soldiers of Prince Mahommed and the Emperor Constantine is a masterpiece of stage realism. The play has five acts and eleven scenes, the latter comprising a superb view of Constantinople, and the Golden Horn from Galata; a wonderfully effective panoramic picture of the Bosphorus, with a terrible storm in progress; the White Castle of the Turks, "on the sweet waters of Asia"; the palace of the Princess Irene at Therapia; the audience-hall in the palace of the Emperor Constantine at Blacherne; the tent of Mahommed before Constantinople; the Princess Irene's palace in Constantinople; and four remarkably vivid pictures of Mahommed's successful siege of the city, ending with an impressive scene in the interior of the Church of Sancta Sophia. The scenery was painted by Messrs. T. E. Ryan and Richard Marston, several of the larger sets being designed by Mr. Henry Emden, of London.

MR. GEORGE CLARKE, who, in his day, was one of the best-known actors in New York, and was for many years asociated with the late Augustin Daly both as stage-manager and as a leading member of his company, died on the 3rd inst., at Norwich, Conn., after a short illness. Mr. Clarke, whose real name was O'Neill, was born in 1840. Owing to the fact that they appeared together in numerous productions at Daly's, the names of George Clarke and Ada Rehan are almost inseparable.

NEW YORK, OCT. 17.—Mr. H. B. Irving and Miss Dorothea Baird have changed their bill at the New Amsterdam Theatre, and are appearing during this, the third week of their engagement, in Charles I., King René's Daughter, and The Lyons Mail. The performances of Paolo and Francesca were attended by large and appreciative audiences. Mr. Irving's Malatesta was a masterly portrayal, and in the character of Francesca Miss Baird's intelligent and sympathetic depiction of girlish innocence was most appealing.

MR. NAT. C. GOODWIN, after a series of "misfits," has at last found a play that suits him. It is called The Genius, and is now running at the Bijou Theatre. It is classed as a farce comedy, and was written by Messrs. William C. and Cecil de Mille. Jack Spencer, a wealthy young American, is in love with Josephine Van Dusen, who worships art and artists. In order to win her, Jack takes lessons at a studio occupied by an Irish sculptor, a German musician, and a French painter, but makes very little progress until Nell Graham, an artist's model, suggests that he can win fame by passing off the pictures, musical compositions and sculptures as his own, the three students being quite agreeable so long as they are allowed to pocket the proceeds. The plan is carried out, and the new "genius" is discovered by Percival Clutterbuck, a connoisseur, who gives Spencer some valuable advertising in the art journals as "the new impressionist." When he visits the studio Clutterbuck finds that his new discovery is none other than his old friend Jack Spencer; and Josephine, who also drops in, is overjoyed at the sudden rise of her old lover Jack, who never showed any symptoms of an artistic temperament. They become engaged on the spot, and the demand for Spencer's work grows steadily. But Jack has fallen a victim to the charms of the beautiful model, Nell Graham, and no longer cares for Josephine. He tries to break the engagement by declaring that he is an impostor, but fails to convince the young lady, because Clutterbuck, to save his own reputation, insists that Spencer is simply a great genius gone mad. Josephine is finally persuaded to release him when he tells her that she was his inspiration, and when an artist marries his inspiration he ceases to do good work. Then Clutterbuck tells Josephine that he has always loved her, and she accepts him, while the "genius" and the model fall into each other's arms.

THE play provides Mr. Goodwin with a number of opportunities for being amusing in the way that is all his own, and keeps the audience in a good humour from beginning to end. In his speech on the opening night Mr. Goodwin said: "I am now presented by myself. When presented by other managers during te last few years I have left a trail of tombstones across the country. I now hope to go over my trail and wipe out the epitaphs."

MRS. FISKE has produced a new comedy, by Langdon Mitchell, entitled The New York Idea. The play deals with the divorce problem, and Mrs. Fiske appears as Cynthia Karslake, a vivacious young society woman who has but slight regard for the permanency of marriage. She divorces her husband for a trivial cause, and plans a second match for reasons of policy only. The genuineness of her nature rises uppermost through various complications, and in the end the real love she has for her husband asserts itself, and they are reunited. Prominent members of Mrs. Fiske's company are Miss Dorothy Dorr and Messrs. George Arliss, John Mason, Charles Harbury, and Dudley Clinton.

AMUSEMENTS IN AUSTRALIA.

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

SYDNEY, SEPT. 11.—Mr. Bland Holt changed the name of A Woman's Revenge to A Woman's Hate, and revived it with astounding success at the Royal on the 8th. The production ranks next to A Prodigal Son in Mr. Holt's répertoire. Misses Frances Ross, Harrie Ireland, Jennie Pollock, and Florrie Kelly, Mrs. Bland Holt, and Messrs. Walter Baker, Albert Norman, Arthur Styan, Charles Brown, Max Maxwell, and Bland Holt artistically and satisfactorily realise all that the author intended.

MR. CHARLES HOLLOWAY provides his Criterionites a weekly change of bill. The latest is the ever-welcome Shaughraun. This time the light-hearted ne'er-do-weel is undertaken by Mr. J. P. O'Neill, who represents a typical Irishman. Miss Beatrice Holloway is a good Clare Ffolliott; Miss Alice Deondyn is a capital Mrs. Kelly; and Miss Mabel Russell is a pleasing Mona. Mr. Robert Inman appears as Captain Molyneux, a fine, manly representation; and Mr. W. Jeffreson Taite scores as Corry Kinchela. Mr. Godfrey Cass (Robert Ffolliott), Mr. John Hesford (Father Dolan), and Mr. J. P. West (a very fine Harvey Duff), with Miss Ethel Appleton (Arte O'Neill), and Misses Hilda Fraser and Pattie Gourlay as the Keeners, complete a good cast.

MISS ANNIE MAYOR, after over 20 years' absence, has returned to Sydney, to give her entertainment, called Drama in Camera, on a well-appointed stage and in most appropriate costumes.

A BIG house at the Tivoli is the rule, and on the 8th Mr. Harry Bedford had an enthusiastic welcome. Miss Nellie Kilburn returned, and was received with demonstrations of pleasure.

MELBOURNE, SEPT. 11.—PRINCESS THEATRE (Lessees, Messrs. Meynell and Gunn; Representative, Mr. Allan Hamilton).—The Fatal Wedding continues to attract large houses, and on Saturday evening there was not a vacant seat in the theatre. A feature of the performance is the children's scene, and the clever little ones are nightly recalled. Miss Maggie Dickenson scores a success with her song, "Kids from the alley." The stirring incidents of the play and the acting of the principals play an important part in the success of the performance. The Fatal Wedding will run till the end of the current week.

HER MAJESTY'S THEATRE (Lessee, Mr. J. C. Williamson; Business-Manager, Mr. George Tallis).—The popularity of The Little Michus remains unabated. The theatre was again crowded on Saturday evening by an appreciative audience, which responded heartily to the entertaining efforts of the comedians.

THEATRE ROYAL (Lessee, Mr. William Anderson; Business-Manager, Mr. Julius Grant). — The stirring melodrama of Australian bush life, Thunderbolt, has evidently hit the public taste, the theatre being thronged nightly. Mr. George Cross in the name-part displays remarkable talent; while Miss Eugenie Duggan is graceful as the heroine. The rest of Mr. Anderson's company appear to advantage in their various rôles. Mr. Reg. Robins has painted some excellent scenes for the production, and, taken on the whole, Thunderbolt is one of the best things Mr. Anderson has produced during his present Melbourne season.

OPERA HOUSE (Proprietor, Mr. Harry Rickards; Business-Manager, Mr. Fred Aydon).—Mr. Harry Tate's company made its first appearance on Saturday evening in a laughable sketch, entitled Motoring, and scored an instantaneous success, the house being in roars of laughter the whole time they were on the stage. Little Cliff appeared in a number of new songs and dances; Miss Cassie Walmer has established herself a genuine favourite; Augustin and Hartley astonish all with their clever barrel act; Brinn still presents his wonderful cannon act; while Fred Bluett, Elsie Brown, Tim Howard, the Phillips Bros., Collier Sisters, Irving Sayles, and a host of others give satisfactory turns.

GAIETY THEATRE (Manager, Mr. Joe Solomons).—A complete change of programme drew a crowded house on Saturday evening. Among new arrivals may be mentioned the Norman Sisters, dancers and vocalists, and Miss May Dagmar, contortionist. Interesting turns were given by Harry Leggetts, Rexo, Ruby Crawford, Ern Delavale, Joe Morris, and Alf Wilson.

AT the Athenæum Hall Best and Baker's moving pictures are drawing large houses, the business during show week being exceptionally good.

"MIZPAH."

(FROM OUR AMERICAN CORRESPONDENT.)

A sensational success has been made by the drama in four acts and ten scenes, by Ella Wheeler Wilcox and Luscombe Searelle, at the Academy of Music, New York. The play is written mostly in blank verse, and is founded on the Bible story of Esther. The action begins in the boudoir of Queen Vashti, who tells of her dissatisfaction with her lot as the unloved consort of King Ahasuerus. The ambitious Haman sees in her a tool for his schemes to secure the throne, and determines to take advantage of her weakness. Upon the King's return from a victorious war she gives vent to her vixenish temper and is divorced, and cast out of the city. Ahasuerus seeks another Queen, and when Esther appears she immediately finds favour in his eyes. She, of all other maidens, gives the most satisfactory answer to the King's demand for a definition of love. Esther is installed in the palace, and when it seems that she has reached the zenith of her happiness and stands highest in Ahasuerus's regard, she falls through a plot of the villain Haman and the former Queen Vashti. With a stolen key Vashti plans to introduce assassins into the bridal chamber of Esther, slay the King, and throw the blame on her rival. Her tiring woman, Maashla, finding the key as Vashti drops it, betrays the plot to Mordecai, who, despite his advanced age, rushes to the palace and kills the two would-be assassins posted in the ante-chamber. Haman's theft of Esther's key as she swoons at the bloody sight, attaches guilt to the innocent, and it is only when the same little key—mischievous cause of everyone's undoing—subsequently drops from Haman's bosom that Esther is vindicated and restored to favour. The final downfall of the two conspirators is depicted in a realistic manner, the pair being pilloried until King Ahasuerus and his court have, with much deliberation, hit upon a punishment to fit the crime. Then Haman is dragged, screaming for mercy, from the throne-room to hang on the scaffold prepared for Mordecai and Vashti, her proud spirit crushed, slinks away to spend the rest of her days in a desert forest where she is bitten by a poisonous serpent so that she dies.

Mr. Charles Dalton's King Ahasuerus is a powerful and convincing portrayal. Miss Elizabeth Kennedy is an excellent Esther, and the two conspirators, Haman and Vashti, are effectively represented by Mr. Frank Losee and Miss Lillian Lamson. The piece is mounted with care, several of the scenes being very beautiful, while the music, which is Mr. Searelle's exclusive contribution, is appropriate. Mrs. Wilcox is at her best in a rhyming ode to love murmured by Esther into the King's ears to an accompaniment of soft music. Enthusiastic approval was manifested at frequent intervals by a large audience.

MISS EDITH GIBBS, the well-known instructress in tone production and singing, has commenced her classes for the season at Bechstein Hall. Appointments can be made by letter only.

LONDON & SUBURBAN THEATRES.

THE MARLBOROUGH.

MR. AND MRS. F. R. BENSON AND COMPANY.

A new era of prosperity seems assured at this fine suburban playhouse. People are flocking to its doors, and a big clientèle has continued to patronise it since its re-opening, under the managing-directorship of Messrs. Ernest Stevens and R. C. Buchanan. In Mr. J. Murray Herriot the proprietors have a popular and energetic acting-manager, always at his post, and business is conducted in a smooth, even, and proper fashion. This week Mr. and Mrs. F. R. Benson and his Shakespearean company are proving a great draw, and an excellent selection of plays has been presented throughout the week, the characters in each work being represented by thoroughly capable artists. On Tuesday, the night of our visit, The School for Scandal was presented, and no trouble or expense had apparently been spared in the mounting and dressing of the piece. That the play is still a favourite was evidenced by a full house. Nothing could have been better than Mr. H. O. Nicholson's portrayal of Sir Peter Teazle. His acting throughout the piece stamped him as an artist of exceptional merit. As Sir Oliver Surface, Mr. E. A. Warburton did convincing work; and Joseph Surface found in Mr. Clarence Derwent an actor who, while realising the cunning and hypocrisy of the character, glazed them over with courtliness of demeanour. The audience was especially pleased with Mr. F. R. Benson in the part of Charles Surface—a clever impersonation indeed, the actor infusing plenty of humour and life into the part. As Careless, Mr. George Buchanan was a distinct success, an encore being demanded for his rendering of the song in Scene 3 of Act 2. Old Rowley and Trip were cleverly represented by Messrs. G. F. Hannam Clark and Stanley Howett. Mr. George R. Weir capably depicted the rôle of Moses; and Mr. J. P. Wilson was sufficiently cynical in his performance of Snake. Mr. Murray Carrington's interpretation of Sir Benjamin Backbite; and Mr. Percy D. Owen's interesting study of Crabtree were appreciated highly. As Lady Teazle, Mrs. F. R. Benson was seen to great advantage, her reading of the part drawing forth merited applause. Especially good was she in the famous screen scene. Praise should also be given to Miss Helen Haye for her portrayal of Lady Sneerwell; and as Mrs. Candour Miss Elinor Aickin had a part which suited her well. Miss Gwladys Wynne made a sweet Maria; and Miss A. P. Nicholson, Messrs. McLeod and Johnston, well sustained minor parts.

KING'S THEATRE, HAMMERSMITH.

On Monday, Oct. 22,
the Play, by E. W. Peple, entitled
"THE PRINCE CHAP."

If all plays imported into this country by our friends across the "pond" were as agreeable to witness as The Prince Chap there would be no cause for the bitter remarks so often made when a transplanted American play has failed to attract. The Prince Chap need fear nothing of that kind occurring. It is a delightful and cheery story clearly told, and the audience at the King's Theatre on Monday night clearly recognised its merits, being charmed by the simple and unaffected writing of Mr. Peple, so that curtain-calls were numerous. The part of William Peyton, the young sculptor with a heart, is perfectly played by Mr. H. R. Roberts, his natural and easy manner creating a most favourable impression. As at the Criterion, Marcus Runion is in the hands of that prime actor Mr. George Shelton, who exhibits much characteristic humour as the old servant. Mr. Wilfred Draycott makes the most of his opportunities as the Earl of Henningford; and the three artist friends, Ballington, Jadder, and Fritz, are excellently impersonated by Messrs. A. E. Greenaway, Arthur Eldred, and Ivan Berlyn. Miss Ethel Hollingshead, a very graceful actress, deserves high praise for her clever handling of the unsympathetic part of Alice Travers. Mrs. Harrington is well realised by Miss Kathleen Kellie; Miss Adie Boyne's representation of Phœbe Puckers is deliciously humorous, and her quaint methods induce genuine laughter. The three Claudias of little Betty Green, little Geraldine Wilson, and Miss Lorna Laurence are each most successful. The Criterion scenery is utilised with excellent effect. Messrs. F. C. Phillips and C. Brookfield's comedy, entitled Burglar and Judge, is also played, in which Messrs. Ivan Berlyn, Greenaway, and Eldred create a deal of merriment.

THE GRAND, WOOLWICH.

On Monday, Oct. 22,
the Farce, by R. C. Carton, entitled
"MR. HOPKINSON."

Mr. Clarence Sounes is to be congratulated on his enterprise in booking Mr. Charles Macdona's principal company in the above-named play, and the enthusiastic reception accorded to Mr. Hopkinson and his confrères on Monday night proved that the taste of, at any rate, a good number of Woolwich playgoers had been correctly gauged. Mr. Frank Stanmore is well suited in the title-rôle, his acting showing that careful study has given him a thorough grip of the character. He is particularly well advised in sufficiently exaggerating Hopkinson's "bounderism" in the first act to leave room for a perceptible improvement in the subsequent acts, without destroying the impression that the little counter-jumper will remain a howling outsider to the end of his days. Mr. Shirley Lea gives a richly humorous representation of the Earl of Addleton, playing this choleric nobleman in true light-comedy vein, and getting his laughs with that absence of effort which marks the work of the genuine artist. As the Duchess of Braceborough, Miss Marie Hassell is amusingly impassive and placid amid somewhat trying circumstances, the Duchess's good-natured attempts to do Hopkinson, and at the same time her own family a good turn, being skilfully portrayed. Miss Gladys Jesson plays Lady Tyra with all the aplomb and savoir faire of the ultra-modern girl, and if the part is not notably sympathetic she at least makes it far from heartless. As Eliza Dibbs, Miss Katherine Romsey has the chance of making a considerable impression with a very few lines, and comes successfully through the ordeal. Mr. Arnold Lucy gives a careful, clever representation of the Duke of Braceborough; Mr. C. M. Heslop does well in the somewhat thankless part of Otho Dursingham; Mr. Reginald Dane imparts a touch of character to the aristocratic roué, Lord Cawthorpe; and Mr. George McCloskie is effective as Mr. Smethurst. The farce is well mounted, and a special word of praise must be given to the excellent stage-management. The main play is preceded by a comedietta, entitled A Love Game, in which the mock heroics of Mr. C. M. Heslop and the pretty acting of Miss Marjorie Chard give general satisfaction.

THE SHAKESPEARE.

The Drama, in Five Acts, by Geo. R. Sims,
entitled
"THE LIGHTS O' LONDON."

Melodrama still continues to win immense favour with Shakespeare audiences, and the management is to be congratulated upon the engagement of Mr. Herbert Hollister's company in Mr. Geo. R. Sims's world-famed drama, The Lights o' London. Well staged and performed by a really strong company, the piece on Monday night went with a swing from start to finish, and at the final fall of the curtain the applause was very pronounced. A sound and convincing impersonation of Seth Preene is given by Mr. Herbert Hollister, who throughout acts with dramatic force, and quite impressed the audience. Mr. C. F. Collings quickly wins the favour of the house by a manly and vigorous portrayal of Harold Armitage; and Miss Jennie Burgoyne gives a very natural representation of the sorely-tried Bess, winning sympathetic applause. Mr. Herbert Lewis does all that is possible with the part of Jarvis, and keeps the audience well amused. He is well supported by Miss Violet Temple as Mrs. Jarvis and Miss Renée Douglas as Shakespeare Jarvis, both contributing excellent performances. Mr Sidney N. Hallows is a dignified Squire Armytage; and Mr. F. V. Lloyd gives a very satisfactory delineation of the old lodge-keeper Marks. The talents of Mr. Raymond Thomas are well employed in the rôle of the scheming Clifford Armytage; and commendation is due to Mr. George Wallace for a capital character-sketch of Philosopher Jack. The gay and selfish Hetty Preene is effectively played by Miss Constance Davey, who cleverly depicts the varying moods of the part.

THE CAMDEN.

On Monday, Oct. 22,
the Musical Comedy, entitled
"THE GIRL BEHIND THE COUNTER."

Mr. Hayden Coffin and Miss Isabel Jay are a stupendous attraction in themselves, but when they apear in a bright musical play with an excellent company it is no wonder that overflowing audiences—such as are to be found at the Camden this week—are the rule. The Girl Behind the Counter, which is being played by Mr. Frank Curzon's company, forms quite a delightful evening's entertainment. Mr. Hayden Coffin appears as Charles Chetwynd, and acts and sings in his best and most finished manner. As Winnie Willoughby, Miss Isabel Jay is truly charming. She is in capital voice, and has some pretty songs, which she sings in artistic fashion, and the applause which greets her is tremendous. The comic element is supplied by several actors, headed by Mr. J. F. McArdle, who as General Sir Wilkie Willoughby is absolutely irresistible. His song on Sir Walter Raleigh is a very original number, and was thrice encored. Another comedian—Mr. Lionel Victor, who is well known here—makes a most amusing Adolphus Dudd, and scores with his song "If there hadn't been an Apple on the Tree." Mr. George Barrett finds ample scope for his talent in the character of the waiter, which is laughable in the extreme; while Mr. A. E. Edwardes is also very comic as another waiter. As the dude, Viscount Gushington, Mr. G. Davy Burnaby is particularly good; and Mr. Fred Allandale is excellent as Monsieur Duval. Miss Violet Englefield is a very fascinating Millie Mostyn; and Miss Helene Rose is a vivacious and captivating Susie, her "Kate Greenaway" duet with Mr. Lionel Victor being a delightful number. Mr. E. W. Laceby makes a first-class Rudolf. There is an excellent chorus, and the composer, Mr. Howard Talbot, conducts with his usual ability. The play is mounted exactly as at Wyndham's Theatre, in the most lavish style, and the whole performance is of the best description.

CRYSTAL PALACE THEATRE.

the Comedy, in Three Acts, by Brandon Thomas,
entitled
"CHARLEY'S AUNT."

Peals of laughter have this week echoed through the Palace, where Mr. Bannister Howard has put forward a company directed by the author in the indefatigable Charley's Aunt. By the size of the audience it is evident that Mr. Howard has brought home to the residents of Sydenham and neighbourhood the claims of the theatre, and patrons, who come by train, carriage, and omnibus, as well as on foot, have been glad to avail themselves of standing-room in the popular parts of the house. The company, most of whom have for a considerable time been associated with their parts, combine in an admirable all-round representation. Mr. Stanley Cooke remains in possession of the title-rôle, and his whimsical portrayal is as fresh and diverting as ever. The airs and graces of the little old woman are presented without exaggeration, but so quaintly as to keep the house constantly in laughter. Mr. C. B. Keston has taken up the part of Colonel Sir Francis Chesney, Bart., recently impersonated by the author, and puts forward a true type of the military martinet, brusque and abrupt, yet kind-hearted and sympathetic. Mr. Walter Beaumont gives a truly comic conception of the oleaginous Stephen Spettigue, and the spectacle of the portly old solicitor prancing round the house in pursuit of his wooing is one that puts the audience in the heartiest merriment. Mr. Beaumont's utterance, too, is capable of many inflections, which are all skilfully adapted to the droll requirements of the part. A handsome and stately Donna Lucia D'Alvadorez is presented in the person of Miss Lena MacNaughton, who employs a melodious voice agreeably; and a pleasing and dainty representative of Ela Delahay is found in Miss Gladys Storey, whose refinement of manner is greatly admired. Miss Lilyan Lait and Miss Kitty Carew both act gracefully in the parts of Kitty Verdun and Amy Spettigue respectively; and their conspiring lovers, Jack Chesney and Charley Wykeham have bright and buoyant exponents in Mr. Hastings Lynn and Mr. Richard B. Mason. Mr. Sydney Compton submits a performance of the college scout Brassett, in which the essence of drollery is apparent. The scenery is on a complete scale, the college garden being quite an elaborate specimen of pictorial art.

KENNINGTON THEATRE.

On Monday, Oct. 22,
the Musical Comedy, entitled
"THE BELLE OF NEW YORK."

The Belle of New York has now been a long time on the road, but age does not diminish her charms, and the simple Salvation lass was as winsome and captivating as ever when she made her curtsey to a full house at Kennington on Monday. The play was produced by Mr. George Musgrove's principal company, a combination as rich in talent as it is strong in numbers, and the performance was thoroughly enjoyable. The familiar music was excellently rendered, the fun was both fast and furious, and the dancing was full of vim. The dressing and mounting left nothing to be desired, the scenic effects of Chinese New Year's Day in Bowery and the Lawn at Narragansett Pier being admirably managed, and furnishing two effective stage pictures. In the title-rôle, Miss Empsie Bowman was eminently successful, singing the favourite air, "Follow on, follow on," in bewitching fashion. As Cora Angelique, Miss Winnie Brown acquitted herself well; while Mr. John Doran made a manly and amusing Harry Bronson, son of the eccentric millionaire, Ichabod Bronson, whose eccentricities were piquantly exaggerated by Mr. Paddy Duprès, an undoubtedly clever comedian. For it was on the comedy side that the company was especially strong. Mr. Frank Lawson, in his original part of Blinky Bill, was a host in himself, and a perfect embodiment of the corner-boy type of humanity. His whistling solo in the shop scene won a triple encore, and he also brought down the house with his expert manipulation of the bones. Mr. Lawson had a wonderfully smart partner in the person of Miss Florence Hersee, who impersonated his sweetheart. She is a vivacious dancer and a brilliant actress, her gaiety proving quite infectious, and supplying a good deal of the life of the performance. Mr. Max Copeland made an inimitable polite lunatic; and as Kenneth Mugg, Mr. Walter Uridge was a complete parody of the operatic comedian. Mr. L. Yeoman and Mr. R. L. Cody were creditable as the twin Portuguese Counts; whilst Mr. Alfred Sandoe's operatic manager deserves mention. Miss Lily Maxwell as the French girl sang and danced in fascinating style, her song, "The Gay Parisienne," proving as popular as ever. Mr. Owen O'Brien made a lot of fun as the interviewer.

DALSTON THEATRE.

On Monday, Oct. 22,
the Musical Comedy, entitled
"SERGEANT BRUE."

The musical comedy, Sergeant Brue, written by Owen Hall, with music by Mme. Liza Lehmann, and lyrics by J. Hickory Wood, is in full swing at the Dalston Theatre this week, and is "drawing" well. Sergeant Brue, of the C Division, is played with admirable effect by Mr. Arthur Reynolds, who is really a brilliant representative of "the force" in more senses of the word than one. Another admirable representation is that by Mr. Charles McLagan as Crookie Scrubbs, an amusing criminal, who, while he is made use of by the sergeant with a view to secure the promotion of that officer, really only adds to his discomfort and chagrin. Lady Bickenhall, for whom the amorous sergeant entertains a strong affection, is charmingly played by Miss Hebe Bliss, whose singing, as well as her histrionic powers, secure for her universal admiration. Mr. E. Percy Rogers and Miss Mary Hay, as the son and daughter of the sergeant, are amusing personages; and Mr. Charles Sims adds to the comedy element as Mr. Crank, a magistrate. Miss Marion Hargraves's impersonation of a typical general servant is also a good specimen of character-acting. All the members of Mr. E. Lockwood's company, who assist in the representation, are worthy of much praise, and the musical director is Mr. Norman Latham.

ALEXANDRA THEATRE, N.

On Monday, Oct. 22,
the Farce, in Three Acts, by W. W. Jacobs and Louis N. Parker, entitled
"BEAUTY AND THE BARGE."

Messrs. W. W. Jacobs and Louis N. Parker's Beauty and the Barge is being presented this week by Mr. Arthur Hardy's company, with Mr. Blake Adams in the rôle of Captain James Barley The piece was keenly appreciated by the large audience which assembled on Monday last, the many clever and witty lines and farcical situations keeping the house in a constant state of laughter from the rise to the fall of the curtain. Much of the success achieved is due to Mr. Blake Adams, whose admirable performance of Captain James Barley is of immense value to the production. It is on Mr. Adams that the burden of the work falls, and it would be difficult to find anyone more worthy to bear it, and needless to say the audience are not slow to recognise the many excellent points and subtle touches he imparts to his impersonation of the too affable bargee. The choleric and irascible Major Smedley of Mr. Walter Pemberton is another clever character-study, which is in no way exaggerated and thoroughly effective. Lieut. Seton Boyne and Herbert Manners are pleasantly and naturally played by Messrs. Edward Coventry and Pennington Gush respectively. Tom Cod and John Dibbs, as played by Messrs. Fred Knight and Charles A. White, add materially to the general success; and good work is also done by Mr. Thomas Pauncefort as the sentimental Augustus and Mr. Ewart Drake as the diminutive landlord of the "Old Ship." Miss Ruby Wyndham is a quaint and droll Mrs. Baldwin; and a typical landlady is found in Mr. J. W. Braithwaite, who appears as Mrs. Porter. Miss Mary Pemberton is a bright and vivacious Lucy Dallas; and Mrs. Smedley and Ethel Smedley are played with success by Miss Mona Robin and Miss May Fairclough.

CORONET THEATRE.

On Tuesday, Oct. 23,
"PATIENCE."

It is quite pleasing to record that Gilbert and Sullivan are all the rage and quite the fashion in Kensington, and there is no sign of abatement in the violent siege which is laid to the Nottinghill Gate playhouse during this the second week of the three weeks' season of D'Oyly Carte's répertoire performances, with the result that the auditorium is uncomfortably crowded nightly with the disciples of the old Savoy operas. Next week is the last week of this short season of revivals, so walk up all ye lovers of pure and laughter-laden satire wedded to dainty lilting melody. Mr. C. H. Workman as the fleshly poet, the sham æsthete, the superficial lover of adulation, Reginald Bunthorne, is simply splendid. His ridiculous halting gait and contortional pose, his simpering manner, and his "quite-too-utterly-all-but" ecstatic absorption are excruciatingly funny, whilst his singing and dancing are everything that could be desired. Mr. Albert Kavanagh as the idyllic poet, the self-apotheosised Adonis, Archibald Grosvenor, is deliciously droll, and hits off the characteristics of the part to a nicety. Miss Hope Hastings again wins golden opinions by her delightful rendition of the tuneful and trying songs allotted to her. Her delivery of the sweetly pretty ballad in the second act, "The love that is true," is received rapturously and encored tumultuously. Miss Theresa Rassam is seen quite at her best in the part of the Lady Jane, and her song, "Soon there'll be too much of me," meets with the appreciation it deserves. Miss Lulu Evans makes much of the part of the Lady Angela; and as the Lady Saphir Miss Mabel Burnege does remarkably well; and Miss Bessell Adams also excels in the rôle of the Lady Ella. Mr. Fred Edgar is very droll as Major Murgatroyd, and sings remarkably well; Mr. Leicester Tunks is excellent as Colonel Calverley; and Mr. Pacie Ripple is well to the fore as Lieut. the Duke of Dunstable. The chorus is splendidly well drilled, and all praise is due to Mr. Fred A. Leon for his able stage management. During the week The Gondoliers, The Yeomen of the Guard, The Pirates of Penzance and The Trial by Jury, and the Mikado were given.

THE WEST LONDON.

On Monday, Oct. 22,
the Musical Pantomimical Comedy, in Four Acts,
entitled
"THE SWISS EXPRESS."

The Swiss Express has had such a long and prosperous career on its travels, meeting everywhere with such phenomenal success, that it is now somewhat late in the day to further sing its praises. Suffice it to say, however, that as James and John, the Brothers C. and F. Renad, seem to excel more and more in their eccentricities. They continue to play these really amusing rôles. As Dr Gondimar Gull Mr. Johnny McElroy works with unflagging energy and determination; Mr. George Martin is well to the fore as Bob Rollingstone; Mr. Alec Wylie scores as Dudeley Green; and Mr. Harwood Cooper is amusingly quaint as Admiral Bombshelli. Miss Dora Moorhouse acts Mrs. Septimus Squeeze in thoroughly satisfactory fashion; whilst Miss Ida Ernest, as the much-perturbed bride, Virginia, is full of life and go, singing with much taste, and dancing with no mean ability. A feature of the evening's entertainment is the singing and dancing of the Edene Quartette, four clever little ladies, the spontaneous warmth of their reception in Marylebone being entirely due to their pronounced merit.

COUNTY THEATRE, KINGSTON.

On Monday, Oct. 22,
the Drama, in Five Acts, by Carlton Wallace,
entitled
"THE VILLAGE BLACKSMITH."

Lovers of sensational drama are having something quite after their taste at the Royal County Theatre this week, where Mr. Wallace's stirring play, full of fun, pathos, and adventure, is being presented by a capable company under the direction of Messrs. Dottridge, Longden, and Livesey. The popularity of this form of play with a large section of Kingston playgoers was attested by the crowded state of the gallery and pit. A capital blacksmith was found in Mr. Sam Livesey, who both spoke and acted the part to the life. He soon made himself a great favourite with his auditors. Equally successful, though in an opposite sense, was Mr. Joseph Carter in the part of Captain Leo, whose villainies frequently aroused the execration of the house. Miss Maggie Edwards gave a forceful rendering of the part of the heroine, Kate Strong; and an especially clever bit of juvenile acting was that of little Miss Bertha Hanbury, who, as the blacksmith's little boy, displayed rare histrionic gifts in one so young. Mr. Geo. B. Campbell invested the part of the rustic simpleton, Billy Twigg, with a most amusing eccentricity. Others deserving of particular notice were Mr. Thomas E. Marshall and Mrs. T. C. Livesey as Mr. and Mrs. Parkins, Mr. Edwin Maydew as Lucas Marlow, and Miss Cassie Le Grande as Ruth Parkins. The wrestling match in the last act was admirably carried out.

NEW PRINCE'S THEATRE, POPLAR.

the Drama, in Four Acts, by Charles Darrell,
entitled
"WHEN LONDON SLEEPS."

Mr. Lester Collingwood's company in When London Sleeps is delighting large audiences at the New Prince's Theatre this present week. The play abounds in exciting incidents and thrilling situations. As David Engleheart, Mr. Sam Arthur makes a handsome athlete, and throughout the play wins golden opinions by his fine rendering of the character. Mr. C. P. Wentworth as Captain Rodney Hayes does not commit the mistake of making the villain of the piece unnaturally repulsive. As Furnaby Fuller, Mr. Charles E. Sutton renders good service; and Mr. F. E. Thomas as Bob Jones, the circus proprietor, could not be bettered. Mr. D'Arcy Kelway evokes plenty of amusement by his delineation of the character of Sammy Blythe; and the Hon. Bertie Broomhead finds an able representative in Mr. Frank Howard. Miss Mabel Scudamore is attractive and bright in the part of Queenie Carruthers, and quickly wins favour. She is ably seconded by Miss Bessie Frank as Carrie Jones. Miss Maud Yorke is to be congratulated on her excellent acting as Hilda Carode; and Miss Daisy Clifford does exceedingly well as Maudie de Freier. Mrs. Edgar Colona as Signorina Jones gives a touching performance; and Miss Josephine Melbourne is very clever as Lelia. The minor parts are all well played, and the piece is capitally staged.

THE LYRIC, HAMMERSMITH.

On Monday, Oct. 22,
the Romantic Drama, entitled
"GIPSY JACK."

A successful appeal to the Hammersmith playgoers is made this week by Mr. Harry Bedford, who, assisted by an excellent company, is appearing here in the romantic drama, Gipsy Jack. In the hands of Mr. Bedford, the title-rôle is played with a rollicking, hearty manliness that wins all hearts, and his different disguises are cleverly assumed. Mr. Charles Archer makes a capital Sir John Dexter, portraying the disappointed old man to the life. The Skinner's, father and son, are intrusted to Mr. David Curtis and Mr. Robert Gilbert respectively, both of whom display considerable ability in the portrayal of their villainies A fine performance is given by Miss Frances Foley, who is responsible for the part of Hagar. Miss Phyllis Elton makes a charming Dorothy Dexter; while Miss Bessie Beresford as the vivacious May Harvey is equally good. A pathetic study is given by Miss Ada Antley as the gipsy girl Nan; and the Rev. Francis Harvey is successfully played by Mr. E. Rayson-Cousins. The author has given abundant opportunities for merriment, and Mr. Syd Bedford as Joe Banks, with Mr. Archer Brown as Charlie Bates, assisted by Miss Jennie Risley as Jennie Huggins, are all quite equal to the occasions offered, and much laughter is the result of their combined efforts.

THE CROWN, PECKHAM.

On Monday, Oct. 22,
the Comedy, by Arthur Law, entitled
"A COUNTRY MOUSE."

The popular manager, Mr. Cecil Paget, this week follows his laudable custom of presenting us with another West-end success, and his patrons are accordingly enjoying a visit from that clever actress, Miss Annie Hughes, in A Country Mouse. The piece concerns itself with the doings of characters who scarcely appeal to our sympathies, but the situations are so clever and the dialogue so sparkling and epigramatic that the success of the production is assured from the outset. The company, which is under the direction of Miss Emma Hutchison and Mr. Percy Hutchison, gives a rendering of the play which leaves nothing to be desired, and Miss Hughes and her clever companions on Monday received a warm welcome from a crowded house. Miss Annie Hughes furnishes a capital embodiment of Angela Muir, who, as it turns out, is not quite so simple as she appears at first sight, and the delightfully arch way in which she ensnares the Duke of St. Kitts in the matrimonial net is much appreciated by the audience. Miss Moyra Creegan makes a stately Lady Sylvia Bowlby, and her clever acting in an unsympathetic rôle is of the greatest value to the success of the piece. Mr. Charles Esdale gives a polished and natural rendering of the Hon. Archibald Vyse; and Mr. Evelyn Vernon makes the most of the character of the old reprobate, the Duke of St. Kitts. Mr. Fomas A. Braidon is amusing as Lord Robert Wyckham; and Miss Frances Davie is a bright and engaging Violet Aynesley. Mr. William Calvert gains the sympathy of the audience by his sterling performance of honest John Bowlby; and Mr. John E. Watson supplies a good character-sketch as the butler, Jephcot. Miss Ida Laurie is a humorous Mrs. Crooper. The lever de rideau is Mrs. Oscar Beringer's pretty one-act play, Saucers, in which Miss Annie Hughes shows her versatility by her delightfully natural impersonation of the warm-hearted little cockney flower girl, who is nicknamed "Saucers." Mr. Chas. Esdale is good as Jack Hillier; and Messrs. Evelyn Vernon and Thomas A Braidon are amusing as his two bibulous companions. Mr. John E. Watson undertakes the duties of business and stage management.

THE GRAND, FULHAM.

On Monday, Oct. 22,
the Drama, by Henry Arthur Jones, entitled
"THE SILVER KING."

Messrs. Polini and Melford's company has been paying a return visit with the ever-popular Silver King. It is a remarkable tribute to the worth of this fine play that its drawing powers are as great as ever, and the more often one sees it the more it seems to stand head and shoulders above the ordinary modern melodrama. Several old favourites are in the cast, notably Mr. Herbert Ford, who repeats his exceedingly strong impersonation of Wilfred Denver. In like manner, Mr. Henry Osman again plays Elijah Coombe with all his former skill; and Miss Amy Wood is found again in the humorous part of Tabitha Durden. Mr. Charles Baird is well suited to the rôle of the Spider, and plays with all the needful coolness and polish. Mr. Arthur Rooke is good as the Detective Baxter; and Mr. Charles Fenton is bluff and straightforward as Cripps. The part of Corkett is taken by Mr. Claud Vernon, who, in the later scenes, does well. Mr. Percy Stone is satisfactory as Parkyn, and is well supported by Messrs. Bingham and Haichway, as Binks and Bronson. The important rôle of Daniel Jaikes is admirably played by Mr. Tom Paulton, who contributes a delightful sketch of the faithful old servant. Miss Victoria Addison is a capital representative of Nellie Denver, and plays with great charm and power; while Miss Jessie Apted acts with delightful simplicity as the child Cissy, and Miss Viola Holland scores as Olive Skinner. Mr. Lionel Sisley is amusing as the Tipsy Passenger. The other members of the cast are well up to their work, and the whole production, with all its varied scenery and numerous characters, runs most smoothly under the management of Mr. Arthur Rooke.

ELEPHANT AND CASTLE.

On Monday, Oct. 22,
the Drama, in Five Acts, entitled
"THE HARBOUR LIGHTS."

Mr. J. M. East this week revives the famous old Adelphi drama, The Harbour Lights, and, as is usual with Mr. East's productions, great care is noticeable in every detail. The very popular stock company is received with unbounded applause. Mr. Albert Ward is seen as the young naval lieutenant, David Kingsley, and as the dashing, manly young hero is entirely successful. Mr. Wm. Felton as the young debauchee, the Squire, Frank Morland, gives a careful reading of the part; Nicholas Morland, his cousin, is played by Mr. Horace Hunter, who again takes up the rôle of villainy; Mr. Harry Crane as Mark Kelston gives a fine, robust rendering of the part; Mr. Teddy is again seen as a Jack Tar, he is quite at home in the character, and delights the audience in the second act by introducing a hornpipe; Mr. Brian Daly gives a clever impersonation of the aged butler; Mr. Alfred Holles is capital as the old retired Captain Nelson; while Mr. Sydney Teversham earns much applause as Captain Hardy; Lieut. Wynard is satisfactorily represented by Mr. Edward Boddy; Miss Kathleen Russell makes a sweet and gentle Dora Vane; as the unfortunate Nina Nelson, Miss Daisy Murch is sufficiently pathetic. Mrs. Calhaem as Mrs. Chudleigh causes much amusement. This admirable actress shows in her performance all the advantage of a thorough training in technique, and the most valuable experience. Peggy is brightly and prettily played by Miss Agnes Paulton; Miss Phyllis Manners gives a vigorous rendering of Mrs. Kelstone; and other characters are in good hands.

BOROUGH THEATRE, STRATFORD.

On Monday, Oct. 22, the Musical Play,
entitled
"THE DUCHESS OF DANTZIC."

Despite the fact that it is the fourth visit of the piece to Stratford, the entrancing story of Napoleon and the "Washerwoman Duchess" retains a strong hold on the playgoing public, and large and apreciative audiences are being attracted to the Borough Theatre this week. Miss Kitty Gordon now fills the name-part, and is entirely successful, as the plaudits of the audience testify. Miss Lilian Best is a self-possessed René de Saint Mezard, and sings "Le petit caporal" very prettily. Miss Lily Edmonds is a bright and engaging Lisette, and wins loud applause for her rendering of Blanche Marie. Napoleon's sisters are excellently played by Miss Josephine McCarthy and Miss Doris Grenville; and Miss Nancy Hearne is well placed as the Empress Josephine. Mr. Frederick Moyes's long association with Napoleonic parts enables him to do complete justice to the part of the Emperor, who is readily suggested in make-up, voice, and gesture. Mr. Albert Chapman is an admirable Duke of Dantzic; and as the outspoken Adhemar, Mr. T. C. Maxwell acts and sings pleasingly. Mr. H. C. Barry is an exceedingly amusing Papillon. Minor parts are all in capable hands. The efficient chorus and augmented orchestra are directed by Mr. Sydney Shaw, and Mr. George Dance's general-manager is Mr. George W. Slater.

THEATRE ROYAL, STRATFORD.

On Monday, Oct. 22,
the Drama, in Four Acts, by Sutton Vane,
entitled
"THE SPAN OF LIFE."

There are plenty of deeds of daring and exciting moments in The Span of Life, and it is a thrilling incident indeed when the retreat of Richard Blunt and Kate is cut off by the destruction of the bridge of the King's Chasm, and the three Browns, as represented by the Almo Trio, form a human pathway across the gap for the fugitives to pass over. There is an abundance of interpolated comedy business in the piece, and its reception on the opening night of the week was extremely cordial. Mr. A. S. Trelawney is a manly and earnest exponent of Richard Blunt; Mr. Sanderson Moffatt handles with much skill and power the rôle of the noxious Dunstan Leech; and Mr. Walter Dale is very diverting as Nutty Brown. Miss Ella Wilmer plays with much sympathy and charm as Kate Heathcote; and Miss Kitty Russell gives a decidedly clever performance as the grotesque little Shrove Tuesday. The remaining parts are well played by Mr. James Jarrow as Joshua Gurnet, Mr. Charles Noel as Inspector Ferguson, the Almo Trio as Dismal, Tipton, and Dapper Brown, Mr. J. Petersfell as Azrek, Miss Phyllis Hamilton as Mrs. Jelf, and Miss M. Douglas as the boy Cecil.

BROADWAY THEATRE.

On Monday, Oct. 22,
the Comic Opera, in Three Acts, entitled
"VERONIQUE."

Mr. George Dance's leading company appeared in this popular comic opera on Monday night and was enthusiastically received by a large and delighted audience, the charming music, clever acting, and handsome dressing all being greatly appreciated. Chief honours fall to Miss Ruth Lincoln, whose impersonation of the title-rôle, otherwise Helene de Selanges, is admirable in every detail; and to Mr. Roland Bottomley as Florestan de Vallancourt. The singing of these two artists roused the house to enthusiasm, especially in the duet "Swing high, swing low." Miss Lena Maitland presents a clever and amusing portrait of Emerance Countess de Champ Azur. A charming performance is that of Denise, by Miss Gracie Sinclair, who sings with considerable success "The first little hubby I ever, ever had." Miss May Leslie is good as Aunt Benoit; Miss Ethel Negretti is a charming and vivacious Agatha, Mme. Coquenard; Mr. Fred Lyne is very funny as M. Loustot, the bailiff; as is Mr. Courtenay Comber as Seraphin. Florestan's friends, Octave and Felicieu, are well represented by Messrs. Robert Cranney and Maurice Ogle; Mr. Arthur Wilmer is suitably placed as the waiter Max, as is Mr. Tom Robertson as the orderly; and Mr. Leslie Holland's quaint rendering of M. Coquenard is greatly enjoyed.

Mr. T. C. Raws, the popular proprietor of the Victoria Theatre, West Stanley, has granted the use of his theatre for a benefit performance today in aid of the widows and orphans of the miners killed in the Wingate disaster. Mr. Collins's company, who occupy the boards this week, have volunteered to give the performance.

The Theatres and Music Halls Committee has recommended that Mr. Sprague be informed that the Council has no objection to the arrangements shown on the drawing submitted with regard to the installation of certain additional means of ventilation in the auditorium of the Aldwych provided that the electrical arrangements in connection therewith be in conformity with the regulations of the Council.

The Committee of the London County Council reported that the expenditure incurred with regard to the inspection of places of public entertainment respecting the character of the performances, &c., during the quarter ended Sept. 30, 1906, was £1 4s. 9d. The supervision, at any rate, "came cheap."

THE DRAMA IN PARIS.

PARIS, THURSDAY, OCT. 11.—Les Passageres, M. Alfred Capus's four-act play, lately produced at the Renaissance, scored a moderate success. The trifling plot reminds us very much of one of Paul de Kock's stories, "Un bon Garçon," wherein a man full of good intentions brings trouble on the head of those he wants to befriend. The dialogue, however, is bright and witty, and the piece was so admirably acted that we, nevertheless, spent a delightful evening. The plot is as follows:—Robert Vandal, a man of about forty, is very much in love with his wife, to whom he has always been faithful. He is a model husband. His only fault is that he is too good. Immensely rich, his hand is constantly in his pocket to assist people in distress. With men this is not very dangerous, but with the members of the opposite sex it leads him into trouble. The ladies admire his generosity; they fall in love with him, and, worse still, they tell him so. His beautiful cousin, Hortense, having lost her fortune, has opened a milliner's shop, and gets into financial difficulties. The instant the good Robert hears of her plight he goes to her, and places his cheque-book at her disposal in such a generous manner that Hortense at once throws herself into his arms. Robert feels he is doing a stupid thing, but he has not the strength to resist this windfall. For the first time in his life he is compelled to tell a lie to his wife, and, when found out, to confess his guilt. His wife pardons him, and the repentant Robert swears never to deceive her again. And he certainly would have kept his promise but for Adrienne, the governess. This young lady has lost her heart to him, and informs him that as she loves him she no longer can remain in his house. She carries out her intention, and leaves for the United States; but not before Robert has spent a night with her in a hotel in Havre, where his wife finds him. Once more he is forgiven, and if the ladies will but leave him alone he will once more become a model husband. M. Guitry's acting as the kind-hearted Robert was splendid, and the same can be said of M. Huguenet, who supplied an admirable sketch of a snobbish country cousin. Mme. Juliette Darcourt—one of our very best actresses—shared with them the honours of the evening. Her rôle of Robert's wife was a difficult one, and could only have been entrusted to such able hands. Mlle. Cheirel, Mlle. Caron, Mlle. Ryter, and M. Dieudonné, completed an excellent ensemble.

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

PARIS, THURSDAY, OCTOBER 18.—What did M. Claretie see in the five acts of La Courtisane that he should have accepted the piece? is the question many people asked themselves at the première. When M. Arnyvelde—the anagram of André Lévi—wrote the work he was only nineteen, and two years later it was accepted by the manager of the Comédie-Française. For an inexperienced young man it was a very creditable production, but despite its qualities it was not suitable to the House of Molière. The scene of the plot is laid in an imaginary country. Pyrenna, the old King's protégée, is hunting in the forest with a long train of gentlemen and ladies of the court. In matters of love Pyrenna is very changeable, and she has long given up keeping a record of her intrigues that generally do not go beyond one day or night. Pradelys, a powerful knight, loves her to distraction, but she lets him sigh in vain. She wants some fresh excitement for her jaded palate. As it happens she is in luck, for the noisy throng come upon a miserable hut, whence issues a kind of half naked savage. He is tall and well-built, and when the courtiers begin to deride him he answers them very à propos. In fact, he tells them a few things that rather surprise them. He has, it seems, been brought up by an old man imbued with socialistic principles, and he informs his hearers that all men are brothers and equals. Pyrenna is not much interested in the youth's tirades. She admires his physique, and takes him with her. It must, however, not be supposed that the lady is really the King's mistress. The truth is, that the King, having lost his daughter, of whom he was very fond, met a girl who resembled his child. He at once adopted her, and from that moment gratifies all her whims. All he wants is to gaze every day on the woman whose features remind him of those of a being he loved. And when the courtiers inform the King of Pyrenna's escapade with the young savage he only shrugs his shoulders. Thanks to Pyrenna's powerful protection Robert—the name given to him—becomes chief minister. And this new minister puts into practice the wonderful theories he preached when he was first discovered. Pradelys and the other nobles are exiled. Money ceases to be a commodity. The baker must exchange his loaves for a pair of boots, and the bootmaker his boots for a piece of meat. Money has disappeared, everybody works—or has to work—and everybody is happy. No, not everybody, for there are the exiled nobles, who, under Pradelys, undertake to dethrone the King, and murder his minister Robert. But the conspiracy fails, and Robert generously forgives his enemies. Unfortunately, Robert has another enemy. The fair Pyrenna, not much interested in socialism, begins to grow tired of Robert's company, and she thinks—not without reason—that she did not bring him to her palace that he should dabble in politics. The King suddenly dies, and the people place Pyrenna and Robert on the throne. The least Robert can do is to offer a banquet to his subjects, which he does in royal style, with as much champagne as they can manage to drink. Pyrenna, too, has her share, and, under the influence of wine, confesses to Robert that he bores her tremendously, and that she will be a happy woman if he will but go away. This communication falls upon poor Robert like a thunderbolt, and he withdraws to his apartment to think the matter over. Whilst he thinks something unforeseen happens. Callige, the fool at Court, a hideous deformed monster, throws himself upon Pyrenna. The lady at first is horror-stricken, but the novelty of the thing appears to her, and the ugly Callige takes the place of the beautiful Robert. The latter, too, has trouble with his subjects. The lazy portion of the population refuse to do any work. They rise in arms, and the wily Pyrenna urges them to resist. Robert then makes a speech, and peace is at once restored. Pyrenna's baleful influence shall no longer make itself felt. Robert tells her to go, and she goes. The work was beautifully mounted, and excellently interpreted. M. Albert Lambert fils, who had sacrificed his fine beard to impersonate Robert, was most impressive. Mlle. Cerny was a delightful Pyrenna. M. Leitner made the most of the effaced rôle of the old King. As the monster Callige M. Leloir scored a genuine success, and M. Fenoux gave much colour to the rôle of Pradelys.

The Odeon, under M. Antoine's management, has opened its doors with a fine revival of Oiseaux de Passage. We had trouble to recognise the old theatre. It looks so new and comfortable, and the numerous changes reflect the greatest credit on the new management. Jules Cæsar is not yet ready for production, and a curious incident occurred in connection with that play. The rehearsal having been postponed, the stage manager had forgotten to give notice to the supers—"Messieurs les figurants," as we call them here—many of whom have their domicile underneath the bridges or in some shed or other. When these gentlemen put in an appearance they were told that their services would not be required this week. As they were engaged to represent Roman warriors, they took their rôles seriously, and, not having yet girt their swords they started drawing their knives. The police promptly came upon the scene, and took the noble warriors to the lock-up. Let us hope that on the day of the dress-rehearsal the Roman army will be let out on bail.

Not long ago I had to record the death of Mlle. Léonie Dallet, who, driven to despair by an actor in one of our leading playhouses, put an end to her life. To-day another name has to be added to this sad list, that of Mlle. Germaine Primevère, a young actress, who committed suicide in her apartment in the Rue de Clichy. In a pathetic letter addressed to her friends she states the reasons that prompted her to commit this desperate act, and gives the name of the scoundrel, the cause of her trouble. He, too, belongs to the profession, and it is a pity that it should be considered the right thing not to publish the names of these two individuals.

MR. EDWARD ROCHELLE.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE ERA.

SIR,—Through your kindness, I was enabled some five months ago to bring to the notice of your readers the very sad case of Mr. Edward Rochelle. At that time he was about to undergo a very serious operation, and being entirely without means it was necessary to make an appeal to his friends with the hope that sufficient donations might be received to meet the hospital expenses and keep him going for some time after his leaving the hospital, and, as we then hoped, his return to convalescence. I regret to tell you now that although the operation was successful his entire recovery can scarcely be hoped for. He is at the present time very ill indeed, unable practically to get about at all, and, from what I learn, there is very little hope that he will ever be able to follow his profession again. The funds that I have had in hand are now nearly exhausted, and unless some kind sympathisers can give him a little practical assistance I dread to think what his future may be. I enclose you a little statement, which I shall take it a favour if you will reproduce, showing the amounts I have received and the amounts I have expended and the balance in hand, which I propose dividing over the next three weeks, and I trust that those who have known Teddy Rochelle in the days gone by may take this opportunity of showing him that he is not altogether forgotten. His address is No. 5, Manchester-street, Manchester-square, and if, as it may happen, some of his old friends can ill-afford to send him help in the shape of money, I feel sure that a little kind letter of sympathy will help to ease his present great troubles.

"MAN AND HIS ANGEL."

(FROM OUR AMERICAN CORRESPONDENT.)

The central character of the above play in four acts, by Mr. Stanley Dark, which was produced at the Hackett Theatre, New York, recently, is indicated by a quotation from Tennyson:—

If there be
A devil in a man, there is an angel too;
And if he did the wrong you charge him with His angel broke his heart.

In other words, the play is intended to exemplify the ennobling influence of a good woman upon the life and character of a deformed and embittered man by whom she is beloved. This individual is befriended when he is a fugitive from justice by a girl who afterwards becomes a famous singer. He follows her like a shadow for several years, and although hopeless of marrying her himself does all in his power to prevent her from marrying anybody else. When she ultimately falls in love he makes a breach between her and the man who idolises her, and makes her miserable until he is sufficiently moved by the sight of her distress to admit his offence and restore her to love and happiness. When the play begins Paul Stepniak, a Russian, is living in shabby lodgings in the East-End of London. He is approached by some wealthy people who have heard his daughter's voice and are desirous of educating her for the operatic stage—a proposal to which the father and daughter immediately assent. Sonia Stepniak, the daughter, is told that the family prayer-book contains a secret which she will one day learn. David Tryne, a hunchback, enters by an open window, declares that he is being unjustly pursued, and is sheltered. In course of time, when the prima donna, Sonia Stepniak, loves and is loved by the Hon. Cecil Stanforth, Tryne produces the prayer-book and takes from it a paper declaring that Sonia is illegitimate. This disclosure he communicates to Lord Arthur Dalton, one of Sonia's rejected suitors, who undertakes to apprise the lady of her doubtful origin. The document turns out to be a forgery, the hunchback having imitated old Stepniak's handwriting, and his confession of guilt ends the estrangement between the lovers. Mr. Fred Tyler as Lord Arthur Dalton, Mr. Holbrook Blinn as David Tryne, Mr. Frank Gillmore as the Hon. Cecil Stanforth, and Miss Frances Bing as Sonia Stepniak did commendable work in their respective rôles, but the play was not a success.

MANY of the profession who have visited West Stanley will be sorry to hear that Mr. Mark H. Linden, managing-director of the Theatre Royal, is at present seriously indisposed.

DEATH OF MR. W. E. ASHCROFT.

With regret we record the death of Mr. William E. Ashcroft, who passed away on Sunday last at the Cottage, Findon, Sussex, at the early age of thirty-seven. The deceased actor made his first appearance under his brother, Mr. Harold B. Nelson's management, at Worcester, April 17, 1891, as Granger, in Mr. Henry Arthur Jones's play Judah. His next engagement was with Mr. J. F. Elliston, playing the part of Kazrac, in the Christmas production of Aladdin, at Bolton. In the spring of 1892 he went to Folkestone for a short stock season at the Pier Theatre, and played the parts of Hardress Cregan, Captain Molyneux, the Parson in The Danites, and the Emperor in the burlesque Aladdin. A re-engagement with Mr. Elliston followed this for the summer stock season at Bolton. In the autumn he played Lieutenant Stanley in The Union Jack, then being toured under the same management. Following this came an engagement with Mrs. Bandmann-Palmer, and during it he went through what is known as the "mill," playing from ten to twelve parts in a week. This engagement terminated in the spring, 1893, and then he again came under his brother's management, playing the well-known leading parts of D'Alroy, Beaufoy, and M'Alister, in the Caste répertoire. He was next engaged by Mr. F. R. Benson for the part of Sicinius Velutus, in his production of Coriolanus, at the Memorial Theatre, Stratford-on-Avon. He remained with Mr. Benson until May of the following year, and during this engagement he again played a large number of parts, ranging from Don John in Much Ado, to Mat Muggins in She Stoops to Conquer. He was also the Prince John in Mr. Benson's production of Henry IV., at Stratford, April 27, 1894. Then he rejoined Mrs. Bandmann-Palmer, and played the parts of Charles Surface, Claude Melnotte, Laertes, Mercutio, Claudio, Sir Charles Pomander, Sir Edward Mortimer, Carlyle, Gratiano, Beauseant, &c. He next fulfilled a year's engagement with Mr. Edward Compton, and while with him played Joseph Surface, Young Marlowe, Captain Absolute, Bertie (Home), and Sir Frederick Blunt. Leaving Mr. Compton in the spring, 1896, he was engaged by Mr. Edward Terry for tour, and played a number of leading parts with him. When Mr. Terry reopened his London theatre in the autumn of 1896, he appeared as Frank, in Love in Idleness. On Jan. 1, 1897, he had the honour of appearing at Sandringham before their Royal Highnesses the then Prince and Princess of Wales, the Duke and Duchess of Fife, and the Duke and Duchess of York, the occasion being the "command" performance of Love in Idleness by Mr. Terry and his company. Another tour followed under the same management in the spring of 1897, and again in the autumn. On this tour he took up the duties of stage-management in addition to playing a number of leading parts, and when Mr. Terry was making arrangements to return to his own theatre, he offered Mr. Ashcroft the position of stage-manager at his theatre. In this capacity he stage-managed the production of Mr. Stuart Ogilvy's play, The White Knight. In 1901 Mr. Ashcroft became a member of Sir Henry Irving's company at the Lyceum, playing Tullus Aufidius in the revival of Coriolanus, and other characters.

THE recent bequest of sums of money to be expended in the purchase of "In Memoriam" rings has revived an interest in the old custom of leaving rings to legatees. In designing the ring of which a sketch is here given the jewellers, Messrs. E. Stockley and Co., of 60, New Bond-street, W., have carried out the wishes of an admirer of the late Mr. J. L. Toole. While retaining the full value as a memorial of the deceased actor, they have carefully avoided the funereal appearance so usual in this form of souvenir.

The centre of the ring is a beautifully executed portrait in platinum, surrounded by diamonds, the gold shank of ring being on the one side the entwined letters J. L. T., and on the other the masks of Comedy and Tragedy.

MR. EDITOR.—SIR,—Your Nottingham correspondent, in his notice of The Dandy Doctor at the Grand Theatre, was in error respecting the part of Melchisadeck Brown. You will see by enclosed programme that it was played by yours faithfully, JAMES SALTER.—Theatre Royal, Worcester, Oct. 22.

A REPETITION of S. Feinman's drama, A Father's Curse, was given by the Jewish Operatic and Dramatic company, at the Pavilion Theatre on Monday evening, when a good house again testified its approval. Honours must be awarded to Mr. S. Feinman for his striking impersonation of Reb Josele, and to Mr. M. D. Waxman for his fine acting as Max. During the week The Zionist, Holy Sabbath, The Two Cripples, and The Jewish World have been played.

AN office of the Austrian Costume Atelier, Alexander Blaschke and Co., proprietor R. Winternitz, has been established in London, with Mr. Ernest Mayer as representative of Great Britain. The artistic adviser of the well-known firm is Prof. Lamer, of the Vienna Academy of Arts. The Metropolitan Opera House, New York, the Imperial Burg Theatre and Opera House, in Vienna, and other of the world's playhouses, place many of their orders with the Vienna firm, who have won an enviable reputation for workmanship, artistic design, neatness of execution, and reliability. Mr. Mayer's offices are at 34, Norfolk-street, Strand.

"THE GREAT DIVIDE."

A Drama, in Three Acts,
by William Vaughn Moody,
Produced at the Princess Theatre, New York, on Oct. 3.

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

The original title of this drama, A Sabine Woman, would be more intelligible, perhaps, than the present one to those who have never travelled in America. But for an American drama pure and simple the title under which the play was produced in New York is more apt and significant in view of the fact that two of the scenes are laid in the Rocky Mountains, the great dividing line which, broadly speaking, separates the East from the West, while the play deals with a conflict between the natural freedom and impetuosity of a man brought up in the Arizona desert and the inherited pride and Puritanical training of a New England woman. An extremely interesting play, cleverly conceived and skilfully put together, The Great Divide has scored a success of the first magnitude.

Ruth Jordan, who lives with her brother on a ranch in Arizona, is attacked during his absence by three drunken ruffians. She seizes a gun to defend herself, but it misses fire, and in the desperation of the moment she offers to become the wife of the least offensive of the three if he will save her from the others. This man is an American named Stephen Ghent, his companions being Mexican "greasers." The American agrees to this astounding proposal, and to one of the Mexicans offers all the money in his possession to get rid of him. The fellow pushes the money aside with the remark that the price offered would not pay for an Indian's squaw, but he finally accepts a string of gold nuggets and departs. With the other Mexican Ghent fights a duel for the human prize and wins. He seems to realise that he is a scoundrel, and when he returns from the shooting he lays his pistol on the table and gives the girl the choice of killing him or herself. But finding herself unable to face the horror of either murder or suicide, Ruth implores him to take her away at once. She has agreed to the bargain, and will stand by it. But she warns him that it means a life of misery for both of them. In the dead of night, then, the pair ride off, and are married by a justice of the peace. In the note she leaves behind she simply tells her brother that she has gone away to get married, and that he is to make no attempt to follow her. The second act, nearly a year later, finds her on her husband's place in another part of Arizona. Gold has been found there, and Ghent is a rich man. Ruth loathes his riches, however, more than his poverty. Unknown to him she makes a living for herself by weaving baskets, which she sells during his absence over at the big hotel. The man is honestly in love with her, and in his rough, untutored way, does everything for her happiness. But her soul revolts at the thought of the bargain she has made; and, while there are indications that at heart she loves the man, she fights against any show of affection, and in a burst of outraged pride tells him he has bought her like an animal in the market. With the labour of her hands she has regained the string of gold nuggets with which he bought off the Mexican and gives it back to him. But Ghent refuses it, places it around her neck, and says that they are man and wife, and such they must remain. By chance, however, Ruth's brother discovers her whereabouts; and, although she shields her husband, and by a tissue of lies tries to conceal the ignominy of her escapade, her brother overhears enough to convince him that all is not well with her, and tells Ghent that he intends to take his sister away with him. Ghent says "No," but seeing how his wife turns from him and clings to her brother, offers to abide by her decision. She decides to leave him, and returns with her brother to her mother's home in Massachusetts.

In the last act, after a lapse of time, a son has been born to Ruth, but in her constant brooding over her degradation she denies the child a mother's love. Her mother has secretly communicated with Ruth's husband. Still in the dark, and blundering along in his pitiful effort to make reparation, he answers the summons and is kept in hiding. He befriends the family in their need, and the mother, supposing that an ordinary quarrel has parted Ruth from her husband, plans to bring them together. Then Ruth discloses the true circumstances of her marriage. The mother cries: "And you married him after that!" and turns from her daughter in horror. When the brother is told he starts for the door, intending to kill Ghent, but Ruth interposes. She pleads her husband's cause for the first time, and in the final scene, when he is prepared to give her up and is about to depart, she finds it impossible to turn a deaf ear to his plea that his offence has been expiated, and confesses that he has won her love.

As Stephen Ghent Mr. Henry Miller has a part that appeals to one's sympathies more surely than any character that he has assumed since he appeared as Sidney Carton in The Only Way. It is one of those strong portrayals that one remembers when much else is forgotten. The rôle of Ruth Jordan, not in itself convincing, is played in a manner that carries conviction by Miss Margaret Auglin, whose admirable art is shown in a subtle and finished delineation. Mrs. Thomas Whiffen, who appears as Ruth's mother, is one of the "old favourites" of the English-speaking stage, and the last act is enriched by the sweet womanliness of her representation. Miss Laura Hope Crews makes herself very popular as Polly Jordan; and other important parts are played in a praiseworthy manner by Messrs. Charles Wyngate, Robert Cummings, and Charles Gotthold.

"THE RED MILL."

(FROM OUR AMERICAN CORRESPONDENT.)

In The Red Mill, which has scored an emphatic success at the Knickerbocker Theatre, New York, those clever comedians, Dave Montgomery and Fred Stone, who won fame as the Scarecrow and the Tinman in The Wisard of Oz, have come to the front again, and set the town talking of their acrobatic drollery. In this case they represent two impecunious Americans detained at an inn during their travels in Holland because they fail to pay their bills. The red mill of the title holds the centre of the stage and has practicable sails. It serves as a prison for Gretchen, the Burgomaster's daughter, when she rebels against parental authority over her love affairs, and the revolving sails enable the Americans to rescue her. They are swung up on one side and down on the other, one of them holding on by one hand while he grasps the maiden in distress around the waist and lands her safely on terra firmâ, the situation being quite tense and melodramatic. In the second act the pair of adventurers masquerade as waiters and Italian organ-grinders, and they finally appear as Sherlock Holmes and Dr. Watson, being summoned by the Burgomaster to find the missing Gretchen, who has disappeared on the eve of her wedding. The opening scene is remarkably pretty. It represents a picturesque perspective of Dutch lowland with a number of flaxen-haired Gretchens and Wilhelminas in the foreground, all carrying flower-baskets dangling from shoulder-yokes. As the Italian organ-grinders, Messrs. Montgomery and Stone are irresistibly funny. Their wrangling in broken English and their singing of "Good-a-bye, John," brings down the house. The piece is replete with novel surprises; and the music, by Victor Herbert, is delightful. The book is by Henry Blossom, and is bright and witty from start to finish.

THE DRAMA IN BERLIN.

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

BERLIN, THURSDAY, OCT. 18.—The esteemed dramatist's latest work is not nearly so good as some of the preceding ones. It is, nevertheless, amusing in parts, and it met with a cordial reception. Several of the scenes are too drastic, even overstepping the bounds of good taste, but the character types are very smartly and sharply delineated, and the satire is as bright as it is evident. Poël is a little island somewhere in the Baltic—Herr Engel likes proverbially to place his "milieu" near the water—and a contest has broken out among the fishers of the island and the coast as regards the booty of the ocean. The government sends a young official to quell the strife. The envoy is Von Thümler, a pleasant, happy-go-lucky fellow, who succeeds in everything without any merits of his own. There are other and better men in the "Ministerium," but Thümler—being born under a lucky star—gets advancement undeserved, and when he stumbles falls—as the Germans term it—upstairs instead of down. The emissary of peace makes a muddle of everything. Each side of the conflicting party manages to dupe him in turn and expose him to ridicule; his suave, man-of-the-world manners only provoke the uncultured fishermen, while the better-class party invites him to a champagne supper and makes him intoxicated. The pilot, Oll Kusemann—an old villain who sticks at nothing—lays a kind of blackmail plot. He makes Von Thümler believe he has, while under the influence of wine, insulted the pretty daughter of his host, the well-to-do boat owner Bjebow. Kusemann makes use of Von Thümler's fright (for he believes the lie) to gain his interest in favour of himself and his party, and he also succeeds in obtaining Anne-Marik and her good-sized dowry for his son Jasper. Once again Von Thümler comes off conqueror. He has successfully substituted peace for strife, and a grateful government rewards him with the promotion to the rank of Regierungsrat. The clever comedian Herr Engels carried the whole piece on his shoulders with his masterly impersonation of the old rascal Kusemann, and he was applauded to the echo. No less good was Herr Christians in the rôle of Von Thümler; and other characters were admirably sustained by Fräulein Jaeger, Herr Waldow, and Herr Schwaiger.

DR. OSCAR BLUMENTHAL'S adaptation of M. Sardou's three-act comedy La Piste was produced on Friday last at the Lustspielhaus. The German title is Verwehte Spuren (vanished traces). As the piece is doubtless known to your readers, a narration of the plot will be superfluous. Whether its reception was the fault of the play itself or of the adaptation is not for me to say, but the fact remains that the audience was extremely captious. The first act produced neither applause nor dissatisfaction to speak of; the second was warmly applauded; the third proved an utter failure, the majority of the audience scarcely waiting to see the curtain fall. The interpretation was thoroughly adequate and the mounting in good taste.

MR. BOURCHIER AT MANCHESTER.

Mr. Arthur Bourchier lectured from the stage of the Theatre Royal, Manchester, last week, on "William Shakespeare, Maker of Men." Judge Parry presided. In the course of his lecture Mr. Bourchier said: To me, a world without Shakespeare is inconceivable. After the Bible there is nothing in literature so full of truth and instruction as Shakespeare. Shakespeare, the greatest of all Englishmen, loved his country, and some of us who are much smaller men might do well to follow his example. Nowhere does Shakespeare attempt to teach theatrical critics their business, which points to one of two things—either Shakespeare had not the courage which only a certain amount of common sense keeps in check, or there were no theatrical critics in his day. The old cheap gibe that "the critics are those who have failed in every other walk of life" is a fallacy. Nobody knows this better than I do. But I often wish that the theatrical critic would aim to distinguish between the actor and his part, and not impute faults to the actor which really belong to the character he is playing. You may remember that when the celebrated artist Whistler was asked if he objected to all criticisms, he replied: "Certainly not—not from a master of my craft, not from anybody who fully understands its technique, its difficulties." And I believe most members of my profession often wish that there was more knowledge of the technique of our art among the theatrical critics, more desire to appreciate the difficulties of our craft. Very often an actor is lauded to the skies for his performance of a part which may be said to play itself; but the same actor will get little praise for a performance of a less showy character, which, nevertheless, has required more study, more care, more intelligence. Many a clever young actor or actress is ruined by indiscriminate praise at the outset of his or her career; many a one is disheartened by imperfect appreciation.

GUILDHALL SCHOOL OF MUSIC.

The first item of the concert on Wednesday evening was Miss Daisy Walker's pianoforte solo "Hexentanz," by MacDowell. Miss Sophie Newson received much applause for her violin solo, Adagio and Rondo from De Beriot's 9th Concerto; and a very youthful student, Master Cecil Hay, did great credit to his professor in Raff's piano solo "Tambourin." One of the most successful instrumental pieces was the piano solo by Miss Inez Levy, who proved an excellent executant, and played with evident appreciation Chopin's "Fantaisie-Impromptu" and "Etude" in G major by Moszkowski. Fischer's "Romance" for solo-violoncello was remarkably well played by Mr. J. R. Sutton, who produced a good and expressive tone. Several promising vocal items were included in the programme, Miss Hannah Lightman giving recit. and aria "Che faro, from Gluck's Orpheus, and Miss F. E. Bickerton sang in a bright and effective style German's song, "Love is meant to make us glad," although the young lady must try and avoid a tendency to vibrate. In Gounod's song, "Entreat me not to leave thee," Miss Florence M. Cross was somewhat overtaxed, the melody requiring more dramatic expression; but Mr. C. H. Fisher gave a good account of the song "Hybrias the Cretan," by Elliott. Relief was afforded by the very clever recitation given by Miss Winifred Barnett, pupil of Miss Kate Rorke, who greatly distinguished herself in the recitation "The Clown's Baby." Miss Florence Paul sang "At Vespers," by Signor Tosti, and the concert concluded with Schumann's solo pianoforte "Etudes de Concert," No. 2, played by Miss Millie Flower. The accompanist was Miss Jenny Hyman.

THEATRICAL GOSSIP.

Mr. E. S. Willard, now touring in Canada, takes a proper pride in the fact that Actors' Day has virtually been in force under his management since 1903. The idea was instituted by Mr. Willard during his season in that year at the St. James's Theatre at the time that he was producing The Cardinal, and the proceeds on that occasion amounted to something not far short of £100. The difference between Mr. Willard's scheme and that initiated by the Actors' Day Association, is that while the former is made a condition of each artist's contract, the latter is purely voluntary. Which is the better of the two is a problem that still requires solution.

Mr. Willard's reception in Toronto in Colonel Newcome has been very gratifying, the enthusiasm of the crowded audience being of quite an unparalleled nature. Mr. Willard's American season will continue until the end of next April, after which it is well within the bounds of probability that he will return in time to produce a new play during the London season.

Miss Ellen Terry will finish the activities of a most momentous year this evening, and will take a hard-earned rest till the New Year. She then revisits America, the scene of many social and artistic triumphs, opening in New York on Jan. 28, under the management of Mr. Charles Frohman. Her first appearance will be made in Mr. Bernard Shaw's comedy, Captain Brassbound's Conversion, in which the popular actress contributed so much to the prosperity of the Court Theatre, and other of her artistic impersonations will be given in due course.

Mr. H. B. Irving has set at rest the minds of some of the New York critics, who, while acknowledging the young actor's ability, have questioned his wisdom in appearing in rôles in which his famous father was unapproachable. Mr. Irving's reply was as follows:—"I have been unwilling, reverently unwilling, to appear in characters he made his own, but it does not seem to be known that it is by the directions of my father's last will, in which he asked that I should do so, and that part of the proceeds of my engagements in his plays I should keep and part I should pay over to members of the family, as I am doing. That is the reason The Lyons Mail, Charles I., The Bells, and other dramas are in my season's work, as my father wished."

The Academy of Dramatic Art, initiated by Mr. Beerbohm Tree, has so grown in estimation that the Council have to announce that the institution is now full, and no more students may be admitted this year. Intending candidates, however, may make application for next January, when the next entrance examination will be held. The special honorary classes for students who have reached the "final school" will be taken during the present term by Mr. George Alexander, Mr. Cyril Maude, and Sir Squire Bancroft.

Mrs. D'Oyly Carte has eventually made the concession to a strongly expressed desire, and will revive at the Savoy some of the operas with which the fame of Mr. W. S. Gilbert and the late Sir Arthur Sullivan are associated. The revivals will commence with The Yeoman of the Guard, which it is hoped will be produced about Dec. 8. The memory of the Savoy operas, which have had no counterpart in the metropolis, has been kept alive by touring companies, whose appearances in the foremost houses in London and the suburbs have always proved phenomenally attractive.

The late J. L. Toole's house, No. 44, Maida-vale, together with the furniture, is to be sold at auction by Messrs. Robinson and Fisher on Nov. 12. A complete record of Mr. Toole's stage career is constituted in the collection of photographs, among which is a drawing of a stage interlude during Walker, London, when the King went behind the scenes between the acts, and the Prince of Wales climbed the ladder on the houseboat Wild Duck. The wigs used by Mr. Toole in the majority of his productions are also to be offered. A large quantity of curios, silver plate, etc., has been removed to Willis's Rooms, St. James's, for disposal on Nov. 15.

The famous comedian's books, pictures, letters, and play-bills will be sold at Sotheby's on Nov. 8. Many of the bills note the earliest appearance of actors and actresses who are now at the head of the profession. Upwards of a thousand letters, some in the handwriting of Irving and Edmund Yates, hundreds of autographs and photographs, one of the latter representing Mr. Toole and Mr. Lionel Brough in Dearer than Life, and a lifelike portrait of Mr. Toole, painted in oils, will be included in the sale.

The trustees of the Actors' Day Fund, at a meeting on Monday last, decided to invite all classes of contributors to send representatives to an Advisory Board, who will make recommendations as to the disposal of the fund. All contributors will thus be enabled to make their wishes known through their representatives. The method of nomination of these representatives will be published next week. Meantime, the trustees affirm the principle that only those who are on the register—viz., actors and actresses who are willing to give their services on one night a year, and managers and authors who support the scheme—will be eligible to benefit. Encouraging returns of the result of the initiation of the scheme are coming in; but it is not probable that the final result will be known for some little time.

Daily additions are being made to the programme of the matinée to Miss Emily Soldene, which is to be given at the Palace Theatre on Nov. 13. Sir Charles Wyndham will on this occasion make his only appearance in London this season, and the entertainment will be further enriched by contributions from Miss Marie Tempest, Mlle. Mariette Sully, Mlle. Adeline Genée, Miss Nellie Stewart, Miss Agnes Fraser, Miss Phyllis Broughton, Miss Carrie Moore, Miss Florence Lloyd, Mr. Seymour Hicks, with the Bath Bun Girls from the Aldwych Theatre, Mr. Louis Bradfield, Cav. Mario Sammarco, Mr. Rutland Barrington, Mr. Walter Passmore, and Mr. George Grossmith. The souvenir programme is being designed by Mr. John Hassall, R.I., and copies of it will be sold by popular actresses. There will be no managerial expenses, and Mr. Richard Northcott, the hon. secretary, has been able to arrange for the whole of the proceeds to be devoted towards the formation of a fund to provide Miss Soldene with a life annuity.

The King recommenced playgoing on Monday, when he visited Drury Lane, and enjoyed the performance of Mr. Hall Caine's The Bondman. Although His Majesty had previously sent word that the rising of the curtain was not to be delayed on his account, he entered the Royal box punctually at the advertised time.

All good wishes will go to Miss Edith Adeson, the daughter of the well-known comedian, Mr. Martin Adeson, who on Saturday last was married to Mr. Ryton Hoare at the Halifax Registrar's Office. Both young people are members of The Geisha company on tour, the bride being the Molly Seamore and the bridegroom the Second Officer in the popular musical comedy. Mr. J. H. Kidger, the company's manager, was "best man," and Mr. Chevalier Legrand, the musical director, and Mr. Harry Reynolds, the stage-manager, were also present.

Mr. Felix Rimington has been engaged by Mr. Lingford Carson for pantomime.

America has anticipated England in paying honour to Mr. T. P. O'Connor for his exertions in behalf of the Musical Copyright Bill, which recently passed through Parliament. On the evening of the 19th inst. the New York Music Publishers' Association celebrated the victory over musical piracy by a dinner to the popular M.P., the guests at which included prominent members of the musical world of America. London will have the opportunity of expressing gratitude on Sunday, Nov. 18, when Mr. O'Connor will be similarly entertained, the committee for the occasion being one of unexampled strength.

Mr. Sinclair Neill and company produced Muskerry's David Garrick at Ulster Minor Hall, Belfast, on the 11th and 12th inst., and attracted crowded audiences. Mr. Neill is a clever actor, and gave a perfect delineation of the title-rôle, excelling especially in the tender passages with Violet, while in the last act he rose to quite a sublime height, fully meriting the enthusiastic applause bestowed. Miss Mina F. Murphy was a charming Violet Gresham, her acting fully earning the high enconiums showered upon her. One of the most meritorious performances was that furnished by Mr. W. J. Rea as Alderman Gresham; and Miss Lilias McBain as Mrs. Rumbelow deservedly shared in the honours. Mr. J. D. Brannigan as the Hon. Tom Tallyhaut acquitted himself creditably; and the same may be said of Mr. J. Walker as Rumbelow. Miss Eveline Moore was decidedly humorous as the maiden lady Selina; and other parts were admirably sustained by Messrs. W. J. Ellis and C. Murphy. The performance was a striking success, and Mr. Neill deserves to be heartily congratulated. Mrs. Jansen was responsible for the pretty scenery and costumes.

By kind permission of Mr. George Dance and Mr. Frank Allen, on Wednesday, Oct. 24, a copyright performance was given at Richmond Theatre of a new (Dutch) comic opera, Onawaker, in two acts, by Mr. Newman Harding.

Miss Davies Webster and Miss Rose Cazalet's entertainment company will give musical and dramatic entertainments on Wednesday evening, Nov. 14, and Friday afternoon, Nov. 16, at the Royal Albert Hall Theatre. Among the items of the programme will be the late Alfred Lord Tennyson's one-act play, The Falcon, with Mr. John Macfarlane, Miss Davies Webster, Miss Rose Cazalet, and Mr. Percy Goodyer in the cast, and a new monologue, entitled Flat Burglary, written for Miss Rose Cazalet by Mr. George P. Hawtrey. Mr. Noel Fleming, Miss Gertrude Wood, and others will sing. Miss Violet Cecil will dance. Miss E. Caverhill Shiels will direct instrumental music, and be the pianiste.

The seventh annual dinner of the O.P. Club will take place on Sunday, Nov. 4, at the Criterion Restaurant. Mr. Sidney Dark, who will occupy the chair, will propose the toast of "The Drama," to which Mr. Hall Caine will respond. The toast of "The Visitors" will be acknowledged by Mr. Granville Barker, and Miss Edith Wynne Matthison will reply on behalf of the ladies.

An unfortunate accident has compelled Miss Lilian Braithwaite temporarily to retire from the cast of Mr. Jerrard Grant Allen's production of The Amateur Socialist. During her absence her part of Evelyn Rivers is being played by Miss Sybil Carlisle. Mr. Allen has also made some alterations in the cast of The Lemonade Boy, the part of Guy Turner now being entrusted to Mr. P. H. Clayton Greene, and that of Maria to Miss Margaret Bussé.

Mr. Templer Powell, lately supporting Miss Mabel Love, has been transferred to Mr. Hutchison's répertoire company to play the leads, including Mr. Cyril Maude's part in Cousin Kate. Mr. Powell will remain with this company till the expiration of his year's contract with Mr. Hutchison at Christmas.

Mr. Robert Newman's annual concert will take place at Queen's Hall on Wednesday evening, Nov. 7, when promenade concert-goers and patrons of music in London will heartily welcome this opportunity of again hearing the Queen's Hall Orchestra (conducted by Mr. Henry J. Wood) at an evening concert, the regular season of symphony concerts being given on Saturday afternoons. Mr. Newman has selected a very strong Wagner programme, which includes in chronological order excerpts from The Flying Dutchman, Tannhäuser, Lohengrin, and all the master's finest works, and a well-attended and successful concert may be safely predicted.

"The Vicar of Wakefield," which is to be produced at the West-end in December, will have a preliminary tour in the provinces, beginning at the Prince's Theatre, Manchester, on Nov. 12. More than one of the original members of the Savoy opera are included in the London cast, which comprises Mr. David Bispham, Mrs. Theodore Wright, Miss Isabel Jay, Miss Edith Clegg, Mr. Arthur Eldred, Master Gordon Travis, Mr. Richard Temple, Mr. Walter Hyde, Mr. C. Oram Lander, Mr. Powis Pinder, Miss Moreen, Miss Valerie de Lacey, and Miss Bella Wallis.

The annual prize distribution to the students of the Guildhall School of Music will be made this afternoon at the school by the Lady Mayoress. The proceedings will also include a report on the work of the past year by Dr. W. H. Cummings, the esteemed principal of this institution.

The members of the Shakespeare Society in connection with the Moody-Manners Opera Company, by permission of Mr. Manners, gave a recital of scenes from several plays before the Glaspow branch of the British Empire Shakespeare Society on the afternoon of the 19th inst. The programme commenced with the Forest of Arden scenes from As You Like It, in which the honours were carried off by Mrs. Wilson Pembroke as Rosalind and Mr. Frank Rowe as Orlando. The Forum scenes from Julius Cæsar followed, Mr. Charles Magrath using his fine voice to great advantage as Brutus. Antony was undertaken by Mr. Chapman-Huston, Cæsar by Mr. George King, and Cassius by Mr. E. G. Renshaw.

The balcony and farewell scenes from Romeo and Juliet were afterwards beautifully rendered by Miss Edith Alvord and Mr. Frank Rowe; Miss B. Alexander and Mr. Chapman-Huston gave the Queen's closet scene from Hamlet; and the programme ended on the comedy note with the kitchen scene from Twelfth Night, played by Mrs. Wilson Pembroke, Messrs. Renshaw, King, and Rowe. The pleasure of the audience was further enhanced by the fine rendering of Sargent's setting of "Blow, blow, thou winter wind," by Mr. Charles Manners; an entirely new version of "Sigh no more, ladies," by Cuthbert Hawley, was interpreted by Mr. Lewys James; and Mr. Frank Rowe sang the same composer's exquisite setting of "O Mistress Mine."

Miss Nita Faydon and Mr. Whitford Kane, whose finished performances of Sunday and Jacky on the original tour of Thomas Raceward's play will be agreeably recalled, will make their first appearances in the leading Shakespearean parts at the Theatre Royal, Belfast, in December. Amongst the company will be found such well-known names as Mr. Godfrey S. Tearle (who will play Orlando, Brutus, &c.), Mr. Philip Gordon, Mr. F. M. Paget, Mr. Alfred Gray, Miss Molly Malone, Miss Gertrude Gilbert, and Miss Edith Coleman, in addition to Mr. Sinclair Neill and Mr. Houston Mebarry, two Belfast actors.

Mr. Arthur Bourchier's lecture on "William Shakespeare, Maker of Men," which he gave with the greatest success at the Theatre Royal, Manchester, on the 19th inst., was repeated at the Glasgow Athenæum on Tuesday, when Sir Ure Primrose was in the chair. On Tuesday next Mr. Bourchier will deliver it again at the Freemasons' Hall, Edinburgh, when the chair will be taken by Lord Kingsburgh. These lectures are given under the auspices of the British Empire Shakespeare Society, and have proved of infinite interest to large audiences.

Mr. George Edwardes has been unable to find a more fitting title for his new production at Daly's, and it will therefore see the light this evening under the name of Les Merveilleuses. It was hoped that M. Sardou, the veteran author of the French original, would have been present at the premier of the new opera, but he is advised that at his age it would hardly be wise for him to venture on an autumn journey over the sea. "I hope, however," he adds in a letter to Mr. Edwardes, "that though I shall not be there, you will reap the fruits of your labour in producing Les Merveilleuses and introducing the piece to the British public, and will once more justify your high reputation as an impresario."

Miss Violet Lewis has been engaged by Mr. Richard Flanagan to play Emilia in his revival of Othello at the Queen's Theatre, Manchester, about the second week in January. Miss Lewis is now with Mr. and Mrs. Kendal on tour.

An operatic concert in costume will be given by M. and Mme. Cokkinis, at the Queen's (small) Hall, on Wednesday evening next. M. and Mme. Cokkinis will be heard in a number of excerpts from grand opera, and will be assisted by Miss Millicent Bradfield (violin), Mr. T. Methodios (flute), Mr. Geo. W. Hodgson (baritone), and Signor Tito Mattei, who will play pianoforte soli and company several of his own compositions. Mme. E. Hastings Warren and M. Napoleon Lambelet will also officiate at the pianoforte.

Mr. Wentworth Croke will have the deep sympathy of his many friends, theatrical and otherwise, in the sad bereavement that has befallen him in the sudden death of his father at the advanced age of eighty-one. The late Mr. Charles John Croke was one of the oldest civil servants, having held a high position in the Post Office, from which he retired many years since. Mr. Wentworth Croke and his brother inherit their late father's entire fortune.

A fantastic comedietta, entitled Humpty Dumpty, by Hubert Colegrave, and a new musical children's play, called Under the Greenwood Tree, by Major Philip Trevor, will be produced under the direction of Mr. Leo Trevor at the Scala Theatre, on Dec. 11 and two following days. The dances are being arranged by Mme. Katti Lanner. The performance, which is under the patronage of the Princess of Wales, will be given in aid of the Kensington General Hospital.

Messrs. Milton Bode and Edward Compton, the proprietors of the Royal Opera House, Leicester, are having installed a new heating apparatus of the very latest pattern, with radiators in different parts of the auditorium. They have also had the curtains taken from the back of the upper circle, and replaced them with a handsome glass screen, which can be removed when the warmer weather arrives.

Mr. Bannister Howard will put forward Messrs. E. Lockwood and Robert Crossman's Sergeant Brue company at the Crystal Palace Theatre on Monday. If pretty faces, lovely frocks, catchy music, smart dialogue, and heaps of fun are an attraction to theatre-goers the patrons of the Palace Theatre will be amply satisfied. An interesting attraction at the Sydenham house on November 5 will be The Four Just Men. This play, which has been dramatised from Mr. George Wallace's celebrated book, was first presented to London playgoers at the King's Theatre, Hammersmith, on Oct. 8, when it met with great success.

Mr. Louis N. Parker, who organised such triumphs of scenic splendour in the Sherborne and Warwick panoramas, will be the master of the Bury St. Edmunds pageant, which is to take place amid the ruins of the old monastery from July 8 to 13 next. Mr. G. Stuart Ogilvie has contributed Episode I., and Mr. James Rhoades has written the connecting narrative choruses. The first episode begins at the period of A.D. 50, and depicts the revolt of Boadicea, Queen of the East Anglians. Episode II. portrays the coronation of Edmund. Edmund sacrifices his own life to save the lives of his people. He is bound to a young oak and slain, and his head is found miraculously guarded by a great wolf. In Episode III. King Canute comes to Bury (then called Beodricsworth), and founds a monastery, and grants a charter establishing the future greatness of the house. Edward the Confessor comes on a pilgrimage to St. Edmund's tomb, and a rich new shrine is set up, to which the body of St. Edmund is, with great solemnity, translated.

Henry II. and Queen Eleanor visit the shrine in the fourth episode, during which Richard Cœur de Lion disputes with Abbot Samson for the wardship of Nesta of Cockfield. In this episode King John also visits the town. The Magna Charta forms the chief theme of the next episode, and in the following one the arrest and murder of Humphrey, Duke of Gloucester, as set forth in Shakespeare's Henry VI., Part 2, is depicted. The dawn of a new age begins in episode seven, when Mary Tudor, widow of Louis XII. of France, and wife of Charles Brandon, Duke of Suffolk, is present at St. Matthew's Fair, where she is entertained with dances and madrigals by the "merry and jovial East Anglians." Afterwards comes the dissolution, with the dispersal of the monks, the sale of the Abbey buildings to John Eyer for £412 19s. 4d., and the foundation of the first of King Edward VI.'s thirty grammar schools. This leads to the final tableau, in which the thousand and odd performers will take part.

Mr. Edward McLean will commence touring this Christmas a first-class drama by a well-known author. The tour will be under the direction of Mr. Leslie Vyner, who recently took out The Lightning's Flash and Saved from the Sea.

Miss Sophie Harriss, who is pursuing a triumphal tour of the provinces with Baron H. Harriss's production of The Prince of Pilsen, entertained the members of the company to a picnic at Cleethorpes in the 18th inst. The party, which numbered nearly sixty, proceeded to their destination in chars-à-banc, and disembarked at the Dolphin Hotel, where a sumptuous luncheon was served. Afterwards various games and pastimes were indulged in, and a pleasant afternoon was spent. At the conclusion of the outing, the party drove back to Grimsby, where the company was appearing at the Prince of Wales's Theatre, and escorted Miss Harriss to her hotel. Miss Harriss's kindness was of course warmly appreciated.

Mr. E. B. Norman has finally fixed upon Saturday, Nov. 10, as the date of the production at the New Royalty Theatre of Mr. Charles Hannan's farcical comedy, The Electric Man. In addition to Mr. Harry Nicholls, who will play the title-rôle, Mr Marsh Allen, Miss Phyllis Relph, Mrs. B. M. de Solla, Miss Ruth Maitland, and Mr. H. de Lange, have been engaged, and Miss June Van Buskirk, who has just returned from a trip to California, has been selected to play the principal lady's part. Mrs. Charles Calvert will also be in the cast.

An event of considerable interest next week will be the reappearance on Monday of Mr. Beerbohm Tree at His Majesty's, where The Winter's Tale ends this evening. Mr. Tree will give London playgoers an opportunity of renewing pleasurable acquaintance with Colonel Newcome, which will be replaced on Monday, Nov. 26, by a revival, for two weeks, of Shakespeare's Richard II. Mr. Tree then leaves town again in order to open the New Theatre at Cardiff, where he will play from Dec. 10 to Dec. 15 inclusive, his most famous productions, including Twelfth Night, Hamlet, Colonel Newcome, and Business is Business. His Majesty's will be closed while Mr. Tree is away, and his return to the theatre on Thursday, Dec. 27, will be marked by the production of the eagerly-awaited Antony and Cleopatra.

The dominant note of Antony and Cleopatra will be struck at the first rising of the curtain, when a colossal figure of the Sphinx, inflexible and unmindful of human suffering, will be revealed, and fade away as the play begins. The figure appears again at the end, after the turmoil of passion has passed away, as an emblem of eternity. The painting of this picture is in the artistic hands of Mr. Joseph Harker. Among those already engaged to support Mr. Tree and Miss Constance Collier in the title-rôles are Mr. Norman Forbes and Mr. Julian L'Estrange.

The usual weekly meeting of the council of the Actors' Association was held on Tuesday, when there were present:—Sir Squire Bancroft (president), Mr. C. Aubrey Smith (chairman), Mr. A. E. Drinkwater (deputy chairman), Mr. Henry W. Mote (hon. solicitor), Mr. Cyril Maude (vice-president), Miss Carlotta Addison, Miss Kate Phillips, and Messrs. Blake Adams, Cecil Barth, Acton Bond, Burton Cooke, C. Hayden Coffin, F. Cremlin, Lawrence Grant, Fewlass Llewellyn, Norman McKinnel, Quinton McPherson, Algernon Syms, Spencer Trevor, and Charles Cruikshanks (secretary).

In connection with the proposed Irving memorial it was resolved, "That as from this date a movement be set on foot for the purposes of raising a memorial to the late Sir Henry Irving." Further, "That a meeting of the theatrical profession be convened by the Actors' Association at the earliest possible date, to forward the movement of the Irving memorial, at which the public may attend, and a preliminary committee of five, with power to add to their number, be formed to carry out, with the secretary, the necessary arangements." Messrs. Cyril Maude, Acton Bond, Cecil Raleigh, Lawrence Grant, and Gerald du Maurier were elected to constitute the preliminary committee.

A complaint was submitted concerning the alleged insanitation of a provincial theatre. The secretary was instructed to communicate with the Licensing Authorities. The hon. solicitors reported they had advised several members. The result of the meeting of the A.A., inaugurated by a member of the commissioners' committee, and held under the chairmanship of Mr. Arthur Bourchier at the Theatre Royal, Manchester on Friday, the 19th inst., was reported to the council by two members of that body who were present on the occasion. Percy Corray was nominated for election to the A.A., and two former members were reinstated.

The Finance and General Purposes Committee held a meeting last Tuesday, when there were present Mr. Acton Bond (chairman), and Messrs. A. E. Drinkwater, Lawrence Grant, C. Aubrey Smith, and Chas. Cruikshanks (secretary). The secretary received instructions in connection with routine.

Mr. Robert Ganthony, the popular actor, author, and entertainer, is to be accorded a complimentary benefit at the Castle Theatre, Richmond, on Tuesday and Wednesday next, when the programme will include a new comedy by Mr. Ganthony, entitled Uncle Jack. An influential committee is working hard to secure the success of the occasion, which is meeting with gratifying support.

Brilliant and crowded audiences have greeted Mr. Martin Harvey at the Court Theatre, Liverpool, this week, and the revival of The Corsican Brothers has created the maximum of interest. Next Friday night, at the Theatre Royal, Manchester, Mr. Harvey will produce The Spell, a play in two panels, by Miss Rosamond Longbridge. Miss N. de Silva will appear as a "red-haired girl," the play, the scene of which is a Galway cabin, dealing with the Irish superstition concerning hair of that tint. Mr. Harvey will also appear therein, and the third part will be played by Miss Mary Rorke. A Cigarette-Maker's Romance will be revived on the same evening. The advance booking for the Manchester engagement shows a large increase on any previous visit.

Mr. Fred Bulmer has secured the entire rights of a powerful domestic drama, The Girl Who Went Astray, and is sending it out at an early date. Mr. Bulmer is commendably proud of the fact that his Scotch tour of Sentenced for Life has beaten all previous visits of the play, notwithstanding strikes and other obstacles to theatrical business.

Mr. George Dance's A Country Girl (North company) played at Dublin last week, and their journey to Newcastle was notable from the fact that they were the first theatre party to cross the King Edward Bridge. Moreover, the special train in which they travelled from Leeds had the same driver as the King's train in July.

Mr. Sidney Dark, in his paper, entitled "Are we Downhearted?" read to the O.P. Club at the Criterion on Sunday, came to the conclusion that what was wrong with the theatre was its commerce. At the same time, he maintained that what London wanted was cheaper theatres run on more business-like lines. Mr. Carl Hentschel, in a cheery speech, pointed out that the theatres were paying well, and that the managers obeyed the law of supply and demand. He considered that the modern play was of a higher standard than that of some years since.

We regret to have to record the death of Mrs. E. C. Matthews, who passed away suddenly on the 19th inst. Mrs. Matthews was a member of Mr. W. Payne Seddon's company, which gave a one-night performance of The Bells at Tipperary on the day previous. She was taken ill with violent internal pains early in the morning, and, subsequently, the doctor advised her removal to the hospital, where she died. At the inquest Miss E. Bergin said the deceased lodged in her house in James's-street, and came home after the performance on the Thursday night in her usual health. Before going to bed she partook of some milk and toast. Witness was called about three o'clock next morning by the lady's companion, Miss Wall, and a medical man was immediately sent for. The doctor said death was due to cardiac syncope, following acute gastric symptoms, and a verdict was returned accordingly. The funeral took place on Monday morning at Tipperary, several members of the company being present at the grave.

Miss Annie Hughes, who is continuing her tour in A Country Mouse at the Camden Theatre, next week will produce on Monday, Nov. 25, at the Midland Hotel Theatre, Manchester, a new comedy-drama, by Jerome K. Jerome, with the title of Tommy. The character to be played by Miss Hughes is that of a daughter of a gentleman who attempts to run a London newspaper with disastrous results. Mr. Jerome's novel, "Tommy and Co." was founded on the play, which is to be seen at Fulham the week following its production.

Miss Mariette Sully, who is engaged for the part of the cousin of Illyrine in Les Merveilleuses, to be produced at Daly's Theatre to-night, promises to take a place on the London stage similar to that held by Juliette Nesville. She has already secured the favour of playgoers on this side the Channel by her piquant rendering of O Juliette Diamant in the recent Daly's revival of The Geisha. A charming singer, she left the music halls in Paris to take up the part of La Poupée. She is quite learned too, boasting a degree, and is familiar with Latin and Greek.

The directors of the Spa Theatre, Bridlington, which was burnt down on Saturday last, together with their general-manager, Mr. Henry Hague, are already engaged in the arrangements for the rebuilding of a thoroughly up-to-date new theatre, which they have decided shall be ready for opening in the spring of the forthcoming year. Bridlington people, it is assured, will have every reason to be proud of a handsome new theatre properly equipped in every detail desired by both artists and audience. All contracts made for next year stand good, and bookings for first-class attractions are to be proceeded with.

The Prince's Theatre, Horwich, was reopened on Monday under the management of Mr. Fred Lewis, of Oldham, several improvements in the lighting, heating, and decorating making the place very comfortable. Some good bookings are announced, and, with Mr. Lewis Grainger as business-manager, the place bids fair to become as popular as heretofore.

At the New Theatre on Thursday Mr. Mackainers resumed his part of the wine merchant, from which he has been absent for the last fortnight owing to illness.

Mr. Wyn-Weaver and Mr. Ernest Noble, who have been touring through the year with Mr. H. F. Maltby's successful play, The Youngest of Three, are re-engaged by Mr. Peter Davey, of Kingston-on-Thames, for pantomime. This makes Mr. Weaver's second and Mr. Noble's fourth consecutive year in pantomime under this management.

Mr. Alfred Manners, the energetic proprietor and manager of the Queen's Theatre, Swindon, carried out an interesting scheme in connection with the return visit of the Moody-Manners Grand Opera Company this week. Before deciding which operas should be presented he took a ballot of the town, posting voting papers to his many patrons, asking them to choose the seven works they would prefer. The result was that the following operas were billed:—Carmen, Faust, Bohemian Girl, Il Trovatore, Tannhäuser, Lohengrin, and Maritana. They were accordingly presented with the greatest success, the house being crowded at each performance as soon as early doors were opened, and all the extra rows of reserved seats and stalls found occupants.

Mr. Edward Marris has acquired the small town right of a number of Mr. Dance's pieces, including The Catch of the Season, The Duchess of Dantzic, Veronique, The Orchid, The Girl from Kay's, and The Cingalee.

"Alice in Wonderland," which Mr. Seymour Hicks is to reproduce at Christmas, has at length found a haven in the Apollo Theatre, where, by arrangement with Messrs. Greet and Engelbach, and Mr. Tom B. Davis, the dainty play will be revived about Dec. 18.

Miss Kathleen Rind has happily quite recovered from a serious affection of the throat, which has prevented her from taking any engagement for the past year. She makes her first public appearance since her illness at the Bechstein Hall on Thursday afternoon next at a vocal and dramatic recital given by her and Miss Adelaide Rind. Miss Kathleen will be responsible for the recitations, which will include a scene from The Winter's Tale.

In spite of a varied round of plays and many rehearsals, Mr. Norman V. Norman's company find time to indulge in a great deal of athletic exercise. There are two good hockey teams, one mixed, and a great number of matches are played. Last week the mixed team defeated a strong local club at Hastings by 10 goals to nil, and during the same week the men's team played the powerful Hastings and St. Leonard's Club, and after a very exciting game, were defeated by 3 goals to 2, the theatrical team scoring the first goal. Mr. Norman is a veteran football player, and occupied the position of three-quarter back under Rugby rules for Gloucester County over twenty years ago.

We regret to announce the death on Wednesday, the 17th inst., of Miss Lily Round (Doris), third daughter of the late Henry Round, of Liverpool, sister to Mrs. W. Saunderson and Mrs. Fred Emney (Blanche Doris), after a long illness of consumption. Wreaths and loving messages of sympathy were sent by Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Williams, Mr. and Mrs. John Nash (Lil Hawthorne), Mr. and Mrs. Fred Eastman, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Emney, Mr. and Mrs. Saunderson, Mrs. Henry Round, Miss Enid Round, Miss Dolly Round (Mrs. Turner), and many other friends. Mrs. Emney and Mrs. Saunderson desire to thank the above ladies and gentlemen.

Frederic Hay's farce, A Restless Night, originally produced in 1873, replaced the old comedy He's Much to Blame at Terry's on Monday, when it was put on in front of Yellow Fog Island. The farcical character of the little piece, which portrays in comical fashion the efforts of a young lady and her maid to keep secret the visits of their sweethearts, is redeemed by some excellent songs, cleverly imitated from the French by Mr. Nation. Mr. Charles Groves appears successfully in his original character of Corporal Tir, and his fiancée, Fifine, is gracefully played and sung by Miss Elsie Cooke. The stern parent is effectively represented by Mr. Campbell Bishop; and Mr. A. B. Imeson as Jacques and Miss Gladys Archbutt as the maid Annette add to the agreeable nature of the production.

Mr. Arthur Bourchier, who recently entrusted Mr. Malcolm Watson's play, Handsome Jim, to Mr. Edward Michael for trial production at Margate by the Répertoire Theatre Syndicate, has shown his practical appreciation of the methods and work of this organisation by giving Mr. Michael yet another entirely new play, which is to be produced the end of November at the Theatre Royal, Margate.

Mr. Wallace Stranack has been transferred from Mr. Charles Macdona's Three Little Maids (N.) company to his Mr. Popple principal company. On leaving the former he was presented with a handsome solid-silver cigarette-case from the members of the company, and received a hearty send-off.

Mr. J. Bannister Howard has left London for Ryde, where he is to have a special benefit on Wednesday next at the Theatre Royal. The attraction will be The Private Secretary, performed by the Ryde Amateurs, with Mr. Howard in his original part of Mr. Cattermole.

Mr. Allan Wilkie, this week, is paying his first visit to Weston-Super-Mare, and is being received with great enthusiasm. At the end of the third act of Othello on Monday evening he had no less than seven curtain calls, while at the end of the play the audience refused to disperse until Mr. Wilkie made them a short speech, in which he briefly thanked them for their most encouraging reception.

ITEMS OF INTEREST.

MR. BEERBOHM TREE made a new departure at the Theatre Royal, Birmingham, on Tuesday. In the picturesque garb of The Man Who Was, he offered, at the close of the performance, a protest against certain Press criticisms of Colonel Newcome. Mr. Tree's indignation is quite comprehensible when we learn that the play was described in the critique in question as "an outrage," "an annoyance," "the veriest rubbish," "a vulgarisation," "an outrage upon Thackeray," "like fifth-rate claret," "marring and debasing," "crude and clumsy," and "a mere caricature," with "language like a halfpenny novelette." These be very bitter words; but "what's the odds as long as" the piece is received, as it invariably is, with the most thorough and complete satisfaction?

THAT Mr. Arthur Bourchier is still unconvinced of the value of first-night criticism is shown by the letter which he forwarded to Mr. J. T. Grein, in lieu of personally attending that gentleman's interesting lecture on "The Vexed Question of Dramatic Criticism," at the Hotel Cecil on Sunday. Mr. Bourchier wrote:—"I earnestly advocate a change in the manner in which the critics of daily papers are compelled to write hurriedly on the necessarily nervous efforts of actors and actresses at first-night performances. My views on this point are unalterable. Of course, it can be argued that some players may give better individual performances on a first night than they subsequently do, but I venture to think they are the exception to the rule. Nothing would give me greater pleasure than to attend an amicable meeting of leading editors and leading managers to discuss the question. Mr. Tree's suggestion, since carried out by Mr. Archer in the Tribune, that a short report should appear the morning after a first night, to be followed later with a detailed criticism, is, in my humble opinion, the very best solution of the difficulty."

MR. BEERBOHM'S TREE'S selection of the Sphinx as the dominating figure of the opening and final tableaux in his forthcoming production of Antony and Cleopatra may possibly have been suggested by Mr. Bernard Shaw's use of the statue in Cæsar and Cleopatra. The following is Mr. Shaw's idea of the "picture":—"Darkness. Dead silence. Then the blackness and stillness break softly into silver mist and strange airs as the windswept harp of Memnon plays at the dawning of the moon. It rises full over the desert; and a vast horizon comes into relief, broken by a huge shape, which soon reveals itself in the spreading radiance as a Sphinx pedestalled on the sands. The light still clears, until the upraised eyes of the image are distinguished looking straight forward and upward in infinite fearless vigil." That admirable artist, Mr. Harker, might find worthy inspiration in this poetical description of the Egyptian idol.

MR. ALBERT VISETTI, writing to the Daily Mail, protests against calls before the curtain. "How can we be expected," he says, "to stand, say, seeing Valentine, after cursing Marguerite—and dying—return a moment later with an expectant grin on his face? But I blame the public; artists are but human, and love the applause of their fellow-men. I was once present at a performance of Trovatore. You know how, in the fourth act, Manrico is heard singing a passionate farewell to Leonore from the interior of the tower in which he is imprisoned. Leonore waits in despair. A burly sentinel is at the gate. The audience shricked their plaudits. This was too much for Manrico. He descended the tower, burst open his prison locks, and, ignoring the sentinel, who was looking the other way, approached the footlights, kissed his hand to the house—and then, with the most sublime dignity, he released Leonore, re-entered the tower, shot the bolts upon himself—and sang the whole thing all over again!"

THE difference in the way of doing things in England and France is strikingly exemplified by the result of the contest between the French Society of Dramatic Authors and two Paris managers. The Society does not allow a leading manager to control more than one theatre; and it has quashed an attempt at plurality by which two men would have governed four playhouses in Paris. This was effected by expelling from the Society any author who wrote plays for the prospective pluralists. The Society has conquered, and continues to collect fees for its members at every theatre in France. In England a similar society once existed; but its most useful function was the detection—chiefly by the aid of local hairdressers—of unpaid-for performances of pieces given, chiefly by amateurs, in out-of-the-way villages and towns. Our English dramatists prefer to do their business by private contract.

IN the later stages of the French Revolution, the comparatively moderate men—they would have passed for fanatics at any ordinary period—found themselves outdone and even disgusted by the extremists of their own party. Something similar is the case in connection with the German drama and its advanced English critics. Mr. William Archer, writing in the Tribune on Wedekind's play Erdgeist, (The Earth Spirit), says:—"If Erdgeist were placed on the public stage in England it would excite an outcry more furious than that which greeted Ghosts; and as for its sequel, Pandora's Box, it would make even the Stage Society's hair stand on end. The German public, no doubt, is very different from the English public, and very much more enlightened; but there is no theatrical public on earth that could take Wedekind in large doses. It seems to me, then, that the critical attitude towards Sudermann and Wedekind is very significant. The critics are trying to frighten the great public—even the educated great public—away from things which it can really relish, and to force upon it forms of drama for which it is unripe, and which are, indeed, of doubtful theatrical value. I cannot but feel that an over-intellectual, over-exigent criticism, not untainted, perhaps, with what the Germans call 'snobismus,' is one of the dangers of the situation."

LULU, the heroine of the play, is vice personified. Her first "protector" is a rich journalist. He marries her to an old man and she proceeds to fascinate a young painter, the shock of the discovery killing her senile spouse with a stroke of apoplexy. Lulu marries the painter; but the journalist is still bewitched by the "little serpent," and tells the painter of Lulu's past. On this the artist cuts his throat, and the courtesan marries the journalist, whom she deceives with an acrobat, a schoolboy, an old man, a footman, and the journalist's own son. On her husband protesting, the seductive wanton shoots him dead. In the end Lulu is murdered in Whitechapel by "Jack the Ripper." If the Berlin critics are enjoying this sort of play, they must indeed possess strong stomachs.

MR. FREDK. MOUILLOT asks a Southampton paper to open its columns to public voting on the question, "Should smoking be allowed in the theatre proper?" "My conviction," Mr. Mouillot continues, "is that it should in the upper parts of the house. If it were the opinion of the majority that this innovation would be received with approval, my idea would be to turn the whole of the ground floor into stalls, and reduce the price of the dress circle, making it practically the pit, and allow smoking there and in the gallery. By this means, with proper ventilation, anyone who did not like smoking would be entirely free from it, and those who preferred to see the stage through the gentle influence of the soothing weed could do so. If your Editor would open your columns to the public vote on this vexed question, I should be much obliged."

"THE CHARITY THAT BEGAN AT HOME."

A Comedy, in Four Acts, by St. John Hankin.
Produced at the Court Theatre at a Matinée on Tuesday, Oct. 23.

Lady Denison ..... MISS FLORENCE HAYDON
Margery ..... MISS MAY MARTYN
Mrs. Eversleigh ..... MISS MARGARET MURRAY
Mrs. Horrocks ..... MISS LIZZIE HENDERSON
Miss Triggs ..... MISS AGNES THOMAS
Anson ..... MISS GERTRUDE HENRIQUES
General Bonsor ..... MR. DENNIS EADIE
Mr. Firket ..... MR. EDMUND GWENN
Hugh Verreker ..... MR. BEN WEBSTER
Basil Hylton ..... MR. BERTE THOMAS
Soames ..... MR. EUGENE MAYEUR
William ..... MR. NORMAN PAGE

Messrs. Vedrenne-Barker's matinées at the Court Theatre are, invariably, well worth witnessing. There is always an attempt, at any rate, at intellectual appeal in the plays produced; and if the endeavour is not always crowned with complete success, there is generally sufficient achievement to create interest and give satisfaction. The Court is becoming a home, not exactly for "lost plays," but for those pieces which, admirable in their own way, would hardly be likely to see the light elsewhere. It is also a happy opening-ground for young talent, and a place in which artists hitherto regarded as conventional may prove their capacity, at need, for more subtle work than is usually demanded from them.

Mr. St. John Hankin's piece The Charity that began at Home is a rather discouraging essay on the difficulty of doing good. That is to say, the general tenor of the satire is depressing; but the actual exposition of the author's argument, with the characters and incidents evolved therein, is decidedly diverting. The only obstacle to our satisfaction at the Court Theatre on Tuesday afternoon was the difficulty of being certain, from the commencement, what line the author was taking. His philanthropic missionary is so excellent in his arguments that Mr. Hankin almost lead us to believe that the laugh was going to be for, instead of against, him and his admiring disciple, Lady Denison, who is so much troubled by her attempts to carry Mr. Basil Hylton's theories into effect. Hylton, who is a preacher in an Independent Church somewhat similar to that founded by Robert Elsmere in Mrs. Humphry Ward's novel, advocates the assistance of the undeserving and forgiveness of the erring again and again; and Lady Denison, faithful to this creed, asks down to her country house a vulgar woman whom no one wants to know, an anecdotic bore, who has "cleared" out several clubs, a soured teacher of German who is continually harping on her humble position and the humiliations it involves, a shy nondescript, and a young man whose military past is not entirely spotless. A cynical and common-sense Chorus is supplied in the person of Mrs. Eversleigh, who comments very severely upon Lady Denison's indulgence, especially in the case of the maid-servant, Anson. The latter has been seduced by Soames, a butler who was engaged by Lady Denison in spite of a bad character from his last place, on the principle of giving a sinner a second chance. On being requested to "make an honest woman" of Anson, Soames smugly states that he is already married. Then, instead of taking a fancy to Hylton, who is rich, Lady Denison's daughter Margery, who is a strong Hyltonian, falls in love with Hugh Verreker, the young officer above-mentioned, who boldly admits his attachment to a system of individual egoism. In the end, however, Verreker finds that Margery is really too good for him, so he releases her from her engagement, and suggests that she should marry Hylton.

The difficulty is, indeed, constantly cropping up: how far absence of desert is to govern our charity. Possibly the quality of mercy is exercised by Lady Denison with too little wisdom and discretion; but, after all, Mr. Hankin does not punish her very severely in his play, and the annoyances caused by the behaviour of the "spoiler" of servants and the tiresome guests are merely trivial. Their effect on the audience is decidedly diverting, and those present at the Court on Tuesday afternoon laughed heartily at the droll lines the author has placed in the mouths of his characters, most of which are drawn without much subtlety, but with a vast amount of the direct and decided appeal which is so effective on the stage. It should be remembered that the charitably-endured guests are supposed to be exceptionally "impossible" people, or they would not be invited to enjoy Lady Denison's hospitality. The excessive anecdotage of the General, the abject timidity and self-effacement of Mr. Firket, and the sleek offensiveness of Miss Triggs account for their being "boycotted" by fellow-creatures less altruistic than her ladyship, and also for their exaggerated characteristics.

The members of the cast at the Court Theatre on Tuesday afternoon devoted great care and pains to their respective embodiments. Miss Florence Haydon was absolutely natural and convincing as the puzzled, plaintive, and kindly hostess, Lady Denison. She delivered the droll lines of the part with an absence of effort which made them doubly effective, and an excellent result was attained by Miss Haydon's admirable ease and unconsciousness. Indeed, the fault, if any, was on the side of underacting, a little louder enunciation being at times demanded by the gallery. Miss Haydon's impersonation was quite in the vein of pure comedy, and was capital, both in tone and general treatment. Miss May Martyn, who enacted Margery, has a winning way and a pleasant, prepossessing smile and manner. Her rendering of the rôle—quiet and moderate, yet never inadequate or perfunctory—was extremely good, and marked her as an actress of decided gift and promise. The amiable, facile way in which she met objections to her mother's Hyltonian methods was charming, and Miss Martyn may congratulate herself on having made a most agreeable impression. Miss Margaret Murray gave a bright and emphatic exposition of Mrs. Eversleigh's acute and cynical character, and looked the part satisfactorily. Miss Lizzie Henderson was sufficiently spacious and self-esteeming as Mrs. Horrocks, and did justice to the not too pronounced vulgarity of this personage; and Miss Agnes Thomas was vinegarish humility itself as Miss Triggs, her enunciation of the teacher's offensive insinuations being smooth, polished, and distinct. Miss Gertrude Henriques had not much to do as the lachrymose Anson, but made the most of her opportunities, and carried herself quite consistently. Mr. Dennis Eadie gave a striking portrature of a prosy, dense, and conceited old officer, his exterior being well attended to; and Mr. Edmund Gwenn, who had evidently devoted much time and care to his make-up, was irreproachably demure and submissive as Mr. Firkit. Mr. Ben Webster played the "awkward" and unthankful part of Hugh Verreker with his usual skill and tact, and gave conscientious care to the embodiment of the author's creation; and Mr. Berte Thomas was admirably unctuous and fluent as Basil Hylton, the persuasive style in which he set forth the philanthropist's principles quite accounting for the spell exercised by him over his admirers. Mr. Eugene Mayeur was the acme of demure impudence as Soames; and Mr. Norman Page contributed a clean and intelligent performance of the part of William. A distinctive feature of these Court Theatre matinées is the thorough way in which all the pieces are cast and acted, and the trouble and talent which are employed in their performance.

"THE VIRGIN GODDESS."

A Play, in Three Acts, by Rudolf Besier,
Produced at the Adelphi Theatre on Tuesday, Oct. 23.

Leader of Female Chorus .. MISS AGNES BRAYTON

"The Greek tragedy," says our old friend Schlegel, "in its pure and unaltered state will always for our theatres remain an exotic plant, which we can hardly hope to cultivate with any success, even in the hothouse of learned art and criticism"; and yet on Tuesday at the Adelphi—once the theatre of melodrama—was produced a tragedy founded on the classic models of Æschylus and Sophocles—a work full of poetic fervour, qualified by powerful situations, and clouded throughout by overwhelming sorrow. We welcome such a work as heartily as we admire the courage of Mr. Otho Stuart in producing it; for we doubt very much that a public displaying an affection for modern musical comedy will patronise to any great extent a theatre presenting a tragedy of such an uncompromising type as The Virgin Goddess; and yet on the first night no portion of the house was more enthusiastic in its applause of the author—Mr. Rudolf Besier—than the gallery. Enthusiasm broke out at the end of the fine first act, and as to the artistic success of this bold excursus into the realms of mythologic tragedy there can be no two opinions.

Mr. Besier, true to the chief models of the Greek dramatists we have mentioned, has not hesitated to introduce the Chorus, to which Horace ascribes a general expression of moral sympathy, exhortation, instruction, and warning. Poetical justice, we are told, is by no means indispensable to a good tragedy, but nevertheless we look for it; and though one's very soul is moved by the pity and terror of the final catastrophe in Mr. Besier's play, it could not be otherwise.

At the rising of the curtain we are in the city of Artis, in the marble courtyard before the Temple of Artemis (Diana). The inhabitants are in sore straits, for their doughtiest warriors are believed to have perished in some over-sea expedition, and Cresphontes, their King, prays with the women and boys, giving no heed to the defence of his kingdom. The monarch's arrant cowardice stirs up the resentment of his Queen, Althea, who, by secret messenger, sends a summons to the brother of Cresphontes, a mighty warrior and a great hunter, who has devoted himself to the service of Artemis in distant Arcadia. Cleito, the aged and blind mother of both the men, has the gift of prophecy, and presages that evil will ensue from the return of Haephestion to Artis. Cresphontes is angered greatly when he first sees his brother, and, refusing his help, not only tells him to be gone, but makes shameful terms with the enemy. If Artis is to be saved there is but one thing to be done—kill the man who is responsible for the policy of surrender. Urged by Althea, Haephestion strikes down the recreant King with his father's sword, which the dead man has disgraced.

The aged Cleito learns of the tragedy, and a most impressive scene is enacted over the bier of the murdered Cresphontes. She slowly realises the double-edged sorrow that pierces her heart; but tears are dried by the burning desire for the elemental justice of a life for a life. She will be the instrument of the gods, and bids Haephestion bare his breast for the stroke of the avenging sword. Haephestion is ready, but asks to be heard in his defence, and so eloquently urges the necessity for the deed that the distraught woman drops the sword. Left together, Althea tells the man—who more than hinted his love for her at their meeting in the first act—that it was not patriot love that prompted him to fratricide, but love of her. Equally guilty is she, and Haephestion hears her avowal of love with rapture. But what of Artemis? Will she not punish the warrior who is false to his vows? Suddenly the doors of the temple open, and the message of the outraged goddess comes through a virgin priestess. Artis is to be given over to the hands of the enemy, and is to become desolate, unless Haephestion, before the setting sun touches the western sea, slays Althea. The young Queen hears not the dread sentence, but falls in a swoon. Haephestion treats the message with contumely, and is about to rush away to head the warriors of Artis, when his limbs refuse to act. His heart is numbed. Struggling against the decree is useless, and the excited populace, with piteous cries, urge him to the deed. Their clamour but determines him to defy the goddess, obedience to whose decree is insisted upon by Cleito. Althea, coming upon the scene, realises the necessity for the sacrifice of her life, and, hand in hand, the pair enter the temple. The ban is immediately lifted; the ships of Artis return with the lost warriors; and the crowd that but a few minutes before was in the throes of despair is uplifted with joy when the bowed figure of Haephestion comes slowly down the marble steps of the temple. Amid a dead silence he says, "The Queen is dead."

The acting was on a high plane of excellence, and in no instance was there any lack of dignity and elevation in the delivery of Mr. Besier's sonorous verse. A notable addition to the Adelphi company is Miss Genevieve Ward, who has been specially engaged to play the part of Cleito. The warmth of her welcome on Tuesday must have been very gratifying to this fine tragic actress, who sustained her reputation by a performance of the blind Queen that was sublime in its tenderness. The impressive scene over the bier of Cresphontes we have already spoken of. Herein Miss Ward rose to heights of passion, and yet sounded a deeply pathetic note in the expression of maternal grief. Mr. Oscar Asche, who "produced," must have had a very anxious time on the first night. The great opportunity of the representative of Haephestion comes in the second act, where the warrior, at the very threshold of a new-found happiness, is thwarted by the decree of Artemis. Passion seems to thrill every nerve of the warrior as in a gust of rage he vainly tries to break the spell that is upon him, and the rugged power of Mr. Asche's acting was never more apparent than in this scene. Miss Lily Brayton's Althea might have stepped from one of Leighton's canvases, so true was it to the classic conceptions of that great artist. In her queenly robe of deep red and white, she stood in the first act a fateful figure, and made it clear that the love of a passionate young heart was struggling against her fealty as a wife and queen. It was a performance instinct with strength, dignity, and beauty throughout. Mr. Alfred Brydone's elocution as Cresphontes was admirable; and Mr. Charles Rock's Iphicles was a finely-conceived and virile character. Miss Madge McIntosh as the virgin priestess played a difficult part with judgment and discretion; Mr. Walter Hampden's beautiful voice was heard to advantage as the leader of the male Chorus, and Miss Agnes Brayton was also effective as the leader of the female Chorus. Mr. H. R. Hignett and Mr. G. Kay Souper added to the completeness of the representation by their delineations of a herald and a priest. The one scene—a marble courtyard before the Temple of Artemis—has been cleverly painted by Mr. Joseph Harker; and Mr. Gilbert Clark has shown taste in the designs of the costumes. Mr. Christopher Wilson, whose music is always worth listening to, has revealed much ability in the setting of the two hymns.

THE A.A. AT MANCHESTER.

Mr. Arthur Bourchier presided at the second provincial meeting of the Actors' Association, held on the stage of the Theatre Royal, Manchester, on the 19th inst. There were present:—Miss Edith Cruikshanks, Miss Mabel Osmond, Mrs. Shiel Porter, Mr. Walter Kennion, Mr. C. Levison Lane, Mr. Frank Pemberton, Mr. Shiel Porter, Mrs. Mortimer White, Miss Ethel Edwards, Miss Mary Thorne, Mr. Atheling Farrar, Mr. George Whillis, Mr. Herbert Franklin, Mr. Buchanan Wake, Mr. Alfred Bristowe, Mr. Fred Beal, Mr. Harrison Carter, Mr. J. H. Troughton, Mr. J. F. Haylock, Mr. C. V. Hawkins, Mr. F. Hunter, Mr. A. Taylor, Miss Georgina Hamilton, Mr. Cecil Barth, Mr. S. F. Major, and Mr. Acton Bond

MR. BOURCHIER, speaking in support of Actors' Day, said: Here are we, a very rich profession, some of us drawing salaries that are a great deal more than a Prime Minister's, and even those of us who only get small salaries can perfectly well afford to spare something for the collective good of the profession. We should take away from the stage the stigma of habitually appealing to the public for support. It seems to me a miserable thing that when an actor who has perhaps been playing big parts all his life and has had opportunities of putting money away, dies, his wife and family are dependent on the profession, and the usual benefit performance is held. It is to be hoped that through our newly-established Actors' Day we shall, in the course of five or six years, have funds large enough to support ourselves, so that when worthy cases come before us they can be helped at once. Almost at this time last year Mr. Cyril Maude, at a meeting of the Prince's Theatre, Manchester, received the following message from Sir Henry Irving—almost the last communication the great actor, our late President, wrote:—

"Greeting to all comrades. My heart's desire will ever be for the interests and honour of our Association. The Actors' Association can only be supported by the enthusiasm of all actors."

When we think of the dangers we run, it is to me inconceivable that any actor or actress should refrain from participating in the benefits to be derived from joining the Association. I need only remind you of the sad case of Miss Dot Stephens which happened so recently.

MISS GEORGINA HAMILTON, in an eloquent speech, said: If we are to encourage and promote the art of acting and protect and advance the interests of our members and the profession generally, there is only one possible way it can be done: the actor's and manager's interests must be the same. We want every actor and every manager to belong to the Association. The Association is not working for any party, but for the cause, to promote the art of acting and protect and advance the interests of the profession.

MR. ACTON BOND hoped that those who were visitors would become members—if not at once, at least within the year. The Association had many schemes in progress or coming to a head, and several were hung up because they could not at present honestly say to the "powers that be" outside the profession that the Association, numerically as well as in regard to force of circumstances, was wholly representative of the profession. There was not any truth in the statement that the Council of the Association worked "behind a screen." At the meetings that were held managers as well as members of the rank and file of the profession were present, and matters were discussed for the benefit of the profession as a whole.

MR. CECIL BARTH drew the attention of those present to the fact that when an artist had paid his current subscription he had the benefit of an insurance policy, which no insurance company would issue to him as a private individual for the full amount of his year's subscription. At present, in the event of an accident on the railway journey, a non-member of the Association could not claim compensation from the railway company because of travelling at the three-quarter rate. A grievance was that the headquarters in King-street, Covent Garden, were really a club for those in London, and useless for those who were touring the provinces ten or eleven months of the year. As soon as funds would permit branches were to be opened in some of the principal towns.

MR. S. MAJOR JONES said the attention of members and non-members of the Association should be called to the risks attendant on conveyance of personal luggage and the intentions of the Association on the matter.

MR. ACTON BOND said the matter would be satisfactorily arranged if they could raise the membership to the requisite strength. In reply to a query from Mr. Jones, Mr. Bond stated that if an actor wished to insure his luggage privately, the Association would undertake that.

MR. SHIEL PORTER made an urgent appeal to non-members to join the Association, Agency Department, and humorously suggested that members of the profession would never be satisfied until the Association could guarantee a twelve months' engagement.

The CHAIRMAN proposed a vote of thanks to Mr. John Hart and Mr. Edmondstone Shirra for the use of the Theatre Royal. The question of actor-managers being allowed to become members was being discussed.

MR. BARTH seconded the motion, which was passed.

MR. ACTON BOND proposed, and MR. SHIEL PORTER seconded a vote of thanks to Mr. Arthur Bourchier for presiding.

MISS HAMILTON, in supporting the motion, said she would be pleased to organise ten more meetings of this kind, until the services of the whole of the vice-presidents had been utilised.

THE ROYAL ACADEMY OF MUSIC.

Mr. Stewart Macpherson, F.R.A.M., continuing his lecture on "The Evolution of the Symphony" on Wednesday afternoon, referred to Franz Peter Schubert, born in 1797, and the lecturer spoke of the prodigious number, 1131 works, produced in or about thirty-one years by the famous composer, a great number of these compositions being little known. Mr. Macpherson said that Schubert was almost entirely self-taught, and this, to no small extent, prevented the full development of his genius. On the other hand, Schubert was a great colourist in music. The professor here gave a short example on the piano, and then mentioned perhaps Schubert's greatest work, the noble "Unfinished Symphony," and after playing the first movement, spoke of the glorious air on which it is founded, and mentioned the remark of the famous conductor Weingartner, who said "it was a good job the symphony was unfinished," this not being said in condemnation, but merely that any addition would have perhaps spoilt the effect of a work in which every note was precious.

The lecturer also referred to Spohr, whose best-known work was "The Power of Sound," this being the beginning of what is now called "Programme Music." In speaking of Mendelssohn, Mr. Macpherson referred to the Italian and the Scotch symphony as being two of his best works, particularly the latter, the first sixteen bars of which were written in Holyrood Palace. The lecturer here played an example of the Scotch symphony, saying that Mendelssohn was always successful in his scherzos, which were full of dainty and sparkling music. In speaking of Schumann, he thought that this composer had the true spirit of romance, and in an example given on the piano compared a movement of Schumann's B flat major with the Scotch symphony, saying at the same time that mere tune was not enough, although he, Mr. Macpherson, did not under-rate tune, far from it. As a fine example, the professor gave an adagio of Schumann, and said that in many respects this composer came nearer to Beethoven than either Schubert or Mendelssohn.

"THE INTRIGUERS."

A Drama, in Four Acts, by Frank Nasmith and Stanley Houghton, produced for the first time on any stage at the Manchester Athenæum, on Friday, Oct. 19.

Leonard Ainsworth .... MR. STANLEY HOUGHTON
Oliver Brinton ..... MR. HAROLD FURBER
Comte Simon de Montignac ..... MR. F. A. MITCHESON
Herr Hartmann-Auerbach.. MR. HARRY WILLIAMS
Riecke ..... MR. E. MERTON
Kellett ..... MR. FRANK NASMITH
Withecomb ..... MR. CHAS. E. WARD
Stott ..... MR. R. D. BATEMAN
Miriam Brinton ..... MISS CARIE MOORE
Nora Dale ..... MISS MAUD ELLIOTT
Fenwick ..... MISS A. P. COOPER

The Intriguers, produced by the Manchester Athenæum Dramatic Society, at the Manchester Athenæum, on Friday, the 19th, presents the story of a young inventor, who has perfected some plans for a new submarine, and is on the eve of selling his invention to the British Government, and thereby, of course, making a fortune. It is a happy situation, beset, however, with many difficulties, of which one is his infatuation for the wife of a man who is in the pay of a foreign agent—another being the said agent's resolve to steal the plans by any possible resort, with the injured husband's complicity. Overtures are made at the outset to purchase the plans by one Herr Hartmann-Auerbach, who, failing in the attempt, is seen no more; influences are also at work to bring to an end the baleful intimacy between Ainsworth, the inventor, and Oliver Brinton's wife. The person most interested in the latter development is Nora Dale, Ainsworth's secretary, who secretly loves him, and who ultimately, in rather a pretty fashion, proposes to him, at a moment when his future seems to depend upon the venture. How the intriguers—namely, the Comte de Montignac, Oliver Brinton, and Riecke, a secret service agent—get hold of the plans, and are in the end defeated by a clever ruse of Nora Dale, who manages to retain them after they have been purloined on Ainsworth's behalf, by Brinton's wife (afterwards a vengeful woman), is well presented by the authors, Messrs. Frank Nasmith and Stanley Houghton, who have arranged their material with an eye to effective curtains. Perhaps the last of these is the least effective; and this is a pity, for it makes a rather flat and abrupt conclusion. But, on the whole, the play is clever and entertaining, and might be expanded into an acceptable drama for the stage.

The characters were well rendered by the various members of the cast. Mr. Stanley Houghton gave a studied depiction of the somewhat unheroic Leonard Ainsworth; and Mr. Frank Nasmith was distinctly successful as Kellett, Ainsworth's servant. Miss Maud Elliott played the part of Nora Dale (at very short notice), and played it with a quiet confidence and an entirely pleasing effect; while as Miriam Brinton Miss Carie Moore, though rather staccato in style, showed herself possessed of more than average ability in a comparatively exacting part. Mr. F. A. Mitcheson's Comte de Montignac was neat and effective; and Mr. Harold Furber made a vigorous Oliver Brinton, a character-study in its way. For the rest, Mr. E. Merton acted quietly and naturally as Riecke; Mr. R. D. Bateman did well as Stott, the butler; Miss A. P. Cooper was quite satisfactory as Fenwick, Mrs. Brinton's maid; and Mr. Chas. E. Ward made a distinct success of the small, but valuable, comedy part of Withecomb.

Special scenery was supplied by Messrs. F. Le Maistre and Co., and the wigs and costumes were from Messrs. S. B. Watts and Co. The performance, repeated on Saturday evening, gave pleasure to a large audience.

DESTRUCTION OF THE BRIDLINGTON THEATRE.

A disastrous fire occurred at Bridlington on Saturday by which the Spa Theatre, which formed part of the New Spa and Gardens, opened on July 27, 1896, was burned to the ground. The outbreak was discovered about nine o'clock, when smoke was seen rising from the building, and the fire brigade was at once summoned. For the first few minutes a small hose was directed by some fishermen upon the building, but the engine and brigade arrived soon afterwards, and efforts were concentrated upon saving the pavilion, bandstand, café, refreshment rooms, and offices, the fire being happily confined to the theatre. The hall was completely gutted, its iron girders bending or falling, and one large pillar at the south end of the hall crashed through the eastern wall. Within half an hour of the fire being noticed the roof fell in. The firemen remained on the scene all night, and were engaged till the following day playing on the smouldering ruins.

The cause of the fire is a complete mystery. Mr. Henry Hague, manager and secretary to the New Spa and Gardens Company, by whom the theatre is owned, states that he is utterly unable to account for the fire, as all had been left secure early in the afternoon. There was neither gas nor electric light on in the theatre, which had not been used for performances since Mr. Sydney James's Strolling Players gave their farewell concert there on Sept. 22. Since that time both the gas and electricity had been cut off from the theatre. Mr. Hague understands that the gardener locked the place up safely after four o'clock, but when the latter was fetched he found the small door leading to the stage—which had been left padlocked securely—was wide open and the place in full blaze.

The damage, which is estimated to be about £4,000, is, it is understood, fully covered by insurance.

Mr. Hague informs our correspondent that the directors have resolved at once to make arrangements for the building of a new and up-to-date theatre, and they intend expediting the construction of the new building so that it can be opened next spring.

MR. GERALD MAXWELL, who has obtained great praise for his novel, "The Miracle Worker," was editor of the Court Journal up to the beginning of the present year, and since then has devoted himself to travel on the Continent and the study of European politics. Mr. Maxwell is firmly of opinion that hard writing makes easy reading, and in consequence he spares no pains to ensure accuracy in scientific data. Valuable assistance in this direction has been derived from fellow-students of his old University days at Cambridge and Leipzig, many of whom have since become eminent men of science. Mr. Maxwell is an ardent supporter of the exiled House of Hanover, and has displayed so much zeal in the cause that the Guelph party awarded him the medal struck in honour of the twenty-fifth anniversary of the Duke of Cumberland's marriage with the Princess Thyra of Denmark.

THERE is a curious little discrepancy between the dialogue and the costumes in the first act of Robin Hood at the Lyric. Mr. Lewis Waller, as Robin, says to his followers, "Off with your hats," &c. They are unable to comply with the order, as the "merrie men" all wear the pointed head-cloak of Saxon origin, and Friar Tuck has only his tonsure.

THE Duke and Duchess of Orleans were present at the performance of La Boheme at the Royal Opera, Covent Garden, on the 19th inst.

MME. CHARLES GOUNOD, widow of the celebrated composer, died on the 19th inst., at her residence in Paris. She was seventy-seven years of age.

AMUSEMENTS IN GLASGOW.

Theatre Royal, Ltd.—Managing-Director, Mr. F. W. Wyndham; Acting-Manager, Mr. Percy Humphrys.—The Moody-Manners Opera Company commenced the second week of its engagement on Monday, when very complete and spirited performances were given of Cavalleria Rusticana and Pagliacci, under the conductorship of Mr. Romualdo Sapio. Mr. John Child appeared as Turridu in Mascagni's opera, and being in good voice made a strong impression; the Santuzza of the cast was Madame de Vere, whose singing and acting were intensely dramatic throughout; Mr. Lewys James filled the rôle of Alfio in his usual artistic manner; and the parts of Lola and Lucia were adequately represented by Misses Garland and Alvord. In the second opera, the Canio of Mr. Joseph O'Mara was a capital performance; and as Nedda, Miss Kate Anderson sang with expression; Mr. William Dever was repeatedly recalled for his fine rendering of the prologue; Mr. Lewys James made an excellent Silvio; and Mr. V. Brodo was good as Beppo. The week's programme included Lohengrin, Carmen, The Merry Wives of Windsor, Marriage of Figaro, Faust, and Maritana.

Royalty.—Managing-Director, Mr. F. W. Wyndham; Acting-Manager, Mr. Wm. M. Downie.—The grand scenic and poetic play, The Lady of the Lake, is now running its fourth, and last, week, and continues to draw good houses.

King's, Ltd.—Managing-Director, Mr. F. W. Wyndham; Business-Manager, Mr. H. Macfarlane.—After an absence of ten years, Mr. Arthur Bourchier and Miss Violet Vanbrugh are again visiting Glasgow, and their appearance in Mr. Alfred Sutro's play, The Walls of Jericho, was welcomed by an overflowing house. As Jack Frobisher Mr. Bourchier has a strong part of the type he plays so well, and he shows the awakening of the revolt within him against the shams and follies of the smart set in masterly fashion, culminating in the powerful scene with his wife, Lady Alethea. In the latter part Miss Violet Vanbrugh is happily suited, and alike in her light-hearted enjoyment of the frivolous amusements of the society lady and the pathos of the broken-hearted wife she carried the sympathies of the audience with her. Mr. H. Nye-Chart is still the Harry Dallas, and acts the butterfly lover with excellent discretion; Mr. Arthur Whitby as the callous and impecunious Marquis of Steventon ably depicts a familiar stage type; the bluff Hanky Bannister was cleverly acted by Mr. Charles Goodhart; Miss Pamela Gaythorne gave a pleasing performance as Lady Lucy; and Miss Nora Greenlaw ably filled the part of Lady Westerby. Other society ladies were depicted with much humour and vivacity by Miss Jean Harkness, Miss Olive Terry, Mrs. Nye-Chart, and Miss Vivienne Whitaker.

Grand, Ltd.—Managing-Director, Mr. R. C. Buchanan; Acting-Manager, Mr. A. Mascard.—That the production of Cymbeline at this house merits the appreciation of the Glasgow playgoers is manifest by the enthusiasm of the audiences which nightly visit the theatre. The piece itself is gorgeously set and capably and artistically depicted, whilst the acting of the principals, Miss Mona K. Oram, Messrs. Vincent Clive, F. Joynson-Powell, E. Story-Gofton, and H. M. Clifford, is of a uniformly high standard. Unfortunately, however, the production which drew Manchester playgers for three months has not secured the same appreciation in Glasgow, and the last nights are announced.

Royal Princess's.—Sole Proprietor and Manager, Mr. Rich. Waldon; Acting-Manager, Mr. Hugh Murdoch.—Mr. and Mrs. Chalmers Mackey's company opened here on Monday in The Shaughraun, Mr. Mackey giving his well-known impersonation of Conn, which was greatly enjoyed. Mrs. Mackey as Clare Ffolliott gave a pleasing interpretation of the part, and she and her husband had good support from their well-balanced company.

Metropole, Ltd.—Managing-Director, Mr. Arthur Jefferson; Acting-Manager, Mr. W. Gillespy.—The attraction here this week is the drama Her Lost Self. Phillippine Marcel has a most accomplished representative in Miss Frances Delaval; Mr. Leslie York plays excellently as Paul Kimberley; and Mr. G. Osmond Tearle gives an artistic performance as Norman Esmond; Mr. Fred Lillywhite is seen to advantage as Victor Elsworth; and the part of Abraham Cohen is well looked after by Mr. L. W. Halfpenny. Rachael Cohen is ably sustained by Mrs. Edmond Lyons. The humorous element is in no wise neglected, Mr. Jimmy Stewart (Tom Flyaway), Miss Hetty Stewart (Bridget Mahone), and Mr. Fred Taylor (Carlisle Montmorency) having plenty of opportunities, of which they make the most.

Lyceum.—Proprietor, Mr. Rich. Waldon; Acting-Manager, Mr. J. H. Oakden.—Mr. Charles Harrington and company, in The Sailors of the King, after a successful week at the Royal Princess's, have migrated here, and are proving equally popular at the Govan house.

New Gaiety Theatre.—Lessee and Manager, B. M. Armstrong.—The dramatic productions, under the direction of Mr. M. Montgomery, are still attracting good audiences here. This week The Sins of the Fathers is submitted, and was well received on the opening night. The company includes several capable artists, notably Mr. Horace Booth, who is seen to advantage in the character of George Armitage; Miss Laurie A. Pardy also gives a capital impersonation of Ethel Harmsworth. The other characters are all well filled, particularly those by Miss Marie de Roos and Messrs. H. C. Clarke, Alfred D. Adams, H. Hesslegrave, and J. A. Wood.

Empire.—Proprietors, Moss' Empires, Ltd.; District-Manager, Mr. Sam Gething; Resident-Manager, Mr. Charles Mussett.—The Harmony Four top the bill here, and in the wealth of humorous business they introduce prove a most amusing combination, while their musical talent is undoubted. Ando's Japs give a clever and varied performance, concluding with the sensational "Slide for Life"; Millie Hylton assisted by Little Decima Brooks gave a picturesque and dainty turn; Kent and Keith are a clever comedy couple, with quite a plethora of new wheezes; Lilian Lowe sings sweetly, as also does Alfred Hurley; Arif Hemet is a new conjurer; and Rita and Roma give a diversified and clever turn; some wonderful acrobatic, yet graceful, dancing is shown by La Sylphe, who contributes several examples of the poetry of motion.

Zoo-Hippodrome.—Proprietors, Moss' Empires, Ltd., and E. H. Bostock; Resident-Manager, Mr. E. H. Bostock.—An item of special interest here is the engagement of Corri and Dereve's musical comedy sketch company, in the clever sketch entitled Office Hours; Mabel Bright and Co. are equally successful in a laughable sketch, Girls will be Girls; and the eccentric dancing of Will Vokes causes roars of laughter. Other capital turns are submitted by Bugler Carr, the musical puzzle; Phillips and Terry; the Three Sisters Sprightly; Woodhouse and Wells, comedy artists; Beatrice Renee, comedienne; and the Vivians, high-class comedy artists, in a musical playlet, entitled A Reverie.

Pavilion, Ltd.—General-Manager, Mr. Samuel Lloyd.—In a well varied programme the outstanding feature is the performance of the Daanton Shaw troupe of Australian trick cyclists, who have met with a cordial reception; Miss Alice Hollander, contralto, is also well received. The other members of the company include Ted Cowan, comedian; Emil Amiel, contortionist; Tray and Rich, comediane and dancers; Whit Cunliffe, the clever young light comedian; Athas and Collins, speciality artists; Beatie Kent, comedienne; the Ten Dixie Girls, vocalists and dancers; Tom Collins, comedian; and Frank and Violet Payte, sketch artists.

Colisеum.—Proprietors, Moss' Empires, Ltd.; District-Manager, Mr. S. Gething; Resident-Manager, Mr. Harry Burdette.—The principal turn this week is that of R. A. Roberts, in his sketch, Dick Turpin, in which he personates five distinct types of character; the peerless De Dio is a wonderful skirt manipulator, who emerges smiling from what looks like the flaming crater of a volcano; George Westland is an amusing Scotch comedian; Drew and Alders personate a funny pair of bill-posters; Frank Halter and Marie Ray keep the fun going with a variety of clever dialogue; the Northern Troupe of dancers are graceful and entertaining; the Mayvilles give a good marionette performance; Ella Shields is a lively coon singer and dancer; May Henderson looks and acts the little nigger girl to the life; the Bioscope completes a pleasing entertainment.

Palace.—Sole Proprietor and Manager, Mr. Rich. Waldon; Acting-Manager, Mr. Harry McKelvie.—Frank Leslie, vocal comedian, and Leah Arden, soubrette, have good receptions; J. W. Rickaby is a popular comedian; the Six Æolians have proved a big attraction in a varied programme of solo and concerted popular pieces and some pleasing dances; the Wilfords give a splendid turn; their equilibristic acts are skilful and daring. Miss Constance Moxon has little to do, but it is done artistically and with considerable "go"; Charlie Dean again proves a favourite; Taking the Census is a funny act by the Bros. Curran; and Karr and Kooney are also well received in a smart comedy turn.

Harmonic Concerts.—Musical Secretary, Mr. Wm. Bigram.—A couple of popular favourites top the bill here, Clyo and Rochelle, and give a clever comedy turn. Antics of an Actor; Bob Sloan is a smart comedian; the Five Devlins dance neatly; Bros. Brooks contribute a good comedy turn; Dennison and Clingan are comedians of much ability; and the Sisters Brand, James Perston, Charles Howarth, Joe Morley, and Kate Pryce also provide enjoyable items.

MIDDLESEX ANNIVERSARY.

Mr. J. L. Graydon celebrated in fitting fashion the 246th anniversary of the Middlesex Music Hall on Thursday evening, when the historic place of amusement in Drury-lane was packed well-nigh to its utmost capacity. In fact, it was difficult to move among the gay throng that filled the decorated and flower-scented saloon, and among whom were to be noticed Mr. Blyth-Pratt, Mr. Laurie Graydon, Mr. E. E. Lockwood, Mr. Jesse Sparrow, Mr. Tom Pacey, Mr. E. Edelsten, Mr. Walter De Frece, Mr. Jack De Frece, Mr. A. Simmonds, Mr. Tom Claxton, Mr. Ernest De Vere, Mr. Will Oliver, Mr. Harry Hart, Mr. Harry Day, Mr. C. F. Reed, Mr. Walter Gibbons, Mr. Amery Parkes, Mr. Jack Somers, Mr. Manuel Warner, Mr. Fred Yates, Mr. Will Collins, Mr. George Parry, Mr. Ernest Aplin, and Mr. Edgar Granville.

In an interval between the turns Mr. Graydon stepped before the footlights, and after a very enthusiastic reception by the crowded house, made a brief speech. He thanked them for their support for many years past, and hoped it would continue. Since he had last appeared before them on an anniversary night he had been convicted and fined for furnishing them with a class of entertainment that they wanted, and that they ought to have. The worthy magistrate who decided the case was perfectly right in his decision, because all that was open to him was to administer the law, and that was merely his duty. He (the speaker) thought that it was mean conduct on the part of theatrical managers that they should take advantage of an Act which was in itself bad law. There was room for all classes of entertainment, and a live and let live policy should be followed.

There was plenty of variety and quality and quantity in the programme. It was confidently anticipated that Miss Marie Lloyd would turn up, especially as her mother and Miss Rosie Lloyd were present, but late in the evening Miss Lloyd caused a telephone message to be sent from the Tivoli to the effect that in consequence of a bad cold she was only able to sing one song there, and would be unable to perform at the Middlesex. Under the stage management of Mr. Charles Chapman, assisted by Messrs. E. J. Macdermott and Sam Hart, a capital "show" was given, a great deal of interest centering around the turn of Eugénie Fougère, who danced and sang in the most vivacious style. Another performance worthy of special note was that of Mrs. Sims Reeves, who sang "Come into the garden, Maud," with variations, her work being voted most attractive.

The following list of names gives the order in which the artists appeared:—Dale and Vale, Gicardo, Mark Tapley, Vere and Royal, Harry Desmond, Cissie Cross, Horace Sado, Eddie Comet, the Bollingers, Charles Harvey, Rose Hamilton, Sisters Chester, Frank Cumminger, Irene Maldon, Phene and Phene, Michael Nolan, Dan Filmer, Abdullah Arabs, California Girls, Salvani, Charles Norton, the Pasqualis, Nipper Lane, Marie Kendall, John E. Coyle, Miss Myer, Hal Forde, Bink's Blunder, sketch, Ernest Shand, Harry Anderson, Gus Elen, Frazer and Mac, Twin Andersons, Sam Mayo, Eight Sunrays, Jordan and Harvey, Cissie Lupino, Florrie Gallimore, Bessie Benson, Mrs. Sims Reeves, Lilly Burnand, Two Dixons, Amy Elvira, Tom Dunmore, Fred Earle, Mme. Fougère, Kitty Clover and Co. in sketch, Nat Phillips, Ruby Holly, Bioscope pictures, and George M. Marriott and Co. in Oliver Twist.

ALBERT CHEVALIER IN NEW YORK.

Mr. Albert Chevalier and Mme. Yvette Guilbert appeared at Carnegie Hall on the 13st inst., their joint engagement in the metropolis being disposed of in less than twelve hours, in which space of time they gave a matinée and an evening recital, and then "jumped," as the Americans say, to Detroit, Michigan, which is about 750 miles from New York, and is, therefore, in a literal sense, pretty good "jumping." But Mr. Chevalier and Mme. Guilbert have to cover a good deal of ground during their six weeks' tour of the principal cities of America, so their engagement in the Empire City was merely an incidental—a "one-night stand," so to speak. Forty cities are to be visited in forty-two days, which means that these distinguished artists will travel over twenty-three thousand miles.

"Is it not terrible?" Mme. Guilbert exclaimed, when she arrived in New York. "Mr. Tyler is such an enthusiastic person that he does not intend to let us sleep much. It will be to sing, and then to travel, and then to sing again. How we shall like it is something that remains to be seen." But if Mme. Guilbert receives such an enthusiastic welcome everywhere as she found in New York, she will probably decide that "the strenuous life" of this Continent has its compensations. Travelling in America can have no terrors for Chevalier. He has been over the ground before, this being his third trip to Uncle Sam's dominions, and an artist who receives an ovation when he makes his appearance, and hears a vast audience clamouring for old songs that he sang many years ago, can afford to laugh at the inconveniences of long "jumps."

At Carnegie Hall Mme. Guilbert sang four old French songs and four modern ones, the best of the latter being a grim conceit of the Paris slums called "Ma Tête." But she pleased the audience most with her three English songs, entitled "The Keys of Heaven," "The Bargain," and "The dumb wife cured." Chevalier sang no less than ten songs, including several new ones, but it was plain to see that the old familiar numbers in his répertoire were the favourites, and there is no doubt they always will be. "The Future Mrs. 'Awkins" and "My Old Dutch" are listed among "the songs that never grow old." The stillness and sympathetic attention of a New York audience when Chevalier sings "My Old Dutch" is something that, once witnessed, can never be forgotten. This was remarked by the writer in 1896, when Chevalier made his American début at Koster and Bial's Music Hall, and it is as true now as it was ten years ago.

The Shuberts have opened a new theatre in Kansas City, U.S.A., as a memorial to the late Sam S. Shubert, who was fatally injured in a railway accident last year whilst he was travelling to Kansas City to negotiate for the erection of this house. It is the fifty-second theatre controlled by the Shubert "combination."

The nomenclature of the stage, if nothing else, will be enriched by the forthcoming production of a "musical absurdetta," entitled A Simple Sweep, which will be performed at the Scala Theatre on Nov. 9 and 10, in conjunction with a fantastic opera called The Minstrel. Both operas are composed by the Reverend Father Downes, the first being written by F. W. Broughton, and the second by J. Arthur Bleackley. The performances, which will be given in aid of the Little Sisters of the Poor, will be under the patronage of the Princess of Monaco and Princess Lowenstein.

STAGE STAFF GOSSIP.

Among those who have already consented to be patrons of the stage employees' annual concert and sent donations are: Her Grace the Duchess of Leeds, the Hon. W. F. D. Smith, M.P., Miss Irene Vanbrugh (£1 1s.), Mr. Dion Boucicault (£1 1s.), Miss Lilian Braithwaite, Miss Mary Moore, Miss Jessie Bateman, Miss Genevieve Ward, Miss Constance Collier, Sir Edward Moss, Mr. Charles Frohman, Mr. Frank Curzon (£1 1s.), Mr. Alfred Sutro (£1 1s.), Mr. Sidney Jones (£1 1s.), Mr. A. W. Pinero (£2 2s.), Mr. Seymour Hicks, and Mr. Frank Glenister. Six boxes have already been applied for.

It should be borne in mind that the donations sent to the concert funds will be handed over to the "National Benevolent Fund" which is being formed for the benefit of theatrical employees—men and women, irrespective of whether they are members of any society—and also that applicants for assistance from that fund must obtain a letter from a subscriber or from the committee of one of the theatrical or music-hall societies. This fund is being established with the view of assisting those sections of theatrical employees who are not eligible to join any of the existing societies.

A general meeting of the members of the Carpenters' Branch, N.A.T.E., will be held on Sunday evening at 8 o'clock in the Salisbury Hotel, St. Martin's-lane.

A meeting of day men employed in the various stage departments of the West End theatres and music halls will be held on Sunday evening at 8 o'clock in the Nag's Head Hotel, Floral-street, Covent Garden, to consider the question of forming a branch of the National Association.

At a meeting of music hall artists held in Barrow-in-Furness, reference was made to "threatened antagonism of stage hands" to the No Tipping" rule.

A meeting will be held on Sunday morning at eleven o'clock in Prebend-square, Packington-street, Islington, for the purpose of discussing the conditions of employment under the new system at the Grand Theatre, Islington.

A pleasing little function took place in the property room of the Theatre Royal, Dublin, at the conclusion of the matinée of Mr. Arthur Bourchier's company with The Walls of Jericho on Saturday. Mr. Charles King, the property-master of the company, was presented with a Kapp and Peterson's pipe by Mr. Jos. Rankin, on behalf of the property staff, as a token of esteem. Mr. King expressed his appreciation of the pleasant surprise. Mr. Rankin also presented a carved shamrock briar pipe to Mr. King's able assistant, George.

Many of our readers will hear with regret of the death of William Deboa, the genial hall-keeper of the Royal Opera House, Leicester, under Col. Winstanley, and an old friend of the profession. The employees—past and present—of this theatre offer a mark of respect to their old friend and express their keen regret at his loss.

"THE DEVIL'S SUNDAY."

An Episode, in One Scene, produced at Tottenham Palace, on Monday Oct. 22.

Fay Faber ..... Miss Cissie Lawson
David Faber ..... Mr. Arthur Royston
The Caretaker .. .. Mr. J. S. Boom

Short, sharp, incisive, charged to the full with the electricity of passion, The Devil's Sunday is a striking and distinctly interesting piece of work. Playing little more than twenty minutes, the sketch contains subject matter sufficient to form the framework of a three-act drama. It is well constructed, and is written in strong, forceful dialogue, commendably free from the affectation of "smartness," yet always to the point.

The scene is laid in a flat in Grangecourt Mansions, South Kensington—a pretty and realistic set—and it is soon discovered that Mrs. Faber has escaped the unpleasant surroundings of her husband's incarceration in Exeter Gaol on a charge of forgery, and determines to have a good time in town by herself. She is particularly pleased that David has been unable to find bail, so the coast is left clear for her to enjoy herself in the manner most agreeable to her temperament. This takes the form of arranging to receive a visit from her friend Lord Harrington. After sending off a telegram to her husband expressing her regret that he cannot find bail, and telephoning to a caterer to supply a dinner for two, she retires to change her dress. Then David Faber appears on the scene. He has unexpectedly found bail, and has at once come up to London to spend the time with his wife. When, however, he finds a telegram from Lord Harrington couched in unmistakable terms, the true light breaks in on him, and he discovers that Fay has prepared for herself a regular "Devil's Sabbath." Mrs. Faber, knowing someone is in the drawing-room, and believing it to be the man she is expecting, comes gaily in to rush into his arms, when she finds herself confronted by her husband. Casting her false blandishments to the winds, David Faber utters the most scathing and terrible indictment. She is alternately frightened and defiant. Finally, goaded to extremity, she tells him she hates him, and would not be reconciled to him for worlds. She simply glories in the fact that she was preparing evidence against him in his forthcoming trial. This is the last straw. Faber, now mad with rage, seizes the cynical, heartless creature he once loved, and strangles the life out of her. Then he finds a pistol in her desk, and, kneeling down, points the lethal weapon towards the door, waiting to "pot" the gentleman who is coming to dinner.

Among all the effective parts Miss Cissie Lawson has played in her time, Fay Faber must rank as one of the most striking. The nervous tension imposed upon a woman who may not be inherently vicious, but who simply craves for admiration and unholy "sympathy," is soon made evident in the partly-suppressed "jerkiness" of manner and the haunted look on her face. The cold cynicism of the woman is admirably expressed, and her facial play when, seated on the couch, she listens impatiently to her husband's scathing denunciation is a revelation of the inward working of the guilty soul. Miss Cissie Lawson's Fay Faber is an impersonation to be seen and remembered. Mr. Arthur Royston throws a great deal of power into his impersonation of the husband, who, if his deeds have brought him within the clutch of the law, is at least a man who will resent to the death any infringement of the ethical laws that ought to govern the married state. Mr. Royston's denunciation of his wife, when he seems to expose the inmost recesses of her heart, is very fine indeed, and well deserves the volley of applause with which it is received. Mr. John Lawson produced the sketch, which on Monday evening was received with every sign of approval.

The grand shooting competition at the rifle range at the Crystal Palace will take place on Wednesday, Nov. 27, from 3 until 5 p.m. and from 8 to 9.30 p.m., and continue on the following days until the finish of the competition. The first prize is valued at £7 7s. and the second prize at £5 5s. Entries for the competition, the entrance fee for which is 2s., close on Nov. 5. Targets used will be ⅔ths of an inch bull's-eye and ⅘ths at 25 yards range, and special facilities are available for competitors to practise at the range.

"WHEN THE CLOCK WENT WRONG."

A Farcical Sketch, by E. C. Matthews, produced at the Royal Standard Music Hall on Monday, Oct. 22.

The Husband ..... Mr. Vernon Cowper
The Wife ..... Miss Wildenburg
The Servant ..... Miss E. C. Matthews
The Jew ..... Mr. John Laking

Mr. E. C. Matthews is a prolific writer of music-hall sketches, and the work under review bids fair to become as popular as some of his previous successes. When the Clock Went Wrong is a laughable trifle as played by Mr. Vernon Cowper and his company. A servant breaks a clock, and the services of a Jew are sought to repair it. The clock is referred to as "she" by the good people in the household, and the same curious fad which endows the article with a gender is also responsible for another clock being honoured with the personal pronoun "he." The master and mistress of the house have a little tiff, and subsequently the wife is missing. The husband, seeing his old Irish servant in an agitated state of mind, presumably over the breakage, enquires "Where is she?" referring to his better half. The servant, much concerned about the clock, fancies that it is to that useful ornament that his master refers, and he tells him that "she" has gone away with a Jew, who is going to keep her for a week. Of course the rest may be imagined. The husband is terribly perturbed on the subject of the temporary absence of his wife, and there is an angry scene when she finally returns and is asked to explain, &c., &c. The character of the enraged husband, who can scarcely be complimented on his powers of divination, is played in forcible style by Mr. Vernon Cowper, while the part of the wife receives adequate treatment from Miss Wildenburg. From Mr. E. C. Matthews as the Irish servant we get a delightful character-sketch, amusing in its various aspects; and Mr. John Laking creditably acquits himself in the rôle of the Jew.

"Pelleas and Melisande" is to be given under distinguished patronage at the Royalty Theatre on Thursday evening, Nov. 1, and the following afternoon, in aid of the London Hospital. The Melisande is to be Lady Vivian, and the Pelleas Mr. Frank Lascelles, and the company will also include Mr. Hermann Vezin, Mr. Graeme Campbell, Master Philip Tonge, and Mrs. Theodore Wright. The costumes and scenery are being lent by Mrs. Patrick Campbell, by whose permission the play is given. Maeterlinck's play, if we remember rightly, has not been seen in London since its performance by Mrs. Campbell and Mme. Sarah Bernhardt at the Vaudeville in the July of 1904.

The Dulwich Philharmonic Society will give a concert on Saturday evening, Nov. 3, at the Crystal Palace. Coleridge-Taylor's "Hiawatha" will be performed, and the "Old Sea Chanties" of Mr. John Bradford and Mr. Arthur Fagge will also be heard. The artists will be Mme. Conly, Mr. Joseph Reed, and Mr. Julien Henry. Mr. Arthur Fagge will conduct. A special late train will leave the Crystal Palace Low-Level Station at 10.45 p.m., calling at nearly all stations to London Bridge. A train will also leave Peckham Rye at 6.40 p.m. for the Palace.

A "CURRENT" COINCIDENCE.

Sir,—I notice in your last issue an announcement that Mr. Hannan is producing a farce called The Electric Man. I, too, am producing shortly a new farce, entiled The Electric Girl, which I completed last February. I mention this merely to prevent any misconception of plagiarism.—Yours sincerely, FREDK. JARMAN.

Mr. Matthew Brodie is delighted with his reception in the halls, both before and behind the curtain. At the Olympia, Liverpool, where he has been playing The Drummer of the 76th, by Louis Cohen, "the audience," he says, "is equal in refinement and intelligence to any West End London theatre. ANSWERS TO CORRESPONDENTS.

A. WILLIAMS.—(1) The cast of Unmasked, produced at the Pavilion Theatre on Nov. 13, 1875, was as follows: Richard Marwood, Mr. F. Tyars; Jabez North, Mr. J. B. Howe; Augustus Darley, Mr. F. Thomas; Jinks, Mr. Arthur Williams; Peter Dawkins, Mr. T. Morrison; Mrs. North, Miss Jenny Grainger; Mrs. Marwood, Miss Harriett Clifton; Miss M. Foster as a waitress; Miss Lottie Reynolds and Mr. Henry Lynn were also in the cast. (2) Slow and Sure, produced on Aug. 23, 1876: James Sibley, Mr. C. T. Burleigh; Chas. Stedman, Mr. F. Thomas; Lionel Chester, Mr. F. Tyars; Edna Lewis, Miss Jenny Grainger; Walter Larkley, Mr. A. Williams; railway porter, Mr. Lynn; Alice, Miss H. Clifton; Mrs. Lewis, Mrs. Murray; Jane Mason, Miss M. Foster; Mr. Morrison and the Messrs. Woolf and List were also in the cast.

A. A. N.—At Cripple Creek, an American play, was first produced in this country at the Theatre Royal, Dover, on Jan. 5, 1905.

J. R.—(1) May 12, 1905. (2) Yes.

T. SIMPSON.—Our advice is not to attempt to enter a much overworked profession, in which the prizes are few and the blanks many. If, however, you are quite decided on the matter, your best course is to join an amateur dramatic society or obtain lessons from a qualified instructor.

THESPIS II.—The Duke's Motto was first played at the Lyceum on Jan. 10, 1863, and was revived at the theatre in March, 1867, the leading male part being on both occasions sustained by Chas. Fechter. Henry Irving did not appear at the Lyceum until Sept., 1871, when he represented Landry in a piece called Fanchette.

GEORGE BASTARD, SEN.—Your letter has been handed to the Secretary of the National Association of Theatrical Employees, 29, Wellington-street, Strand.

ELSIE PELHAM.—Arrived too late for insertion in this week's birthday list.

C.W.—At the clog-dancing contest, held at the Hippodrome, Accrington, on Oct. 6 last, the judges awarded the belt to W. Brennan, of Uddington, Glasgow, and gold medal to Geo. Mackintosh, of Motherwell.

COMEDIA.—(1) The usual course is to forward the piece, type-written, to the theatre managers who produce that particular class of play. (2) It all depends on the reputation of the author and other circumstances.

FRANK PERKINS.—We cannot say. Watch the announcements in our Gossip columns.

E. BROOKES.—(1) No. (2) It is against our rule to recommend anyone; and we know nothing of the gentleman mentioned.

PALETTE.—In the spring of 1662 Sir William d'Avenant erected a new playhouse in Lincoln's Inn Fields, and opened it with the first part of The Siege of Rhodes. In the same year he produced the second part of The Siege of Rhodes and his comedy called The Wits. "These plays," according to an actor named Downes, who himself appeared in The Siege of Rhodes, "having new scenes and decorations, being the first that ever were introduced in England." Scenes had certainly been used before in the Masques at Court and by d'Avenant himself in attempts at theatrical entertainments before the death of Cromwell. Downes no doubt meant the first scenes ever exhibited in a regular drama in a public theatre. This information sufficiently answers your inquiry.

"JUDGED by the interest taken in him and his work, Mr. Hall Caine," says the Pall Mall Gazette, "is, at this moment, the most popular dramatist in England. And when we add that he was an intimate friend of Dante Gabriel Rossetti, and that, thirty years ago, when he was little more than a stripling, he wrote a pamphlet on Henry Irving's Hamlet, in Liverpool, so brilliant in technique and lofty in idea that it aroused attention far beyond the Lancashire city, that position seems the most natural thing in the world. But in spite of all the public applause and glory and worldly gain, one seldom sees Mr. Hall Caine's name coupled with those of our leading dramatists; the majority of responsible critics do not seem to take his work very seriously; and the general opinion of thoughtful men and women appears to be that his plays are to be judged by the estimated requirements of the melodrama-loving public rather than by any high standard of dramatic writing. In the early summer of last year Mr. Caine was contemplating, with the permission of the directors of Drury Lane Theatre, the production at that theatre of a series of the great dramas to be found in the mighty Saga literature of Scandinavia. The idea has not so far been fulfilled, and was probably more splendid than practicable. But England has its Sagas as well as Norway—old stories charged with immortal life, and capable in his hands of being converted into plays that would elevate the theatre, the public, and himself. Might he not turn his attention to them?"

AT a meeting recently convened by the Mayor of Chester to consider an offer made by the English Drama Society to give representations of the Chester Mystery Plays of the fourteenth century, a resolution was ultimately passed, "expressing the desirability of reviving the plays," and leaving arrangements to a committee. "We know these plays of the Nativity group," says the Pall Mall Gazette, "We have not forgotten the inept absurdity for which Mr. Housman made himself responsible under the title of Bethlehem, and we should like 'ethically and with regard to all due interests,' to associate ourselves very strongly with the protest of the Dean of Chester and the caveat of the Bishop. Admitting fully the reverent intention of players, and scene-shifters, and limelight men, and all the rest, we are quite unable to agree that such performances can be other than offensive. There are some, of course, who see 'no offence i' the world,' but most will, we fancy, be found on our side. We do not forget the legitimate success of Everyman and its impressiveness. But exceptions do prove rules. We still hope the Chester project may be dropped."

THE DRAMA AND THE REVOLUTION.

The production of Les Merveilleuses at Daly's Theatre this evening revives the interest—never long-slumbering—which is created by everything connected with the French Revolutionary period. As CARLYLE remarks, even while the September massacres were going on, twenty-three theatres were giving performances in Paris; and the French stage was prominent during the Revolution in many ways. Several of the leaders in the stirring events of the time had been actors or dramatists. BILLAUD-VARENNES, one of the most relentless advocates of the system of terror, was a playwright, and left Rochelle, where he was born, at twenty-three, from the vexation caused by a piece of his composition having been hissed. COLLOT D'HERBOIS, another prominent Conventional, appeared on the stage at Lyons. It is stated that, having often been "boo-ed" by the public of that place, he vowed against it a vengeance which he glutted exorbitantly when he was sent as Commissioner to quell the Royalist rising at Lyons in 1793. FABRE D'EGLANTINE, who went to the guillotine in the same tumbril with DANTON, was the author of some meritorious plays. Overhearing him emit a groan, DANTON asked him what was the matter; to which FABRE replied, "I have just remembered that I left at home a capital comedy which I finished just before I was arrested. The police will seize my effects, and someone is sure to steal the piece, and get all the credit for it." The great French actor TALMA lived through the Revolutionary period, and it was to his house that MARAT came uninvited, to cross-question the Republican General DUMOURIEZ as to certain military executions. It was TALMA who stepped forward and asked MARAT by what right he came there unasked. The trial of LOUIS XVI. led to "scenes" at the Théâtre de la Nation, when a comedy in five acts and in verse by M. LAYA was performed for the first time. It was a remarkably bold attack on the Revolutionary party, ROBESPIERRE, PETION, and MARAT being depicted under thinly-veiled disguises. The piece, though in itself a poor affair, was enthusiastically received by a Royalist audience, and the Council-General issued an order suspending the performances. When the order was posted on the walls of the playhouse the audience had already taken their seats. The MAYOR of Paris drove up in his carriage, and, from a private box, explained the reasons why the Municipality had stopped the performance. His voice was drowned by cries of "The play! The play!" FLEURY, the leading actor, stepped forward, and asked the audience to accept another drama in place of The Friend of Law. The house objected. SANTERRE, the Commander of the Parisian National Guard, arrived with his soldiers, and tried to address the audience, but was hooted down. A hundred and fifty Jacobins, armed with swords, guns, and pistols, rushed into the theatre, and declared that The Friend of Law should not be given. The author having sent a deputation to the Convention, it returned with a decree stating that the Municipal body had no authority to censure a play. The piece was then given, all the best lines being taken up by those present with delighted applause. The author and the principals were called, amidst a scene of great effervescence. The management, however, feeling probably that they had gone too far, put off a repetition of the play for a day or two, and in the interval the Council-General issued another decree stopping the performances. SANTERRE and his forces again put in an appearance; but the audience demanded that The Friend of Law should be read from the stage. This was done by a young man, who was afterwards carried through the corridors on the shoulders of the playgoers. In eight months all the actors who had appeared in the play, and all the other members of the company, were arrested. COLLOT D'HERBOIS said: "The head of the company will be executed and the rest transported," and against the name of Mademoiselle RAUCOURT he placed in red a "G," meaning "to be guillotined." Thanks to the devotion of CHARLES DE LABUSSIERE, formerly an actor, and then employed in the offices of the Committee of Public Safety, who destroyed the documents relating to the artists, they escaped the Revolutionary Tribunal, and were set free in Thermidor after the fall of ROBESPIERRE.

Another piece, La Chaste Suzanne, which had no real political tendency, was made offensive to the Convention after the execution of the King by the meaning attached by the audience to certain lines. The chief of the tribunal which was trying Susanna, when the two elders took seats on the bench, rose and said:

"You are her accusers; you cannot be her judges."

This was very similar to a phrase in the speech of LOUIS'S counsel, DESEZE. When Susanna was being led to execution, Daniel stepped forward and cried, "Judge Azarias, I am innocent of the death of this woman!" The audience received the line with frantic and significant applause. On the day after the production a number of members of the Society of Defenders of the Republic were in the house, protested furiously against the applause, and invaded the stage in their efforts to get at the manager, who, however, escaped their fury. The actor who played Azarias presented a petition to the Council-General complaining of the disturbance; but that body dismissed it as "contemptible," and the manager, under pressure, was obliged to withdraw the play. Shortly afterwards, as a hawker was selling copies of it in the Palais Royal, some members of the society tore the books from him, and murdered him on the spot. The authors of the piece, who were good patriots, having "cut" everything that could possibly be misconstrued, submitted the revised work to the Defenders of the Republic, with whose permission it was again presented, this time at the Paris Vaudeville. In the first row of the balcony sat four grave and reverend Jacobins, solemnly watching to see if all the objectionable lines had been excised. As it was, the collaborators were arrested a few weeks later, and only regained liberty—and perhaps saved their heads—by producing a vaudeville called Le Retour, full of the most ardent patriotism. One of the results of the reign of Equality was that the Municipality suppressed private boxes, for which, indeed, no occupants could be found. The place of the boxes was taken by promenades, in which smoking was permitted. The old-fashioned paperings were replaced by others of tricolour, and busts of MARAT and other popular people ornamented the galleries. The Municipality, in further pursuit of patriotism, covered the beautiful painted ceilings of RAMEAU and other artists with broad stripes of the national hues; and in the middle of the curtain was usually painted a picture of Nature, Reason, or Liberty. The innovation of dividing the curtain into two, and drawing them apart and upwards, instead of lowering the whole, was first introduced at the Théâtre Molière in, or just after, the Reign of Terror. But the Revolutionary period proper was a bad time for theatres, chiefly for the reason that nobody had any money. With the revival of luxury under the Directorate, things looked up a little; and they were better still under the Consulate and the Empire. NAPOLEON was a friend of TALMA, and a lover of the drama; and amongst the few poetical compositions from his pen are some verses which he wrote to a leading actress who was playing in Dido at Toulon, where NAPOLEON was on service.

THE attractions of the fine programme at the Oxford will be augmented on Monday by Miss Marie Lloyd, Brown, Le Clerq and Co., Ernest Shand, and the Stella Troupe.

OWING to the nightly demand on the seating accommodation at the Palace (late Theatre Royal), Gloucester, Messrs. C. W. and J. R. Poole are contemplating a rearrangement of the seating in order to economise space, as the two houses are nightly filled to overflowing.

HAVING considered drawings showing alterations proposed to be made to the seating at the London Pavilion Music Hall, Piccadilly, and works which have been executed in the pit saloon and basement of the premises, the Committee of the London County Council on the 16th inst. recommended that Messrs. Wylson and Long be informed that the Council has no objection to the arrangements shown on the two drawings submitted by them.

THE Palace Theatre, Belfast, will be occupied on the 19th prox. by the Carl Rosa Opera Company; then Miss Winifred Emery will appear as Olivia, followed by what must be considered one of the events of the season, in the appearance of Mr. Martin Harvey. Following Mr. Harvey's engagement, the Palace will resume variety; but the Christmas pantomime will be produced there instead of at the Theatre Royal, Belfast.

SKETCHES AT THE HALLS.

Mr. John L. Graydon, of the Middlesex, was summoned at Bow-street on Tuesday for producing a stage play on six days during the week commencing Sept. 10.

Mr. Bodkin (instructed by Mr. Hedderwick) appeared on behalf of the Theatrical Managers' Association in support of the summons; Mr. Walter Payne (instructed by Mr. Philip Rutland, J.P.) defended.

Mr. Bodkin explained that the piece to which objection was taken was entitled The Sorceress, and its performance at the Middlesex occupied about thirty-three minutes. It would seem that the proprietors of some music halls thought it better to have stage plays and pay fines than to comply with the law, but, of course, this was a state of things that could not be tolerated. No doubt it would be said that the Theatrical Managers' Association were trade rivals, but it was submitted on their behalf that managers and proprietors of theatres were placed at a great disadvantage by the production of stage plays at music halls. Theatres, it must be remembered, were under restrictions which did not apply to music halls. The Theatrical Managers' Association had no wish to take up a harsh or uncompromising attitude, and an understanding had been come to with a large number of music hall proprietors in London and the provinces, who had agreed to keep their sketches within certain limits. Certain gentlemen, like Mr. Graydon, however, would not fall in with that arrangement, and prosecutions like the present would have to go on until they were led, as the result of sharp experience, to reconsider their position.

It having been intimated that the facts were not disputed, no evidence was called.

Mr. Payne, in addressing the magistrate, stated that his client had been proprietor of the Middlesex since 1878, and this was the first complaint that had been made against him during the whole of that time. The persons now complaining were trade rivals, who took these proceedings for their own benefit, and not for the good of the community. The agreement which had been referred to was acceptable to the owners of large halls where expensive ballets could be run, but it did not suit the proprietors of small houses. This case was an attempt on the part of the Theatrical Managers' Association to coerce the defendant into signing an agreement of which he disapproved, although he was willing to agree to anything reasonable. It was all very well to say that the theatres were subject to restrictions which did not affect the music halls, but it was also the fact that no new music hall was now licensed by the County Council unless the proprietor agreed not to sell intoxicating liquor.

The Magistrate: What about new theatres?

Mr. Bodkin: They get a licence from the Lord Chamberlain, which carries a right to sell liquor, but not in the auditorium.

Mr. Payne repeated his expression of opinion that the agreement was harsh and unfair, if not iniquitous, and said he hoped the magistrate would not encourage these prosecutions by inflicting a large fine.

Mr. Marsham inquired whether the Middlesex was a small hall.

Mr. Bodkin said he saw that 2d. was charged for a programme, which contained advertisements of various brands of champagne. Apparently that was the standard of liquor consumed in the hall. (Laughter.)

Mr. Payne: You can have a seat in a box for half-a-crown.

The Magistrate: It is smaller than the Tivoli?

Mr. Bodkin: Oh, yes; but since the Tivoli prosecution there have been ten or twelve cases and two appeals to Quarter Sessions, when the opinion was expressed that the penalty should be £5 a day.

Mr. Payne: That was the Oxford.

Mr. Bodkin: The other was the Metropolitan, which is very much the same kind of hall as the Middlesex.

The magistrate said he saw no reason why persons whose rights were interfered with should not take steps to enforce those rights. He thought it did interfere considerably with theatrical managers if stage plays were performed at music halls, and he did not consider that any blame could attach to the Theatrical Managers' Association if they took proceedings. He did not think it was a case for a nominal penalty, and he ordered the defendant to pay fines amounting to £30.

The Metropolitan Theatre of Varieties, Ltd., of 267 and 269, Edgware-road, was summoned before Mr. Kennedy, at Marylebone, on Wednesday, at the instance of the Theatrical Managers' Association, for keeping the music hall for the public performance of a stage-play called Nana, without the authority of letters patent or the licence of the Lord Chamberlain. Mr. A. H. Bodkin, instructed by Mr. Hedderwick, prosecuted; Mr. Walter Payne, instructed by Mr. Philip Rutland, the solictior to the London Entertainments Association, defended.

Mr. Bodkin reminded the Court of the many previous prosecutions that had taken place in regard to the production of stage-plays at music-halls, and remarked that some of the music-hall proprietors evidently found it a great deal more profitable to continue the stage-plays and pay the fines imposed for so doing than to obey the law. This, he said, was a very unsatisfactory state of affairs. The piece complained of was an undoubted drama, containing three scenes and six speaking parts, and was produced by what was called the Adderley Howard company, occupying thirty-five minutes. The defendant company admitted that it was a stage-play, and after withdrawing it they introduced in its place another stage-play, entitled Moses and Son, which was the subject of prosecution only a few weeks before. Some of the music-hall proprietors, added counsel, had entered into an agreement with the Theatrical Managers' Association to confine these plays within certain limits, but the defendant company refused to do so.

Mr. Payne pointed out in extenuation that the only persons who objected were trade rivals. The agreement referred to, he said, was an attempt on the part of the theatrical managers to define the terms upon which the music-hall managers should break the law, but the defendant company refused to sign it, one reason being that it gave the theatrical managers power to get an injunction in the High Court to restrain the music-hall managers from breaking the law, and have them committed to prison in default.

Mr. Kennedy said he had nothing to do with any agreement. There had been a deliberate infringement of a well-known law, and he therefore imposed the maximum penalty of £20 for each offence, amounting in all to £120, with costs.

MR. GRAYDON ON THE SKETCH TROUBLE.

Mr. J. L. Graydon, in conversation with The Era interviewer after the decision of the magistrate had been made known in his case, strongly resented Mr. Marsham's remark to the effect that he (the learned magistrate) did not see why persons whose rights were interfered with should not take proceedings to enforce those rights. "If stage plays," continued Mr. Marsham, "are produced at places not licensed for the purpose, there is no reason why the Theatrical Managers' Association should not take action." Mr. Graydon considers that this statement savours of partiality. "It is as good as saying," he remarked, "that the theatrical managers have more right to enforce the law than anybody else."

So far as the agreement which the Theatrical Managers' Association drafted, and which several of the music hall proprietors have already signed, Mr. Graydon informs us that he is perfectly willing to agree to all the conditions which were arranged between the two associations, but he complains that since this agreement was come to the theatrical managers have added an additional clause, which is to the effect that in the event of any breach of the agreement on the part of a music hall manager, that manager, by virtue of his having affixed his signature to the agreement, is compelled to submit to an injunction without having the satisfaction of opposing it, and, in addition, he is liable to pay damages.

"The terms we agreed upon some time ago," Mr. Graydon goes on to say, "were, to put the case briefly, that a sketch should not last longer than thirty minutes, that six principals should be allowed, and as many supernumeraries as we liked. Those conditions I am perfectly willing to abide by; but I do not feel justified in signing away my freedom to the extent indicated by the clause which I have indicated, and to which I take the strongest objection. As to the Act under which we are being prosecuted, let me say that on its introduction into law it was never intended to create a monopoly for any one class of interest or any one branch of the profession. It was merely put into force for the purpose of preserving order and decency in places of public entertainment and to prevent plays being performed except under the control of some authority."

COPYRIGHT CONVICTIONS.

At North London, Harry Feinstein, twenty-eight, a British subject, with no fixed abode, was charged with exposing and offering for sale 113 copies of pirated music. He pleaded guilty.

Police-sergeant 62 N said that at seven o'clock on Tuesday night the prisoner called at his house in Ayrsome-road, Stoke Newington, and offered for sale some copies of music, which he (witness) knew to be protected. He consequently took him into custody.

Prisoner now said he had always sold good copies, but he happened to get this lot cheap.

Mr. Fordham: All you dealers or hawkers in pirated music have known for years that it was a wrong thing to do. Now there is, fortunately, an Act of Parliament passed to deal with you if you persist in this form of dishonesty.

Prisoner: I did not know it.

Mr. Fordham: That may or may not be so; but there has been so much stir about the matter that probably no one, especially you people, has not heard of it. This is practically trading in other people's brains. A man writes a piece of music, and if it can be turned to account in this way he gets very little out of it. You will pay £5 or go to gaol for a month.

Last week the Sheffield police apprehended three men who were selling music in the centre of the town, and Mr. Arthur Preston, of the Music Publishers' Association, London, attended before the Stipendiary to prove that the copies seized were all infringements of copyright. He had no light task. Although the songs seized were practically the same in all three cases, the magistrates insisted on examining separately the Stationers' Hall certificate of copyright of each song in each case. As there were fifty-one copies in the first case, seventy-one in the second, and eighty-one in the third, this proceeding occupied considerable time.

Philip Poulson, the first defendant to appear, was the only one to offer any defence. He said he had not had any pirated music of his own since last November, but had been selling flowers. On the day of his apprehension business was very bad. As he was walking up High-street, a man asked him to "hold" some music while he went to tea. Desiring to earn a shilling if he could, he did so.

The Stipendiary asked who the other man was, but Poulson would not say.

He was fined 5s., and the music was ordered to be destroyed.

William Turner and William Watts lost their music, and had to pay 7s. 6d. each.

"OLIVER TWIST" AT THE EUSTON.

Little Oliver Twist in the course of his travels has arrived at the Euston, at which hall a version of the famous novel from the pen of Charles Dickens is being played by Mr. Rollo Balmain and his excellent company. The sketch is in three scenes; the first representing the abode of Fagin, who gives a lesson in pocket-picking to his promising pupils, Charley Bates and the Artful Dodger, Hither is brought poor little Oliver, whose piteous plight arouses the womanly interest and sympathy of Nancy The boy escapes, but Nancy yielding to the brutal Bill Sikes, induces him to accompany her to Fagin's den. In the second scene—a rural one—the Jew learns by watching Nancy that she is in communication with Mr. Brownlow, and forthwith he informs Sikes of his discovery. This happens in the third and last scene—the abode of the burglar. The news infuriates Sikes, and with murderous intention in his mind he arouses the sleeping Nancy. She begs piteously for mercy, but the brute does not know the meaning of the word, and he, dragging the girl into the adjoining apartment, kills her. The Jew's announcement of the arrival of the police and the renewed rage of Sikes brings the sketch to a conclusion. Mr. Rollo Balmain continues to give a realistic rendering of Fagin, the avaricious, cruel, venomous nature of the man being indicated by numerous clever artistic touches. Such a well-experienced actor as Mr. Balmain is able to bring out all the salient points of the character with certainty and skill. Miss Sara Mignon gives adequate expression to the feelings of Nancy, a compound of good and bad qualities, and whose cruel death at the hands of the burglar arouses the deep sympathy of the audience. Miss Sybil Glynne presents a pathetic picture as Oliver, and obtains a large share of the sympathetic feeling aroused by the tragedy of his young life. Excellent representatives of the Artful Dodger and Charley Bates are found in Mr. R. Augustus and Mr. A. Gilbey, while the part of Mr. Brownlow is safe in the capable hands of Mr. A. Gilbey. The sketch, it should be added, is admirably staged.

At the Euston this week, Little Tich is delighting his countless admirers with his new song, "The Park Keeper," already an assured success. Miss Victoria Monks also meets with a flattering reception; Larola is adding to his reputation as a comedy juggler. Mr. Ernest Shand's contributions, "Dearly Beloved Brethren" and "Look at the weather we're having," are much appreciated; Rex Fox does some wonderful things on the slack wire; Mr. Charles Mildare, whistler, gives close imitations of birds; Ruby and Laws, vaudeville artists, are applauded; Miss Marie Empress sings in piquant style "I'd like to see a photograph of that"; and other turns include the Lupino Brothers and Miss Rose Cabini, with a capital chorus song, "I don't want no mansion." Mr. Fred McAvoy is the popular manager, and Mr. Charles E. Wellman gives valuable assistance in front of the house.

MISS CLARA NESBITT (Mrs. Tom Vine) has now permanently taken possession of her comfortable home at Finchley, London, and wishes good health and prosperity to all her old friends. Her husband, Tom Vine, the famous topical and extempore vocalist, will continue to fulfil engagements as before, but prefers them near home.

VARIETY GOSSIP.

Miss Maisie Lloyd is to be married to-day to Mr. Alec Hurley by special licence at the registrar's office, Town Hall, Haverstock Hill, at 12.30. After the wedding a reception will be held by Mr. and Mrs. Alec Hurley at the Gaiety Restaurant at one o'clock. The bride, who has been overwhelmed with congratulations, will be due to appear at the Tivoli about 3.15 the same afternoon. We join the swelling chorus of good wishes that is being uttered by the whole of the variety profession.

Mr. Walter Gibsons was prevented from opening the Brixton Hippodrome on Monday evening, as he had intended, by a peremptory telegram sent to his private house by the Lord Chamberlain, who refused permission to allow a variety entertainment to be given at a theatre holding his license. His lordship has thrown a number of hard-working people out of work by his action; but it should determine variety managers to vigorously promote a Bill enabling every proprietor of a place of entertainment to obtain both a music and dancing and a theatrical license.

The Ealing Hippodrome, the Walthamstow Palace, the Richmond Theatre, the Croydon Palace are all run under a double license; and we hear of no violent upheaval in the world of art. The licensing question could be settled by a Bill containing a couple of clauses, the second one being necessary to do away with the Lord Chamberlain's power to forbid smoking in a theatre under his control. The manager of the house should have the sole discretionary power of deciding the question of to smoke or not to smoke.

Mr. Albert Chevalier, who is now in the States, was so much interested in the outcome of the Vanderbilt motor race that he took a car direct to the course. He used to own a Darracq car, but sold it, he says, when repeated efforts to find a driver who would run it slow enough failed. He and Mme. Yvette Guilbert are to appear in forty cities in forty days, one of the most remarkable tours ever booked in any country.

The Water Rats' matinée at the London Pavilion, always a most interesting event, is fixed this year for Monday, Nov. 19. The chief novelty of the afternoon is billed as follows:—"The Water Rats' band of players will celebrate another milestone on the Hanwell-road, uncorking a sleeping draught entitled (Cock) Robin Hood. The draught is prescribed by Wal Pink, 'musically bottled' by J. S. Baker, and dispensed by the following, who ought to know better." Little Tich may be trusted to make a fiery, untamed outlaw; and there will be a "Gentle Gertrude" air about the Maid Merry-in of Wilkie Bard. The Friar Tuck of Tom McNaughton should be a jovial soul; and the Poluski Brothers, Papa Brown, Arthur Reece, Deane Tribune, Cliff Ryland, and Fred Collins should add to the merriment of the skit. The manager of the matinée is Mr. Frank Glenister.

In the course of the proceedings at the London County Council on Tuesday, Mr. Wm. Bailey elicited from Mr. Sankey, chairman of the Parks committee, that there was no truth in a newspaper statement that the "grand dukes" of the Council intended to put music-hall artists into the open-air musical performances in the parks. It was an invention, he said, and "give a lie a start, and it will take a long while to catch it."

Mr. and Mrs. John Nathan celebrated their silver wedding on Monday evening at the King's Rooms of the Holborn Restaurant, and a very enjoyable evening was spent. Among the guests present to congratulate the happy pair were Miss Marie Lloyd, Miss Rosie Lloyd, Mr. J. L. Graydon, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Griffiths, Mr. Albert Gilmer, Mr. Joseph Wilson, Mr. Alec Hurley, Mr. James Howell, Mr. Claude Warner, Mr. Mervyn Dene, Mr. John Nanson, Mr. Sam Walsh, Mr. Fred Miller, Mr. and Mrs. Alf Knifton, and a host of others. Messrs. Will Bishop and J. Goodson officiated as M.C.'s.

Mr. John Lawson is springing another surprise upon music halls. During the coming week, at the Empire, Bristol, he will appear in no less than five different sketches. On Monday and Wednesday he will present Mr. Cecil Raleigh's The King's Minister; on Tuesday evening and at the Wednesday matinée, Mr. W. W. Jacobs' The Monkey's Paw; on Thursday, Humanity; on Friday, Sally in our Alley, with its studio sensation; and on Saturday, Mr. Todd, of London. Certainly, one cannot accuse Mr. Lawson of a lack of versatility or energy.

Miss Ada Reeve has just received an offer for a tour in America at better terms than she had in her recent South African engagement. The proposed American tour will begin about Christmas. She had intended to rest after her present tour of nine provincial music halls, but this offer is so good that she is half inclined to accept.

Messrs. Pacey and Reeves are very busy with Mr. Harry Rickards's engagements. Last week Leonie Dixon sailed; this week Chanti, the protean, departs; and next week King and Benson, the sketch artists, commence their voyage. Tom Pacey has received from Mr. Rickards a cheery letter dated Colombo, Oct. 6, in which he states that the passage so far has been an excellent one, and that he is much improved in health.

Miss Margaret Cooper, who is appearing this week at he Palace Theatre for the first time in variety, has been associated with music from earliest childhood. At the age of seven she was fairly conversant with the piano; at nine she took up the violin; and at fourteen became organist at a London church. Under Mr. R. Cummings, Miss Cooper gained the Associateship of the Royal Academy of Music, and expects shortly to be made a Fellow of that institution.

The Alhambra has had no more popular foreign artist on its stage than Mlle. Anne Dancrey, who a few years ago appeared with her brother on the English side of La Manche as The Dantes, sensational dancers. But the fair danseuse, discovering her possession of a glorious voice, became anxious to make use of it, and having studied in Paris and Rome, she appeared, in 1901, under her own name, as a solo singer, and to-day is one of the most successful vocalists on the variety stage. She is now twenty-six, and hopes before she is much older to appear at Covent Garden.

Mr. Harry Marvello, proprietor of the Harbour Green Pavilion, Portobello, has just purchased that very handsome building and grounds facing the promenade, Portobello, known as the Tower Hotel. The building is a very substantial one, and the gardens in front are most extensive. It is the intention of the new proprietor to utilize the gardens for entertainment purposes next season. The hotel until recently was fully licensed.

At the Canterbury a special matinée will be given on Saturday next, at three o'clock, when the moving pictures of the celebrated Britt-Nelson fight for the light-weight championship of the world will be shown. This fight is considered to be the finest ever contested.

A special feature of The Land Grabbers, which is to be produced at the Bow Palace by Messrs. Ward and Andrews' company of comedians, is the engagement of Mr. Ben Cunningham, who made himself notorious in connection with Triangle Camp, Plaistow. He will give his experience as an "appropriator" and tiller of the soil, and will also relate some anecdotes of prison life.

The application for a licence for the New Tivoli, Liverpool, which will be opened the first week in December, has been adjourned until the 15th of next month.

The management of Hastings Hippodrome has just been taken over by Mr. Walter Norman, who for many years was connected with the management of the Royal Standard, Pimlico. Mr. Albert Matham's resignation is much regretted by his subordinates, as he has made himself popular and respected during his residence in Hastings. Mr. Norman is a popular and prominent member of the Terriers fraternity, and takes much interest in the Music Hall Home. He is also a successful descriptive vocalist.

The committee in charge of the testimonial to Mr. Sydney Paxton, on his relinquishing the resident-managership of the Grand Theatre and district-management of the Hippodrome, Southampton, held their final meeting at the Royal Hotel on the 18th, under the presidency of Mr. W. Bulpitt. Mr. Geo. Gear, one of the hon. secretaries, and the hon. treasurer, Mr. Harold Howell, presented the statement of accounts, which permitted of a cheque for just over £100 being handed to Mr. Paxton.

The Mayor kindly attended to formally present the cheque, and Mr. Paxton returned thanks very feelingly, the proceedings concluding with hearty votes of thanks to the Mayor for his support and services throughout the affair; to Mr. Bulpitt, who ably presided at most of the committee meetings; to Mr. W. Trussell, Mr. Howell, Messrs. W. A. Gleave and George Gear (the hon. secretaries), and Mr. Cheffins (the proprietor of the Royal Hotel).

The Lyceum, Eccles, has been taken over by Mr. Hamilton Baines, of the Baines Theatre and Music-hall Syndicate, and will in future be known as the Grand Theatre. In about a fortnight the house will again be opened with a first-class London production.

The sequel to the police expulsion of the audience at the Queen's, Glasgow, a week ago, was heard on Wednesday in the Central Police Court there, when Mr. Henry Bowerman, acting-manager of the theatre, and his assistant, Mr. B. M. Armstrong, jun., were charged with the offence of opening an unlicensed theatre and giving an entertainment therein. After some discussion as to the relevancy of the charge, it being contended that the lessee, Mr. Barney Armstrong, ought to have been summoned, the magistrate found the charge against Mr. Bowerman proven, and fined him three guineas; the charge against Mr. Armstrong, jun., being found "Not proven."

The funeral took place on Saturday, at the Burmantofts Cemetery, of Mr. T. B. Fayme, the well-known Yorkshire comedian, who died in Manchester on the 17th inst. Deceased, who was a native of Leeds, was born in the year 1869 in Rider's-fold, Burmantofts. His career as a comedian began at the age of twenty-three, and from that time up to his death he has always been popular. He appeared as Buttons in the Cinderella pantomime at the Theatre Royal, Leeds, last year. His death came with startling suddenness, and at the inquest, which it was deemed necessary to hold, it was found that he died from heart failure. Deceased, who was the eldest of a number of brothers, leaves three children, who are totally unprovided for.

The Liverpool Theatrical Licensing Sessions were held on Tuesday, when the Head Constable reported that the various local places of amusement had during the year been satisfactorily conducted. Attention was called to the fact that at some theatres, where dramatic sketches occupied the whole of the evening's entertainment, smoking was allowed, and the Bench pointed out that such a practice would have to be dropped, as it was no excuse to contend that because a stage play was broken up into three or four parts that that made it a variety performance. There was no desire to interfere with smoking so long as the performance was a variety entertainment.

Another complaint from the police was that at some halls there prevailed a practice of allowing amateurs to appear. The Bench condemned such a custom in the strongest language, and any attempt to fill such places by any outside means such as that would be dealt with very severely, and very likely the licence would be withdrawn.

In the case of one theatre the Bench pointed out that it was necessary that the licensee should reside in the city. With reference to the Empire, the city surveyor said that the two houses a night system was working well. On the occasion of a sketch given one evening last month words of an offensive character were used, but the management took immediate steps, and cancelled the artist's engagement. Sir Edward Moss, said the solicitor for the applicant, had made it his aim to present at his theatres nothing but clean and healthy amusement, and it was a matter of grave regret that the occurrence should have happened. The performer had been forbidden to enter the theatre again.

The Bench expressed satisfaction that the management had taken such a course. They knew it was sometimes a difficult thing to control artists. They brought the manuscript of their sketch to the management, and it was found harmless and perfectly in order; but, unfortunately, some artists indulged in gag, and introduced something objectionable. It showed the necessity of the management hearing every night every part of the performance. Those remarks applied to all licensees.

Mr. Alan D. Dunbar, of the Empire, Sheffield, became the honorary general manager of that house during a representation by distinguished amateurs of Brother Officers, in aid of the National Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Children. The performance was under the direction of Captain Philip Jeffcock, who at the conclusion of the play presented Mr. Dunbar with a handsome silver champagne cup, and to Mr. G. Rhone, the stage manager of the Empire, a case of silver-mounted carvers as a souvenir of a very successful matinée.

Miss Daisy James has met with a severe loss in the death of her mother, which sad event happened on Thursday. The funeral will take place on Monday at Willesden Old Cemetery.

Messrs. John Abbott and Edward Briebach, two members of Mr. David Day's staff, in conjunction with Mr. "Willie" Preston (together forming a trio which has long been a thorn in the side of the London music pirate), have just completed a successful campaign against Manchester music thieves. A start was made last week, two raids resulting in the capture of 3000 illicit copies.

Last Sunday night, whilst watch was being kept on the premises of a suspected wholesale distributor named Gatliffe, a hand-cart was seen to leave the house accompanied by three men, who proceeded to London-road Railway terminus. They were arrested and taken to the police station, when they were found to be in possession of about 1000 copies of pirated music. At the hearing of the cases on Monday morning the principal man was fined the maximum penalty for the first offence of £5 and costs, and his two assistants 50s. each. As we go to press intelligence comes to hand of a successful raid on Gatliffe's stock, when, amid scenes of great excitement, several thousands of copies were seized.

The matinée in aid of the objects of the Music Hall Ladies' Guild, which is to be given at the Canterbury on Nov. 27, is shaping well. Any lady who is willing to help will much assist the work of the committee if she will write in to the secretary, Miss A. De Grey, 69, Primrose-mansions, Prince of Wales's-road, Battersea Park, S.W.

Rumour has antedated Miss Vesta Tilley's appearance at the Palace which is fixed for Christmas. Before fulfilling this special West-end engagement the famous male impersonator has a number of others to complete. This week Miss Tilley is at the Empire, Shepherd's Bush, and on Monday she proceeds to Coventry to open Mr. George Dance's new theatre there. Later will come some provincial engagements at Liverpool, Manchester, Birmingham, &c., including the opening of the new Hippodrome of the De Frece circuit at Portsmouth.

Mr. John P. Harrington, although still rather weak from the effects of his severe operation, which was performed last Thursday week, is so far recovered that he hopes to resume his post of literary editor to the Monte Carlo Publishing Company on Monday; and it goes without saying that he will be heartily welcomed back by the other members of the firm, who at this busy season have felt his enforced absence very greatly. We congratulate him on his speedy recovery.

Miss May Lillian Levey, comedienne, has been engaged by Mr. Robert Arthur for pantomime, this being her sixth panto. engagement with him. Mr. John Hart, of the Theatre Royal, Bradford, has acquired Miss Levey's successful "Suffragette" song for Manchester, Leeds, Bradford, Sheffield, and Hull pantomimes.

A young lady named Galatea is the newest aspirant for "statuary" honours at the variety theatres. She will make her public début at the Palace on Monday, but was seen by a specially invited audience at the Shaftesbury-avenue house yesterday (Friday) afternoon in a number of draped and undraped creations. Psyche, Sappho (the passionate poetess of Lesbos, not Alphonse Daudet's heroine), and Salammbo will be among the statues given. Galatea has been endowed by Dame Nature with a perfect figure and a pretty face, and both may be seen anywhere; for is she not the "Symmetrion" girl who has been so graciously looking down upon us from the hoardings for the last twelve months?

In the new ballet at the Empire, which is shaping well at rehearsals, Mr. Wilhelm will take us to the period of 1835, or thereabouts, the first scene being the rehearsal room at the Paris Opéra House. Mdlle. Genée, who is especially well suited to her part, appears as a novice anxious for admission to the dancing class presided over by Mr. Fred Farren as the maître de danse. The defection of the première danseuse of the opera gives the dainty aspirant her opportunity, and in the second tableau she appears as the principal dancer in an imaginary ballet on the boards of the Opera House. This scene is dressed very much as in the days of Taglioni, Lucile Grahn, Carlotta Grisi, and Cerito, the heroines of the famous Pas de Quatre, whose rival claims to supremacy nearly drove managers mad, and will be interesting as reviving the early Victorian ballet skirt, which was longer and more voluminous than the "tu-tu" which Mdlle. Eva Sarcy has claimed to be the traditional attire of the star dancer.

The Council on Nov. 21, 1905, approved drawings, submitted by Messrs. F. Matcham and Co., on behalf of Moss' Empires, Limited, showing the arrangements proposed to be adopted in the erection of a music hall, to be known as the Finsbury Park Empire, on a site at the junction of St. Thomas's-road and Prah-road, Finsbury Park, and in respect of which it is proposed to apply at the forthcoming licensing sessions for a music and dancing licence. The period allowed by the Council for the commencement of the work having elapsed, the applicants have asked that this time may be extended, and the Committee recommended that Messrs. F. Matcham and Co. be informed that, provided the works be commenced within six months, the Council will be prepared to grant a certificate to the owner of such building, on being satisfied that the premises have been completed in accordance with the drawings referred to and the regulations of the Council, and that certain stated conditions have been complied with.

Miss Agnes Molteno has had to refuse an offer from Mr. Charles Manners to rejoin his company as one of his prime donne, on account of the success of her pretty and pathetic scena, An Old Story; or, A Dolly and a Coach. This is a ballad, illustrated by a series of tableaux, and the story is of a motherless little girl, who, touched by her widowed father's sad face, promises to buy him a coach and a pair of ponies grey which she sees in a toy shop—the second scene. The happiness of both is short-lived, as the little one is knocked down by a real carriage and pair and killed. In another picture the child is being borne heavenward by an angel; and the final tableau shows her spirit form appearing to the broken-hearted father as he sits gazing into the fire in his lonely cottage parlour.

Henri Cot, the French Giant, who will be exhibited at the Hackney Empire on Monday, wants to wed. He is good looking, intelligent, twenty-two years of age, 8ft. 7in. high, weighs 390lbs., and has for a mascot a dwarf, 1ft. 11½in. high. This little fellow the giant carries in his overcoat pocket. It will be open to any lady who is prepossessing and domesticated to write to Henri at the Hackney Empire asking for an appointment, whereat she may pop the question. The fair applicant must be ready to tour the world with her bridegroom, for H. Cot has a long list of engagements to fulfil.

Cliffe Berzac, who has just started his second year on the Keith Circuit in the States, having opened on Aug. 28, 1905, is booked up until Christmas, 1907. So great is the success of his act that he might remain on the other side for a couple of years or so. About three months ago, Mr. Berzac purchased outright Captain Woodward's original seal and sea lion act for the sum of £180. There are seven sea lions and two seals, and as the act is doing well on the Percy Williams tour, and is being well booked up, Mr. Berzac has had to refuse an offer from Mr. Harry Rickards from Australia.

Mr. Frank Sherlock, in consequence of the illness of his wife, Miss Jean Van Dalle, was obliged to discontinue the run of the sketch, The Mummy and the Undergrad, and cancel all engagements connected therewith. He has been resourceful enough, however, to introduce a monologue entitled From the Smoking Concert, with which he is scoring a gratifying success. Mr. Sherlock played the part of Roberts in The Lady Slavey for 10½ years.

Mr. Walter Graham, the Lilliputian wonder, has been giving his act with marked success at the Winter Gardens, Bournemouth, where only variety business of the most refined character is allowed. Mr. Graham was not only personally complimented by Mr. Dan Godfrey, but that popular conductor has given him a series of engagements extending over a period of three years at double his present salary. Mr. Graham's entertainment is full of fun, and laughter is obtained by the most legitimate means, and without descending to vulgarity.

Dr. Walford Bodie, the well-known exponent of bloodless surgery, has had an offer, through Mr. Harry Day's agency, of a long engagement in America at the principal halls at a fabulous salary.

Mr. Branscby Williams, who is appearing with great success at Hammerstein's Victoria Music Hall, will be the guest of honour at a dinner to be given by the Dickens Fellowship Association in New York on Monday, Nov. 5. On the following day Mr. Williams will leave for England.

Miss Katie Mabin, in her entertainment, Grave and Gay, has introduced with great success during the week at Collins' and the Empress a Scotch song entitled "Wee Macgregor's Sister," written by her uncle, Frank Folloy, who also wrote "Stop yer ticklin', Jock," for Harry Lauder.

The Canterbury management has decided to postpone the celebration of its anniversary from the 15th to the 22nd of November, in order to avoid clashing with Mr. J. W. Edgar's benefit at the Metropolitan.

Owing to increased business, Messrs. Richard Warner and Co., Ltd., the old-established variety agency, have taken larger offices at Lyric Chambers, Shaftesbury-avenue, W. They will remove there early in the new year.

At the Tivoli on Monday, Little Tich will sing for the first time a new song entitled "The Park-keeper" (L.C.C.), which, both in patter and business, promises to be screamingly funny. Little Tich will also give his inimitable imitation of a serpentine dancer.

Miss Ada Colley, who returns to the Tivoli on Monday, will sing Sir Henry Bishop's beautiful song, "Lo, here the gentle lark," the flute obligato to which will be played by Mr. John Radcliffe, the celebrated flautist, who has been specially engaged.

Poor Tuis (of Tuis and Minco, gymnasts) passed away on Thursday, the 18th, at Stockton-on-Tees. The funeral took place on Sunday. Mr. John Batty, Mr. Walter Batty, and all the staff of the Grand Theatre, Stockton, followed, and Mr. John Batty defrayed all expenses.

The paragraph in our last issue with regard to the rumours of Mr. Will Murray's marriage was incorrect in so far as the Christian name was concerned. It should have read Mr. "Pete" Murray, the acting-manager of Sadler's Wells. By a coincidence both gentlemen hold similar positions under the Macnaghten banner, but Mr. Will Murray has been married over five years.

Mr. Clifton Crawford, the popular monologue artist and versatile entertainer, during his recent Pacific Coast tour, having occasion to pass through the romantic Southern California town of Santa Barbara, happened to remember that an old Edinburgh acquaintance, well known in connection with the success of Moss's Theatre of Varieties at the Scottish metropolis in days gone by—to wit, Mr. Leonard B. Bramwell—was located in that district. A letter was accordingly written to the effect that Mr. Crawford would arrive on a certain train from San Francisco, en route to Los Angeles, in order to fulfil a two weeks' engagement with the Orpheum circuit in the latter city, and that a stoppage of four minutes at Santa Barbara would enable a much-desired meeting to take place for auld lang syne.

A few minutes previous to the train's scheduled time of arrival a steaming horse and dust-covered buggy might have been seen dashing into the railroad depôt after a desperate stretch of seven miles' hard driving; and a few seconds after the train arrived another conspicuous figure might have been observed rushing around "holding-up" the most likely-looking bystanders, inquiring as to their identity. Suddenly a break in the crowd. "Is your name Bramwell?" "Yes; and you are Crawford." "Yes." "Shake!" Toot-toot. "Mighty glad to see you, old man." Toot-toot. "Well, must be off—train starting—will write." Toot-toot. "Speediest visit on record after sixteen years," so the onlookers remarked when made acquainted with the circumstance, as the long string of cars disappeared in the darkness.

The M.H.A.R.A., for a 5s. subscription, offers indemnity to its members against the loss of luggage whilst travelling, up to the amount of £10, with a maximum of £6 in addition should the loss prevent performance. The cost for baggage insurance to the M.H.A.R.A. works out at 11d. a year for each member. The insurance against accident—£500 in the event of death and corresponding benefits—costs 6d. per member. Thus the total cost for accident and baggage insurance is 1s. 5d.

Miss Dora Lyric returns to town on Monday to the Surrey and Cambridge after eight weeks' tour in the provinces, where she has been creating a great success with her new song, "All that glitters is not gold."

There was a well-attended meeting of the I.A.L. on Sunday last, when Brother 876 took the chair. Brother 1226 reported in detail the work done and inquiries made by the International Insurance Committee recently appointed. It was agreed that the report of this committee be approved, and that the committee be empowered to proceed with its inquiries.

Brother 1226 reported that Brother 1355 had taken the advice of the meeting on the previous Sunday, and as a result his times had been arranged by Mr. G. A. Payne so that he could play the two halls a night. The question was asked whether Mr. Lloyd, of the Pavilion, Greenock, had taken over all the contracts from Mr. Selwyn. A brother agreed to get an answer to this question by personally attending to the matter in a week or two.

A brother, seeking for information as to the method of copyrighting an act, was advised to read Mr. Strong's useful and handy work on "Dramatic and Musical Law," published at The Era office.

A brother volunteered information as to the easiest way to secure a patent. Go to a post-office and ask for a provisional B patenting form, fill it up, and send it into the Patent Office in duplicate. This costs £1, and lasts six months. During this time you may make alterations in your invention. Then you go and get another form and pay £2. It is better, however, not to let more time than is absolutely necessary elapse between the sending of the first form and the final.

Brother 876 then suggested some ideas for the protection of artists' "business," referring to the case of Bedini and the Ten Loonies. A brother contended that there must be many similar cases of plagiarism, and suggested that when a special trick or new business is invented that particulars, description, etc., should be jotted down and signed by the people who have taken part in it. Then these particulars or this description should be filed for reference at the office of the Lodge.

Brother 876 informed the meeting that he had received permission from Berlin headquarters for the London Executive Committee to accept application of English members for reinstatement without first applying to Berlin. He also advised the London Committee to go into the question of sending all committee members in England reports of the Executive Committee meetings at the London office.

SONGS, WRITERS, AND SINGERS.

Mr. Harry Lauder will, in pantomime, sing a song which will be a novel departure from the style of ditty with which his name is usually associated. It is called "Gilt-edged Bertie," is by Gerald Grafton, and is of such a glorified Beau Brummel type that every "principal boy" who looks her best in magnificent attire will hasten to Messrs. Francis and Day to secure this sweetest of swell songs.

Messrs. Chrisp Shield and Co., the old-established firm of 136, Shaftesbury-avenue, have a fine assortment of special pantomime songs which are issued in books, which are now ready. Among the most favoured melodies that are bound to be heard everywhere are "Sleep and forget," "Roses, roses, everywhere," "A sweeter story still," and "Farewell, my Annabelle." The firm offers a full professional copy and band parts for one shilling.

Phenomenal activity characterises the Monte Carlo Publishing Co. just now, and each week their output of new songs grows steadily greater. They are by way of issuing next week, for special pantomime use, three new and "catchy" numbers of which report speaks most highly, to wit, "You don't miss de water," by two members of the firm, Messrs. Harrington and Tate; "She didn't come from Borneo," by those rising young authors Newton Butts and Herbert Rule; and, last but not least, a stirring new march song, entitled "There's a big ship sailing in the morning," by Mellor, Lawrance, and Gifford.

"By the Side of the Zuyder Zee" (published by Feldman and Co.), which has now been introduced into The Beauty of Bath at the Aldwych Theatre with great success, is in great demand by pantomime producers and artists all over the kingdom; and, judging by the opinions of those "in the know," seems to be generally accepted as the leading pantomime song for 1906-7. It bids fair to exceed in popularity any of Mills and Scott's previous successes.

"Sailing in my Balloon!" the bright and breezy chorus carol which has just been let loose, is fast sailing towards popularity, skilfully steered by Miss Florrie Forde. There is a lilt in the melody which positively compels one to hum or whistle. Pantomime artists should secure this up-to-date novelty from Messrs. Mills and Scott.

These gentlemen are also responsible for "Snowflakes," a pretty winter ballad, with a harmonised chorus, which promises scope for effects, and is published by Francis and Day. This firm has also a grand pantomime number in "Nelson from his monument," another Mills and Scott composition in rousing march time, and written round the great admiral, whose name always evokes enthusiasm.

The Shapiro, Von Tilzer Music Co., Ltd., have in the press Mellor, Laurance, and Gifford's song, "My Rickshaw Queen," originally sung by Miss Daisy Dormer. This song, with its pretty and romantic story and catchy melody, is rapidly gaining favour now, and looks like being a big pantomime number.

Miss Victoria Monk's "Take me back to London Town" looks like this season's biggest hit, and the Shapiro, Von Tilzer Music Co., Ltd., have already had numerous applications for it from the managers of the principal London pantomimes.

The Shapiro, Von Tilzer Music Co., Ltd., have accepted for immediate publication Will Hyde's song, "The Wee Aberdonian," which Jack Lorimer, the popular Scotch comedian, has been featuring all over England.

Will Hyde has just published with the Shapiro, Von Tilzer Music Co., Ltd., two comic songs—"Would you like to do that again?" sung by Mr. Sam Mayo, and "The Aberdonian," sung by Mr. Jack Lorrimer, the latter written in collaboration with that popular Scotch comedian.

Among the newest songs of the hour that have been acquired for publication this week by Messrs. Francis and Day, may be mentioned Harry Anderson's huge success, "Woman without a tongue," which bears the unmistakable impress of Barnes and Weston; and "The stable-boy's story," a very fine racing song, by Fred Elton and T. F. Robson.

Other new publications of the house include Miss Daisy Dormer's "Mr. Johnson; or, I told you to go," by Chas. Collins and Chas. Ridgwell; and two new numbers of George Brooke's—"Would you mind passing the salt?" and "That's what they told to me," the latter by Keith and Merson.

Mr. J. F. Lambe has found another big winner for Jock Whiteford in his latest song, "The Banks of Allan's Water," which is nightly encored at the London Pavilion. He has also supplied him with a new song called "My Bonnie Jessie does not come from Borneo." J. W. leaves town for a short provincial tour on Monday.

Messrs. Francis, Day, and Hunter have just issued two special pantomime numbers for principal boy and girl, entitled respectively "I wonder what we'd do without our girls" and "All girls are beautiful, but not one like you." The former is being sung with emphatic success by Miss Margaret Broadfoote. It has an earhaunting melody, and possesses the one thing essential in principal boy songs—refinement. Already it is booked for several towns; while the latter song has proved a veritable gold mine for its original singer, Miss Crissie Cross, that young lady having signed no less than thirty-six contracts during the first week she so successfully introduced "All Girls" to a London audience. Both songs are from the pen of J. F. Lambe.

Miss Maidie Scott has acquired an excellent song by Messrs. Harrison and Elton. She is also introducing next week a new song by Messrs. Steven and Mullen, which will be published by Messrs. Shapiro and von Tilzer.

The demand among pantomime producers and artists for the Monte Carlo Publishing Co.'s three big "winners"—"Queen of Old Samara," "When the band played the 'Men of Harlech,'" and "Somebody cares for you"—has been as flattering to the enterprise and "pushfulness" of this young firm as it has been unprecedented in spontaneity.

Messrs. Lawrance, Mellor, and Gifford have just placed a new song with the Monte Carlo Publishing Co. which the Berners-street firm confidently hope will prove as great and lasting a success as the same authors and composers' famous number, "I've built a bamboo bungalow for you."

The Monte Carlo Publishing Co. have just accepted for early publication two new songs, both written and composed by Paul Pelham, Newton Butts, and Herbert Rule, entitled respectively, "The Belle of the Dardanelles," and "Don't be afraid, little soldier."

The popular coon song, "Good-night, Mr. Brown, I'm out," is in very great demand for pantomime, and Chas. Collins, who, in conjunction with Tom Mellor, wrote the "Wooden Hut" craze, is to be congratulated on this successful number. Miss Daisy Dormer is just now evoking the greatest applause with this strong item, which will be featured by her in pantomime. This is also being "fixed up" for many annuals by Messrs. Francis and Day.

LONDON VARIETY THEATRES.

THE PALACE.

The latest acquisition of Mr. Alfred Butt is Miss Margaret Cooper, whose appearance at the Palace Theatre is another concession to the higher taste of those music-lovers who seek désœuvrément at the variety houses. Miss Cooper is a delightful artist. Without a great vocal endowment, she yet completely satisfies the listener with her exquisite tone, while her sense of comedy exercises a wonderful fascination. If she came from Paris we should call her a diseuse, but so great are her gifts that she might even attain the altitude of Yvette Guilbert in the realms of art. She opened her entertainment on Monday by singing Lionel Monckton's song, "My heart's at your feet," following it with a pretty song, "I want someone to love me," composed by Mr. Pelissier, the chief of the Follies. Then came "The Chimney Sweep" (Monckton), and, in answer to a unanimous demand for a bis, the charming artist added "Jest her way."

The McNaughtons (Tom and Fred), who also made their first appearance at the Palace on Monday, have brought with them a choice assortment of cross questions and crooked answers that kept the house in roars of laughter. Their burlesque fight is a reproduction of their duel in the wood between the hired (pantomime) ruffians in The Babes in the Wood, and is exceedingly funny. The happily associated pair are undoubtedly a great success, and their broad humour is just the fillip required at the fine house in Shaftesbury-avenue. An act full of acrobatic surprises and not lacking in the essentials of comedy is presented by the Creo Brothers—English boys both of them—who work their clever business as "the Gipsies." The artfully contrived vehicle in which they arrive collapses into an ordinary table, and their tricks throughout are uncommonly neat and clever. Howard and Harris also combine humour with acrobatics. Mr. Malcolm Scott, as Boadicea from the Embankment, brings with him a host of humorous reminiscences and perverted biographies, and the turn is full of cleverness. Gillin, a ventriloquist new to the London variety theatres, introduces a couple of figures with great success, the vocal work being excellent. The Norman and Leonard Trio open the programme with their successful sketch, The Itinerant, in which excellent musical selections are given on violin and harp; Miss Daisy Dormer follows her well-rendered coon song with a prettily-executed dance; and the Palace Girls, daintily dressed, have been educated and drilled—one can easily see—by the one and only Tiller, and their dancing is always interesting, if not very varied. Homer B. Mason and Marguerite Keeler repeat their success in the smart sketch, Hooked by Crook; Miss Marie Tempest sings some of the numbers which have assisted to make her famous; Mr. Jack Lorimer furnishes excellent excuses for laughter in his Scotch contributions, his dancing being excellent; and other attractions in the bill are the Bioscope, which mirrors the events of the day; and Eadie and Ramsden. Mr. Herman Finck's fine orchestra plays admirably.

THE SURREY.

Seekers after amusement in South London cannot miss this popular house of entertainment at St. George's Circus, for the electrical brilliancy of the exterior is only a reflection of the bright and merry entertainment to be seen within its spacious interior, and it must be highly gratifying to Mr. Charles Craig, the ever-courteous acting-manager, to view —twice nightly—the sea of happy, smiling faces, eager, responsive, and appreciative, that fills every available space in the vast auditorium. Sketches are the principal items in the current bill, and habitués of the Surrey show by their eager attention their clinging to the old love. Topping the programme is the romantic one-act episode, with its pretty and effective rural set, entitled A Child of Nature, admirably represented by the Vaudeville Dramatic Company. Miss Edith Cochrane as Sister Staphanie imbues her part with a charm that reaches the hearts of her audience. In the title-rôle Little Gracie Lyndon as Winifred is good, and gives great promise; Mr. Ernest Wingfield as David Haydon acts with a manly earnestness, power, and sincerity beyond all praise; as the faithful old churchwarden Oose Mr. R. G. Whales gives a character-study full of clever points; Miss Ida Harrison invests the character of Alethea Vyse with a grace and womanly feeling of much merit; as Osmond Reece Mr. Lodge Percy contributes a fine sterling piece of work; and Mr. Dennis Ainslie appears as Sir Cauntley Reece.

Laughter permeates the whole action of the merry farcelet, Colonel Pepper, which is smartly played throughout by Mr. Dick Cruikshanks and his merry little company. As the distracted young bachelor barrister, Percy Gay, who has to find a wife and child in fifteen minutes, to satisfy his irascible uncle, who believes him married, Mr. Allan Hope scores heavily; Miss Kitty Kirwan as the servant Polly, who acts as his wife pro. tem., thoroughly realises the character, and adds not a little to the undeniable success of the playlet; as the choleric Colonel Pepper Mr. Dick Cruikshanks is remarkably good; as the man-servant Brown, who assumes the disguise of a nurse, and raids all the nurseries in the neighbourhood for the loan of a baby, Mr. Wal Lovell is the life and soul of the absurdity. Another most amusing sketch is provided by the musical comedy sketch company, and written by Edgar Dereves, entitled Rough on Tuff. In this we have two Tuffs, father and son. The son is not willing to return to his scholastic studies at Pimple College, and the father, in persuading him to go, "wishes that he was young again," forgetting for a moment that he has in his possession a magic Indian stone, that gives the owner the power to have anything he desires. Instantly, the father and son change places, the son becoming the father and vice versâ. The son soon packs his father off to college, and the fun can easily be realised when, in the next scene, the elder Tuff is in his son's place at college, and is treated as a boy in the mixed classes. Mr. Joe Nightingale in this character is delightfully funny, keeping the house in roars of laughter, and is loyally supported in this direction by Mr. Stuart Ethall as Dr. Whacker; Miss Winnie Raynor, as his lively young daughter May, who sings and dances charmingly; Mr. Leslie Digby as Professor Long; Mr. Hyland Shea as Whimper; Mr. Leonard May as the son, Peter Tuff; and a smart and merry crowd of housemaids, guests, schoolboys and schoolgirls, who join in a mad revel of acrobatism and dancing.

Arthur Rigby, in his exhilarating scena, The March of the Married Men, and his lecture on "Women's Rights and Wrongs," keeps the audience in a merry mood. Millie Howell, looking bewitching in her tasteful costume of black and white, sings with purity of tone and much feeling a pretty tuneful ballad, "For better or for worse." Harry Morris is a resourceful entertainer, and soon sets his hearers laughing with his rustic puns, while his farmyard mimicry is realistic and amusing. Violet Choice introduces some clever step-dancing with her song, "Wait till I get older," and wins hearty approbation. Sam Redfern still has many admirers, although it is a generation ago since we first heard the same patter, and his topical song, "If you can stand this you'll stand anything." Nora Beverley voices with much feeling the old negro melody, "Kentucky Home." The Delomes, in their speciality, The Phantom Clogs, gain an ovation for their series of exceedingly clever clog dances. Fyne and Hurley are ever welcome as the "Coster and the Dude," their merry cross-talk, the smart skit, "Driving to the Derby," and the "Boxing Lesson," are so full of exquisite drollery that it leaves the audience no time to think, but only to laugh. Raymond's Bio-Tableaux, depicting the "Komical Konvicts; or, How the Jail-birds Flew," is a most amusing and interesting film. The Surrey orchestra, under the direction of Mr. W. Hinkinson, deserves a special word of praise for their efficiency.

HOLBORN EMPIRE.

Observant patrons of the variety places of amusement will no doubt have noticed that certain turns are not received with the same degree of favour that they were a few years ago; but the ventriloquist still flourishes, and his popularity shows no signs of diminution. Of late years, too, many new practitioners of the art have made their appearance at "the halls," and sundry novel features have been introduced into their performances. At the Holborn Empire this week considerable interest has attached to the appearance of Mr. Jay W. Winton, a ventriloquist who not long ago arrived in this country, after making quite a record cosmopolitan tour. Under engagement to Mr. Harry Rickards, he appeared no fewer than three thousand times in Sydney and Melbourne alone. Mr. Winton introduces first of all an old man, a life-size figure, that lifts its right arm quite naturally, while a little fluffy dog on the right occasionally interrupts in comical style. But Mr. Winton relies for his humorous effects chiefly upon McGinty, the title he has given a figure which is taken from a box, and presents a quaintly grotesque appearance, with expressive features and curious straggling hair. The most striking, and, at the same time, amusing, characteristic of McGinty is his aggressive impudence, for which he is punished by being relegated in no very gentle fashion to his place of confinement. McGinty's half-stifled expostulations during the progress of this apparently difficult operation are laughable in the extreme, and the difference in the sound of the voice when the lid of the box is open and when it is shut is very cleverly indicated. Finally the "bad boy" escapes from his wooden prison-house and climbs a rope, bringing the act to an effective conclusion. Mr. Winton voices his figures very cleverly, introducing the ditty, "It's the man behind the gun that does the work." He also gives a song in three distinct voices.

Amongst the items in this week's programme that deserve special notice is Lindon's Vaudevilles, in a musical mélange, entitled Monks at Play. Three monastic occupants of a monastery are seen engaged in the harmless pastime of fishing; they are also melodious souls, ready to join heartily in a chorus. Then there suddenly appears a pretty little pierrette, and the good fathers' heads are quite turned. They don pierrot costume, and make love to the fair being who has invaded their domain. Then the monastery bell is heard, and the monks cast off their gay attire, and become once more sober, sane sons of Mother Church. This slight musical sketch is admirably rendered and well received. Mr. George Mozart scores with his clever and highly amusing burlesque of the leading characters in a sensational melodrama, the quick changes being very cleverly managed. Miss Daisy Jerome is a smart little comedienne, whose song, "A little bit of butter on the floor," is rendered with delightful piquancy. She also scores with a song in which she cleverly imitates a Dutch girl, a French girl, &c. Mendel, the blind pianist, furnishes evidence of his wonderful ability by playing a melody that he has only heard once. Bonnie Goodwin and her piccaninnies give a lively and diverting entertainment, which is well received. Dale and O'Malley, comedians, score both with their cross-talk and duets. Mr. Will Evans, in his sketch, Building a Chicken House, in which he has an efficient assistant, causes roars of laughter; and other turns who meet with the full approval of the audience include the Six Idols, high kickers and dancers; Thos. E. Finglas, coon delineator; Les Frolics, Parisian dancers and tumblers; the Eight Sunrays, vocalists and dancers; Pat Rafferty, Irish comedian; and the Kentucky Four, including Topsy, coloured vocal artists. The Imperial Bioscope depicts "The Motorist," an amusing trick film.

THE EMPRESS.

A well-varied and most interesting programme is being presented here this week, with the result that the holding capacity of the hall is taxed to its utmost limits. At the top of the bill is Hackenschmidt, the well-known wrestler, who is making one of his periodical visits, and, judging by his reception, still retains all his old popularity. On the evening of our visit a couple of very interesting bouts took place. The first was with a soldier from the Guards, who showed himself to be a very slippery customer. He was, however, no match for the Russian, who was never once on the defensive. The second was with James Strong, the well-known 18st. Cumberland wrestler. This contest proved far more interesting, as in this instance Hackenschmidt did not have it all his own way. However, after about five minutes' wrestling the Russian gained a very neat fall.

A turn quite unique in its way is that of the Abdullah Arabs. Twelve in number, they enter into their performance in no half-hearted manner, and give many interesting tumbling feats, which are executed with an ease that is surprising. As pyramid-builders they are certainly quite in the front rank. The applause which is bestowed upon them is certainly not more than they deserve. Nash and Noel, two comedians, have a clever song, entitled "The man behind," which they precede with some clever amusing cross-talk. They bring their turn to a conclusion with some neat dancing. Vesta Victoria, a real Brixton favourite, is again delighting everyone with her songs, and to judge by the tremendous applause that greets her, she is adding largely to her legion of admirers. She has a couple of capital numbers which she renders in her well-known inimitable manner. In that popular favourite, "Waiting at the church," which is being whistled in New York as well as in London, the chorus is taken up very heartily, and at the conclusion the comedienne has to listen to deafening applause.

The Six Brothers Luck, with their pantomimical absurdity The Lightning Fire Brigade, provide one long continuous roar of laughter during their stay. Edie King, a charming comedienne, dressed in Georgian costume, sings "Lady Teazle," and appears to great advantage as the young wife of The School for Scandal. In her second, "Let me show you," she introduces various styles of dancing, being quite an adept in the terpsichorean art. On concluding she is the recipient of much applause. The Sisters Morgan, one of whom appears as a boy, sing and dance very prettily; Naline and May, a couple of clowns, have a very entertaining turn, and seem to be able to extract music from anything. The Two Whites (or, shall we say, Black and White?) are a couple of exceptionally neat and clever dancers; amusing patter is also a feature of this turn.

A sketch, entitled Feeding the Bird, is being presented by Lilian Marew and company. The scene is a workman's living-room, and the sketch is very funny in parts. Other items in the programme are Montgomery and Walker, Harry Lawson, Katie Marsh, and an "extra turn." A most enjoyable evening is brought to a conclusion with some up-to-date pictures on the Bioscope, including the South Africans' victory at Northampton. Under the baton of Mr. Robert Allington, the orchestra plays artistically. Mr. Nelson Francis, the popular manager, receives every assistance from his able lieutenant, Mr. Francis Winchcombe.

QUITE as an experiment Mr. J. H. Graham has decided to open Tynemouth Palace-by-the-Sea for two weeks on Dec. 24. Mr. Lindon Travers, the manager, is doing the bookings for Christmas, and also the season in 1907.

THE HOUSE OF WITMARK.

CHAT WITH MR. CHAS. WARREN.

(BY OUR OWN COMMISSIONER.)

On matters affecting the music-publishing trade Mr. Charles Warren, the London manager of the house of Witmark, is a mine of information. In fact, if interviewers were paid on that scale of princely liberality with which the investing public reward the ingenious efforts of bogus company promoters, Mr. Warren would, indeed, be a valuable asset to gentlemen who write "chats." He has always something of interest to say with regard to the business with which he has so successfully associated himself, and one has scarcely taken a seat in his office before he enters upon serious conversation.

"We are extremely pleased," he says at the offset, "with the outlook for the future. We have been handicapped so long by the operations of the pirates that we are now beginning to feel the advantages of Mr. O'Connor's efforts on our behalf. I think the new Act will be found efficacious in every way. The one question left is, are those who are supposed to administer justice going to help us? So far as London is concerned, I do not think we have cause for complaint in that direction, but I have had to-day a letter from my traveller in Leeds who tells me that the magistrates in that city are not affording the assistance which might reasonably be expected of them. However, we are in hopes that before long even they will fall into line, and support the carrying out of the Act. The entire trade has suffered more than the public can realise. It has not merely been a matter of the sale of copyright music by the pirates, but the trade in itself has lost a good deal of confidence, and the evil practices complained of have upset the traditions as to the manner in which music should be introduced to the public. In the past the system of the trade taking up new songs and instrumental pieces that we produced led to their becoming popular with their customers, and by that means of introduction we began a general sale. Since this piracy has been so rampant, the dealer naturally would take no chances in investing in new things, and in consequence only confined his attention to those numbers that were in actual demand."

Mr. Warren went on to state that so far as his firm's Christmas productions were concerned, they had a very formidable list ready, as will be seen on reference to an advertisement on another page. "Many of our Christmas successes," remarked the interviewee, "have been held back on account of the piracy. During the year everything that looked to me like a popular success I put away to await the time that we could safely place it on the market without any fear of its being stolen from us before we got our benefit from it. We have several very big numbers. One especially, called 'Moon, dear,' was originally sung at the Hippodrome in New York, and created a great deal of enthusiasm at the time. It was sung over here in the Empire Revue by Miss Sybil Arundale, but beyond that it has not been heard, as we have been holding it up as a special pantomime number."

Asked as to what he considered was the trend of the public taste in regard to songs at the present moment, Mr. Warren stated that the ballad song, or what was known as the home song, was coming back into popular favour. The public appeared to have got tired of the coon or ragtime type of song, and now preferred the kind of song that was so much favoured with the early Christy Minstrels—the little home or "heart" ballads that were so easy to sing, and were so tuneful. The coon music business, according to Mr. Warren, is rapidly passing away, "but," he adds, "I only give that as an opinion based upon the sales of the different numbers."

Another song which Messrs. Witmark will publish at the festive season, and of which Mr. Warren holds out great hopes, bears the title, "Will you love me in December as you did in May?" He tells us that it has an exceptionally pretty melody, and should become popular in the family circle. The firm will also shortly publish a march song, "I could learn to love a soldier." Songs with a military theme are always welcomed by members of the fair sex, "who seem"—on Mr. Warren's expert authority—"to be possessed of an innate desire to admire, and to sing about the gentleman in uniform."

"Of course," continues Mr. Warren, "the trade has been upset by the cheap editions issued by various publishers, but there is every prospect of the songs returning to their ordinary prices. A new song is something in the nature of a luxury, and if people want it, it matters not whether the price is one-and-four or sixpence. There has been a lot of talk about a large public for cheap music. My experience is that the question at issue is not so much the price as the value of the song to the individual purchaser. In this connection I may mention that a few days ago I received from a man who deals in cheap music a small order. It was written on the back of one of his circulars, which contained an advertisement beginning 'Why pay 1s. 4d. and 2s. for music?' and then proceeded to give a list of publications of various music firms which he said he could supply at seven for 2s. But, curiously enough, this man wants a copy of 'The cosy-corner girl,' and encloses 1s. 6d. for us to send it to him."

The history of the House of Witmark from its foundation reminds one of the old saw, "Great oaks from little acorns grow." One of the three brothers Witmark was presented while at school with a small printing press. With this the Witmarks printed cards for their neighbours, and when the profits had accumulated a large press was bought. Later still, the idea of publishing music occurred to the trio, and the result to-day is that the House of Witmark is world-famous—or, as Mr. Witmark expressively puts it, "our firm completes the circuit of the globe. We are able to take a popular song, and literally chase it round the world."

CHELSEA PALACE.

We are often told in all sorts and conditions of newspapers that the entertainments at the halls are now on a higher plane of refinement than they were before the L.C.C. came into existence, growing patronage of the middle classes, who have made of the modern Empires and Palaces family resorts. It is quite possible, however, to make these people's entertainments attain a loftier level than is quite palatable to the many-headed public, and to soar into regions of art that are above their heads. Antidotes to this high falutin' are found in such comic singers as Mr. Sam Mayo, who is touching the springs of laughter at the Chelsea Palace in his Chinaman song. In the verses of this one discovers highly-coloured descriptions of domestic and matrimonial improbabilities. What, for instance, can be more frankly humorous than the "immobile one's" description of a wooden-legged wife, whose two stumps would have been utilised for a cricket match had there been any possibility of solving the difficulty of where and how to "place the bails"?

A farcical duologue entitled Beauty and the Bounders, produced by Mr. Wilton Heriot, provides an interlude of mirth that is very highly appreciated by the Chelsonians. Beauty is chief barmaid at the Hotel de Luxe, and among those who come to purchase liquid refreshment at her counter are an actor of the legitimate, who garnishes his conversation with "Prithee, wench," and similar Elizabethan phrases; a coster, who gives his impressions of a performance of Hamlet; a snobbish Israelite, who arrives in a motor; and a scion of the aristocracy who proposes marriage to the Hebe of the bar. The trifle opens with a prologue sung before the curtain by the representative of the barmaid—Miss Frances Manners, who plays the part with both sprightliness and grace. Mr. Wilton Heriot is particularly good in his series of character sketches, and he has garnished the parts with many smart things. The sketch will play closer after a night or two, and it should be welcome as a piece of comedy relief wherever it is played.

Miss Eva Kelland, pretty of face and lithe of form, sings with much expression a song addressed to a pretty little pony. This is something of a modern edition of the Hon. Mrs. Norton's ballad, "The Arab's Farewell to His Steed." The pain of parting from the intelligent and affectionate quadruped is avoided, and the final verses close on a joyous note. Miss Kelland, who is apparently from Australia, makes a comely maid of the bush in her scarlet jersey, brown skirt, and high boots. Doody and Wright revel in absurdities that fetch the house, the uproarious comedy of the mere male of the pair being most mirth-provoking. Mr. Russell Wallett talks to the ladies of the audience in a vein of banter that makes the philosophy of the "lady in black" highly diverting, and the song with a sneezing accompaniment is exceedingly clever.

A special attraction is Miss Irma Lorraine, who poses in various pictures, the prettiest of which is "Spring"; and other turns billed include the Raies, a couple of clever lady ballet dancers; Lee and Kingston, who revel in "practical joking"; Jack Lane, the "Yorkshire rustic"; and the Sisters Pine, who display hereditary ability in their character duets. Mr. J. Norman Berlin is the popular acting-manager here, and Mr. Angelo Asher's orchestra has an enviable reputation, due in no small measure to the artistic aims of its conductor.

PARAGON.

It is a pleasure to listen to a genuine comedian like Mr. George Bastow, who does not for his humour depend upon such insipid twaddle as we frequently get on the subject of "booze" and "ma-in-law," or puerile hogwash concerning Cupid in his various aspects. Mr. Bastow's comedy is clean and it is funny. Whether as an old rustic who has passed the allotted span, and advises younger people to "keep on keeping on" in spite of the little worries and inconveniences of life, or as an elderly major who is a gay old stager, and can never forget the days when he used to bump up and down on his charger, Mr. Bastow presents a possible, and, at the same time, very amusing, character. There is excellent quality and quantity in the rest of this week's Paragon programme. Happy Fanny Fields, the quaint American-Dutch girl, is making for merriment with all her irresponsible sayings and doings, her bright mannerisms, and her own infectious, bubbling merriment. Mr. J. P. Ling, in his mimetic monologue, has caught on too. Last week his act proved so acceptable to the Mile End-roadites that his services were retained. His imitation of a ballad vocalist singing "Bonnie Mary of Argyle," but omitting the high notes, is most effective from a mirth-provoking point of view, and the same may be said of his impersonation of a soprano, in which he not only copies the feminine tones, with certain variations, but also mimics the attitudes of a lady artist and her little attentions to her dress. Miss Florrie Gallimore quite takes the fancy of her audiences with her verses about one, Caroline, but she causes still greater delight to the gentlemen who have paid threepence for admission when she sings, "It isn't always money that makes a gentleman." On such an hypothesis every mother's son in the gallery knows that he is a perfect gentleman, and when, a few minutes later, Miss Kitty Wager tells them—most charmingly, we must admit—"When you are feeling very blue, and haven't got a sou, everybody gives you good advice," the features of the "gods" afford evidence of extreme gratification. In her other ditty, "The penny bazaar," Miss Wager is bright and lively and entertaining.

Is it not enough to make the heart of the average cockney throb furiously with joyous excitement when he hears a most engaging American lady beg, in accents sweet and tender, to be allowed to remain in London? So when Miss Victoria Monks sings "Take me back to London town," the sentiment receives hearty endorsement from her hearers. No one, we are sure, wishes that she should be farther from London than the "tupp'ny tube" could take her. The melody—like the lady who gives expression to it—is of the enchanting order, Miss Monks's distinctive style of delivery being such that one does not easily forget it. She is also singing "I'm leaving home," a most agreeable coon refrain. The Melroses submit an extremely agreeable singing and dancing act; and Mr. Charles Whittle contrives to be exceedingly diverting in his own particular line. The King's College Boys are heard to advantage in excerpts from operas; and Mlle. Rossitter furnishes a turn which is attractive from beginning to end. Messrs. Brown, Le Clerq, and company are uproariously hilarious with their sketch, Black Justice, which seems to become even more popular the oftener it is seen. Mr. T. E. Dunville tenders a host of absurd notions in his story about a Channel swim, and the anecdotes he tells of his progress during the great attempt to emulate Captain Cook are irresistibly laughable. Miss Mabel Thorne shines as a low-comedy artist, and her song, "Oh, Mr. Brown," as well as the other one moralising on the stupidity of sitting on a newly-painted seat, is rendered with a due appreciation of its humorous qualities. Mr. Fred Conquest and Mr. Leon Dubois appear in the dramatic sketch, The Freak's Revenge, the first-named gentleman as the freak and the latter as the gorilla act in an amazingly clever manner. Ruffell's Imperial Bioscope, with a splendid series of pictures, concludes the programme.

MISS RUBY BIJOU'S artistic barefoot dance has been very successful. On Monday Miss Bijou returns to the Empire, Portsmouth, with new dances and some lovely frocks, all made by herself.

"GIPSY DICK."

Sketch, in One Scene, by J. P. Harrington and E. Herman, with Music by James Tate, Produced, for the First Time, at the Grand Palace, Clapham Junction, on Monday, Oct. 22.

Black Pete .....MR. EDWARD SORLEY
Zara .....MISS EVA FAIRLEIGH
Dick .....MISS NEMO

Melody and melodrama are effectively associated in the latest addition to the playlets which form the staple dishes of the modern bill-of-fare. A tale of sisterly devotion is unfolded in the little piece, to which a number of well-sung songs gives pleasing variety. The strains of music accompany the opening scene, which represents a Romany camp wherein Zara, the Queen, sings of the "Gipsy caravan." She has entire command of the encampment, for Black Pete, the King, loves her to distraction, and is even jealous of the youngster Dick, whom he cruelly ill-treats. Zara is not a real gipsy, but joined the band in order to find her sister, who had been stolen. She uses her powerful influence to protect Dick, who is in reality a girl, and was abducted many years ago by Black Pete. The child has dim memories of the night she was taken away, and her suspicions are confirmed when she overhears Pete declare that she is the daughter of a nobleman, on whom he desired to revenge himself. "Dick" secures a bundle of papers, which prove her identity and reveal the fact that she is Zara's long-lost sister. When Black Pete reappears, "Dick" emerges from the tent apparently asleep, and re-enacts the terrible scene of her abduction, when Pete killed the servants of the Hall in order to steal the child. Pete is so overcome by the recital that he admits his crime, and is bidden to depart, but in desperation he draws his dagger and stabs himself to death.

The story of the little piece, which had to be compressed owing to the exigencies of a long programme, is put in a most interesting form, and is presented in a telling manner by the members of the cast. Miss Eva Fairleigh makes a commanding figure of Zara, looking every inch a Queen, and delivering her lines with the proper imperious gesture. She sings in cultivated style, her powerful contralto voice being heard agreeably in the song of "The Gipsy Caravan," as well as that of "A Romany Lass." Picturesque acting is supplied by Mr. Edward Sorley, who, it will be remembered, gave an excellent account of himself in the part of the villainous Lord James Stuart in Mrs. Brown-Potter's recent production of Mary Queen of Scots. He impersonates the swarthy Pete to perfection, and colours the delivery of his lines with many varied shades, expressive of hatred, passion, and malignancy. The difficult rôle of Dick is sustained with care and finish by Miss Nemo, who acts the boy so realistically that the secret of the story is kept intact, and the sympathy of the audience is throughout enlisted. She has a voice of excellent quality, and her song with the refrain, "It takes a bit of doing," well accords with popular sentiment, while her "sleep-walking" scene is rendered very impressive. Gipsy Dick is prettily mounted, and kept the audience thoroughly engrossed from beginning to end.

"I'VE BOUGHT A RICKSHAW FOR YOU" is the title of a new scena by Fred Elton and Percy Edgar. This number will shortly be produced by Miss Mabel Thorne, and is published by Messrs. Francis and Day. The chorus is particularly catchy. Pantomime producers should at once apply for permits.

MR. HARRY MARTE, who is just now on the Stoll tour, is scoring heavily with Will Hyde's tuneful chorus song, "My Little Houseboat Queen." The Shapiro, Von Tilzer Music Co. are receiving applications every post for it. It is free for pantomime and the halls also.

MR. A. E. SIDNEY DAVIS writes:—"Will you allow me to say a few words about 'The Scarecrow'? I was not at all surprised to read that Mr. Chas. Carte had written a song on this idea, but I cannot say whether the two songs clash, as I have never had the pleasure of witnessing his play, Great Temptations, or of hearing his song. All I can do is to bear out what Miss Bessie Butt has already claimed—that her song and the manner in which she sings it and her accompanying dance are absolutely original, and certainly not cribbed from any source." Mr. W. Gourlay, we may add, has been singing for some years a "scarecrow" song at the London Pavilion.

MR. HARRY BEDFORD has made a great impression on Australian audiences, and the Sydney Press is loud in his praises. Among the London successes of his greatly in favour with Antipodeans are "Live a day at a time," "Doo-dah!" and "The secondhand aristocrat."

MR. T. E. DUNVILLE is producing on Monday next a skit song on the Soap Trust, entitled "Soap, soap, soap," by A. Ellerton.

THE enlarged and well-equipped premises in Denmark-street, Charing Cross-road, from which Messrs. Francis and Day will henceforth issue their "Sixpenny Pops," will be open for the use of "the trade" on Monday. Manager John Smith, who has been sadly hampered for want of space owing to the oyster growing too tight a fit for its shell, will now, as he sententiously expresses it, "have elbow room for his knees," and is adding to the extensive catalogue over which he is viceroy the following pieces:—"Billy Muggins," "I want you to notice my leggings," "Rosy's cosy bungalow," and the "Enchantress Waltz," which may be described as the "novelty dance" of 1906-7, seeing that that past master in the art of dance inventing, Mr. James Finnigan, has transmogrified the waltz into a new and delightful "creation," which is easily learned from a perusal of the simple rules laid down. Of a surety, Mr. John Smith's "Pop-py-land can in no wise be described just now as a "Garden of Sleep."

WARWICK WILLIAMS'S "Record Lancers" are on the point of being placed on the market by Messrs. Francis and Day, and many a theatrical chef d'orchestre with pantomime worries ahead, or musical director of variety places with eager holiday audiences looming in his mind's eye, will heave a sigh of relief when he glances down the titles of the links in the chain of popular melodies so deftly welded together by the burly and genial Bohemian who has for many years been "master of the musick" to Father Christmas where lancers are concerned. The "Record Lancers" will embody the following favourite melodies of the day:—"In the shade of the old apple tree," "Waiting at the church" (My wife won't let me), "We parted on the shore," "Float me, Charlie!" "Good-night, Mr. Brown, I'm out!" "Molly, I love you!" "Cheyenne" (Shy Ann), "Boy Blue," "The galloping major," "Ain't yer g'wine to say 'How do?'" "It's a different girl again" (Hello! hello! hello!), "Wire in, my lads," "Come and make love to me," "There's a man in Manitoba," "Put a little bit away for a rainy day," "I love a lassie," "Hi! Johnny, who's your tailor?" and "How'd you like to spoon with me?"

THAT pretty ditty, "Rosy's cosy bungalow," which has been made so popular by Miss Alice Lloyd, and which, if we mistake not, is by the ubiquitous Mills and Scott, is now free for pantomime. It is published by Messrs. Francis, Day and Hunter.

MR. PAT CARRY starts on a Moss and Stoll tour on Monday next, 29th inst., for five months, commencing at the Empire, Sheffield.

MUSIC HALL ARTISTS' RAILWAY ASSOCIATION.

The tenth annual general meeting of the members of this association was held on Tuesday afternoon at the Empire, Camberwell. Mr. Fred Neiman presided, and the members present, including the committee, who occupied seats on the stage, numbered about eighty.

Mr. C. Douglas Stuart, the secretary, having read the notice convening the meeting, Mr. F. Harrison and Mr. Chas. Mildare were appointed tellers, and Messrs. Ben Woodger, Joe Lavender, Bob Venola, and H. E. High scrutineers.

The secretary then read the annual report of the committee, as follows:—

In presenting to the members this, the ninth annual report for the past twelve months, the executive committee has great pleasure in announcing that the Association has continued its unvarying success, the membership roll having increased and the financial position being eminently satisfactory, a much larger amount being in hand than ever before. The current account at the bankers is £298 19s. 2d., also there is a deposit balance at the Birkbeck Bank of £500, as well as the reserve fund, which, including the interest derived during the year, amounts to £365 7s., and petty cash £20, making a total in all of £1,184 6s. 2d.

The committee propose that the surplus of receipts over expenditure should be disbursed in the following manner—the sum of 100 guineas to be donated to each of the following charities: The Railway Benevolent Institution, the Railway Servants' Orphanage, the Music Hall Benevolent Fund, and the Music Hall Home Fund; that a sum of 100 guineas be also donated to the Music Hall Ladies' Guild, and a similar amount to other railway charities to be decided by the committee, making in all 600 guineas, also that a sum of £150 be added to the present reserve fund, and the remainder be carried over to next year's account.

The past year has been one of uninterrupted success, and no element of discord has occurred to mar the smooth and harmonious internal working of the Association. The principal event of the year was the holding at the offices during the months of January and February of a series of conferences, attended by delegates from each of the principal music hall societies. The outcome of the deliberations resulted in the formation of the present successful Variety Artists' Federation, it being decided that no trade union could be legitimately formed through the M.H.A.R.A., as that association was entirely for the one purpose of obtaining railway and kindred concessions.

The committee decided not to hold the annual dinner and dance, owing to the loss thereon the year previous.

In placing a larger sum than in other years to the reserve fund the committee has in view the establishment of branch offices of the Association at certain of the principal provincial centres, the business at the agencies thereat having so increased that this step is deemed expedient, and it is believed will be cordially approved of by all members as facilitating the smoother working of the business of the Association.

The committee deeply regrets the deaths, during the past year, of two of its members, Mr. Charles Edgar, of the Bros. Edgar (who was one of the original committee), and Mr. Frank Coyne, both of whom for many years worked most assiduously on behalf of the Association.

Sincere thanks are due to the theatrical representatives of the various railway companies for the many courtesies and kindnesses extended by them to members of the Association during the year; also to the hon. medical officers, and the hon. officers of the Association, including the hon. treasurer, hon. trustees, and hon. solicitor, whose gratuitous and generous assistance has, as in the past, contributed in no small degree to the welfare and prosperity of the Association. The committee also desire to record their gratitude to the provincial agents throughout Great Britain, who have performed their duties most energetically and efficiently, and against whom the complaints received from members have, with one or two exceptions, been very few.

With reference to the insurance of the members through the Ocean Accident Co., owing to the small amount of claims paid from October to the end of May, the committee obtained a reduction on the premium for the current year of over £23. Since June the number of claims received has been considerably larger, and compensation for the same to a greater amount has been obtained.

At the 477th meeting the following propositions were proposed, seconded, and carried unanimously: "That Mr. W. H. Clemart be given a presentation by the Association for his work and services last year." "That the presentation should take the form of a typewriter, suitably inscribed, the cost to be up to ten guineas."

The committee would like to draw the attention of the members to the question of refunds. The railway companies are kindly willing to grant refunds, although entailing a great amount of labour and trouble, and it is believed that in many cases the applications received are caused by the neglect and thoughtlessness of members, and therefore the committee appeal to them to lessen the number of the above by more strictly adhering to the rules of the Association, particularly as to meeting at the provincial agencies on Saturdays at 12.30, and then arranging with the other members travelling as to the line they wish to travel by, and the day and time.

In concluding this report of the year's working the committee wish to thank the members for their co-operation and support in working together to benefit and assist one another, and trust that the same may continue in an even greater degree, and that by united effort to further the interests of the entire profession increased benefits, even more than those already existing, may be secured, and thus the Association will be able to continue on its triumphal path towards the zenith of prosperity and popularity.

We have examined the above statement with the books and vouchers of the Association, and certify it to be correct. We have verified the investment and the balances at bank and in hand.

Jackson, Pixley, Browning, Husey, and Co., Chartered Accountants, Auditors.

Oct. 20, 1906.

The chairman then addressed the meeting. He said that the Association was now on a sound business basis. He had not had the pleasure of serving the whole of the year, as he succeeded a gentleman who could not attend the meetings regularly, and therefore resigned. In the near future it was the intention of the committee to again approach the railway companies, and endeavour to obtain some further concessions. It was not his intention to make a long speech, and he appealed to the members present to assist him in conducting the proceedings in accordance with the rules by which public meetings were usually controlled. He held that the discussions ought to be confined to railway matters pure and simple, and he hoped they would support his ruling on this point. Owing to the length of the agenda paper, the proposer of a resolution or an amendment would be allowed ten minutes for his speech, and the seconder or supporter five minutes. If they would all loyally assist him in carrying through the business of the meeting, he believed that they would get on very well.

Mr. Albert Voyce, in moving the adoption of the annual report in the place of Mr. W. H. Clemart, explained that that gentleman having been presented with a typewriter for his work and services to the Association, as stated in the report just read, requested that he should be excused from moving its adoption. Therefore the task had devolved upon him; and he was very pleased to point out in the first place that the Association had experienced a most successful year financially. This was, he believed, due to the fact that the committee was composed of men who had sound commercial instincts. They knew how the business should be conducted, and the value of money; they knew how to run a commercial enterprise, and it was, he thought, entirely due to these gentlemen that the present prosperous condition of the Association was due. Instead of granting the sum of fifty guineas to each of the railway and music hall charities, they were able to grant one hundred guineas. That in itself was a sign of progress and success, and must be pleasant for every member of the Association to hear. In addition to the contributions to the Railway Benevolent Institution, the Railway Servants' Orphanage, the Music Hall Benevolent Fund, and the Music Hall Home Fund, a sum of one hundred guineas would also be donated to the Music Hall Ladies' Guild, and a similar amount to other railway charities, making a total of six hundred guineas. This was a great advance on the amount given in aid of charities last year. He understood that some of the members present were opposed to the grant to the newly-formed Ladies' Guild, and he hoped he would have an opportunity of replying to any adverse remarks that might be made on this proposal. If the objects of the Guild were as stated, it would be a crying shame not to grant it a contribution, such as they had granted to other charitable organisations. They ought not in such matters to be governed by individual prejudices. A well-known writer had said that the best principles, if carried to extremes, eventually became fatal vices; and he believed that this question affecting the Guild would be dealt with in a broad-minded, charitable manner. He thought that the Guild was well deserving of support. An offshoot of the Association was the Variety Artists' Federation, and it must be pleasing to them all to know that their work had been followed by such great results. A larger sum would also be added to the reserve fund this year, the committee considering that the time was ripe for the establishment of branch offices of the Association in Liverpool, Manchester, Birmingham, Glasgow, and other large provincial towns. But to carry this out they must have the necessary funds. This was a proposal of Mr. Gray's, and he (the speaker) thought it an excellent one. They all regretted the death of two good members of the Association, Mr. Charles Edgar and Mr. Frank Coyne. Their sincere thanks were due to the theatrical representatives of the various railway companies, and he would like to see these gentlemen supported and courteously treated by the members of the Association. Their agents, he might say in passing, were not always treated as nicely as they ought to be. It should be borne in mind that they were all working together for one object—the benefit of the Association. Next referring to Mr. Clemart, the speaker said he was one of the hardest workers in the Association. He was one of the main movers in the reform of the office work, and probably no one would ever really know the amount of time and work he had put in for the benefit of the Association. If any member deserved some recognition for his services, it was Mr. Clemart, for he had worked night and day for the Association. Another point in the report was with regard to the question of refunds, and he desired to impress upon members the importance of serious attention to this matter. In conclusion, Mr. Voyce expressed a hope that the report would be dealt with in a broad-minded, business-like, unselfish and unprejudiced spirit, and that they would work in unity for the good of the Association.

Mr. Albert Brady seconded the resolution, which was carried unanimously.

Certain alterations in the rules, as recommended by the Executive Committee, were submitted for adoption. One of the rules was that the number of hon. vice-presidents should not exceed ten.

Mr. Voyce said he did not think that the position of vice-president should be open to everyone. It should only be open to those who had done something to entitle them to the honour. He moved as an amendment that the number should not exceed five.

Mr. Walter Hast seconded.

Mr. Harry Blake thought there should be some qualification for the position of vice-president, and he should remain in office for at least three years. It should be considered a special honour.

Mr. Hast did not think it was necessary to go outside the Association for vice-presidents.

Mr. Atlas expressed a similar opinion.

Mr. Millis pointed out that Sir James Bailey had done a great deal for the Association when they first approached the railway companies.

Mr. Frank Gerald also said that Sir James Bailey had done valuable service in the past, and Mr. John Sanger represented the circus artists. It was important that they should be represented on the Association. Other vice-presidents had done good work for the Association, and he did not think that the number was too great.

Mr. Harry Mountford said he did not seek any honour or glory in being one of the vice-presidents, and when his year of office had expired, he should retire in favour of other members of the Association who were also working for its good.

The amendment on being put was lost.

Following on a suggestion made by Mr. Blake, Mr. Clemart proposed that no committee of less than ten members shall settle an important matter unless such committee be unanimous; if not, such matter be sent out to ballot by the whole committee.

Mr. Millis seconded the proposal, which was carried.

On the motion of Mr. Mountford, seconded by Mr. Schaffer, it was agreed that any member who is in London and neglects to attend a committee meeting for one month shall be considered to have resigned.

A long discussion took place as to whether an Association advertisement should be inserted in a contemporary, the representative of which had been excluded from the meeting. This question was also debated, Mr. Mountford and Mr. Voyce contending that the reporter ought to have been admitted. The meeting, however, by a large majority, expressed approval of the action of the committee.

Other new rules and amendment of rules having been agreed to, Mr. Douglas White (hon. treasurer) presented the revenue account for the past year.

Mr. Blake moved the adoption of the account, remarking that the Association was in such a flourishing condition that he thought the least said the better.

Mr. John Alexander seconded the proposal, which was carried.

Mr. Pat Carey moved that the annual dinner be again held, the place to be decided by the majority of members present. He also suggested that the dinner should again take place at the Horns, Kennington. In reply to Mr. Clemart, he said that if there was any loss on the dinner, he was in favour of it being defrayed out of the funds of the Association.

Mr. Millis seconded, and the proposition was carried, it being also agreed that the place and date should be arranged by the committee.

Mr. Harry Mountford then moved the following resolution:—"That this meeting instructs the incoming committee to immediately take the necessary steps to find such premises as are fit for the offices of the M.H.A.R.A. at its present state of growth, such premises to be called the Music Hall Exchange, and to be sufficiently large to accommodate all the various music hall societies, so that all such societies may be under one roof. And this meeting further instructs the trustees to pay on demand by the Executive Committee such sum from the reserve funds as shall be necessary to carry out this proposition." He said his proposal was that the building they rented should include reading and writing rooms, a post-office bureau, a bureau de change, a room for the holding of committee meetings of the Association, the Music Hall Home Fund, the Music Hall Sick Fund, the Ladies' Guild, the International Artists' Lodge, and the Variety Artists' Federation. The music hall profession had grown to such importance, and so many interests were involved, that he considered a central place of meeting was urgently needed in London. It would mean a great saving of time, and the various societies would be called upon to contribute to the rent of the premises. If they had a variety artists' bureau connected with the various halls, a manager could always be supplied with the names of artists ready to fill up an unexpected vacancy in a bill, and work would thus be found for members of the Association. Branches could also be established throughout the country, so that provincial performers could not say that they were overlooked. There were times of stress and trouble looming ahead for the variety profession, and they knew not from whence the next attack would come. A circular had recently been issued purporting to come from an association of managers, and this had been sent round to most of the railway companies' directors, asking them to do away with the three-quarters fare concession for artists, the object being to smash up the Railway Association. He did not believe that any reputable managers had anything to do with this communication. He denied that his scheme was, as some had alleged, an Utopian one, but if they gave the necessary powers to the committee, the Music Hall Exchange might speedily become a reality.

Mr. Schafer seconded.

Mr. Brady thought the suggestion an excellent one. The Association were paying an exorbitant rent for their offices in Wellington-street.

Mr. Mountford: Of course, if the committee found that the rent of a suitable building was too heavy, the proposal would fall through.

Mr. Clemart asked who would be held responsible for the payment of the cost. It might possibly be found necessary to make a levy upon all the members of the Association. Would the societies mentioned by Mr. Mountford all become tenants? That was an important question. He was, however, prepared to support the reference of the whole matter to the committee.

Mr. Douglas White said they had had a considerable difficulty in securing their present offices, and were called upon to pay the rent in advance for three years.

Mr. Pat Carey, speaking as the president of the Music Hall Sick Fund, said he considered the idea was a splendid one; but it was necessary to be very careful how they went to work in the matter.

Mr. Harrison said that the Association at present occupied nearly the whole of the premises in Wellington-street.

Mr. Hast supported the proposal, and after further discussion Mr. Mountford said he objected to his scheme being condemned with faint praise.

Mr. Gerald spoke in support of the proposal, which was carried unanimously.

In the absence of Mr. George Gray, Mr. Hast moved the following resolution:—"That in the opinion of this meeting it is expedient that the M.H.A.R.A. be affiliated and federated with the V.A.F., and that the accumulated and accumulating funds of both institutions be conjointly devoted to the objects, attainments, and benevolent principles of the said institutions, and that one governing and administrative body shall preside over such affiliated and federated Associations."

Mr. Hast read a communication received from Mr. Gray, who apologised for his unavoidable absence, being engaged at Newcastle. Mr. Gray, in his statement, said:—In placing before you this resolution it is necessary to become a little retrospective and call your attention to resolutions of the last general meeting. It is necessary because the voice of the association upon such resolutions has made itself clearly and unanimously heard upon the subject of reform. Last year I humbly and respectfully submitted to the members of the association a scheme of reform. It embraced objects of beneficial interest and benevolence, and proposals that would tend to place our profession upon the same strong basis as other commercial industries, removing the prejudicial stigma that hitherto had been cast upon us, and raise us to the same level of other honourable professions. Voting postcards were sent out to the members. Some, unfortunately, failed to read them, but the response was very gratifying. The question asked on such postcards was: "Are you in favour of this scheme or not?" Six hundred replies came in. Three said "No"; five said "Yes" with certain qualifications, and 592 emphatically said "Yes." The appointed committee debated and discussed the same, and ultimately came to the conclusion that it would be better, in the first instance, to form a new and separate association, and afterwards to affiliate with other associations. Personally, I was doubtful as to the possibility of success, but I was wrong. I am delighted to say it—I was wrong. The V.A.F. was formed, and is an unqualified success, and promises to become a gigantic and powerful institution. It is now affiliated with the great Continental institution, the I.A.L., and also the White Rats of America. The great majority of the members of the M.H.A.R.A. (children and assistants excepted) are members of the V.A.F. Many members of the former are, and have been, under the impression that both associations were already affiliated with some of the forms of the V.A.F. The affiliation of these two bodies, which really now are one, will in no way interfere with any professional joining the M.H.A.R.A. (railway concession branch) alone. There will be no alteration of the procedure or rules governing that body, but the consolidation of the funds and objects of both bodies will strengthen, unite, and dignify both bodies as a whole. I may mention that in promoting the last year's scheme I did say that years back the M.H.A.R.A. enlarged its objects to legal protection, and endeavoured to obtain a unanimous contract with managers and the modification of the barring clause, but as committees came and went they varied in strength of purpose, enterprise, and wisdom. Times change, and there is now unanimity of enthusiasm and determination. I believe you have, or will have, before you to-day a resolution by Bro. Mountford, one of the most enthusiastic and ardent workers in the cause of freedom—a resolution that I am in perfect harmony with, and which should obtain unanimous support—in fact, I would like to see the resolutions embodied together, for they both spell reform, protection, and emancipation. What has already been achieved is but the preliminary of further achievements. Three of the greatest aims that should help to strengthen that are the modification of barring clauses, equitable contracts, and the foundation of branch institutions in the large provincial cities, where the business of the M.H.A.R.A. and the V.A.F. could jointly be carried on. This only can be accomplished by the aid of funds, and the passing of the foregoing resolution is, I venture to think, a comprehensive way of successfully accomplishing such undertakings. I respectfully suggest, in conclusion, that if this meeting does not consider that its voice alone should be conclusive, the vote of the majority of the members of the M.H.A.R.A. should be taken in the country, and to remove the expense of sending out voting papers it be taken at the eighty odd meetings that are held weekly in the provinces by the V.A.F., who are all, with few, if any, exceptions, members of the M.H.A.R.A. I can only add, if it is necessary, that this resolution before you is only actuated by feelings of regard for the welfare of brother and sister professionals, and the furtherance of the motto that has always guided me, and always will—"The greatest good to the greatest number."

The Chairman ruled that the resolution was out of order.

Mr. Hast also moved on behalf of Mr. George Gray the following resolution:—"That in the opinion of this meeting, with a view to a greater facility for thousands of members attending general meetings, who are at present precluded by provincial engagements from so attending, it is deemed advisable that in future the general meetings be held on Sundays, or upon such day upon which few (if any) entertainments are given."

Mr. Borelli seconded the motion, which was carried.

Mr. Millis asked why his name was erased from the books as vice-president?

It was pointed out that this had happened through an error, and it was agreed that the name of Mr. Millis should be added to the list of vice-presidents.

On a show of hands, Mr. W. H. Clemart was elected hon. president in place of Mr. Harry Randall.

The hon. vice-presidents appointed were Sir Sir James Bailey, Messrs. Charles Coborn, George Gilbert, George Gray, Albert Le Fre, W. J. P. Monckton, Harry Mountford, John Sanger, and F. W. Millis. Mr. Douglas White was re-elected hon. treasurer; and Messrs. Jackson, Pixley, Browning, Husey and Co., were reappointed chartered accountants.

Votes of thanks were accorded to the Press, also to Messrs. Jesse Sparrow and Harry Bawn for the use of the theatre.

The meeting, which lasted four hours and a half, concluded with a vote of thanks to the chairman.

The following representatives of the railway companies were present:—Messrs. A. H. Hoyle (L. and South-Western), Frank Lunnon (Great Northern), W. Simpson (Great Western), W. Barton (Great Central), and F. Stenning (Great Eastern).

Mr. Joe May, who has severed his connection from the King's, Gateshead, was the recipient of a bumper benefit on Friday evening, the 19th.

Increasing business necessitates the extension of Mr. Fred Neiman's offices. He will therefore transfer his well-known agency, on Monday, Nov. 5, to larger and more centrally-situated offices at 103, Strand, W.C., where a cordial welcome will await his many clients and friends.

The negotiations that were opened up by the L.C.C. with a syndicate with the object of letting a lease of the central portion of the crescent site in the Strand, at a rent of £55,000 a year (the scheme including the erection of a theatre), have fallen through, and the site is still to let.

Mr. Joe Lyons, who is certainly one of the most practical temperance reformers of his era, has propounded a scheme for building new music halls, with winter gardens next door to each one of them. No liquor licences will be required either for halls or gardens. The popular Joe proposes to construct the winter gardens so that they will be exactly suited for any season of the year. When the ordinary music halls have a difficulty in holding their own, he hopes to secure a clientèle that will find pleasure in having their light refreshments, with music included, amid garden-like surroundings, and a reasonable percentage may be expected to patronise the adjoining music hall. No intoxicants will be sold. That the project is a money-losing one is the thought of every practical man.

"AN IRISH HONEYMOON."

A Musical Sketch, Libretto by C. H. Aguzzi, Music by Frank Corrie and E. W. Eaton, produced at Collins's Music Hall, Islington, on Monday, Oct. 22.

Spinks .....Mr. E. E. Giles, jun.
The Count .....Mr. C. H. Aguzzi
Lord Bellvelle .....Mr. Brian Desmond
Prof. Moggs .....Mr. Henry Shaw
Molly .....Miss Elsie Millward
Kitty .....Miss Vera Granville

The sketch, presented for the first time at Collins's on Monday is a condensation of a three-act play, with the same plot, which has been on tour for three years with considerable success, and many theatre-goers have regarded the piece with great favour. As a sketch, An Irish Honeymoon forms a lively, amusing, and tuneful trifle, and evidence as to its acceptability by a variety audience has not been lacking at Islington this week. By the time these lines are in print, the company will have got thoroughly into the swing of their work, and what alterations it may have been deemed advisable to make will have been attended to. On that assumption the piece should become a valuable portion of any music-hall programme. The story may be lightly touched upon. Professor Moggs, an elderly individual, with a scheming turn of mind, wishes to marry his ward, Molly, to his nephew. There is someone else, however, who appears to be in love with Molly, and that is Lord Bellvelle. It appears that the professor has never seen the nephew for whom he is endeavouring to negotiate such an advantageous marriage contract, and toward the end of the piece Lord Bellvelle succeeds in palming himself off as the relative in whom the professor takes such a deal of fatherly interest. Before this happy climax is brought about, many amusing incidents occur, not the least laughable of which is a duel between Spinks, Lord Belvelle's valet, and a German count. Bellvelle, receiving a challenge to mortal conflict from the bellicose count, arranges that Spinks shall personate him, and that he (Bellvelle) shall be the valet for the time being. Mr. E. E. Giles as Spinks is intensely comical, and his antics create uproarious merriment. Mr. Chas. H. Aguzzi is seen and heard to advantage in the rôle of the irascible Count; and Mr. Brian Desmond is good as the lover-like, but somewhat larkish, Lord Bellvelle. Mr. Henry Shaw, too, gives us a capital character-sketch of the old professor, upon whom so much deception is practised. As to the ladies, Miss Elsie Millward is graceful and engaging in the part of Molly. She dances and sings sweetly, and her duet ("Would you care if I should leave you?") with Mr. Desmond, as well as the chorus song, "Put it in your répertoire," with which the sketch opens, proves a delightfully catchy number. Miss Vera Granville sings, acts, and dances in attractive fashion as the gay and sprightly Kitty, who is amorously inclined towards Spinks, and between the two there are some funny passages. Miss Granville is heard to good effect in a couple of bright chorus ditties, namely, "The girl who leads the band" and "The Moon." The choruses, under the direction of Mr. Edward P. Delevanti, are admirably rendered, and the tout ensemble is excellent. Mr. Charles Phillips may be congratulated on his work as the producer. Both the mounting and the dresses of the playlet are pretty and picturesque.

WALTHAMSTOW PALACE.

The programme submitted here this week by Mr. Arthur J. Barclay may be fitly described as being one of high average merit, with the accompanying attractive power. A distinct success is achieved by that popular artist, Miss Lottie Collins, who, making her first appearance here, is received with something approaching enthusiasm. Bright and vivacious as of yore, Miss Collins brings to bear upon her efforts all that grace and finish that have stood her in good stead in many lands. The Three Sisters Silcott, who are no strangers here, sing with good effect, "Good-bye, sweet Dinah" and "I'll buy a little baby by and by," doing also a short, but well-executed, dance. Mr. Harry Maxam, a comedian with a quaintly-humorous manner, is loudly applauded, firstly in "I do know where to find 'em," and afterwards in "They're just beginning to sprout." Of Parks's Eton Boys it is impossible to say more than that the troupe maintain their high reputation for a singularly neat and elegant turn. The various soloists of the company give a good account of the songs allotted to them, while the lads throw a little more acting into their entertainment than formerly, thereby greatly enhancing the pleasure of their audience. Miss Venie Clements, another singer who has made herself popular here on more than one occasion, gives several imitations of various styles of singing very cleverly, followed by her amusing impersonation of a baby with a wonderful doll, and finishing with a spirited dance. Mr. Johnny Dwyer has a big reception in his amusing song, "I wouldn't let it upset me," and for his pathetic singing of his favourite "Home, Sweet Home," song, in which he impersonates a British workman to the life. The sketch for the week is supplied by that popular actor, Mr. Fred Eustace, who, with his talented company, appears with the greatest success in Our Jack; or, A Sister's Love. This is a miniature melodrama of a robust, not to say full-blooded, description, in which an interesting, if not especially novel, story, is told in a succession of well-conceived scenes punctuated with strong situations, never forced, but arising naturally out of the action. Miss Mary Eustace makes an admirable impression as the twin sisters, Grace and Lizzette Armitage, whose joys and woes form the pivot on which the plot revolves. Naturally Miss Eustace finds most scope for her powerful acting in the part of the much-wronged outcast sister Lizzette, which she plays with no inconsiderable intensity, while her picture of the good Grace is interesting. Mr. Fred Eustace is a fine, manly, and spirited hero as Lieutenant Jack Seymour, the actor's well-known hearty manner being exactly suited to a part that fits him like a glove, and insures the popularity of the handsome young sailor every moment he is on the stage. For an uncompromising villain recommend us to the Captain Hamilton of Mr. Charles Gordon, the only surprise being that a man who apparently delights in evil-doing "knuckles down" so quickly and quietly at the first piece of evidence adduced against him. But as his unconditional surrender is necessary for the somewhat hurried dénouement, it is impossible for him to offer any prolonged defiance. Mr. Walter Graham gives a good account of Captain Martyn, whose somewhat hazy character seems to be that of "second murderer" to his chief, Hamilton. A boyish middy is found in the Bertie Derwent of Mr. Leonard Acland. Mr. David Collins is good as the bluff admiral, Sir John Trevor, who, however, is invariably addressed as "my lord" in the last scene. Probably the gallant commander was raised to the peerage during the course of the "front cloth" scene. Mr. John Miller is a fine, outspoken Inspector Wilding; and Miss Adeline Lester does well all that is required of her as Lady Trevor. Ruffell's Imperial Bioscope finishes a programme which is agreeably opened by a delightful rendering of the overture to Auber's Masaniello by the orchestra, under the direction of Mr. H. Petersen. The elaborate stage-management of the whole evening is attended to by Mr. John Grant with his customary skill.

The Hippodrome at Lowestoft will be reopened for the season on Monday.

THE CHELSEA LODGE.

The closing meeting of the session for the current year of the Chelsea Lodge of Freemasons, of which Mr. Albert Le Fre is the reigning Master, was held at the Chelsea Town Hall on Friday, the 19th inst. Mr. James W. Mathews was in the chair. Messrs. T. Serpentello, S.W.; Douglas White, J.W.; Wolfe S. Lyon, treasurer; C. J. Doughty, secretary; Walter H. Hitch, S.D.; Harry Bawn, J.D.; W. F. K. Wallon, I.G.; Angelo Asher, organist; Fred Clay, D.C.; Geo. H. Dyball, L. G. Sharpe, and Ernest Lester, stewards. The other brethren present were Messrs. Frank Hardie, F. H. Pedgrift, Fred Neiman, J. B. Helm, H. C. Radford, Geo. Gilbey, H. Heriot Hill, Geo. Grahame, T. S. Burnetti, Edwin Brett, G. H. Hill, Fred Farren, W. Permane, Ernest Rees, W. C. Jeapes, J. H. Ellis, W. Scott Adaeker, J. W. Woodward, Robert Duce, James Prior, H. Kay Ramsden, and S. Goodman. The following were the visitors; J. D. Murray, T. Rumble, D. M. Trytel, Fred Kitchen, Jesse Sparrow, H. G. Jellard, Herbert Chenery, Fred C. Collins, Geo. Everard, and R. H. Willis.

During the afternoon Mr. J. W. Mathews vacated the chair in favour of Mr. Wolfe S. Lyon and Mr. Chenery, who assisted in the day's work, Mr. Solomon Goodman, proprietor of the Criterion Theatre, Worksop, was received into Freemasonry. At the conclusion of the business a photo group, which we reproduce, was taken of the founders and members of the Lodge.

This Lodge, we believe, owes its existence to the accident of fortune. During the time that Mr. Wolfe S. Lyon filled the senior offices in the Earl's Court Lodge, he introduced into Freemasonry many members of the musical and dramatic profession, and finding from the fact that the Lodge being held in the evening his friends were prevented from accepting any office that might be offered to them, conceived the idea of having a Lodge that could be held in the afternoon exclusively for the benefit of the allied professions. He therefore approached Mr. Henri Gros and asked his permission to use the board rooms of the Chelsea Palace (from which the Lodge takes its name) for that purpose. Mr. Gros immediately granted permission, and also expressed his pleasure at becoming one of the founders. The concession having been obtained, Mr. James W. Mathews, of the Duke of York's Theatre, consented to become the first Master, and the ball having thus been set rolling, a petition (recommended by the Master and Wardens of the Drury Lane Lodge), with no less than thirty-four signatures, was presented to Grand Lodge. The charter was granted, and the consecration by Sir Edward Letchworth, assisted by the late Rev. Sir Borrodaile Savory, Bart., Messrs. Harry Nicholls, Henry G. Neville, Percy Fitzgerald, Frank Richardson, and Henry Sadler, was celebrated at Frascati's Restaurant on May 19, 1905.

In the first year of its existence the Lodge gave 25 guineas to the Masonic charities, and a similar amount to their own benevolent fund, paid the whole of its expenses, and closed the year with a balance of £50.

The usefulness of the Lodge may be gathered from the fact that, having started with thirty-four founders, during the first year it more than doubled its numbers, and, as it is continually increasing, it was found necessary to remove with much regret from the home so kindly placed at its disposal. It is therefore now held in the Lodge rooms of the Chelsea Town Hall, immediately opposite to the old home.

It must be very encouraging to the founders and all concerned to know that its usefulness and good reputation for its working is greatly commented upon among the professional Lodges throughout the country, as well as in the United States of America, many of whose Lodges some of the members have visited. We wish it every success, and can only express the hope that it will long continue to enjoy the reputation it has so well earned during the time that may still be termed its infancy.

STRATFORD EMPIRE.

The recent decorations to the interior add greatly to the comfort and attractiveness of this variety theatre, which, under Mr. T. S. Mayne's assiduous management continues to travel the path of prosperity. A feature of last week's bill was The Chauffeur, a musical comedy-sketch by Edward Marris, which serves as an excellent vehicle to exploit the talent of Frank Danby on the variety stage. The scene is laid in the American bar of the Centreland Hotel, wherein figure a bevy of pretty girls, bar-tenders, and others. Enter the spruce little chauffeur, Jim, who, in song and dance, tells of his driving prowess, and makes free with all and sundry. Jim has a brother Jack, a bar-tender at the hotel, and he now agrees to let Jack take his motor while he dons Jack's coat and goes behind the bar. The amusing situations which ensue between Jim and Lady Kitty, the Major, and the inane dude, Archie, are provocative of much mirth, and when the curtain descends on the return of Jack with the broken car and the exposure of Jim there are very hearty rounds of applause for the principal character in the sketch. Mr. Danby is well supported by Mr. E. Freshwater, Mr. Tom Graves, Mr. Edmund Russon, Miss Ethel Bryant, and Miss Esme Edwardes.

Ludwig Amann possesses a wonderful command of facial expression, and his presentment of past and present statesmen and rulers are remarkably true portraits. No slight sense of humour enters into the turn, for much amusement is caused when silk-hatted John Burns is presented to the strains of "Where did you get that hat?" and the performer considers it quite superfluous to announce it beforehand when he presents the unmistakable features of Joe Chamberlain. The Five Bogannys are in high favour with their Risley and tumbling act. So adept are they that their movements appear quite bewildering, and their performance is carried through with a zest and briskness pleasing to witness. Roy and Fenton provide some amusing moments. The gent of the duo shows versatility as a pianist, reciter, and dancer, and his jokes at the expense of his well-proportioned partner are much relished. Miss José Collins created a very favourable impression when she sings "Firefly," a very taking rag-time melody, and was equally successful in her second song, "Mexicano."

Florence and Lillian contributed a musical act which is one of the most enjoyable items on the programme. These prepossessing young ladies show considerable skill on numerous wind and string instruments. One of the twain is a vocalist of no mean order, and there is always an air of charm and refinement about their turn. Victor Travers appeared in scanty and grotesque attire, and aroused plenty of laughter with his coon-song skit, and his humorous patter and clever "taking-off" of a previous performer won much favour. Amy Russell received hearty applause for her vocal efforts; and the Avrignys displayed considerable ability as jugglers and equilibrists. The Bioscope pictures are always very popular, and the series provided for the week were watched with the closest interest and loudly applauded. Early comers were regaled with the selection, "La Mascotte," finely rendered by the orchestra, who have an alert and able director in Mr. Augustus Greco.

TERRIER ARTHUR SIMMONS entertained a large party on Thursday, Oct. 18, to celebrate the twenty-first birthday of his youngest daughter Beatrice. There were upwards of one hundred guests.

THE NEW EMPIRE, COVENTRY.

The high expectations formed of Mr. George Dance's new Empire, Coventry, were fully realised on Monday, when the theatre was opened to a crowded audience, which included the Mayor and Mayoress. The theatre is handsomely appointed, the comfort of its patrons being studied in every particular.

The seats are steeply raked, and a clear view of the stage is obtained from every quarter. Pleasing harmonies of crimson, terra cotta, biscuit colour, and gold are effected in the decoration. The square frame of the proscenium is flanked by fluted Ionic pilasters, Ionic pillars and rococo ornamentation are conspicuous in the treatment of the private boxes, and above the centre of the stage opening, supported by allegorical figures in bas-relief, is the representation of the city arms, leading up to the gracefully panelled ceiling, with its scintillant centre sun lights. The curtains, carpets, and upholstery are of crimson, and the interior presents a very pretty picture.

Proceedings were begun by the singing of the National Anthem, in which the audience joined vociferously. The opening piece was the popular musical comedy, The Catch of the Season, and at the end of the first act Mr. J. Alban Newton, the resident-manager, stepped forward and announced that Mr. Dance would say a few words.

A hearty greeting awaited Mr. Dance, who said: Ladies and gentlemen, I have ben told by a few of my friends of Coventry that I should interrupt your amusement of this evening to make a little personal explanation. First, I must apologise for the unfinished state of this theatre. I have heard several times during this week there is an idea that this theatre has been what is known as a "rushed job," which means that it has been hurried forward unduly. Now, I can assure you that that is not true on my part. I entered into contract with various tradesmen to have this building finished ready for opening last Monday. Last Monday evening we were supposed to have opened. You saw the state of the place last Monday—I need say no more. A transformation has been effected during the last few days, thanks mainly to my excellent staff, whom I have called from all parts of the country. They have worked heart and soul almost day and night during the past week, and we have succeeded in opening to-night in some fashion or other. I can assure you that within the next few weeks the place will be as perfect as I had originally intended it should be. Now I will pass to something more pleasant. It is my intention here to give a varied entertainment. My experience has proved, and it has been a rather extensive one, that there are not sufficient theatrical companies to go round in the year. Therefore to keep the entertainment of sufficient variety it is necessary to combine the two. That is my experience. This week we are a theatre. It is my own company, therefore I cannot say much about it, but I hope it has pleased. (Applause.) Next week we start variety, and I have pleasure in announcing that at the head of the bill will figure the brightest star in the variety firmament, Miss Vesta Tilley. (Applause.) Miss Vesta Tilley is usually supposed to be a native of Birmingham, but she told me last week that she fancied—only fancied—that she was born in Coventry. (Laughter.) I reminded her that Miss Ellen Terry was born in Coventry. (Applause.) Miss Vesta Tilley said that Miss Ellen Terry was credited with two birthplaces in Coventry. I said, "Of course." She said, "I propose Miss Terry and I toss; she to keep the one and I to take the other." Now one word in regard to varieties. Please don't be afraid of that word varieties. It does not necessarily mean vulgar pot-house amusements. The variety house of the future and of the present day that is conducted on up-to-date lines provides a refined and yet a funny entertainment. This house, I hope, will ring with laughter on many, many occasions, but you will find nothing vulgar here. You may bring your wives and you may send your children, and I assure you while I have the honour to manage this house you will find nothing that you will be ashamed of. I am proposing to give during the season a certain number of theatrical matinées. I am told that Coventry people are too busy to go to matinées. The professional man—yes. The artisan—yes. But they have wives and daughters who have left school, and they will come to the matinée. I have arranged to bring companies from Birmingham and from London, because they could not possibly come to Coventry for the week; Coventry is not so big as Birmingham or London; but they will come to matinées. I can bring you the finest stars—and I hope to do so—in the theatrical world, and I trust they will prove successful. And now, ladies and gentlemen, before I retire let me say a few words to thank the very good friends I have met during my stay in Coventry, and who have been so good in their efforts to assist me in the terrible chaos which we have passed through during the past week. I must also thank those who have sent telegrams—there are many here; at every turning I met a telegraph boy. There are many kind friends all over the country who have wished me success. Believe me, my success is your success. This is my house, and you are my guests. I will provide you with good fare. Do not stay away. I hope there will be very few vacant chairs in the Empire Theatre, Coventry.

THE presentation to Mr. W. E. Higgett, the retiring assistant-manager of the Hackney Empire, at that house on Saturday evening, took the form of a companion solid silver cigarette case and match-box, in case, bearing his monogram and the following inscription:—"Presented to W. E. Higgett, Esq., by the staff of the Hackney Empire, 20th Oct., 1906." The gift was presented after the second performance by Mr. John Christie, the popular manager. The recipient thanked one and all most heartily.

DEATH OF JOSEPH POOLE.

It is with great regret we have to record the death of Mr. Joseph Poole, the senior brother of the well-known firm of Messrs. Poole Bros., the famous producers of myrioramas, whose entertainments have proved attractive, interesting, and instructive in every town and city in the kingdom. Born at Malmesbury in 1847, Joseph Poole left home, when quite a boy, to join his uncles, Messrs. G. W. and Charles Poole, who had been interested in the panorama business since 1837. Joseph Poole's youthful ability and industry were applied to the learning of his business, in which he became an expert. His famous pictorial and mechanical productions and realisations of the various wars of modern times and scenes and places of interest the world over will long be remembered by young and old.

Myrioramas and varieties have not been the only form of entertainment exploited by this well-known entrepreneur, for in the late sixties and early seventies he toured English opera, producing all the well-known operas. Later he vastly improved and brought up to date by his mechanical ingenuity Professor Pepper's Ghost. Then followed the myrioramas, with which his name is so closely allied, and the partnership with his brothers in the various theatres at Gloucester, Porth, Treherbert, and Maesteg.

After a long and active career on the road, he eventually retired from the show business, and built himself a house adjoining his studio in his native town. When the town became incorporated he was elected Alderman, a position he held until the time of his death. He was chosen as Mayor of the ancient borough twice in succession, in 1890 and 1891, and was also elected County Councillor of Wiltshire, a position he held for years, until failing health compelled him to resign.

An agriculturist born, the old instinct asserted itself on his retirement from the road, and farming, his one hobby, became predominant. This he followed with great zeal and success, especially as a breeder of cattle, as the many trophies that adorned his sideboards testified. In fact, in the local markets his name in connection with the rearing of cattle was the hall-mark of excellence. The late Mr. Poole was a man endowed with a wonderfully keen foresight, and there will be many connected with the profession who will greatly miss him.

The deceased gentleman leaves a widow, one son, and four daughters to mourn his loss. He had been in failing health for some time, but no immediate fatal result was anticipated until late on Saturday night, when it became evident the end was near, and he ultimately breathed his last in the presence of his wife and son, Mr. J. Wolseley Poole.

In his home life he was a kind husband and an indulgent father. He will be sorely missed in his native town, where he was held in the highest esteem, his cheery manner and many kindly actions having left a lasting impression.

THE FUNERAL

was a most impressive one. The cortège left the deceased's residence at 3.30 on Wednesday. The chief mourners were Mr. J. Wolseley Poole (son), Mr. George Poole, Mr. Harry Poole, Mr. Charles W. Poole, and Mr. Fred Poole (brothers), Mr. Percy B. Milsom (son-in-law), Mr. W. Rich (son-in-law), Mr. Fred Mayer (brother-in-law), Mr. J. G. Stafford, Mr. J. E. Penzer, Mr. Sidney Milsom, and Mr. J. Grey. Then followed the police force, the Mayor, Aldermen, and Town Council, and numerous friends who had come to pay their last tribute of respect.

The funeral service was conducted by the Rev. G. Windsor Tucker (vicar), assisted by the curate, the Rev. Charles F. Bellot.

The coffin was composed of an inner shell of elm and an outer enclosure of polished oak, with massive brass fittings. It bore the inscription:—

JOSEPH POOLE.
Born May 27, 1847,
Died Oct. 21, 1906.

Many were moved to tears as the mortal remains of the deceased were lowered into the family vault. Probably never before in the history of the pretty little cemetery has there been such a magnificent floral display. Among the many beautiful offerings were the following:—Harp, with broken string, "With deepest grief and in ever loving memory, from his sorrowing wife"; wreath, "In affectionate remembrance of a dear father from his sorrowing son and daughter, Wolseley and Clara"; wreath, "In ever loving memory of dear father from Ada, and deepest sympathy from Percy"; wreath, "With deepest sorrow and loving memory from Florrie and Clem"; wreath, "In ever loving memory from Auntie Brocklehurst"; wreath, "With great sorrow and ever loving memory from Minnie and Bill"; wreath, "In affectionate remembrance from Mrs. Milsom and family"; wreath, "In loving memory from Annie"; heart, from brother Fred; broken lyre, from young Charlie; wreath, "With deepest sympathy from Charles W. and Mrs. Poole"; wreath, "In loving memory of dear Uncle Joe from Jack"; harp, "With heartfelt grief and loving memory from Fred and Nell Mayer"; bunch of flowers, "To grandpa from little Percy"; wreath, "With the Earl and Countess of Suffolk's sympathy"; harp, "With deepest sympathy from No. 1 Company"; wreath, "With deepest sympathy from an old frined, J. G. Stafford"; wreath, "With deepest sympathy from T. W. Stevenson"; wreath, "In loving memory from Mrs. J. E. Ponting and family"; wreath, "With loving sympathy from the members of No. 2 Company"; wreath, "With sincere sympathy and deep regret from A. C. Rogers, S.A.A."; wreath, "A tribute of sincere sympathy from Mr. and Mrs. John Alexander"; wreath, "With kindest remembrance from Mr. and Mrs. Horace Livermore"; wreath, "With loving sympathy from Mr. and Mrs. Felix Somers"; wreath, "With much sympathy from Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Upton"; wreath, "With heartfelt sympathy from Councillor and Mrs. J. E. Penzer"; wreath, "With deepest sympathy from Mr. and Mrs. W. Alexander"; wreath, "With deepest sympathy from Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Fisher"; wreath, "With kind remembrances from Mr. and Mrs. David Crombie"; wreath, "With sincere regret, Mr. and Mrs. E. Shenton"; wreath, "With deepest respect, Mr. and Mrs. E. C. Rogers"; wreath, "From Mr. and Mrs. Harry Stewart and family with sincere regrets"; wreath, "Deepest sympathy from Mr. and Mrs. T. R. Gannon"; cross, "From the members of C. W. Poole's Royal Myriorama, St. Austell"; and wreath, "A token of respect and esteem from the band and staff, Palace, Porth, S. Wales."

MUSIC HALL LADIES' GUILD.

The M.H.A.R.A. has voted unanimously the sum of £100 to the funds of the Music Hall Ladies' Guild, and the committee of this newest charitable organisation in connection with the variety profession desires to express its gratitude for such a liberal donation. It has been reported that the amount of cash at present in the hands of the Guild is £400, exclusive of the £100 mentioned above. The exact amount is £33, so that assistance is still most urgently needed. The first case was a maternity case, which cost the Guild just over £1, not £10 10s. as has been reported. Four cases have also been dealt with out of the pockets of the founders—Lily Burnand, Mrs. Fred Ginnett, Mrs. Butler, and Mrs. Egerton—who will not require the return of their expenditure. It has also been stated that the Guild has no rules and no banking account. It possesses both. The following are the rules:—

1.—Every member to pay 2s. 6d. yearly, and to contribute 2s. 6d. or material to that value.

2.—Ladies wishing to join the Guild be proposed by members of the Guild; if the qualification for the candidates are accepted and passed by the executive committee their election will follow in due course.

3.—Candidates for election as executive or general committee members must be members of the music hall profession only. Executive and general committee members must pay a yearly subscription of £1 1s.

4.—The executive committee shall have power to elect the president.

5.—The executive committee to be elected in the November of each year by all music hall members of the Guild, the new committee taking office the following January.

6.—A sewing bee will be held every Wednesday from 1 p.m. to 3 p.m. at the offices of the Guild.

CHELSEA LODGE OF FREEMASONS, OCTOBER 19, 1906.

7.—Ladies not connected with the music hall profession can be elected as honorary members of the Guild on payment of a donation of not less than 2s. 6d., and may attend the weekly sewing bee, the annual general meeting, and all social functions, but have no voting powers whatever.

8.—All subscriptions of members and honorary members to be paid during the month of November in each year; if after the first Friday of December the subscription remains unpaid, a fine of 3d. per month will be charged and placed to the good of the Guild.

9.—All members are required to send their permanent address to the secretary.

10.—A vacation of one month in each year during August will take place. The offices will be closed on Bank Holidays.

11.—The usual general meeting will take place in October of every year.

Applications for help should be made on forms that may be obtained from the Secretary, 69, Primrose Mansions, Battersea Park, S.W.

MR. G. D. BRADBURY, the popular assistant-manager of the Palace, Southampton, has been deservedly promoted to the post of resident-manager of the Palace, Lincoln, by his chief, Mr. Frank Macnaghten. Mr. Bradbury was installed at the Palace during Mr. Graydon's control in 1903, and continued under the Macnaghten management. During his three years' sojourn in the southern seaport, he has become exceedingly popular, and although his promotion is naturally a matter for congratulation, his departure is greatly regretted.

THE EDEN THEATRE AT HEMEL HEMPSTEAD.

In order to bring our readers up to date with regard to the portable theatre licensing question at Hemel Hempstead (which we reported fully last week), it is only now necessary to give the supplementary news to hand. Mr. Whitmee's application for a six months' dramatic licence was refused, although it was backed by a petition signed by the majority of the adult population of the town. We understand that the main reason that decided the magistrates was a letter from certain members of the Town Council, who met in camera, at the close of their open meeting, and that the letter strongly deprecated the continuance of a portable theatre in the town. They urged that to licence such a structure would remove it out of the jurisdiction of the authorities, both with reference to questions of public safety and public health. This letter of the Corporation to the Bench, although it was an entirely ex parte and prejudiced statement, appears to have been the deciding element in the mind of the magistrates. It was fully proved by evidence submitted by Mr. Whitmee's solicitor at the time of the application that it was a perfectly sanitary structure, and that as regards public safety the building was admirably constructed, and that it could be cleared of its audience under two minutes.

Mr. Whitmee's portable theatre has no fewer than eight exits, and it must be evident to any impartial mind such a temporary structure is even safer for the public in the event of a panic than a permanent building. The sides of a portable theatre are made of long sections of wooden shutters, and it must be obvious that in the event of fire or panic from any cause whatever, the pressure of the crowd upon such a temporary edifice would at once effect emergency exits at every point of attack. It was, therefore, a mere subterfuge on the part of the enemies of the theatre, and the spoilers of the people's popular amusments, to raise the bogey of public danger. The solicitor who opposed Mr. Whitmee's application did not dare to impugn (either by submitting witnesses or even by definite statement to the Bench) the personal character of Mr. Whitmee, his ability or fitness to manage a theatre, nor was it seriously attempted to call in question the character of the entertainment provided.

The plays produced were admittedly the standard dramas of the British stage, and Mr. Whitmee produced the testimony of influential patrons of his theatre in support of his contention that the theatre was good, well conducted, and the plays of the best type.

We very much fear that the Bench and a section of the Corporation have been overborne by the persistence of a bitterly-minded and puritanical section of the community, who have been ceaseless in their endeavour to clear the town of entertainments above the level of a chapel concert, school anniversary, or pleasant Sunday afternoons for men. We cannot pass away from this glaring example of "Justices' justice" without again emphasising the parlous condition under which the providers of popular amusements of a portable character are compelled to carry on their business and enterprise. In a town like Hemel Hempstead, destitute of either theatre or music hall of a permanent character, the people are absolutely at the mercy of the prevailing authority for the time being, as to the nature or extent of amusement and relaxation permitted them, and it is manifestly unfair to handicap without any show of justice, reason, or common-sense, men like Mr. Whitmee, who provide for these small centres of human life wholesome entertainment and necessary amusement, after hard-won toil.

We who dwell in great cities, and have a choice of entertainment sometimes perplexing in its wealth of supply, can hardly realise the deadly dulness of small country-places, where the only opportunity for the people to have an evening's enjoyment is that provided by the travelling shows and theatres of a character and completeness of that of Mr. Whitmee's. It is a veritable godsend to such a town to have for a season the opportunity of attending a portable theatre, and we contend that Mr. Whitmee, instead of being harassed and prevented in his business by the local authorities, ought to be encouraged and supported in a liberal spirit and generous manner.

To revert to the judicial farce at Hemel Hempstead—what does it all amount to? It means that Mr. Whitmee is refused a licence for a portable theatre (in every way a model portable theatre) because it is not what it has never pretended to be—a permanent structure. If Mr. Whitmee had been such an idiot as to go before the Bench and ask them to licence his booth as an erection of brick or stone, there might have been some sense in the finding of the local Bench. We are not far out when we say that the decision of the magistrates to refuse the licence was the result of the persistent clamour of an influential and prejudiced section of the community, who hold that entertainments of any kind whatever for the common people are prejudicial to their moral and temporal well-being.

We, who know human life better than these poor demented faddists, have to recognise that, though we have reached the twentieth century of Christianity, there yet remains in our midst people who persist in holding the narrow-minded and uncharitable views that have been so actively at work and so successful at Hemel Hempstead.

Of this, one thing we are well assured—that when Mr. Whitmee removes his theatre to another town, he will carry with him the good wishes and gratitude of the people of Hemel Hempstead, whose hard labouring life he has tempered by his admirable theatre.

WORLD'S FAIR, Market-yard, West Hartlepool.—William Murphy, racing motors; Alfred Testo, grand show; Beaumont, roundabouts, swings, shooting galleries, Emmas, football, are here this week.

HENRY SILVANI'S circus concludes to-day a most successful tenting season through the "Emerald Isle."

ADDITIONAL particulars are to hand with regard to the parts played by the late Constance Loseby. She was Polly Peachum in The Beggars' Opera, Fleuretta in an English version of Barbe Bleue, Cesarine in Malala, and Morgiana in Reece's burlesque Ali Baba. As Lionel, an operatic mystery, in a burlesque version of Martha, she created something of a sensation by her singing of Shield's ballad "The Thorn." She appeared in Snae Fell, a fantastic concoction which the late George Conquest introduced to the West-end, and she was also seen in burlesque of Guy Fawkes, and in The Island of Bachelors, produced in 1874, in which year she left the Gaiety. After this she was chiefly engaged at the Alhambra, where she took leading singing parts in Geneviève de Brabant, Poule aux Œufs d'Or, Rothemago, Venice, Black Crook, and Babil and Bijou. She was in The Golden Ring, with which the house was reopened in 1883, after the fire, and shortly after she retired from the stage. The deceased actress, who appeared with success at music-halls before going to the Gaiety, was, by the way, the wife of the late Mr. John Caulfield (not Coulfield), who was for years deputy conductor at the old Gaiety. It was not, moreover, Gilbert's Pygmalion and Galatea in which she appeared in 1873, but an operetta by Suppé, entitled Ganymede and Galatea, founded on the same subject.

The principal agricultural shows and cattle fairs for next month are:—Newark, Northampton, Alston (Cumb.), Armagh, Chester, Doncaster, Ripon, and Beverley, on the 1st; Richmond Moor, Moy, and Oakham, on the 2nd; Halifax and Saffron Walden, on the 3rd; Appleshaw and Middleton Moor on the 5th; Preston, Doune Tryst, and Thurles, on the 6th; Clonmel, Keighley, and Swaffham, on the 7th; Alford, Blackwater, Blandford, Hertford, Romsey, Loughborough, and Leeds, on the 8th; Stamford, on the 9th; Darlington and Farnham, on the 10th; Macclesfield, Uttoxeter, Chelmsford, and Rugby, on the 12th; Leek, Lynn, Drogheda, Dunstable, and East Ilsley, on the 14th; Lincoln and Yeovil, on the 16th; Andover, West Malling, and Ballybay, on the 17th; Boston, on the 19th; East Witton, Edinburgh, and Durham, on the 20th; Battle and Congleton, on the 22nd; Louth, Marlborough, and Ripon on the 23rd; Chesterfield, on the 26th; Uttoxeter, on the 27th; Northampton, Doune Tryst, and Newcastle-on-Tyne, on the 28th; Ashbourne, Chester, Clones, and Warrington, on the 29th.

A petition against the abolition of Writtle Fair has been drawn up by the Executive officials of the Showmen's Guild, and has been duly forwarded to the Home Office. It is worded as follows:—

To the Right Honourable H. J. Gladstone, His Majesty's Secretary of State for Home Affairs.

Sir,—In the interests of the travelling showmen and local traders taking the fairs in the Counties of Essex, Middlesex, Surrey, and Kent, we humbly submit that the proposed abolition of the Whitsun Fair at Writtle, near Chelmsford, would be a serious trade loss and a deprivation of their business facilities. The Showmen's Guild, representing the organised amusement caterers and fairground traders of the United Kingdom, most respectfully but most strongly object to the proposed abolition of Writtle Fair. They further object to the action of local authorities in striving to abolish fairs, when in all likelihood the necessities of the case would be met by removing the venue of the fair. Showmen recognise that in many instances it is no longer desirable to continue fairs in the open squares and streets of towns, and they have repeatedly shown their willingness to co-operate with public bodies in order to obtain the removal of the fair to a convenient site where all danger from the congestion of traffic is avoided. We venture, therefore, Sir, to ask that in the exercise of your authority you will not grant the petition for the abolition of the fair, that you will either refuse it or suggest to the local authorities that a new fairground be provided and the fair continued.

We also venture to lay before you the people's side of this important question. Whitsuntide is a national holiday, and an occasion most suitable for open-air amusement such as our popular fairs provide, and independent of the serious trade loss that the abolition of local fairs involves, there is also the deprivation of popular and wholesome amusement for the people.

Signed on behalf of the Showmen's Guild—

GEORGE SANGER, President.
F. H. PEDGRIFT, Honorary Treasurer.
T. HORNE, Honorary Chaplain.

The Guild Offices, 5, Tavistock-street, Strand, W.C.

We believe that a number of local gentlemen interested in maintaining the fair have also sent a petition to the Home Secretary, and it would be a great help if individual showmen and stallholders taking Writtle Fair on their round supported the efforts of their friends by sending in letters of protest to the Home Secretary. There is no difficulty about the matter; anyone may write who has a trade or personal interest, and all that he need do is to state the fact that he would be a sufferer in his business by the abolition of the fair. It will be remembered that last week we gave the official notice of the proposal of the local authorities to abolish the fair, and that the Home Secretary expressed his willingness to receive representations for or against the proposal, and that he would come to a decision after hearing both sides of the case on Dec. 1 next. The petition of the Showmen's Guild and the petition of the residents of Writtle who do not wish their fair to be abolished would be very materially strengthened by letters sent to the Home Office by showmen and stallholders taking the fair. Now is the time to do it: let there be no delay!

The Hippodrome, Norwich, celebrated its third anniversary on Friday (yesterday), and Messrs. Bostock and Fitt deserve every praise for the excellent catering for public amusement during their proprietorship. Notwithstanding the two houses nightly and the dull times in this agricultural district, each performance in the past has been well patronised, testifying to the ability of the excellent management and talent provided. The highest to the lowest in Norwich have numbered themselves amongst its patrons, and nothing could exceed the urbanity and kindly courtesy extended to all by Mr. Councillor and Mrs. Fitt, which has been cordially appreciated. A compliment must also be extended to each of the staff under them. The proceeds of Friday evening's performance are to be devoted to local charities.

Aylesbury is once more aroused by the question as to whether showmen shall be permitted into its public squares on days other than fair days. At the last meeting of the Urban Council a memorial was received from thirty-five tradesmen, three of whom have withdrawn, protesting against the letting of these squares. A counter-petition containing hundreds of names is now about to be presented to the local Council, which meets on Nov. 10.

Caistor hirings had for its pleasure side the well-known entertainments of Messrs. Smith and Warren, and included steam circus, rifle saloons, and throwing games, with stalls, &c., by local caterers.

From Clitheroe we have news of the back-end fair, beginning on the 26th and lasting to the end of the month. The principal shows are—J. Norman's cinematograph theatre and empire of varieties; Professor Haydn, with temple of occultism and second-sight demonstrations; and W. Shaw's fine art gallery. Mrs. Holden provided two sets of roundabouts—the ostriches and steam yachts; and W. H. Taylor exhibited a steam circus, Winchester range, and fairground varieties; John Starkie provided a rifle gallery and high-fliers. The other caterers included Messrs. Makin Bros., A. Slater, W. Shorrocks, J. Gallagher, T. Broughton, J. Freer, J. Ingham, and Mrs. Larenzo.

Redditch is a growing and prosperous town in Worcestershire. It is thirteen miles from Birmingham, fifteen from Stratford-on-Avon, six from Bromsgrove, and sixteen from Evesham. It has a station on the Midland Railway. The principal industries are the manufacture of needles, fishing-tackle, cycles, &c. Large cycle works are now being erected to employ about 1,000 hands. The fairground for shows, &c., is situated right in the centre of the town—the Royal Hotel Yard. An helter-skelter lighthouse ought to do well here. Population 13,493. Increase in ten years of 2,199.

At the Royal Hotel Yard, Redditch, this week, are Wadbrook's electrograph and palace of varieties; E. Clarke and J. Wright with shooting saloons, &c.; cokernut sheets, pitching games, bottle smashers, swing boats, and other attractions. Mr. Waller Jeff's New Century pictures are paying a return visit this week to the Public Hall, Redditch.

The attractions at Shipston-on-Stour Bull-roast included Purchase's menagerie, Chipperfield's cinematograph, Clarke's motor-cars, Strickland's gallopers and motor-cars. A side show caught fire during the progress of the fair, and did damage amounting to about £12.

The annual fair was held at Ilkeston on the 18th and two following days, the chief attractions being Collins's helter-skelter and airship, Buff Bill's menagerie, Holland's, Crichton's, and Arthur Twigdon's cinematographs, and Proctor's laughterland, &c.

Salisbury annual pleasure fair was held the first three days of this week, and attracted a larger number of leading shows, &c., than has been seen here for many years. The weather conditions were perfect. The principal shows included Anderton and Rowland's grand show, R. Dooner and Sons' superb cinematograph, W. Taylor's living pictures, Biddall Bros.' American electrograph, the boxing saloons of W. Taylor and Alf Wright, H. Bailey's art exhibition, giant lady by Professor Barber, Kaffir performers by Reader, and sundry smaller shows. Wm. Symonds (of Gloucester) displayed his switchback and galloping horses; I. Heal brought galloping horses, motor-cars, and ostriches; White's slipping-the-slope tower and two sets of juvenile motor-cars; and an extra large number of swings, shooting galleries, shies, and the usual stalls, &c.

Reynold's Exhibition is still going strong in Liverpool. The proprietor, ever on the look-out for novelties, has arranged a remarkable competition to commence on Monday next. He has engaged Harry Burton, the champion Australian club swinger, who makes his first appearance in England, to undergo a six days' club manipulation of eight continuous hours daily. The wager of £50 offered by Burton has been taken up by a well-known sportsman, who declares his disbelief in the task being possible. The clubs are to weigh not less than five pounds each.

Undoubtedly the biggest sensation that ever visited Hamilton Fair was the Dahomey Warriors, led by Princess Gooma and Chieftain Lobogolo. Tom Brown, the enterprising director for sixteen years of this remarkable troupe of warriors, was greatly in evidence. They visit Wishaw this week, and return to Glasgow for a five weeks' pantomime engagement.

Smethwick Wakes was well maintained by P. Collins's No. 1 cinematograph theatre; H. Cullis's school of boxers; Cooper's abnormals; P. Collins's wheely-whirly, twin yachts, and slipping the slope; varieties and stalls by Messrs. Ford, Dobson, Hughes, Cooper, and others on this round.

ANSWERS TO SHOWMEN.

Carl Villiers.—We strongly advise you to get into communication with some of the principal showmen and lessees of grounds on the Metropolitan round. A good time to do this would be at the annual meeting of the Guild at the World's Fair, which will be duly advertised in "The Era." It is always better to follow a round under the management of some well-known caterer, than to venture forth for the first time upon your own initiative. If you do not gain experience by working with men of expert knowledge, you will find yourself paying for experience that will be a tremendous loss and disappointment to you. Write us again, and we will send you the names of half-a-dozen prominent London showmen, whose acquaintance you might make with every possible advantage for your enterprise.

J. B. (Stepney Green).—We have carried our inquiries with regard to George Foottit as far as we feel justified in pursuing the quest.

H. W. H. P. (Beckenham).—You may call at "The Era" offices between 11 and 12 any morning next week, and ask to see us. Judging by the tenour of your letter, we are at a loss to see how we can help in the matter; perhaps an interview would clear the ground.

Sutton (Gloucester).—Write us again and more fully. We do not understand the brief message of your post-card.

SHALL BURSLEM WAKES BE ABOLISHED?

No popular fair on the Midland Round has undergone more vicissitudes than old Burslem Wakes. The determination of the people of the Potteries to maintain their old local fairs and wakes has been sorely tried during the past thirty years, and the record at Burslem is that upon every occasion the will of the people freely and constitutionally expressed has prevailed. Elections have been fought and won upon this question—the continuance of the people's fair, and it is well within the memory of Midland showmen that Burslem and its people have gained many victories against the narrow-minded and the prejudiced few, who assume that they know better what the people should have by way of amusement and entertainment than the people themselves.

The position of the old Wakes and its legal status forms an interesting chapter in the history of popular fairs. It is held on the first Saturday after June 24 in each year, and on the following Monday, Tuesday, and Wednesday, and coincides with the Feast of the Patron Saint of the Parish Church of St. John. There is no evidence of a charter ever having been granted to hold a fair in Burslem, but it has been held with only one break for many generations, and has as good a prescriptive right as any other old-time fair that cannot be traced back to the grant by Royal Charter.

In the year 1825 an Act for Regulating the Markets in the Town of Burslem and parts adjacent was passed, and although there is no reference in this Act to the Fair called Burslem Wakes, it is provided that the Market Trustees or Commissioner should have power to appoint any number, not exceeding six, fairs to be holden in the town annually.

During the last thirty years there has been much discussion in the town, particularly at the time the Wakes is held, as to the advisability of continuing it. Shortly after the town was incorporated in 1878, the question was brought before the Town Council, and as a result a resolution was carried that steps should be taken in conjunction with the neighbouring authorities to establish one uniform Wakes for the whole of the Pottery district.

After much discussion, the Town Council resolved, at a meeting held on March 5, 1879, to present a memorial to the Home Secretary, under the provisions of the Fairs Act, 1871, asking him to abolish the Wakes, and in May following the Wakes was duly abolished, and the Order of the Home Secretary published in the London Gazette. No Wakes was held in Burslem in June, 1879. The Town Council were prepared to fix a Wakes to be held at the same date as Stoke Wakes, but no applications were made by stallholders or showmen, and consequently there was no celebration of this kind in Burslem that year. In the following year a number of the inhabitants who objected to the abolition of the Wakes hired a piece of land at Longport belonging to Messrs. Davenport, and a considerable number of stalls and shows were placed upon it, and a Wakes was held there, and attended by large crowds of people. An attempt has been made to take land from Messrs. Wood which was more centrally situate, but they refused to let their land for the purpose, as they wished to support the Town Council in the action they had taken. Immediately afterwards there was an agitation in the town for a re-establishment of the Old Wakes, which was largely supported by many of the more influential inhabitants who did not wish to see the people deprived of their annual holiday, and who, it must be admitted, were perfectly disinterested in their action.

A crowded meeting was held in the Covered Market in July, 1880, and a resolution was passed by a very large majority calling upon the Town Council to re-establish the Old Wakes. At a meeting of the Town Council in August, Councillor Emery gave notice of motion for the rescinding of the resolution passed by the Town Council, and that the Wakes be held at the old time. At the same meeting, a memorial signed by nearly 700 ratepayers was presented to the Town Council, strongly protesting against any attempt to alter the arrangement made for the establishment of a general holiday throughout the Potteries, the memorialists contending that the public meeting did not fairly represent the feeling of the town, and requesting that a ballot should be taken. At the municipal elections in November, this question was warmly discussed, and the "Old Wakes" v. the "New Wakes" decided the fate of the candidates. In the East Ward, Mr. J. Wilcox Edge was defeated, and in the South Ward Dr. Hales headed the poll, getting 100 votes more than Mr. Woodall, M.P. There was no contest in the North Ward. The effect of this election was soon shown in the Council Chamber, and it was decided to appeal to the ratepayers by a ballot on the question. The poll took place on Nov. 22, when 1,560 votes were given in favour of re-establishing the Old Wakes, and 727 against. The Council met on Dec. 1, when the result of the poll was reported, and a long discussion took place, but ultimately the Council passed the following resolution:—"That this Council, in deference to the wishes of the majority of the burgesses who voted at the recent Wakes ballot, consider it advisable to establish a Fair to commence on the first Saturday after June 24 in each year, and to extend over the Monday, Tuesday, and Wednesday in the following week, and to be called the Burslem Wakes Fair, and that this Fair is accordingly hereby appointed." On being put to the vote, 13 members of the Council voted for the motion; Mr. Woodall, M.P., and Alderman W. Leigh voted against it, and five members did not vote. This resolution was apparently passed in pursuance of the power contained in the local Act to establish not more than six Fairs annually, and it came into effect in the following June, when the Fair was held as usual.

At a recent meeting of the Corporation of Burslem the report of the General Purposes Committee included a resolution to the effect that no booths, shows, or stalls be allowed to occupy any ground in the public streets, main roads, or squares in the centre of the town during Burslem Wakes week; and that the toll collector should be instructed not to let or enter into any contract to let any land in the centre of the town or in the main thoroughfares, to be occupied by booths, shows, or stalls, during the last week in June or the first week in July.

Alderman Bratt said he had heard some complaints in the town as to the action of the General Purposes Committee in recommending the abolition of the Wakes Fair. He moved as an amendment that the consideration of the subject should be deferred until a petition had been signed by the ratepayers either for or against the continuance of the Fair.

This amendment was seconded by Mr. Sargeant.

Mr. Brodie declared that the matter had been thoroughly thrashed out in committee, and he saw no reason why the minute should be referred back. If, when the Council was about to take an important step, it was to be compelled to consult the ratepayers and send a petition round, it looked as though the responsibility for action was being shirked. If, after that resolution was passed, they had done wrong, the ratepayers would soon tell them so. The Wakes shows had always been a nuisance. They were a relic of the day when amusements were not so easily obtained as to-day, and there was no legitimate demand now for them. Further, all the tradesmen in the centre of the town were opposed to the continuance of the Fair, and he had yet to learn that any benefit was gained by anyone in the town. If the shows were really wanted they could be placed in a field outside.

Alderman Cartlidge objected to the Wakes shows on sanitary grounds alone. It was impossible to calculate the harm done to health through the visit of the showpeople to the very centre of the town. If a manufacturer or ordinary individual gave rise to such abominable nuisances as were caused—without punishment—by the showpeople they would soon be at the mercy of the law.

Alderman Malkin felt that it was simply folly to spend such large sums of money yearly in trying to improve the health of the town if at the same time they allowed a condition of things to prevail as did prevail at the Wakes. As guardians of the public health, they were not justified in spending the money they did unless they tried to put the shows outside the town. The onus of proving that the Wakes was a benefit to the community should lie on those who suggested that the recommendation should go back to the committee.

The amendment was put to the meeting and lost, the whole of the above minutes being adopted as they stood. The voting was as follows:—For the amendment, Alderman Bratt and Councillor Sargeant; for the minutes, Aldermen Cartlidge, T. Edwardes, and Malkin, Councillors Averill, Brodie, Ford, Porter, Simpson, Green, Chadwick, Jackson, and Willett; neutral, Councillors Mitchell and Robinson.

The challenge thus thrown down by the City Fathers to the people of Burslem has been at once accepted, and a petition—a copy of which is subjoined, is now being very extensively signed, protesting against the action of the Borough Council, and asking for the rescinding of the adverse resolution.

To His Worship the Mayor of Burslem.

Whereas the Festival of St. John, or otherwise known as "the Burslem Wakes Fair," has for many years past been held in the last week in June or the first week in July for the amusement and entertainment of the ratepayers of the Borough of Burslem, in the County of Stafford. And whereas at a meeting of the Council of the said Borough of Burslem held on the eighth day of October, 1906, a resolution was passed abolishing the said Wakes Fair and refusing to grant the town lands and thoroughfares for the purpose of the said Wakes Fair without having ascertained the views of the general body of Ratepayers of the said Borough. And we believe that the Council have not, in passing such resolution, acted in the best interest of the Borough or the general body of Ratepayers and Owners. And we, the undersigned Ratepayers of the Town, DO HEREBY REQUEST the Mayor of Burslem to call a meeting of the general body of Ratepayers to ascertain if it is the general wish that the Wakes Fair should be continued or abolished in pursuance of the said resolution, and to submit the following resolutions:—

"RESOLVED—That the Council be requested to rescind the Resolution passed on the eigth day of October, 1906, prohibiting the Burslem Wakes Fair being held, and that such fair be held at the usual time and place, and that they instruct their Toll Collector to let the Town lands and thoroughfares for the purpose of the said fair as heretofore."

It is necessary for us in the interests of our showman readers to set out in detail what is the real legal position governing the threatened wakes. It will be seen from what we have already written that under the Abolition of Fairs Act, 1871, the fair was legally abolished; that under the statutory powers of the Home Secretary the order was made to abolish the fair, and that for one year at least there was no Burslem Wakes in the legal sense. This, of course, all took place a long time before the Showmen's Guild came into existence to safeguard and defend the interests of fairground traders. The point is, however, clear, the old Wakes was properly abolished; but now comes the interesting and important fact that under the powers of a Burslem Markets and Fairs Act a new fair, to be called by the old name and to take place upon the old dates, with an extension of an additional day, was set up under proper legal authority by the Corporation, acting in compliance with the constitutionally expressed wish of the people of Burslem.

The present position therefore is: that the fair is a legal fair, and cannot be abolished without the consent of the people and the authority of the Home Secretary acting for the Crown. That is the position. Showmen have in this instance a clear title until the people of Burslem desire otherwise, and use the proper means provided by Statute Law to abolish the fair. The only value of the resolution of the Borough Council is that it gives the townspeople of Burslem, who are the real masters in the matter, and the showmen whose business the proposed abolition threatens, sufficient warning to take all necessary steps to express both the sovereign will of the people and the trade rights of travelling showmen. In spite of all that was said to the contrary when the question was before the General Purposes Committee, we have no doubt that the people when once aroused to the necessity of defending their much-loved annual wakes, will do again as they did when their fair was abolished without their consent—that is to say, they will send men to represent them on the Borough Council that will understand and voice the wishes of the majority, and not become the mere tools of a narrow, noisy, and fanatical section of the community.

The executive officials of the Showmen's Guild, in the interests of the whole body of travelling showpeople, are taking up this question with all the vigour and power they possess, and are heartily co-operating with the local committee now conducting the movement for the rescinding of the adverse resolution passed by the Borough Council.

Mr. Tom Norman has been meeting with great success these last weeks on tour with his Dahomey Warriors, who are causing great excitement both at their daily parades and performances, their Sunday sacred concerts being also thoroughly appreciated. An act of friendly rivalry occurred on Wednesday last week. On arriving in Wellingborough Mr. Norman found the Corn Exchange, which he had anticipated taking, in possession of Col. Harrison's Pygmies. Mr. Norman had, therefore, to build up his large tent on the market-place adjoining, and on the waggons and warriors entering the town the inhabitants thought that they were the Pygmies, and the excitement was great when it was known that there were two different tribes in the neighbourhood. The large tent was packed at both afternoon and evening performances. Mr. Osmond, the courteous manager and lecturer for Col. Harrison, took the situation in true business-like style, and at the termination of his evening performance took his very interesting troupe into Mr. Norman's tent and introduced them to the Dahomeys, also mounting the platform and speaking a few words that were much appreciated by the large audience.

The Monckтons (Fred and Lily) will produce at the Hastings Hippodrome on Nov. 5 a new farcical musical sketch, entitled, Are Wives Dummies? written by Mr. E. C. Matthews.

Mr. Ernie Myers, comedian, is the latest to join the Terriers' Association, being initiated into the mysteries of the order on Sunday, when Mr. F. W. Millis, the popular ventriloquist, was in the chair.

A grand matinée will be given at the Oxford on Thursday next, by permission of the directors, in aid of the funds of the Licensed Victuallers' Asylum, to which excellent institution the entire proceeds will be devoted.

THE ERA ANNUAL, 1906.

"The Era" Annual, 1906, is welcome as containing carefully compiled lists of the pieces produced during the past year in London, the suburbs, and the provinces, in Paris, and in Berlin. The rest of it is curious and entertaining reading. There is the almanack with its "memorabilia of theatrical events occurrences, &c." There are besides a score of stories and other articles contributed by theatricals a very good one being Miss Louie Freear's set of verses, "'Boy Bob' at Sea," which has humour, feeling, and swing. The book contains many theatrical portraits. As a book of reference the Annual is of great use and value, and while some of its contents doubtless appeal more keenly to the professional than to the outsider, any thoughtful person may derive from its study much amusement and no little insight into the conditions, the magnitude, and the complexity of the English theatre of to-day.—Morning Post, Jan. 22.

To all whom it may concern the following letters speak for themselves:

THEATRE ROYAL, ILKESTON,
20th October, 1906.

Dear Mr. ROGERS,

Before leaving Ilkeston I feel I must congratulate you on the business we have done, and were I in your place I should certainly endeavour to impress in print upon Touring Managers the fact that your Theatre can do most excellent business. I am perfectly satisfied with my week, more especially after being led to believe that I should suffer a heavy financial loss on the engagement.

With the best wishes, believe me,
Sincerely yours,
(Signed) SERVAL LE ROY.

Reply of the Theatre Royal Management.

THEATRE ROYAL, ILKESTON,
20th October, 1905.

Dear Mr. LE ROY,

Your favour of even date duly received, for which I thank you, and appreciate the remarks contained therein. It certainly proves the reports false that unthinking people seem to delight in spreading when an unsatisfactory week is experienced. It possibly never appears to them that it may be the fault of the show occasionally. No! the Theatre is always held responsible. However, the following figures for three weeks, taken out of one month's receipts, may prove that good business can be done when the attraction is worthy of support, £258, £209, £228, the last two being consecutive weeks. Single nights' takings taken from the foregoing weeks, £87, £70, £82. I quote these figures as you were led to understand that the holding capacity was about £40.

Yours truly,
L. F. A. ROGERS.

IMPORTANT NOTICE.

EARLY TRAINS.

The Railway Companies are despatching many morning trains earlier than hitherto. This will enable subscribers and advertisers in the provincial towns to get copies of "The Era" in time for the breakfast table. Advertisers are requested to forward their advertisements as early in the week as possible, and not later than 7 p.m. on Thursday.

RE APPLICATIONS FOR ENGAGEMENTS

All applications by either Artists or their Agents must be made to the Head Office.

Lowest terms must be stated, and distinction made between salaries required for larger and smaller towns.

Vacant dates should be stated. If a list of existing bookings be sent, it will render selection easier.

Artists employing Agents should accredit one only at one time, as the friction arising when several Agents are employed at the same time, all expecting the one booking to go through each of them, often renders it expedient to avoid that booking altogether rather than give undeserved offence to several Agents.

New Acts seeking Engagements, or turns not re-booked (possibly because they have played a series of dates without introducing new business), will facilitate matters by having their acts seen by our District Managers. Their Districts and Postal Addresses are as follows:—

MANCHESTER, LIVERPOOL, AND DISTRICT
MR. ALAN W. YOUNG,
Empire Theatre, Liverpool.

EDINBURGH, GLASGOW, NEWCASTLE, AND DISTRICT.
MR. S. GETHING,
Empire Theatre, Glasgow.

LEEDS, SHEFFIELD, HULL, BRADFORD, AND DISTRICT.
MR. T. GERALD MORTON,
Empire Palace, Leeds.

BIRMINGHAM, NOTTINGHAM, LEICESTER AND DISTRICT.
MR. HATTON WHARTON,
Empire Theatre, Nottingham.

SOUTH WALES DISTRICT.
MR. W. LEA,
Empire Theatre, Cardiff.

LONDON DISTRICT,
MR. WILLIAM COLLINS,
The Empire, Shepherd's Bush, W.

N.B.—Mr. OSWALD STOLL or Mr. FRANK ALLEN can be seen by appointment on all matters arising out of the above, and for the discussion of entirely new Numbers.

All Artists or Agents who communicate with our District Representatives must have made definite applications, in accordance with above directions, to the Head Office, at the same time, or just previously

THE ARTIST'S DREAM.
Code Word. BRUINER.

A great pianist has a dream. A wizard presents him with a magic violin, the playing upon which conjures up most beautiful women, who dance, sing, and play before him. Wonderful photo effects. Grand quality.

314ft. The Subject £5 4s. 8d.

THE VILLAGE WITCH.
Code Word, BROUSSIN.

The witch tries and succeeds in enticing away a young man from his sweetheart, and in revenge the villagers burn her house and drown her. Perfect quality.

495ft. The Subject £8 5s. 0d.

TRAVELS OF A BARREL.
Code Word, BROU.

The droll adventures of a man rather the worse for drink, who goes to sleep in a barrel. Naughty boys fasten him in, and the barrel is rolled over hills and through water. Fine quality.

230ft. The Subject £3 16s. 8d.

THE WITCH'S CAVE.
Code Word, BRUINE.

A young country bumpkin is cajoled to enter a witch's cave, where all sorts of black magic is revealed to him. Very ingenious disappearances.

379ft. The Subject £6 6s. 4d.
Colouring, £3 extra.

A DAY IN THE COUNTRY.
Code Word, BRUMAIRE.

Mr. and Mrs. Brown are invited to spend a day in the country, but their Host and Hostess gave them all kinds of hard work to do, and only offer them water to drink. In great disgust they decide to return to town. Grand photographic quality.

445ft. The Subject £7 8s. 4d.

THE INEXPERIENCED CHAUFFEUR.
Code Word, BROSSERIE.

The amusing adventures of an amateur chauffeur, who runs his car into everything—fruit stalls, bicycles, a nurse and her baby and numerous others, to the indignation of all parties concerned.

198ft. The Subject £3 6s. 0d.

THE BELL-RINGER'S DAUGHTER.
Code Word, BUCHEUR.

A grand story of intense human interest. The Bellringer's daughter betrayed by an evil villain, who adds gambling to his many vices, turns her out in the street with her little daughter; after, he robs the safe of the Church where her father is bell-ringer. She, in desperation, leaves her little daughter on the steps of the Church, the child is taken in and adopted by the old man, not knowing who she is, and ten years pass—the mother, daughter, and grandfather are happily united. Very pathetic. Wonderful views from the belfry of the Church.

773ft. The Subject £12 17s. 8d.

No. 500.
"FOUR HOOLIGANS."
A MASTERPIECE OF MISCHIEF. DANCING WITH DASHING "DARE-DEVILRY"

Four boys, typical specimens of the "London Street Arab," completely eclipse every preconceived form of mischief. For instance, they "pinch" an old swell's cigars. They pillage a coal van and in a few minutes do enough mischief to keep the man thoroughly occupied for an hour or two. They abscond with a piano street organ. They upset an "Ice Cream Jack." They crib some workmen's dinners, and a lively chase follows. Finally, they rob some rabbit hutches and bolt with the bunnies in a sack. This last daring escapade leads to their capture. This picture is original and of superb quality throughout.
Length 475ft. Price £9 10s. net.

No. 1526. "THE PUPIL TEACHER."
An interesting drama of school life overrunning with humour and rich in pathos, brimming with bright boyish pranks. In the picture a young P.T. gets into debt. He applies to his mother for assistance. This assistance does not meet the case and the little scholars come to the rescue. Length 500ft. Price £10 net.

No. 519. "THE NIGHT OF THE PARTY."
A drawing room and a ball in swing. A hole in the ceiling and a water jug. The jam closet. The coal hole. And two kids who are incarnations of mischief thoroughly make things "hum." A ROARING KID COMEDY. Length 430ft. Price £8 12s. 6d.

THE MARVEL OF THIS AGE OF MARVELS IS . . .

THE CHRONOPHONE,

the actual life illusion which holds the world with amazement. It is the nearest thing to the creation of life which has ever been produced. By means of elaborate electrical apparatus, a picture machine and a talking machine are converted into one machine, in which the movements of the picture artist and the sound productions work in such absolute synchronism as to become one spontaneous cause and effect (synchronism absolutely under operator's control).

CHRONOPHONE SUBJECTS.—Our range of these is wide and varied, including selections from Light Opera, Grand Opera, Oratorio, Musical Comedy, Sacred Renderings and Comics by all the notable "Stars" and "Pros" in quartette, trio, duet, and solo, also recitative monologues and dialogues. These subjects are marvellous creations of living picture realism. Their Superb Quality, Beauty, and Accuracy in Detail completely beggars description.

THE CHRONOPHONE SAVES MONEY & MAKES MONEY FAST.

NO RESTRICTIONS whatever are placed upon the exhibition of these pictures.

BEAUTIFUL BRITAIN.

WHILE referring to the following series of pictures, "BEAUTIFUL BRITAIN," we acknowledge the courtesy of the Midland, and Glasgow South-Western Railways respectively, who so kindly granted us every assistance in the taking of these pictures.

The series consists of a number of pictures of the choicest, rarest, and most picturesque spots in our beautiful Isles. Each picture is a gem of beauty. In producing this series we have reached the zenith of The Ideal, The Unique, and The Original.

No. 502. GIANT'S CAUSEWAY.
The whole of this wonderful geological phenomena is shown with perfect accuracy and detail. The columnade of 40,000 of basaltic columns of polygonal shape rising to a height of many feet, forming this marvellous roofed causeway.

Part 1—Leaving Portrush on an Electric Car.
" 2—General View of the Causeway and Pleaskin Head.
" 3—The Wishing Chair.
" 4—General Panoramic View of the Grand Causeway.
" 5—Returning to Portrush.
" 6—The Giant's Causeway, the Honeycombs, and the Caves by Moonlight.
Length 500ft. Price £12 10s.

No. 1530. "A NEW WILLIAM TELL."
A modern adaptation of "William Tell and the Apple." Length 156ft. Price £3 2s. 8d. net.

New "Clarendon" Film.

No. 142. "THE STOLEN BRIDE."
A highly dramatic subject of a stubborn father. A daring lover. A stream and a launch. Length 650ft. Price £13 net.

New "Norwood" Film.

No. 108. HOW ISAACS WON THE CUP.
An exciting race between "motors." Full of fun and fancy. Isaacs wins the race by being stripped of his clothes and pitched into the river. A GENUINE MERRIMENT MAKER. Length 200ft. Price £4 net.

No. 500. GIANT'S CAUSEWAY BY MOONLIGHT.
Beautifully tinted, giving a fine effect of the caves, etc., by moonlight. Length 115ft. Price £2 17s. 6d.

No. 508. A DAY IN BURNS LAND.
Portrait of Burns, Poet's Birthplace, Alloway's Auld Haunted Kirk, Tam o' Shanter and Souter Johnny, The Banks and Braes of Bonnie Doon, Tramway Ride through Ayr, etc., etc., Length 330ft. Price £8 8s.

No. 506. ROTHESAY BAY.

No. 507. HOLIDAY IN DERBYSHIRE.
An interesting series of some rare beauty spots in Derbyshire. Chatsworth House, the palatial home of his Grace the Duke of Devonshire, Haddon Hall, Boating on the Derwent at Matlock Bath. This picture literally teems with historic interest. Superb quality. Length 315ft. Price £7 17s. 6d.

LOCAL PICTURES.—We are prepared to despatch an operator thoroughly equipped with film and camera to take local pictures. Our name is a guarantee of promptness and quality.

THE SINGING VOICE.

By JOSEPH POWNALL,
with a Preface by WATKIN MILLS.

A Practical Work produced at a Popular Price, for the Development and Improvement of the Voice.

WATKIN MILLS, Esq., says:—
"According to its merits, your treatise should have a wide circulation, and should be invaluable to aspirants to vocal fame. From my experience, nothing more practical of its kind has been put before the musical public."

STEPHEN ADAMS, Esq., says:—
"I think you have written a very clear and excellent work, which ought to prove of great use in teaching singing."

W. H. CUMMINGS, Esq., Mus.D.Dub., F.S.A. (Principal of the Guildhall School of Music), says:—
"I like your method, and wish you success."

THE ERA ANNUAL, 1906.
The thirty-ninth issue of "The Era" Annual has just appeared, and once more it supplies a useful record of the theatrical year. An editorial note reminds us that among the contributors to the first number, that of 1868, were E. L. Blanchard (its editor), Charles Mathews, T. W. Robertson, Andrew Halliday, H. J. Byron, Watts Phillips, and Dion Boucicault—a brilliant band indeed. The contributors to the present issue are almost exclusively actors rather than literary men, but upon the whole they make a very fair show; while the lists of plays produced in London and the provinces, and in Paris and Berlin during the twelve months under review are distinctly useful. There are a number of photographs including an exceedingly fine one of the late Sir Henry Irving.—Pall Mall Gazette, Jan. 22.

THE ERA ANNUAL, 1906.
"The Era" Annual is published from the offices of the old-established organ of the theatrical profession, 5, Tavistock-street, W.C. As usual, it is a carefully-compiled record of notable events of the year 1905. A pleasing feature is the selection of short stories, after recounting strange experiences, by "stars" of the dramatic and music-hall professions, these being in every case accompanied by photographs of the writers.—Newcastle Daily Journal, Jan. 27, 1906.

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

This was the first "première" under the new management, and it may be written down a distinct success in every way. Herr Arthur Below, the new director, is to be congratulated not only upon the well-rounded performance and brilliant mounting, but upon the unearthing of one of the most charming of comic operas which have ever fallen into temporary forgetfulness. The music is—as may be expected from Lortzing—melodious and sound throughout; it has dramatic passages and exquisite harmonies, and fits the fabulous-romantic plot round which it is written like a glove. There is not the slightest doubt that an opera company of any nationality would achieve a success with this work—the last production of the ill-fated composer, whose fame was only established after his earthly struggle was ended. The book is drawn from the fairy tale of the same name by—if my memory serves me—Musaeus. Lortzing calls it a romantic opera. The action passes in Spain in the year 814 A.D., the final scene alone being laid in French Switzerland. A very fine overture opens the work, leading up to an unmistakable thunderstorm, and when the curtain rises we dimly see the three "Knappen" (esquires of the Knight Roland) sheltering among the rocks and bewailing their fate. They have been sent out to find the Saracens' whereabouts, and have wandered far from their native heath. Audiol, the youngest, cheers the others with his natural wit, and help comes swiftly. The rocks in the background fall asunder, disclosing the Queen of the Mountains, who gives each a talisman which will lead him to fortune. The three friends are to separate for a time, but will meet again when their luck is assured. A draught of wine presented by the Queen's attendants sends the men into a deep sleep. They awake to find themselves in the depths of a beautiful forest, and little by little their situation dawns upon them. Audiol's talisman is a cap that, rightly put on, renders him invisible; Amarin has an unfailing bag of gold; and Sarron a tablecloth which produces at will the most delicate dishes and the choicest wines. Overjoyed at their luck, the friends separate, and presently King Garsius, surnamed the Wise, makes his appearance with his hunting party. All are hungry and thirsty, and Sarron, who is still on the spot, spreads his magic table all about the forest glades, to the delight of King and courtiers alike. The music here is particularly bright. Sarron is persuaded by promises of great honour and a big salary to take service with the King in the capacity of major-domo, and Tutato—a learned Prince of China, who enjoys the special favour of Garsius—is proportionately jealous.

The next act shows us the King's palace. His only daughter, Isalda, has fallen into melancholy, and all the pretty songs and dances of her playmates fail to provoke a smile. The King has found a witty young fellow—our merry Audiol—who he thinks may amuse her, and Audiol is engaged as Court Jester. Garsius, by the way, is very hard up for money, and he has invited a knight of fabulous wealth to come and woo his daughter, much to Isalda's disgust, for she has seen in her dreams the only man she can ever love. Her mourning is changed into joy at the sight of a brilliantly-equipped knight, who is ushered in with much pomp and ceremony. It is no other than the man of her girlish dreams, and our friend Amarin, and thus the three faithful comrades are once more united. Amarin has fallen deeply in love with Isalda, and all would doubtless have gone smoothly but for the envious and treacherous Chinaman. He owes a special grudge to Audiol, who is always—in his invisible form—teasing him, and he succeeds finally in stealing the three talismans and denouncing the friends to the King as swindlers. All three are now in jeopardy, but Audiol, by his ready wit, contrives to save them all, to recover the fairy's gifts, and to elope with Isalda into the bargain. All meet again in the rocky fastnesses, but are overtaken by the King and his men. It would have gone hard with the three comrades and the lovers had not the Mountain Queen appeared in the nick of time. She drives away the pursuers and speaks encouragement to the pursued. The scene again changes. We see a pretty sunlit hamlet amid the snow-clad mountains of Switzerland, and here the three "Knappen" are welcomed home. The lovers receive the parents' blessing, and to the strains of a joyful chorus the curtain descends. Fräulein Mary Hagen carried off the chief laurels for her admirable rendering of Audiol, and she was well supported. Herr Stammer was suffering from a cold, but managed satisfactorily under the circumstances; and Herr von Humalda's fine tenor was heard to good advantage as Amarin. Kapellmeister Sahrger conducted in his customary excellent manner, and the audience applauded him and the artists and director with equal cordiality. The scenery was new for the occasion, and unusually effective.

HOCKEY.

MR. F. R. BENSON'S COMPANY v. GREEN PARK (BATH).
Played on Thursday, Oct. 4, resulting, after a good game, in a draw. Score:—Mr. Benson's Company, 2 goals; Green Park, 2 goals.
A match was played on the Aldrington Marine Park, Hove, on Friday, the 5th, between the Aldrington Hockey Club and the Norman V. Norman Hockey Club. The latter team won by 6 goals to 5, the goals being scored by Bruce (4) and Ashley (2). A return match at St. Leonard's is being arranged.

MISS CECILIA FOWLER'S LADIES' XI. v. MISS WINIFRED BRADLEY'S XI.
Played near Bristol on Saturday, Oct. 6. The following were the teams:—
Miss Fowler's XI.—Miss Ethel Bowman, goal; Miss Lilla Carter and Miss May Dudley, backs; Miss Fowler, Miss Lillie Belding, and Miss Gertrude Thomas, half backs; Miss Minnie Leonard, Miss Gracie Leonard, Miss Trixie Maynard, Miss Nellie Stephens, and Miss Rosie Davies, forwards.
Miss Bradley's XI.—Miss May Fisher, goal; Miss Aline Gibbs and Miss Irene Bradley, backs; Miss Edie Lawrence, Miss Florrie Courtney, and Miss Nellie Lawrence, half backs; Miss Bradley (captain), Miss Maudie Burgess, Miss Minnie Hamilton, Miss Kit Montgomery, and Miss Alice Mitchell, forwards.
Result: Miss Fowler's XI., 3 goals; Miss Bradley's XI., 2 goals. Misses Dudley, Gracie Leonard, Minnie Leonard, Winifred Bradley, and Irene Bradley scored for their respective sides. After the match an enjoyable orchestral and vocal concert was arranged.

A FEATURE of Alice in Wonderland, which is to be given at matinées at the Apollo Theatre next month, will be an intermezzo composed by Miss Marjory Slaughter, daughter of the talented composer of the play, and dedicated to Mr. Seymour Hicks's daughter, Betty. In addition, the management will offer prizes amounting to fifty pounds to be competed for by two pupils of each school entering for the best performances on the piano of the composition in question.

PROVINCIAL THEATRICALS.

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENTS.)

ABERDEEN.—Her Majesty's Theatre.—Managing-Director, Mr. Robert Arthur; Acting-Manager, Mr. H. C. Cavanah, C.A.—Mr. W. H. Canby's company has met with a hearty welcome in The Prince Chap. The title part is taken by Mr. H. R. Roberts, who plays with remarkable skill and artistic mastery of the character, and a splendid portraiture of Claudia is produced by the united efforts at various stages in the play of Misses Betty Green, Geraldine Wilson, and Lorna Lawrence. Mr. George Shelton and Miss Marie Wilson represent a couple of servants' parts with consummate ability. The Prince Chap is preceded by the comedietta, A Girl from Biarritz, by Leonard Robson, which was staged for the first time on Monday.

Palace Theatre. — Managing-Directors, Messrs. Rosen and Bliss; Resident-Manager, Mr. Walter Gilbert.—The Daunton-Shaw Troupe give a remarkably clever exhibition of their skill as daring and original trick cyclists; and Miss Alice Hollender, the Australian contralto, who appears here for the first time, uses her fine voice in such a way as to be enthusiastically encored. A most enjoyable turn is contributed by the Ten Dixie Girls, who excel both as dancers and singers. Mr. Carl Lynn is a capital mimic of animals; Miss Nelly Gannon's vocal efforts are as usual heartily appreciated; and Mr. Harry Wilson, comedian and extempore vocalist, has no reason to complain of lack of applause. Among the other artists who appear with success are Mr. Stanley Rose, comedian; Osborn and Brookes, comedians; and the Crowe Trio of Vocalists. Vernon's Bioscope shows an amusing new series of pictures, "A Slippery Visitor."

ACCRINGTON.—Prince's Theatre.—Proprietor, Mr. J. B. Ormerod; Acting-Manager, Mr. J. E. Barnes.—Mr. Carlton Wallace's company opened here on Monday with The Love that Women Desire. Mr. Wallace gives a painstaking study of Richard Abingdon; Mr. J. O. Stewart submits a powerful performance as Squire Abingdon; Mr. John Hignett is an ideal Denis O'Rurke; Mr. Fred Lloyd must be complimented on a careful rendering of Philip Carnaby; Dr. Brandreth is a good embodiment by Mr. G. Brooke; Rev. A. Cathorne is well played by Mr. Hugh Wallace; Frank Hardy is a clever character sketch by Mr. Leonard Montgomery; Mr. Charles Frankling and E. Morris are good in their respective parts, Adam Frere and Amos Gibson; Miss Lalla Stanhope gives a highly satisfactory reading of Sybil Thornburn; and praise must be given to Miss Alice Livesey, who appears as Madge Abingdon; Pattie Swift is well acted by Miss Nita Imeson; Miss Violet Haye gives an artistic rendering of Molly; Miss N. Griffiths cleverly depicts Mariquininha.

Hippodrome. — Proprietors, Messrs. Willmot, Vandy, Potter, and Weisker; Acting-Manager, Mr. F. Parsons.—A smart bill is provided here this week. Les Marsumas, "Comedians on the wheel," are quaint and clever; Lily Warren is a lady with a good voice; Morny Cash soon gets in touch with the audience by his funny songs and patter; Clifton and Gibson give an amusing show; the same may be said of Benson and Geoffrey, comedy sketch artists; Bert Gordon does well; a smart animal turn is given by Clown Barker and Miss Rozsika; and some good pictures are shown by the Hippo Bioscope.

ALDERSHOT.—Theatre Royal.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. C. Sounes; Resident-Manager, Mr. Geo. E. Williams.—In Holy (I) Russia, an interesting and thrilling drama, with several passages of amusing comedy, is being played by Mr. J. Rice Cassidy's capable company. Mr. and Mrs. Rice Cassidy themselves appear with capital results in prominent rôles. Others who help materially to the success of the performance are Messrs. F. Lloyd, Terence Nerry, Arthur Stratton, Frank Copeland, and Miss M. L. Anderson.

ASHTON-UNDER-LYNE.—Theatre Royal.—Sole Owner and Manager, Mr. Chas. Revill; Acting-Manager, Mr. Armstrong Fairbairn.—Sherlock Holmes is revisiting here, Mr. Hamilton Stewart's company being responsible for its interpretation. Mr. H. Hamilton Stewart's clever study of the detective is marked by quiet force; Mr. W. F. Stirling as Moriarty proves himself a resourceful actor; Miss Constance Leigh gives a winning and sympathetic interpretation of Alice Faulkner; Miss Lindsay Fincham is convincing as Madge Larrabee; and Misses Rosalie Notrelle, Grace Howard, and Dot Sellby do well in minor rôles. Mr. Stanley Lafan is a pleasing and self-possessed Dr. Watson; and Mr. Ernest Gray is a clever exponent of Larrabee.

Empire Hippodrome.—Proprietors, Messrs. W. H. Broadhead and Sons; Manager, Mr. W. B. Broadhead; Acting-Manager, Mr. Percy B. Broadhead; Resident Acting-Manager, Mr. W. Leech.—The entertainment here is above the average in merit. The Brontes, in a comic duologue, Saucy Maid, create boisterous merriment; Billy Williams, comedian, sings and patters in voluble style; Johnson and Bert appear in a novel act, A Queer Customer; Walter Wade successfully appeals as a raconteur and mimic; the Saletos troupe give some marvellous expert head and hand balancing; and Lady Julia, "the ape with a human brain," is most intelligent; Evelyn Taylor is a charming variety comedienne, and Tom Hughes may claim to be a popular comedian, and Mary M. Glenn as "My Texas Queen" elicits applause. The Bioscope presents comic pictures.

ATTERCLIFFE.—Theatre Royal, Ltd.—Managing-Director, Mr. F. Macnaghten; Resident-Manager, Mr. G. H. Beagle.—Picture entertainments are again the attraction here. There is a diversified and interesting selection of films, and several songs, finely illustrated, are agreeably interspersed.

Palace Theatre of Varieties.—Proprietor, Mr. T. Allan Edwardes; Acting-Manager, Mr. J. Lacy Lyne; Assistant-Manager, Mr. S. H. Laycock.—A programme of the usual standard of excellence is submitted here this week. Mr. Louis Hardt, who is described as "The Mighty Atom," playfully performs with heavy weights; the Ladderites give a pleasing performance; the Sisters Neilson are well received as expert dancers; a mirth-provoking exhibition on the triple bars is submitted by the Three Zaracs; Mr. E. C. Clayton's pictures include a most realistic film, "The Miner's Daughter"; Mme. Roma's Six Imire Juggling Girls give a speciality act; Mr. Johnny Danvers is a good comedian; and Miss Maud Kaye, coon vocalist, also entertains.

AYR.—New Gaiety Theatre.—Managing-Director, Mr. R. C. Buchanan; Acting-Manager, Mr. Harry W. Day.—A dainty farcical comedy is The 'Varsity Belle, as interpreted by Mr. Henry E. Leigh's company. Mr. James Danvers, in the part of the Professor, is particularly happy and smart; Miss Nellie Beacon, the Professor's wife, sings well; Theocritus, the tragedian, is in the good care of Mr. Edward Chester, who makes the most of the part; Mr. Frank Lilliput as Runyard is responsible for a lot of the fun and comicalities, proving himself a smart little comedian; George Barker and Albert Perrin are acceptably played by Mr. Morrice Holmes and Mr. Roy Barraclough respectively; the Professor's mother-in-law is cleverly played by Miss Emma Rainbow; Maud Stoney is made appropriately sweet and innocent by Miss Beatrice Egerton; Miss Josephine Ellis is in the title-rôle, and makes a great impression by her really fine acting and graceful dancing.

BARNSLEY.—Theatre Royal.—Manager, Mr. A. C. Mitchell.—Mr. Geo. Dance's company in The Orchid is paying a return visit here this week, and was accorded a good reception on Monday night. The part of Lady Violet Anstruther suits Miss Dorothy Firmin admirably; Mr. Bertie Wright evokes continual merriment in the humorous part of Meakin; Miss Desiree Desmond makes a charming Josephine Zaccary; Mr. Sinclair Holden and Mr. Louis du Cane as the Hon. Guy Scrymgeour and Dr. Ronald Faussett respectively add much to the success of the play; as Caroline Vokins Miss Emily Stevens makes the most of her part; Miss Florence Wakeman is a pleasing Zelie Rombert; Mr. Stenson Liddard is capable as Aubrey Chesterton; Mr. Edward Nainby as Comte Raoul and Mr. John R. Val as Zaccary are successful.

Public Hall.—Manager, Mr. Geo. E. Hoey.—Mr. Jasper Redfern's entertainments continue to be a great attraction here. Mr. J. W. Rowley, the popular Yorkshire comedian, tops the bill; Mark Merry is also appreciated; Mlle. Lucretia is a clever dancer; other artists who appear are Ella Dean, contralto and double-voiced vocalist; Renee Grahame, character artist; Alex. Fox, ventriloquist; Fred Casburn, comedian; Nellie Nord, in a musical act; Phil Rabey, versatile artist. The Bioscope, with new films, is a pleasing feature.

BARNSTAPLE.—Theatre Royal.—Proprietors, the Bridge Trustees; Manager, Mr. Harry Ashton.—Wep-Ton-No-Mah was presented here on Monday and Tuesday, the title-rôle being undertaken by Go-Won-Go Mohawk with striking effect. Colonel Stockton was placed with Mr. C. W. Charles, who handled the part with characteristic soldierly bearing, and Captain Franklin received justice at the hands of Mr. Ike Shawcross; Mr. Edward Leroy successfully delineated the villainous qualities of Spanish Joe, the realistic knife fight between the latter and the Indian being a special feature; plenty of fun was caused by the eccentricities of Sam White, a negro, and Carry Cullen, acted by Messrs. Guy D. Hackney and Dan Ryan; an admirable representation of the amorous housekeeper was given by Miss Jessie Hart, and Miss Minnie Goepel did well as Nellie Stockton.

BARROW-IN-FURNESS. — Royalty Theatre and Opera House. — Lessee and Manager, Mr. Hugh Robertson; Resident-Manager, Mr. George Stone.—Mr. J. W. Turner's opera company is here, and opened with Satanella. Mr Turner appeared as Count Rupert, and sang and acted with all his old skill; Miss Kitty Brownless was an artistic and winning Satanella; Mr. Sidney Clifford's fine voice was heard to advantage as Arimones; Mr. Richard Cummings was an amusing Hortensio; and Miss Christine Gomez a winning Lelia. Other operas billed are Il Trovatore, The Bohemian Girl, The Lily of Killarney, Faust, and Maritana.

His Majesty's Theatre.—Lessees and Managers, Mr. and Mrs. Calvert Routledge. — Mr. John Gerant's company in At Duty's Call is here. As Harold Alison Mr. Gerant is a great success; and Mr. Harry Scott is a very effective Captain George Alison. General Gordon finds an ideal representative in Mr. Ernest St. John; the Salema of Miss Beatrice Western and the Nora Drummond of Miss Lily Crammonde are both charming; and Miss Eva Belle as Mary and Mr. Harry Ugar as Terry O'Halloran are good comedians.

Tivoli Theatre of Varieties. — Lessee and Manager, Signor Pepi.—The Schenk Brothers, in a sensational equilibristic act, are very popular; and King and Delaine are amusing comedians. The Two Bostons give a laughable turn; and pleasing items are contributed by Jimmy Carr, comedian; Florence Esdaile, vocalist; Bert Campbell, comedian; and Yetta, with her "cake-walk on the wire."

BATH.—Theatre Royal.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Egbert Lewis; Acting-Manager, Mr. Lewis A. Long.—The Moody-Manners B Company is paying its annual visit this week, opening on Monday in the ever-popular Faust. The young prima-donna, Miss Ethel Cadman, was the Marguerite, her pure soprano voice being heard to the utmost advantage in the Jewel Song; Siebel was undertaken by Miss Rosina Beynon, and this cultured cantatrice scored a big success in the part. Mr. George Neilson, in his familiar study of Mephistopheles, was as good as ever, his clear enunciation being quite an agreeable feature. Mr. Frederic Erle was an excellent Valentine. Faust, in the person of Mr. Maurice Paul, was new to Bathonians, and this gentleman came through his trying task with no small credit to himself. Mr. G. Gorst was the Wagner, and Miss M. Wood repeated her amusing study of Martha. Tuesday was quite a gala night, as Mlle. Zelie de Lussan appeared as Carmen, and the house was crowded to excess. This is the first time Mlle. de Lussan has sung the part of the gipsy heroine in Bath, and her performance was received with the utmost enthusiasm. For the remainder of the week Cavalleria, Pagliacci, The Bohemian Girl, Lohengrin, Tannhäuser, and Maritana have been performed. The orchestra and chorus are under the experienced directorship of Mr. Harrison Frewin.

Palace Theatre.—Proprietor, Mr. Frank Macnaghten; Manager, Mr. Chas. Schuberth.—Bernar's Marionettes are once again the means of giving great pleasure to large audiences this week. Another turn that is voted first class is that of Radford and Valentine, the jolly jesters; V. L. Granville scores in his character impersonations; Helen Martin, the favourite vocalist, has a capital medley of "South Down" melodies; Gladys Huxley, comedienne, finds numerous admirers; the Vocal Chameleon proves an interesting novelty; the Clive Trio, comediennes and dancers, are cordially welcomed; Raymond's Bio-Tableaux are always worth witnessing.

BATLEY.—Theatre Royal.—Proprietors, Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Whitty.—As Midnight Chimes is being well presented here by Mr. Leonard Dalrymple's company. Mr. Lewis Leslie is a sound exponent of the part of Dave Stannard; Mr. Herbert Belmore is a decided success as Ezra Gamble; Mr. Percy Maitland plays the conventional stage villain satisfactorily, and Wittie Wattie Walton livens things up considerably with his breezy comedy. A carefully handled part is that of Mary Stannard by Miss Mary Keighley; and Miss Madge Beresford is chic and charming as the French maid.

BEDFORD.—Royal County Theatre.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. E. Graham-Falcon; Acting-Manager, Mr. Walter R. Wilson.—This week the boards are occupied by Mr. H. Armitage and Mr. Arthur Leigh's company in Wilson Barrett's play, Lucky Durham. Mr. Edmund Kennedy as John Durham leaves nothing to be desired; Mr. Robert Forsyth as Lord Mountfallon plays with precision and vigour; Mr. Arthur Leigh well sustains the humour of the piece as the Hon. Reginald Steighton; Mr. A. E. Walker admirably impersonates Mr. Vallerton; Miss Alice Esther Belmore charmingly depicts the character of Helen Vallerton; and Miss Elsie Mayne charmingly portrays Miss Premore.

BELFAST.—Theatre Royal.—Managing-Director, Mr. Fred W. Warden; Acting-Manager, Mr. James M. McCann.—Mr. Arthur Bourchier's company opened on Monday in the successful play, The Walls of Jericho. That sterling actor, Mr. A. E. Anson, in the rôle of Jack Frobisher, could not easily be excelled, his brilliant acting gaining the admiration of a capital audience; Miss May Taverner submitted a fine impersonation of Lady Alethea Frobisher. She deservedly shared the honours with Mr. Anson. Mr. Alfred S. Barber was seen to advantage as Hankey Bannister; and Mr. A. W. Tyrer's embodiment of Harry Dallas had much to commend it. The rôle of the Marquis of Steventon was in the safe hands of Mr. Cecil Warde; and Miss Marguerite Cellier was convincing as Lady Westerby. Miss Nona Wynne furnished a delightful rendering of Lady Lucy Derenham; and the same may be said of Miss Lilian Rogers's interpretation of Miss Mornington. Mr. Leslie Rea as Lord Drayton was all that could possibly be desired; and other rôles were admirably sustained by Messrs. Norman Aveling, R. M. Taylor, W. S. Lane, W. Newcombe, &c.

Palace Theatre of Varieties.—Proprietors, Warden, Ltd.; Managing-Director, Mr. Fred W. Warden; Manager, Mr. J. De Freece; Resident-Manager, Mr. George Harris.—The chief feature of the programme this week is the capital musical comedy sketch, Office Hours, played by Corri and Derevex's company, which met with great success. Mlle. Von Ette performs some marvellous feats of illusion with dexterity; and the Seven Zerbinis stage The Enchanted Glen, a musical scena, in which is introduced, with startling effect, "Ora Pro Nobis"; the Sisters Brooks are delightful duettists and dancers; and a hit has been made by Kloof and Ramsey, comedy musical artists. Also appearing are Miss Rosie Barlow, comedienne; Mr. Herbert Rule, comedian; Stephens and Rennior; and the Palace pictures.

Empire Theatre of Varieties, Ltd.—General-Manager, Mr. Frank Allen; Acting-Manager, Mr. John A. Walker.—Mr. Lionel Vaughan's comedy sketch company heads the bill with their latest success, Where's the Culprit; or, In Trouble, which evokes roars of laughter; Miss Lillian Lowe's cultured voice has been heard to much advantage in several songs; and Phillips and Terry stage one of their mirth-provoking sketches. A hit of no small magnitude has been made by the Three Sisters Sprightly, whose character songs gain them a deserved success; Miss Beatrice Renée is a dainty comedienne; and also appearing are Rita and Roma, versatile entertainers; Mr. Will Yokes, comedian and sand dancer; and Woodhouse and Wells, eccentric comedians.

New Alhambra Theatre of Varieties.—General-Manager, Mr. Henry T. Downs.—This week the Alhambra Dramatic Company stages The Ticket-of-Leave Man with gratifying results. Miss Nina Blake-Adams appears to advantage as May Edwards; Mr. Horace Denton furnishes an admirable impersonation of Bob Brierley; the villainies of Jim Dalton are luridly portrayed by Mr. Percy M. Stevenson; Mr. Cyril Grier deserves much praise for his fine conception of Hawkshaw; Mr. Tom H. Solly (who is also responsible for the stage-management) submits a fine character-sketch of Melter Moss; and Miss Effie Macintosh must be congratulated on her capital interpretation of Sam Willoughby. As the garrulous Mrs. Willoughby, Miss Alice Clarke is all that could be desired. This week the Alhambra Bioscope exhibits a fine series of pictures, entitled "Why Jones Signed the Pledge."

BILSTON.—Theatre Royal.—Lessee, Mr. Battersby; Manageress, Miss Battersby.—Bound to Win, with Mr. F. G. Kimberley as Harry Lyndon, and Miss Lottie Addison as Gladys Orme, is here. With such experienced artists the piece is as attractive as ever. They are well backed up by another smart couple of performers in Mr. Charles Vivian and Miss Violet Langley.

BIRKENHEAD.—New Theatre Royal.—Lessee, Mr. W. W. Kelly; Acting-Manager, Mr. Charles Pell.—Mr. George Dance's company in Lady Madcap presents a most enjoyable entertainment, and deservedly commands extensive patronage. Mr. Harold Parkes scores heavily as Oroya Brown, the impersonation being brimful of humour; and Mr. Bay Russell is equally successful in the congenial rôle of Bill Stratford. The Count de St. Hubert is capitally played by Mr. J. Knox Orde; and Mr. James Graydon renders valuable assistance as his confederate, Posh Jenkins. Miss Isabelle Dillon gives a delightful and vivacious rendering of Lady Betty Claridge; Miss Gabrielle Leighton is an irreproachable Mrs. Layton; Mr. Emlyn Davis as Colonel Layton, Miss Maude Davis as Gwenny Holden, and Miss Ethel Beech as Susan, also accord most efficient service; and the orchestra is under the direction of Mr. Leonard Leslie.

Argyle Theatre of Varieties.—Manager, Mr. D. J. Clarke.—The Seven Savonas in their imposing instrumental act, The Palace of Orpheus, are on a welcome return visit, and appear with their usual success; Mr. George D'Albert, assisted by some competent artists, appear in an interesting sketch, entitled 'Tis Never Too Late to Mend; and Mr. Walter Bellonini, in an expert juggling entertainment, is a leading feature. An excellent company also includes Mr. Will Musgrave, a clever comedian; Senorita Eloina, a graceful gymnast; Miss Florence, with illustrated songs; Carr and Rose, in some catchy vocal duets; and Brown's Royal Bioscope.

BIRMINGHAM.—Theatre Royal.—Managing-Director, Mr. Tom B. Davis; Acting-Manager, Mr. Philip Rodway.—The Spring Chicken, which has certainly not moulted a feather of its early popularity, is appearing here in all the vigour of a second edition. Mr. George Gregory waxes more than ever popular as the mirth-provoking Girdle; Mr. John Brabourne acts as Gustave Babori with his customary ability; Miss Irene Verona gives a quaint distinction to the rôle of Mrs. Girdle; Miss Nancy Langtyre acts with "tone" and elegance as the Baroness Papouche; Miss Gertrude Gilliam appears in charming guise as Dulcie Babori; and Miss Nellie Lonnen as Emmy Lou, Miss Gertrude Glyn as Rosalie, Mr. Ernest Mahar as the waiter, Mr. William Spray as Stephen Henry, and Mr. Fred Leslie, jun., as Boniface, are all popular members of the cast.

Prince of Wales's Theatre.—Lessees, Messrs. Rodgers, Ltd.; Manager, Mr. J. F. Graham; Acting Manager, Mr. Henry Johnston.—Olivia, the famous version of "The Vicar of Wakefield," by H. G. Wills, has drawn the admirers of Miss Winifred Emery here in full throng. As Olivia Miss Emery often thrills as well as delights with her vivacious and withal touching and moving representation of the rôle; Mr. Brandon Thomas realises the clean-souled and noble-hearted old Vicar to perfection; Mr. Franklin Dyall makes a handsome and charmingly plausible Squire Thornhill; Mr. Eille Norwood personifies the clear, honest-spoken character of "Mr. Burchell" to admiration; Mr. Harry Ashford, as the blunt-speaking Farmer Flamborough, conveys an impression of genuine worth; Miss May Chevalier is bright and sympathetic as the character of Sophia occasions; Miss Keith Lytton does well with the rôle of the prim and starchy Mrs. Primrose; and Mr. H. Cannon George, Miss Maidee Andrews, Master Bobbie Andrews, Mr. M. A. Wetherell, and Miss Harriet French are all capable.

Grand Theatre.—Proprietor, Mr. J. W. Turner; Manager, Mr. Victor Turner.—The Duchess of Dantzic is here with Miss Kitty Gordon in the title-rôle, an impersonation which has won enthusiastic plaudits for its wealth of charm and ability. Mr. Frederick Moyes acts in a typically Napoleonic manner as the Emperor; Mr. H. C. Barry is responsible for much hilarity as Papillon; Mr. Albert Chapman acts the part of Lefebvre and sings the songs pertaining thereto in a highly successful manner; Miss Lily Edmund acts vivaciously as Lizette; Miss Nancy Herne is successful as Josephine; the Misses Josephine McCarthy and Doris Grenville appear as Napoleon's sisters; Miss Lilian Best scores as Rene de Saint Mezard; and Mr. T. C. Maxwell as Adhemar sings and acts in a creditable style, as do the remaining members of the company.

Alexandra Theatre.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. Lester Collingwood.—Mr. Julian Malvern's company, under the direction of Mr. Chas. M. Julian, appears this week in the successful drama, I Defy the World. Miss Violet Crauford is clever and fascinating as Blanche Darville; Mr. Percy Ballard has the audience entirely with him as Leon Darville; Mr. Charles Wilton does well as Count de Beaullieu; Miss Rosalie Heath is a capable and charming Pauline Delaporte; Mr. Chas. Conway is a plausible Laroche; Mr. Arthur Chisholm does good service as Andrew; Mr. Chas. M. Julian infects the house with his own ardent spirits as Samuel Wozzle; Miss Maud Lilian proves an able helpmeet as Marie Wozzle; and the Misses Connie Gray and Rosie Dane and others contribute ably.

Metropole Theatre.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. Andrew Melville; Acting-Manager, Mr. J. Hindle Taylor.—The sensational drama, Sentenced for Life, is here this week. Mr. Edward E. Louis commands sympathy in his well-acted rôle of Lieut. Roy Stillwell; Mr. Ernest Vaughan shows considerable power as Capt. Paul Derrick; Mr. Howard Keane is effective as Henry Beckwith; Mr. Maurice Maud shines as the good Samaritan, Martin Orris; Miss Madge Douglas has a winning manner as Adele Grey; Mr. Jas. F. Firth achieves popularity with his humorous acts as Percy M'Gentle; Miss May Neilson is well received as Kate Rennell; and Messrs. R. Brancepeth Nevill, Hugh Faulkner, Arthur Keand, and Reginald Oldroyd shine in the piece, which is relieved with some clever song specialities, &c.

Carlton Theatre, Saltley. — General-Manager, Mr. James Alexander.—The engagement here of Mr. J. H. Clyndes and company in A Royal Revenge has met with gratifying support, and Mr. Clyndes, in his well-studied performance of the dual rôle of Estevan Alvarez and Pedro de Castro has evolved loud applause. Miss Aimee Gratton Clyndes affects the audience favourably with her artistic acting as Cora Casilda; Miss Enid Edoni is eminently satisfactory as Inez Alvarez; Miss Ethel Whiteley comports herself with admirable dignity as the Lady Superior; Mr. John Foxhill as the miser, Vargus, is duly realistic; Mr. George Foster as Manuel Mondega acts with commendable spirit; and much success attends the efforts of Mr. A. F. Dudley as Azan Ben Musid and Count Ulric Useda, two cleverly differentiated rôles; Mr. H. W. Bradford scores as the King of Spain, and comedy is well portrayed by Mr. Walter Kenion and Miss Emmeline Roselle as Michael Sancha and Paquita Marcella.

Theatre Royal, Aston.—Lessee, Mr. Charles Barnard; General-Manager, Mr. E. Hewitson; Acting-Manager, Mr. Frank Whittles.—Her Second Time on Earth is attracting large audiences here. Mr. Frank R. Robertson secures a hearty reception with his manly portrayal of Jack Carlton; Mr. W. H. Porter is duly repellent as Guy Brand; Mr. Leonard Aardale invests the rôle of Beppo with much significance; Mr. John Nolan presents a fine study of Captain Norman; Mr. Cyril Vernon makes a pleasing charracter of Tom Norman; Miss Hilda Beverley acts with much finesse and power as Dora Grey; Miss D. Hildebrand gives a finished presentment of Laura Norman; Miss Polly Marsh assumes the attributes of Eliza Burk with rare fidelity; Mr. Will Corrie is diverting as Teddy Butterfly; and Miss Marie Kildare aids in the diversion as Kitty Rosebud.

Empire Palace.—Resident-Manager, Mr. A. W. Matcham.—Mr. John Tiller's burlesque company is the big turn this week in High Jinks. Dutch Daly, with his concertina selections, and Herren Boris Lensky, who is an expert violinist, are loudly applauded, as also are the Scottish Meisters, who are most popular; Atroy is a clever juggler; Frank Lynne, Carlton, and Albert Le Fre add to the mirth of the evening; Violi is a brilliant instrumentalist.

Gaiety Theatre. — General-Manager, Mr. Albert Bushell.—Lelia Roze has had a hearty welcome from her admirers here, appearing in her musical sketch, A Dressing Room Dream; another good turn is Fisher's Operatic Trio; Harry Gold is a popular comedian; and Sandford and Lyons are an amusing pair. Other popular turns are: Lord, Murray, and Lord, the Sisters Lunelle, Oakdene, ventriloquist, Sibb and Sibb, trapeze artists, Rezene and Robini, Wee Mona, and J. A. Wilson.

Hippodrome. — Managing-Director, Mr. Thomas Barrasford.—Phil Ray is making a big hit this week; Hodgson and Lowther's company, in a sketch, Barmaids, is most amusing; Charles Prelle, with his dog act; the Three Pirmans, amusing and clever gymnasts; Mabel Kessler, Herbert La Martine, Harris and Worth, Gracie Taylor, Jack Rae, and the Almas all come in for a good share of applause.

Bordesley Palace.—Resident-Manager, Mr. Edward Foster.—Charles Carte is appearing here as Jerry the Tramp, in the melodramatic sketch, A Noble Brother; the Monte-Myro troupe are applauded for their clever tricks; a smart shadowgraph and juggling act is given by the Debreans; the Smithson's comedy company appears in an amusing sketch, The Lie Alarm; Ian Colquhoun, Albertine Melich, and Lucia and Viata are prominent turns.

BISHOP AUCKLAND. — Eden Theatre. — Lessees, Messrs. R. Addison, Ltd.; Managing-Director, Mr. R. Addison; Acting-Manager and Secretary, Mr. J. Huntley.—The boards are occupied this week by Mr. Robert Perris's company in A Fight for Millions. Mr. John E. Carlyle undertakes the rôle of Tom Manley in a praiseworthy manner; a powerful representation of Richard Dudley, the remorseless villain, is given by Mr. Hugh Mewburn; Solomon Moses is well played by Mr. Karl H. Edwards; Mr. Robt. A. Earl is an able interpreter of Hudson Rivers; Miss Alwynne Ermon is effective in the rôle of Pearl Rivers; much sympathy is evoked by Miss Elma C. Turner as Helen Dudley and Miss Mabel Howe as Little Madge; Miss Nora Kingsley is successful as Mrs. Hudson River. The comic relief is ably provided by Mr. Harry Howe as Willie Neverwork.

BLACKPOOL.—Her Majesty's Opera House.—General-Manager, Mr. J. R. Huddlestone. — Miss Emma Hutchison and Mr. Percy Hutchison's company is still in possession here. That charming comedy, Cousin Kate, was played during the early part of this week with great success. Miss Lilias Earle assumed the name rôle, and won all hearts; Heath Desmond found an able exponent in Mr. Templer Powell, and Mr. Ernest H. G. Cox interpreted the rôle of the Rev. James Bartlett in exactly the right spirit, and Mr. S. Irwin Barrett made a good Bobby Spencer; Miss Hilda Honiss was a sweet and natural Amy Spencer, and Miss Amy Coleman was well suited to the part of Mrs. Spencer; Miss Margaret Marshall's Jane was also a very praiseworthy characterisation.

Grand Theatre.—Owner and Manager, Mr. T. Sergenson. The Breed of the Treshams, played by Mr. Frank Bertram's company, is proving very attractive fare here this week. Lieut. Keresby is played by Mr. H. Tripp Edgar, and his efforts are warmly appreciated; Miss Celestine Bertram, who plays Batty, is also a great favourite; Miss Florence Tressilian gives a pleasing representation of the Hon. Margaret Hungerford, and capable work is done by Messrs. Oswald Lingard (Viscount Dorsington), Richard A. Greene (Clement Hungerford), George Traill (Sir Henry Carwen), and Cecil C. Klein (Francis Tresham).

Palace. — General-Manager, Mr. G. H. Harrop; Acting-Manager, Mr. Fred Waller.—The programme here this week includes Joe Reichen, who submits a remarkable turn with a team of performing dogs; Mason and Bart contribute a clever and amusing gymnastic act; Marie Blythe is a pleasing vocalist; the Barrellis give their musical tit-bits; Hans and Lux find favour as argumentative comedians; Hettie Chattell shines as a burlesque actress; Tom N. Mills is an amusing comedian; Martinetti and Grossi give their American surprise act; and Gladys Mavius, the Canadian girl, is also well received.

BOLTON.—Theatre Royal, Ltd. — Managing-Director, Mr. J. F. Elliston; Acting-Manager, Mr. Charles Melvin.—A good reception was given to Mr. Baron H. Harriss's company on Monday, when The Prince of Pilsen was submitted to a Bolton audience, for the first time. The production is admirably staged, the scenery and dresses being most effective. The part of Hans Wagner is in the hands of Mr. Harry Kilburn, whose performance is eminently diverting; Mr. Frank Crimp, an ideal Prince of Pilsen, has a capital stage presence and a fine voice; Mr. Roy Sydney is smart and efficient as Lieut. Tom Wagner; Mr. Bernard Russell is most amusing as the Earl of Shrimpton; and Mr. Ernest Gifford is fully equal to the part of Francois. Miss Connie Leon is smart and chic as Sidonie, her singing and dancing gaining her much applause; Miss Dorothy Grasdorff is dainty and charming as Nellie Wagner; Miss Mollie Wynne is capital as Jimmie; Miss Florence Beech scores as Edith Adams; and Miss Sophie Harriss, who is well suited to the part of Mrs. Maddison Crocker, plays with great vivacity and abandon, her acting and singing being alike good.

Grand Theatre, Ltd.—Managing-Director, Mr. J. F. Elliston; Acting-Manager, Mr. Harry Kenyon.—Chief place in the programme here is filled by Eugene Stratton, the "Ideal Coon," whose reception has been very flattering; Beattie and Blanche, comediennes and dancers; Alec Leo, comedian; Ernesto, a smart juggler and equilibrist; Tom and Marie Motramo, in their amusing musical act Do you Reverse? Harry Clifford, comedian; Allis and Cassati, in singing, comedy, and dancing; Bliss and Bliss, comedians; the Elgars, refined vocal entertainers; Harry Tate's latest success, Fishing; and Vernon's Imperial Bioscope are other attractions in a fine bill.

BOOTLE. — Muncaster Theatre. — Proprietors, Messrs. Pennington; Manager, Mr. H. Pennington; Acting-Manager, Mr. H. Young.—Mr. Lingford Carson's No. 1 répertoire company opened to a good house on Monday night with A Modern Adventuress. Miss Muriel Thompson was highly successful as the scheming adventuress, Violet Meredith; and she was ably assisted by Mr. Ernest J. Fare as Wallace Denton. Mr. Sydney C. Cranston was seen to advantage as Harry Delby; and Miss Marrie Robson portrayed the part of Vivette Delby in a pleasing manner. Mr. Charles Draycott gave a finished and powerful rendering of Pietro Donelli; and Mr. Morley Carroll did full justice to the character of William Delby. Mr. Dobson Clyde did well as Walter Beale; while Mr. Arthur Byron gave a true and characteristic rendering of John Crompton, a Yorkshireman. He was capitally partnered by Miss Daisy Norman as Sally Hodges. On Thursday night The Heart of a Hero was played, and Friday was set apart for a benefit to Mr. Charles Draycott, and a special programme was submitted in addition to the drama.

BOSTON.—Palace.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Geo. Saphrini.—The Royal Temples head the bill here this week; Mlle. Louise Gilbert, the Welsh soprano, is exceptionally good; La Belle Lilly and Albert are fine gymnasts; the Hackfords are special artists on the bouncing spring; Silly Billy Elliott, Yorkshire Comedian, is decidedly funny; and Alf Bishop, Rena and Rex, Wallie Gilbert, and the Two Wambas help to make up a strong programme.

BOURNEMOUTH.—Theatre Royal and Opera House.—Proprietors, David Allen and Son; Sole Lessee Mr. Mouillot; Manager, Mr. Rowland Stewart.—Mr. Lewis Waller's company, under the direction of Mr. Peter Davey, opened on Monday with Brigadier Gerard. Mr. Loring Fernie delineates the title-character with rare skill, and receives strong support from Mr. George Mallett in a clever reading of Talleyrand, and Mr. Arthur Somers as Napoleon. The Mons. d'Albert of Mr. Penn Hamilton is quite good; Miss Maud Hoffman is successful as the Comtesse, more especially in her scene with Mr. Somers in the last act; and Miss Gertrude Beattie as Agnes is delightful.

BRADFORD.—Theatre Royal.—Lessee, Mr. John Hart; General-Manager, Mr. T. F. Doyle; Acting-Manager, Mr. J. Richardson.—After an absence of twelve months, the gifted actress, Miss Olga Nethersole, reappeared here on Monday night as Fanny le Grand in Sapho, with which her name has so long been identified. There was a large audience, who were stirred visibly by Miss Nethersole's emotional acting, and the interest was intense, culminating in prolonged applause at the fall of the curtain. Mr. Frank Mills's fervour and convincing acting as Jean Gaussin enabled him to share largely in the honours; and Mr. William Clarke earned distinction by a humorous impersonation of Cesaire Gaussin; in fact, the support all round was admirable. Mr. John Nesbit as M. Dechelette, Mr. Julian Royce as Eugene Flamant, Miss Constance Raymond as Alice Dore, Miss Edith Clarke as Irene, Miss Mary Relph as Mme. Hettema and Miss Ina Goldsmith as Francina being particularly noticeable. Miss Agnes Tina displayed intelligence as the boy Joseph. On Wednesday evening Miss Nethersole appeared as Paula in The Second Mrs. Tanqueray, with Mr. Mills as Aubrey Tanqueray.

Prince's Theatre.—Lessee, Mr. Francis Laidler; Acting-Manager, Mr. N. Hepworth.—Mr. Wentworth Croke's excellent company is presenting Hall Caine's dramatised version of The Christian here this week, with that clever actress, Miss Grace Chalmers, in the exacting part of Glory Quayle; her acting is charming and at times intensely dramatic, and she has fine support from Mr. Frank Tennant, a manly and convincing John Storm. Mr. Frederick Scarth is effective in a self-possessed impersonation of Lord Robert Ure; and Mr. W. Brisco Owen's Drake. Mr. Edwin Ling's Father Lamplugh, and Mr. Charles Hill's Parson Quayle are amongst the more noticeable efforts.

The Empire.—Moss' Empires, Ltd.; Resident-Manager, Mr. Percival Craig.—Drama proper is a feature of the big programme here this week, The Orange Girl, a play in three effective scenes, affording the charming actress, Miss Dolly Elsworthy, fine scope for her powers as a comedienne in the character of Nell Gwynne. R. H. Douglass is excellent in his monologue, "Take-offs"; and as a dialect vocal comedian, Phil Hermann is very humorous. The Dean Tribune Trio introduce some boisterous fun into their laughable sketch, Applicants; Will Cornish is clever with the handbells; a clever and graceful equilibristic and acrobatic performance is submitted by the Two Picquays, with their wonderfully trained tropical birds, Rose Naynon and Clyde Phillips furnish a delightful entertainment; Lady Mansel reappears with her smart juvenile singers and dancers with much success; and some excellent films are shown by the American Bioscope.

Palace The

as Millie Mostyn; Miss Helene Rose made a vivacious Ninette; Miss Kathleen Courtney did well as Susie; and Miss Violet Crossley was sufficiently dignified as Lady Willoughby. General Sir Wilkie Willoughby had a capital exponent in Mr. J. F. McArdle, his quaint style causing no end of merriment; Mr. G. Davy Burnaby was decidedly funny as Viscount Gushington; Mr. Lionel Victor acted cleverly as Adolphus Dudd; Mr. Fred Allendale hit off the peculiarities of Monsieur Duval accurately; the two waiters had humorous exponents in Mr. George Barrett and Mr. A. E. E. Edwardes; and Mr. Ernest W. Laceby made a good character-part of the German commissionaire, Rudolph.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Managing-Director, Mr. Ernest Carpenter; Resident-Manager, Mr. W. F. Crowe.—Mr. Fred Melville's company is here with the interesting and well-staged drama, Her Forbidden Marriage. A real motor-car, several horses—one a buck-jumper—and a carriage and pair, add considerably to the effect of the staging. Mr. Henry Lonsdale acts excellently as George Madison; Mr. Louis Hector is consistent and effective as Charles Devereux; Miss Nellie Bonser is pleasing and expressive as Lucy; and the comic parts of Timothy Tuttutt and Patty Lovejoy are capitally taken by Mr. Fred de Vere and Miss Denny Fitzherbert. Other important parts have competent and careful exponents in Mr. Beresford Whitcomb, Miss Octavia Noel, and Miss Barbara Gott.

PALACE THEATRE.—Resident-Manager, Mr. Horace Livermore; Treasurer, Mr. F. V. Welchman.—Albert Wyndham and company are appearing here with success in a round of Shakespearean sketches, both the staging and acting being satisfactory. Darc's Marionettes are appreciated, the puppets representing leading variety artists, who appear in song and dance; Griff, assisted by Alpha, amuses with patter and comic juggling; Otto and Olga, speciality comedy artists, obtain considerable applause; Yolande Noble, comedienne, is pleasing; Winnie Derson, comedienne, is also highly successful; and Harry Anderson, comedian, is evidently a favourite here. The performance concludes with a good display of Vernon's animated pictures.

EMPIRE.—Proprietor, Mr. B. Pearce Lucas; Resident-Manager, Mr. Sid Macaire.—John Lawson and company are appearing here in several popular sketches, all going well and obtaining full appreciation; Irma Lorraine presents a fine series of picture tableaux, representative of various seasons of the year, &c., all her poses being exceptionally graceful and artistic. Other artists include the Jackley Trio, in a clever acrobatic and whistling turn; Princess Pauline, a pleasing comedienne; Serpentello, the well-known contortionist; Bonetti and Corrie, smart jugglers and comedy artists; the Sisters Morgan, competent duettists and dancers; and George Prince, a comedian with good songs and quaint style. The performance concludes with interesting animated pictures.

BROMLEY.—LYRIC THEATRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. F. W. Purcell; Assistant-Manager, Mr. David Watson. — A three nights' visit is being paid by the Ian Maclaren Shakespearean and Classical Répertoire Company, and presented to a crowded house an excellent performance of David Garrick on the night of our visit. Mr. Ian Maclaren gave a really fine impersonation of David Garrick, his excellent acting and fine elocution produced a marked impression on the audience. A humorous impersonation of the Hon. Bob Fairly was given by Mr. Philip Gordon; Mr. Whitford Kane was good as Mr. Peters; Mr. Johnson had an excellent representative in Mr. Houston Meharry; a splendid performance of Alderman Brackson was given by Mr. Ed. Landor. A warm word of praise must be given to Miss Edith Coleman for an excellent study of Mabel Brackson; Miss Gertrude Littlewood caused amusement as Mrs. Peters; and Mrs. Henry Howard did well as Isabella Johnson. The comedy was preceded by a comedietta entitled Delicate Ground, with Mr. Ian Maclaren in his original character as performed at the Garrick Theatre.

BROUGHTON.—VICTORIA, LTD.—Manager and Licensee, Mr. J. Fred Watson.—Musical comedy is again presented in a creditable manner, and on Monday night Charles Macdona's company gave much satisfaction to a good house with The Toreador. Mr. Harold Batt shows much agility and skill as Pettifer; Mr. Walter Champney is a funny Sammy Gigg; a comical Sir Archibald Slackett is that of Mr. Ralph Lynn; Mr. Sidney Granville as Carajolo pleases much with his singing; Miss Marie Beresford as Nancy Staunton is charming; Miss Leah Howard as Susan and Miss Eliza Earle as Dora are clever and vivacious; Miss Beatrice Grosvenor is a satisfactory Mrs. Malton Hoppings; Donna Teresa is well presented by Miss Nina Carlton; Mr. George Austin does well as Augustus Trail.

BURNLEY.—VICTORIA OPERA HOUSE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. W. C. Horner.—The musical comedy The Toreador is being presented here this week by Mr. Mouillot's excellent company. Mr. Harry Buss keeps the audience in continual laughter as Sammy Gigg. Mr. Howard Cridland is an excellent Archie Slackett, and Mr. Atheling Farrar is good as Augustus Traill; Mr. H. M. White is deservedly encored for his able singing as Carajolo; Mr. Fred Fowler as Pettifer contributes some smart dancing, as also does Mr. Alfred H. Majilton as the Governor, and Mr. Alick Macmillan is good as Rinaldo. Miss Rose Helene as Nancy sings "The Language of Flowers" prettily; Miss Zoe Gilfillan is a captivating Dora, and Miss Katie May as Susan is charming; Miss Marie Adair is a dashing Donna Teresa, and Miss Florence Burdett scores as Mrs. Hoppings. The orchestra is under the able bâton of Mr. George Saker.

EMPIRE THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. W. C. Horner.—Sid Cotterell and company in The Substitute are here this week, and are well received; Zertho and his dogs are an acceptable turn, and Ruby Dahl, with his "Merry Mannikins," obtains a flattering reception; the Two Lauries are clever eccentric acrobats; Essman in a juggling performance creates much laughter; Jack Hylton is a funny comedian; the Brothers Bright are clever gymnasts; and Dot Hardy is a pleasing comedienne.

BURTON-ON-TRENT.—OPERA HOUSE (NEW HIPPODROME).—Proprietor, Mr. H. Dudley Bennett; Acting-Manager, Mr. W. G. Arkell.—A fresh array of talent is here this week, consisting of Flo Melville, charming burlesque artist; Kavados, a clever juggler and cannon ball king; Bert and Dora, comedy artists; Henderson, rightly named the blind genius; Harry Clyo and Rose Rochelle, in a funny comedy act; and Geo. Barron, the eccentric comedian; a picturesque show is given by Ara, Zebra, and Vora. The Raymond Bio-Tableaux, with the latest living pictures, is also in evidence.

BURY (Lancs.).—THEATRE ROYAL AND OPERA HOUSE, LTD.—General-Manager, Mr. Otto C. Culling.—Messrs. E. Lockwood and R. Crossman's company is paying a return visit here with Sergeant Brue. Mr. T. A. Shale is capital as Crookie Scrubbs, laughter being continuous all the time he is on the stage; he has an able partner in Mr. E. Russell as Sergeant Brue; Miss Lily Lingard is a charming Lady Bickenhall; Miss Kitty Dale has a pleasing voice as Aurora Brue; and Miss Constance Berkeley is good as Daisy; Mr. J. H. Goldsworthy as Michael Brue, and Mr. Henry Chichester as Mr. Crank fill their parts well.

CIRCUS OF VARIETIES.—General-Manager, Mr. Otto C. Culling.—A good programme here this week includes two special turns by natives of Bury, Messrs. Binns and Binns, in their little comedy, entitled Vagabonds, and Mr. Michael Quinn, the principal baritone of the Amateur Operatic Society, who appears for the first time as a music-hall artist. Other turns include Vandinoff, a lightning painter; Alcide Capitaine, gymnast; the Bros. Babasio, in feats of strength; Maggie Rimmer, singer and dancer; Charles Craston, comedian; and Mulven and Miriam, comedians.

HIPPODROME.—Proprietors, Messrs. W. H. Broadhead and Sons; General-Manager, Mr. W. Broadhead, jun.—The turns here include Ju Kuto, Japanese wrestler; the Four Keith-Mersons, in a laughable sketch, entitled The Comic Huntsmen; the Canary Family, in a novelty, which they call The Flying Kitchen; Edie Gray and her coons; Lachie Thomson's topweights; Kroney Bros. tumblers; Leon and Leoni, banjoists; and Kato's Komical Kidgets.

CAMBRIDGE.—NEW THEATRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. W. B. Redfern, J.P., D.L.—Mr. Edward Terry is ever welcome here, and on Monday met with a warm reception on appearing as William Todman in Liberty Hall. Miss Fyfe Alexander was quite at home as Blanche Chilworth; Miss Gertrude Tate made a sweet Amy; Mr. Allan Pollock appeared as Mr. Owen; Mr. Frank Cellier, jun., was seen to advatnage as Hon. Gerald Harringay; Mr. William Dexter as J. Briginshaw, Mr. E. W. Thomas (Mr. Pedrick), Mr. George Howard (Mr Hickson), and Miss Ella Dixon (Miss Hickson), were all particularly satisfactory, and Miss Eugenie Vernil gave an excellent study of Crafir. On Tuesday The Magistrate was played, and on Wednesday Sweet Lavender.

CARDIFF.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Robt. Redford.—Veronique is always well received in Cardiff, and its visit this week has drawn fine houses. Mr. George Dance's company is as strong as on previous visits. Miss Ruth Lincoln, in her interpretation of the title-rôle, displays her sweet voice with excellent effect; Mr. Roland Bottomley as Florestan makes a conspicuous success; Miss Lena Maitland as the Countess also displays vocal ability; and as Agatha, Miss Ethel Negretti evokes genuine applause. Mr. Leslie Holland is funnier than ever as Coquenard; Mr. Fred Lyne as Loustot is diverting; and Mr. Courtney Comber is effective as Seraphin. A delightful little Denise is Miss Gracie Sinclaire.

KING'S THEATRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. Samuel James; Acting-Manager, Mr. Albert C. Duncan.—The Convict's Daughter, the attraction at the King's this week, is presented by Mr. Frank Bertram's capable company. Mr. Bertram is conspicuous throughout the drama with his carefully studied delineations; Mr. G. Moreton-Williams proves a well-groomed and callous villain as Jasper Thorn; Mr. Herbert M. King as Trevalyen displays histrionic ability; and Mr. C. Nelson Wallace does well as Frederick Neville, the banker. In Miss Nellie Clyde as Edith Neville the piece has a delightful heroine; and Miss Rose Carew is at home in the part of Marian Thorn. The comedy parts are well filled.

EMPIRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. Oswald Stoll; Resident-Manager, Mr. C. H. S. Dring.—A strong and varied programme is put forward this week. Ludwig Amann never fails to entertain with his faithful facial reproductions of great men; the Five Bogannys fairly bring down the house with their wonderfully clever Risley performance; Victor Travers is a comedian with a fund of genuine humour; Florence and Lillian provide a refined musical act; and Lena Willard is a chic, fascinating comedienne. The Avrignys, jugglers and equilibrists; Amy Russell, a pleasing vocalist; and Roy and Fenton, in an absurdity entitled The Grass-Widower, are also prominent names on the programme. Will Evans causes much disappointment by his absence through indisposition; but the bioscope is to the fore with pictures of the Cardiff City Hall Opening.

CARLISLE.—H.M. THEATRE.—Lessees, Trustees of R. Stewart M'Kim; Manager, Mr. Stanley Rogers; Acting-Manager, Mr. Frank Stanley.—The first visit of Mr. F. Mouillot's principal company in A Message from Mars is creating considerable interest here. Mr. Herbert J. Bentley's Horace Parker is a fine performance, every trait of an interesting character being realised with ease and skill; Mr. William H. Brougham is a sonorous Messenger; a fine character sketch of the Tramp is contributed by Mr. Bruce Lindley; Mr. J. Edgar Stevenson makes the most of the American; as Minnie Templer Miss Joan Ellis is simply delightful; and Miss Flora Hastings gives a dignified impersonation of Miss Parker.

THE PALACE.—Proprietors, the Palace Theatre, Carlisle, Limited; Managing-Director, Signor Rino Pepi; Acting-Manager, Mr. A. E. Nicholls.—The programme submitted here by the enterprising managing director this week is notable for its all-round excellence. The star turn is provided by the Delevines in their comedy act entitled Flipp and Flopp, which is genuinely funny. Winona and King, rifle experts, do some wonderful things in trick shooting; Agnes Molteno has a beautiful voice, which she uses with cultured skill in operatic selections and popular ballads; a really good class turn is contributed by Mount and Corelli in their musical duologue, The Master and the Maid; Charlie Williams is a successful big boot dancer; Illumino Statuo introduces a pretty and uncommon stage setting with brilliant lighting effects, the capable singing of the central figure adding greatly to the success, and a clever knockabout and horizontal bar act is given by Stelling and Revell.

CARMARTHEN. — ASSEMBLY ROOMS.—Public Rooms Co.; Secretary, Mr. Edward Baldwin.—Mr. Sidney Dench's company has appeared this week in the realistic drama The Rich and Poor of London. Miss Dorah Dench as May Braithwaite gave a realistic interpretation to her part, and Miss Emily Woodleigh as Auntie Scrimp was equally good; Miss V. Lesborough as Buby Redgrave was a success; as was also Miss Sibel Viney as Polly Phillpot; Miss Minnie Bedford as the heiress of Ravenswood was all that could be desired; while Master Bert Dench as Dixie, the waif, must be highly complimented on the way in which he portrayed the part; the Earl of Ravenswood was capitally interpreted by Mr. F. Dunmer; and Mark Stanning (his nephew) was ably embodied by Mr. Dennis Clyde; Mr. Henry Deane performed the part of Dr. Leonard Morton with much ability; and Matthew Grabbers, the rascally lawyer, found a capable and realistic exponent in Mr. Cole Aspinall; Mr. Arthur Jarvis in the rôle of Bill Binks, of Billingsgate, was a success; and Mr. Sidney Dench as Spider Jack evoked warm encomiums for his delineation of the part.

CASTLEFORD.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Sole Proprietor and Licensee, Mr. Chas. Gadsby; Business-Manager, Councillor Hy. Masterman.—Mr. and Mrs. H. B. Levy and J. E. Cardwell's company in the musical comedy, Beauty and the Beast, is here this week. Miss Dolly Dodds is a charming Beauty; Miss May Gibson a captivating Silver Star; Miss Beattie Townsend does good work as Evilheart; wee George Wood is exceptionally funny as Pip; as Baron Hardup Master Jack Harrison is a clever little comedian; Mr. Will Orston makes up and acts well as the Beast; the Brothers Armstrong create laughter as the Baron's daughters; and Messrs. Doyle and Gibson make a humorous pair as Flipp and Flopp; Miss Kitty Trewitt is good as Prince Charming; Will Scarlett finds a clever representative in Miss Daisy Fielder; the dancing of Miss Annie Brumby is graceful; and Miss Isa Gibson makes a pert and vivacious Maid Marion.

CHATHAM. — THEATRE ROYAL. — Proprietors, Messrs. C. and L. B. Barnard; Acting-Manager, Mr. Lionel Barnard; Secretary, Mr. Geo. G. Ridley.—Here we have Beauty and the Barge on a return visit. The chief honours rest with Mr. Blake Adams, whose Captain James Barley is an excellent piece of work; Miss May Fairclough is pleasing and natural as Ethel Smedley; Mr. Edward Coventry is a capital Lieut. Seton Boyne; Mr. Walter Pemperton sufficiently irascible in the rôle of Major Smedley; Tom Cod and John Dibbs are ably represented by Messrs. Fred Knight and Charles White respectively; Miss Ruby Wyndham is amusing as Mrs. Baldwin, and other characters are in good keeping.

BARNARD'S PALACE OF VARIETIES.—Sole Proprietor, Mr. L. B. Barnard.—Marie Kendall is on a welcome return visit, and is attracting big audiences; Lacey's Erascope finds new pictures, and the variety turns include the Keiths, in a musical act; George Hall, siffleur and vocalist; the Sisters Desmond, duettists; Ellis and Watts, comedians; and Steve McCarthy, the Irish Coon.

GAIETY PALACE OF VARIETIES.—Proprietor, Capt. H. H. Davis; Manager, Mr. Frank E. Donne.—Carrie Laurie has improved her Kindergarden act, and the juveniles appear to do better than ever; Arabella Allen is proving a strong attraction, her studies from Dickens gain every possible attention on the part of the audience; Boyd and Gilfain score every time, while others appearing are Daisy Lane, comedienne; Harry Carmen, vocalist; Syria Lamonte, ballad vocalist; Fred Alberto, comedian and dancer; and pictures by the Edisonograph.

CHELTENHAM. — OPERA HOUSE. — General Manager, Mr. H. Oswald Redford.—Mr. Mouillot's company is paying a return visit in the ever-welcome San Toy. Miss Bessie Alleyne is graceful and sings well in the title-rôle; Mr. Arthur Cartwright makes a capital Captain Bobby Preston, rendering "Motherland" with thrilling effect; Mr. Bert Edwards plays the part of Li with unflagging humour, being well supported in song and dance by Miss Lottie Sargeant as Dudley; Yen How is impersonated with comic dignity and the necessary unction by Mr. Hugh Webb; Fo Hop has a dramatic representative in Mr. Charles Rose; Mr. Wm. Jordan is a sly Emperor; Mr. Robert Rivers acts forcibly as the peppery Sir Bingo; Mr. Geo. Taylor plays and sings pleasantly as Lieut. Tucker; Miss Irene Lavington makes a charming Poppy; and Miss Maud Rundell gives a graceful and agile pas seul. Miss Winifred Howard is a handsome and clever leader of the Emperor's Amazons; Mr. Hubert Sullivan-Brooke is the capable conductor of a smart chorus and augmented orchestra.

CHORLEY.—GRAND THEATRE.—Proprietor, Mr. G. T. Sante; Manager, Mr. Arthur Hemingway.—Mr. and Mrs. W. Maclaren's company in Proof is here this week. Mr. Gerald Kennedy gives an excellent rendering of Pierre Lorance; the despicable character of Lazare is powerfully portrayed by Mr. W. J. Butler; Mr. Wilford Bailey infuses a considerable amount of broad humour into the part of Chamboran; Mr. Carl Beechey is well suited to the rôle of the Duke d'Aubeterre; Mr. Frank Hawkesbury does exceedingly well as Victor; Valentine is admirably delineated by Miss May Grimshaw; Miss Beatrice Shirley sustains cleverly the rôles of Madeline and Adrienne; and Miss Phena Powell as Madame Deprets and Miss Nita Ashley as Duchesse d'Aubeterre capably enact their representative parts.

CLYDEBANK.—NEW GAIETY THEATRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. R. C. Buchanan; Acting-Manager, Mr Herbert J. Montague.—The attraction here this week is the popular drama, On the Stroke of Twelve, presented by Messrs. D'Arcy and Little's company. Mr. Vincent W. Carlyle depicts the hero Jack Rutledge in a manner worthy of high praise; Mr. H. Creagh Hunt gives a convincing rendition of the unscrupulous James Horton; Mr. Fred J. Little is highly successful as Jasper; and a smart character sketch of Moses Levi is given by Mr. Syd T. Russell. George Bainbridge is well acted by Mr. Fred Guinness; Mr. Fred Ferne does good work as Henry Rutledge; Mr. Will Bass finds favour as Pat; Miss Nellie Moore gives a careful reading of Jess; and Miss Beatrice Moore is a charming Doris Rutledge.

COATBRIDGE.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Proprietors, The Coatbridge Theatre Company; Managing-Directors, Mr. R. C. Buchanan; Resident-Manager, Mr. John Commins.—Mr. Samuel James's company is paying a first visit here this week, and on Monday evening opened with As Good as Gold. Mr. H. H. Barrington capably delineates Mark Williams; Mr. William Heilbronn makes much of the part of Lieut. Jack Stanton; Mr. Richard Ferris displays ability as Sir Richard Wharncliffe; and a typical portrayal of Horatio Spanker is given by Mr. Norman Hall. Miss Kate Froude is well cast as Kate D'Arvilie; Anna Nias is admirably undertaken by Miss Florence Lovell; Miss Edith Carr scores as Madge Merry; and as Nora Williams the equal of Miss Barbara Allison would be hard to find.

COLCHESTER.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Sole Proprietor, Mr. Charles Macdona; Resident-Manager, Mr. F. C. Upton.—On Monday, before a large audience, Mr. Fred. Mouillot's Blue Moon company opened a three-nights' engagement. In the title-rôle, Mlle. Marguerite Naudin was nicely placed, a like remark applying to Mr. Arthur Radcliff as Jack Ormsby, whilst the efforts of Miss Dorma Morgan as Evelyn Ormsby and Mr. Basil Mercer as Bobbie Scott were highly successful. Mr. Victor Wallace made a smart Major Callabon, and Mr. Fred Inwood a picturesque Prince of Kharikhar; Mr. Ainslie Burton was intensely droll as Moolraj; but perhaps the most popular parts were Private Tayor and Millicent Leroy, as delineated by Mr. Charles Stephenson and Miss May Audrey respectively, these two being vociferously applauded for their really smart dancing and singing. Miss Mary Glanbrane was an ideal Lady Brabasham, and the choruses left little to be desired.

HIPPODROME.—Joint Proprietors, Messrs. Fredk. Mouillot and Walter do Frece; General-Manager, Mr. J. de Frece; Resident-Manager, Ben de Frece.—The star turn this week is Maxadler's thrilling spectacle entitled Balaclava. Cole and Rags, comedy jugglers, are a very entertaining pair; Arthur Slater scores as a siffleur, and Milner Verren sings sweetly. Daisy Silcott sings a couple of capital songs, and Jack Heath is a welcome comedian. As usual, the pictures conclude the bill.

CORK.—OPERA HOUSE.—Manager, Mr. John Horgan.—Mr. George Alexander's company opened a week's engagement here on Monday in His House in Order. Miss Jean Sterling MacKinlay, in the part of Nina proves that she is an actress of exceptional insight and intelligence, her impersonation being powerful and pleasing; Mr. Stephen F. Ewart as Hilary Jesson, displays both humour and dignity, as the part demands. The colourless Filmer Jesson is a character well filled by Mr. J. Edward Pearce; and Mr. George Fitzgerald as Sir Daniel Ridgeley, Mr. Ernest R. Holloway as Pryce Ridgeley, Miss Elaine Sleddal as Geraldine Ridgeley, and Miss Augusta Haviland as Lady Ridgeley all present clever studies; Miss Maisie Richardson as Derek is apt and intelligent.

PALACE THEATRE.—Manager, Mr. Henry Kemble.—The programme here is up to a very high standard. Bertha Stuart's singing of "Bonnie Mary of Argyle" and "Caller Herrin'" is charming; Barrington, musical expert, is clever; George Gilbey contributes some good songs; Leslie and Player are smart comedy artists; Kiota's balancing feats are sensational; and Fred Dunlop, Claude Tomlin, and Yank Hoe also entertain.

COVENTRY.—OPERA HOUSE.—Proprietor, Mr. Wm. Bennett.—On Monday night a hearty reception was accorded Mr. George Dancer's principal company in the Cingalee. Mr. Jack Crichton gives a pleasing rendering of Chambhuddy Ram, his clever dancing being much admired, and with Miss Gladys Guy as Peggy Sabine is repeatedly encored. Mr. Cyril Dane gives a capital account of himself as the Hon. Harry Vereker; Mr. Helier le Maistre makes an imposing Boobhamba; Mr. Grafton Williams gives an amusing rendering of Sir Peter Loftus; Mr. Ethelbert Edwards is responsible for Bobby Warren; Miss Georgina Middleton as Naneya makes a charming Cingalee Girl; and Miss Marjory Clark is good as Lady Patricia Vane.

THE HIPPODROME.—Manager, T. M. Sylvester.—Well filled houses witnessed on Monday night a varied and excellent programme, chief amongst the numerous artists being Datas, the Human Almanac; the Three Olympiers give a pleasing entertainment, entitled Beauty in Bronze; the Virginians, a troupe of coloured artists, are heartily received; Mr. Ernest Rees proves himself to be a first-class comedian; Okill is clever as a ventriloquist; Wallace Witney is a comedian; Beattie Foster and Lily Webb are well received; the Meynots give a good turn; and the usual Bioscope pictures conclude the performance.

THE EMPIRE. — Proprietor, Mr. Geo. Dance. — After a highly successful opening week the Empire is starting on what may be called a variety season, and on Monday night two packed houses witnessed an up-to-date programme. Miss Vesta Tilley was, of course, the chief star, and she had a hearty welcome; Bessie Bull scored a success as a comedienne and expert dancer; Will Van-Allen gave a capital entertainment on a variety of instruments; Conway and Leyland, the one-legged acrobats, are very clever; the Karno Four gave a pantomimic entertainment of a most amusing kind; Nat Clifford was well received; Cull Pitt is an expert juggler, also a clever facial artist; Miss Rosaline Jacobs is a talented vocalist.

CRADLEY HEATH. — EMPIRE. — Lessee and Manager, Mr. Jno. H. Morton.—Mr. Howell Webb presents Miss Emily Huby's company in The Price of Pleasure. Mr. Howell Webb is a polished Sir James Featherstone; Miss Lilian B. Earle as Alice Rivers, alias "Madame La Reine," wins applause; Mr. Graham Arthurs submits a careful study as Gilbert D'Armand; Mr. Charles E. Howell makes a dignified Charles Mordaunt; Mr. Joe Bardsley as Tatters is very amusing, being ably assisted by Miss Kate Lever as Polly Wilson; Mr. J. E. Tomlinson deserves mention for his rendition of Sidney Roberts; Mr. C. Bennett makes a capital detective; Mr. Ben Fletcher is well chosen to represent John Blake; and Mr. Arthur Manville is a good Inspector of Police; Miss Madge Moore gives a winsome interpretation of Lilian, and Miss Alice Granville makes a first-rate Biddy O'Flanagan.

CREWE.—LYCEUM THEATRE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Henry Taylor, J.P.—Messrs. Hardie and Von Leer's company presented Two Little Vagabonds here on Monday. Miss Valerie Crespin acts with the skill of an accomplished actress as Marion Thornton; and Miss Lillian Stewart gives an excellent rendering of Barbara Scarth. Miss Lucy Beaumont and Miss Gladys Vernon make two very clever little vagabonds; and Miss Violet Vivian as Biddy Mullins gives a characteristic study of gipsy life. Miss Lenna Vernon is well placed as Sister Randall. Mr. Douglas Vigors gives a powerful portrayal of George Thornton; Mr. Edward McLean as Captain Darville appears to advantage; Mr. Richard Hicks gives a creditable display as John Scarth; Mr. Lionel Ellis is thoroughly at home as Bill Mullins; and Mr. Frank Gordon as Dido Bounce and Mr. Gerald Valentine as The Cough Drop, do well.

CROOK.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Proprietors, Wallace Davidson, Ltd.; Managing-Director, Mr. Wallace Davidson.—Messrs. F. J. Pitt and Charles Halling's company in £1000 Reward occupies the boards here this week. As Dick Springthorpe Mr. C. Rogers, jun., is very good, and Mr. J. N. Cowling does well in the character of Fred Ingleford; as Mme. Sanson Miss Daisy Halling deserves special mention for a capable rendering of an arduous part; Miss Crissie Francess is a lively Kitty; and Mr. J. B. Murry does full justice to the rôle of Gilbert Lisle.

CROYDON.—GRAND THEATRE. — Manager, Mr. Lawson Lambert.—Mr. James Welch and company are obtaining a cordial reception in When Knights were Bold. Mr. George F. Tully scores in the rôle of Wittle; Mr. Gordon Tomkins is adequate as Barker; Mr. Henry J. Ford makes a droll Charles Widdicombe; Mr. Arthur Grenville is capital as Isaac Isaacson; Mr. Arthur Chesney does well as the Rev. Peter Pottleberry; Mr. Edward Sass is seen to advantage as Sir Brian Ballymote; and Mr. James Welch keeps the fun at high pressure in the humorous part of Sir Guy de Vere. Miss Emma Gwynne makes an aristocratic Hon. Mrs. Woldegrave; Miss Daisy Cordell is a handsome Miss Isaacson; Miss Audrey Ford acts with charm and dignity as Rowma Eggington; Miss Annie Chippendale is a neat Alice Barker; and the Misses Estelle Winwood, Enid Sass, and Mabel Wentworth are bewitching in the rôles of Millicent Eggington, Marjorie Eggington, and Kate Pottleberry. In the first piece, The Lady Burglar, Mr. Henry J. Ford is excellent as Darcy Fitzherbert, and Miss Estelle Winwood hits off to a nicety the part of Honoria Macfarlane. Mr. Leonard Gautier's admirable orchestra is conducted with judgment and skill.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Managing-Director, Mr. Samuel James; Acting-Manager, Mr. Charles Herrick.—Mr. Fredk. S. Jennings' company in Why Woman Sins is appearing here this week. Mr. Harry Culenford as Lieut. Harry Maxwell displays great ability; Mr. Jackson Hayes as Capt. Herbert Carlton is very powerful; Mr. Geo. Ellis is capital as Cecil Spencer; Mr. Geo. Claremont gives an excellent representation of Jim Rainbird; Mr. Will Skelton creates much merriment as Sam Spavin; Mr. Fred May does well as Orlando Whiffles; Mr. Edwin Wilde ably depicts Oliver Desmond; and Mr. W. Watkins is a good exponent of Capt. Algy Belton. Miss Bertie Baker is commendable as Jack Smith; Miss Gertrude Netterville as Ida Valetta is greatly appreciated; Miss Hilda Baynton is exceptionally good as Nell Desmond; Miss Winnie Conway is pleasing as Nelly Nibble; and the rôle of Lily De Vere is well acted by Miss Nellie Sheffield.

EMPIRE PALACE OF VARIETIES.—Proprietor, Mr. Walter Gibbons; Manager, Mr. Eustace Jay.—Dr. Walford Bodie heads the bill here, and is causing quite a sensation. His reception has been most cordial, and he has made a lasting impression in Croydon. Sybil Montague, ballad vocalist, is good; Herbert Clifton, mimic, has a remarkably fine coice; Zaro and Arno cause amusement in a comedy bar act; Keir and Kempton are soloists and duettists of ability; May Marton is a fascinating comedienne; the Bioscope pictures are worth seeing; and the powerful dramatic episode Lulu is well acted by Miss Sylvia Cavalho and company.

DARWEN. — THEATRE ROYAL. — Lessee, Mr. Loader; Acting-Manager, Mr. Robinson.—Messrs. Beaudyn and Livesey's company is appearing here this week in a capital drama, entitled A Traitor Prince. The company is an excellent one, and includes Mr. Geo. M. Montanini, Mr. J. P. McBride, and Miss Rose Routledge, who are ably supported by Messrs. Edmund O'Grady, Lex Phillip, James Sherwin, and Austin H. Longford, Misses Kitty Thomas, Clara O'Grady, and Nesta Sanford.

DERBY.—GRAND THEATRE AND OPERA HOUSE.—Sole Proprietor and General-Manager, Mr. T. Allan Edwardes; Acting-Manager, Mr. Charles Denley; Assistant-Manager, Mr. Albert Orton.—Melodrama occupies the boards here this week in the shape of Cripple Creek, presented by Miss Ida Molesworth and Mr. Mark Blow's company. The part of Joe Mayfield is well played by Mr. Stanley Bedwell; and Miss Agnes Verity gives a capital sketch of Dynamite Ann. Miss Lily Beagle makes a charming Belle Gordon; and little Rosie Hopkins acts Tatto very smartly, her singing and dancing also being praiseworthy. Mr. A. D. Layland gives a good account of Wahketah, the faithful Indian; and Messrs. Chas. H. Lester and J. G. Maine merit special mention for the rendering of their respective characters. The comedy element is supplied by Miss Daisy Carlton and Mr. Will Hook as Maggie Mason and a Boston visitor respectively, and Mr. Sydney Benson also contributes humorously to the programme in a nigger part.

PALACE.—Lessee and General-Manager, Mr. T. Allan Edwardes; Assistant-Manager, Mr. Herbert Taylor. — Mr. Sidney Bacon's company is back again with The Maniac. The principal part is powerfully impersonated by Mr. Melville Bickford, and he is ably assisted by Messrs. E. Turner, D. Lyndon, A. Prcotor, and Misses Hilda Merrilees and Dora Hilstrom. The Black and White Comedy Team, commanded by Miss Emma Don and Mr. Walter Munroe, provide a distinctly attractive turn; the Sisters Lynton are charming duettists; Dawson Dewick is a comedian of merit; Alice Maud gives excellent impersonations of popular music hall stars; and Marco is a smart prestidigitateur. The bioscope has an exceedingly entertaining film, depicting Snake Hunting in the Rockies.

DEVONPORT.—METROPOLE THEATRE.—Manager, Mr. Geo. S. King.—The melodrama entitled Driven from Home is being presented here by Mr. Andrew Melville's company. Miss Florence Creagh infuses much feeling into the part of Laura Raybrook; Mr. Felix Itt is a hard, stern parent as Antony Raybrook; Mr. Frederick Sandy is an accomplished villain as Geoffrey Waring; and Mr. Clement Wakefield and Miss Madge Muriel give creditable renderings of Walter Hatherleigh and Laura Raybrook respectively. Other members of the cast are Messrs. P. Danson and H. Cornwall and Miss F. Trevoir.

DEWSBURY. — THEATRE ROYAL. — Lessees, The Northern Theatres Co., Ltd.; Resident-Manager, Mr. J. H. Asquith.—Mr. J. A. Campbell's company is presenting here The Little Bread Winner. Mr. Campbell, who is the author of the play, is his own business-manager. Mr. Eugene Santley gives a very acceptable portrait of the dour and austere Quaker, Lord William Dorrington; Mr. Matthew Boulton acquits himself admirably as Richard Lawrence; Little Emmie Thomas makes the most of Meg, the little bread winner, and touches the sympathies of the audience; the boyish sangfroid and assurance of the street gamin, Bobby Trott, is effectively realised by Miss Lissa Young; the character of Joseph Prior is well limned by Mr. Alfred Maurice; Mr. Stanley Leedham plays Charles Prior with much unction and skill; and Miss Mary Fulton scores in the emotional rôle of the harassed heroine.

HIPPODROME.—General-Manager, Mr. George Weldon.—The Arley's combination excite interest and appreciation with their gymnastic pot-pourri. Other turns include Lack and Ford, the indiarubber man and the twister; Rodin, a trick and comic cyclist, who amazes and amuses; Lily Wright, character comedienne and dancer; Vera Mayne, a comedienne with vocal gifts and comedy talent; Lade Henderson, character vocalist; Miss Onda, in the silver-wire act; the Strads, musical sketch artists; L. B. Athol, character comedian; and the Bioscope.

DONCASTER.—NEW THEATRE AND EMPIRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. J. W. Chapman.—The delightful play, Mr. Smith, was the bill of fare provided on Monday evening; Mr. Cecil Du Gue, in the titular rôle, gave a faithful portrayal of an English gentleman; Mr. Sidney Price, no stranger here, was as welcome as ever as the Earl of Otend; Mr. William Dunlop scored in his presentation of the Duke of Angleland; Mr. Austin Spencer did well as the Duke's friend; Mr. George F. Ross was successful in his assumption of Herr Deidrich Anhauser; Miss Mildred Cottell as the aristocrat with prejudices was suitably placed; Miss Phyllis Relph was charming as Ruth Anhauser; and Miss Daisy England as Mrs. Smith displayed pathos and humour.

DOVER. — THEATRE ROYAL. — Proprietors, The Dover Theatres, Ltd.; Chairman of Directors, Mr. B. Carter; Managing-Director, Mr. Fred C. Dew.—Much interest has been excited among Dover playgoers by the visit of Mr. Alfred J. West's animated photographs of "Our Navy and Our Army." Some fine films are shown and received with enthusiasm, particularly those which have a local interest. Mr. G. Howard Coveney, an excellent elocutionist, renders in splendid style Rudyard Kipling's "Ballad of the Camperdown," and a humorous poem of naval life; and Mr. Julian Fredericks is the efficient musical conductor.

THE EMPIRE.—Proprietors, The Vaudeville Syndicate; Manager, Mr. B. H. Harland; Secretary, Mr. Chas. R. Standfield.—A really charming turn is submitted this week by the Two Kays, dainty and refined artists, who win instant popularity by their pretty songs and pleasing manners; Master George Phillips, a clever vocalist and dancer, is well received; as are also the Cardiffs, smart comedy patter comedians. Miss Amy B. Ellis and Mr. J. H. Brownson appear in a dramatic sketch, entitled The Harvest of Crime, and are supported by a first-rate company; Nellie Chandos, burlesque artist, is a great favourite; and Hyram Travers also finds many admirers.

Whitehead.—The revival of Mr. Charles Webb's dramatised version of "The Lady of the Lake" affords playgoers the opportunity of witnessing a production memorable in the annals of Messrs. Howard and Wyndham's management of Edinburgh theatres, and the piece was cordially received on Monday evening by a well-filled house. The cast is a good one, including as it does capable representatives of all the leading rôles and a well-drilled crowd of men-at-arms, Highlanders, dancers, peasants, and courtiers. Mr. Leo Stormont makes a sturdy and effective Roderick Dhu; Mr. Ernest E. Norris is a spirited Fitzjames; the Bothwell of Mr. George Barron is admirably done; and Mr. Frederick Harker is commendable in the part of Malcolm Graeme. Another small part deserving mention is the Red Murdoch of Mr. G. Hunter; while Brian and Allan Bane find efficient representatives in Mr. Ernest Lodge and Mr. Chris. Walker; and Mr. Tom Walker is a good John o' Brent. Among the ladies, Miss Dorothy Chard, a young actress who has made a remarkably rapid advance in her profession, portrays Blanche of Devan with touching pathos; Miss Ada Homer is a graceful Ellen Douglas; and Miss Evelyn Pascel does well as Lady Margaret. The spectacular element is artistically supplied by admirable scenery and panoramic effects; and appropriate music, with occasional songs and dances, add to the attractiveness and interest of a pleasing performance.

ROYAL LYCEUM THEATRE.—Proprietors, Messrs. Howard Wyndham, Ltd.; General Manager, Mr. Geo. T. Minshull.—A stage event of the first importance here has been the engagement of Mr. Arthur Bourchier and Miss Violet Vanbrugh in The Walls of Jericho. Mr. Bourchier has not been seen in Edinburgh for some years, and his appearance in Mr. Sutro's powerful play attracted a large and enthusiastic audience to the Lyceum on Monday evening. The character of Jack Frobisher is strongly drawn, and Mr. Bourchier acts it with simplicity, strength, and restraint, and real tenderness. Miss Violet Vanbrugh achieves a distinct triumph in her impersonation of Lady Alethea, which is a brilliant piece of acting, full of grace and of deep feeling. Miss Nora Greenlaw invests the part of Lady Westerby with sincerity and charm, and Miss Jean Harklow presents the smart Miss Mornington with much cleverness. Miss Pamela Gaythorne's Lady Lucy is a bright, well-studied performance, and Mrs. Nye Chart's Duchess of Skye is a neat bit of work. Mr. Charles Goodhart acts the simple, rough Hankey Bannister with humour; Mr. Arthur Whitby is painstaking as the Marquis of Steventon; Mr. H. Nye Chart is good as Dallas; and Mr. Walter Pearce, Mr. Alfred Bristowe, and Mr. Lawson Butt act with care in smaller parts. Mr. Bourchier and Miss Vanbrugh were recalled at the end of each act, and at the close of the piece Mr. Bourchier spoke a few words of thanks, and said he was glad that The Walls of Jericho had not fallen flat.

EMPIRE PALACE THEATRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. Oswald Stoll; Acting-Manager, Mr. W. Parham Wells.—The leading item in the Empire programme this week is provided by Mr. Carl Hertz, the noted illusionist, who presents, among other clever mysteries, his latest sensation The Bridal Chamber, which is greeted by the audience with uproarious applause. The Welsh Wanderers, a troupe of "Penillion" singers and a harpist, give a selection of most delightful part-songs, beautifully rendered. Millie Hylton's song scena, in which she is materially assisted by little Decima Brooks, is quite a superior performance. Whit Cunliffe, an artist new to Edinburgh, proves himself a smart comedian and effective singer; and May Henderson is a bright and amusing comedienne. As gymnasts the Rio Brothers show good work on the trapeze rings; the Mezettis do wonders on the triple bars, introducing, too, a good deal of the farcical element; a diverting turn is supplied by Walter King, the doleful comedian; while the Horne Brothers, in a pugilistic encounter, the Eight of Hearts, with songs and dances, and the American Bioscope complete an excellent bill.

COOKE'S CIRCUS.—Proprietor, Mr. John Henry Cooke.—A delightful programme, fresh and interesting, is provided for the patrons of Cooke's Circus this week. The scenes in the arena abound with life and humour. Miss Iona Ginnett shows what patient training of the horse can accomplish by the graceful performance of her Arabian stallion, while the introduction of the clever horse Cleveland is an extremely pleasing turn. The Pickel Troupe, in a dashing Risley act, are loudly applauded; the Humels again evince their daring in a bareback riding act; and the skating performance by Verne and Verne is amusing and dexterous. Careful management is evidenced in the tasteful tableau, "Peace and War," and the many other acts display all the ingenuity in presenting an appetising entertainment in which Mr. Cooke excels.

EXETER. — THEATRE ROYAL. — Chairman and Managing-Director, Mr. Edward J. Domville; Joint Acting-Manager, Mr. Percy M. Dunsford.—The Earl and the Girl is being staged here this week by Mr. Wm. Greet's company. Mr. Alfred Donshoe portrays Jim Cheese in excellent style; Mr. Thomas Kennard does well as Dick Wargrave; Mr. Leslie Owen, as the Hon. Crewe Boodle, is smart and effective; Miss May Yates, as Elphin Haye, scores a hit; Miss Ida Stratham makes a vivacious Daisy; Miss Lina Hicks, as Liza Shoddam is all that can be desired; and Miss Kathleen Gerard ably sustains the part of Mrs. Shimmering Black. The orchestra is well directed by Mr. W. Stephenson.

FALKIRK.—GRAND THEATRE AND OPERA HOUSE.—The attraction here for the week is the national drama of Rob Roy. The "stars" of the production are Mme. Alice Esty as Diana Vernon; and Mr. E. C. Hedmondt in the rôle of Francis Osbaldistone, whose singing was much admired. The douce, canny Scottish magistrate, Bailie Nicol Jarvie, found an excellent exponent in Mr. W. George Robb; while Mr. Nelson Ramsay, in the title-rôle, was a distinct success. The wild and affectionate nature of the Dugald Cratur was well delineated by Mr. Herbert Bentone; the part of Major Galbraith is one of which Mr. Alexander Hamilton has made a very successful study; the Melen MacGregor of Miss Marion Lind was cleverly undertaken; and Mr. W. E. Holloway made a crafty Rashleigh Osbaldistone. Mr. Robert Minster was a dignified Captain Thornton.

FARNWORTH.—QUEEN'S THEATRE.—Proprietor and Manager, T. Morton Powell.—This week we are having a visit from Mr. James Willard's company in A Woman's Pluck. Miss Grace Lester, who plays the part of Grace Daremont charmingly, meets with well-merited applause; Miss Violet Carr as Jessie Pope gives a capital representation; Mr. Austin Mortimer is very good as Dick Darrell; and Mr. Harry T. Wood plays well as Winston Dale. Mr. John Campling as Sir John Daredevil gives a capital piece of character acting; and Mr. Fred Norburn is all that can be desired as Mark Scanton.

FLEETWOOD.—QUEEN'S THEATRE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. H. J. Snelson.—Miss Rose Faith and her company are this week presenting No Cross, No Crown. Mr. W. Carriden gives an able portrayal of Sir Francis Luttrell; the villain of the piece, Austin Blake, is played in a capable manner by Mr. Herbert De Ville; Mr. Harrison Chapman makes a good Professor Neb; Mr. Fred Gresham does justice to Dr. Ashby; Mr. C. George impersonates Rawson Haines in good style; and Master Charley Wagg makes an admirable Plato. Miss Rose Faith as Clare (Lady Luttrell) is excellent; Miss Gwen Stewart ably represents Lady Margaret Luttrell; and Miss Rita Rosslyn is appropriately haughty as Dame Priscilla. Miss Corona L'Estrange is also good as Annabel Sylvester, and Miss Ada Clawson, in the part of Dorris Luttrell, is pathetic.

FOLKESTONE.—PLEASURE GARDENS THEATRE.—Manager, Mr. H. W. Rowland.—Mr. J. Bannister Howard's company was here the first part of the week with The Four Just Men. Mr. H. A. Saintsbury gave a finished depiction of Mr. Brown; Mr. Gordon Bailey handled the rôle of Mr. Knight skilfully; Mr. Hubert Willis was a powerful Mr. Selkirk, and Mr. E. T. Dobell was an excellent representative of Miguel Thery; Mr. H. Elliott Ball gave a fine portrayal of Sir Philip Ramon; Mr. Algernon J. Hicks was a very good General Trelovitch; Mr. Leonard Williams was a manly Manuel Garcia; John Blount was safe in the hands of Mr. Edward Russell; Mr. Legai Robinson scored a success as Billy Marks; Miss Alys Rees was charming as Mrs. Travers; and Miss Dorothea Desmond's rendition of Juanita was a realistic and graceful performance.

GAINSBOROUGH.—KING'S THEATRE.—Proprietors, The Arthur Carlton Theatres, Ltd.; Resident-Manager, Mr. Stear.—Mr. Henry E. Leigh's company appeared here for three nights last week in The 'Varsity Belle. This farcical comedy was excellently played, Mr. James Danvers being particularly amusing as the Professor. Miss Josephine Elles was a charming exponent of the Belle; and Mr. E. Chesters gave a clever character-sketch of her injured father. The two undergraduates were well played by Mr. Morrice Holmes and Mr. Ray Barraclough; and the same remark may be applied to Miss Emma Rainbow, Miss B. Egerton, and Miss Nellie Beacon, who sustained the female parts. Mr. Frank Lilliput was funny as Runyard, the college scout. The comedy was preceded by a dramatic episode, entitled The Last Hour.

GATESHEAD.—METROPOLE THEATRE.—Lessees, Messrs. Bolam and Bacon; General-Manager, Mr. Sidney Bacon; Acting-Manager, Mr. T. France.—Mr. William Greet's company, in The Sign of the Cross, has proved a strong attraction here. Chief honours go to Miss Marie Leonhard, a beautiful and talented Mercia; the highest praise can also be given to Mr. Frank E. Petley for a powerful Marcus; Mr. C. Yorke presents a careful study of Nero; and Messrs. Chas. Aldred and J. Weatherall as Tigellinus and Licinius respectively give excellent accounts of themselves. Very amusing are Mr. Frank Wood as Glabrio and Mr. Harry Jones as Philodemus. Mr. H. Thurston Harris (Servillius), Mr. Roy Cushing (Strabo), Mr. E. Yaldwin (Viturius), Mr. J. Newman (Dardanus), Mr. Walter Fleet (Favius), and Mr. George Stanton (Titus) give valuable assistance. Miss Effie Dane, in the part of Stephanus, is much admired; Miss Mary Newcombe makes a capital Poppæa; and the scheming Berenice receives excellent treatment at the hands of Miss Gertrude Price. A vivacious Dacia is presented by Miss Cissie Carlton.

KING'S THEATRE.—Proprietor, Mr. Jas. Johnson; Licensee, Mr. Edward Johnson.—The top-liner here is Rosina Caselli, with a troupe of diminutive Mexican dogs, in a very clever performance, which is warmly praised; George French is a quaint comedian; an entertaining "turn" is that submitted by Ford and Barris; Les Sados present a juggling act which contains many laughable features; George Helm and Emmie Cozens, in an absurdity, The Doctor and the Patient, cause much amusement; Vanola, described as a "Mexican antipodiste," has numerous admirers; the Mozondos have an eccentric jumping and tumbling act; and Vernon's Imperial Bioscope shows some admirable pictures.

QUEEN'S THEATRE.—Proprietors, Messrs. Bolam and Bacon; General-Manager, Mr. Sidney Bacon; Acting-Manager, Mr. Stephen Smith.—Large audiences have welcomed Messrs. Garside and Knowle's company in The London Fireman here this week. Mr. J. Forbes Knowles makes an excellent Hal Curtis; Mr. Oliver Birrell portrays Viscount Fleming with skill; "Ratty" is capitally impersonated by Mr. Edward L. Garside; Mr. William Burgess gives satisfaction as Abel Fortnum; and Mr. Harry C. Momber is an amusing Nixey Stinger. Miss Nellie Shirley makes a sweet Ida Curtis; and Grace Curtis finds a capable exponent in Miss Florence M. Daly. Miss Nellie Waddington is successful as the Countess Fleming; and Miss Nellie Garside is a lively Polly Bramble.

GLASGOW.—THEATRE ROYAL, LTD.—Managing-Director, Mr. F. W. Wyndham; Acting-Manager, Mr. Percy Humphrys.—After a somewhat long absence, Mr. G. P. Huntley returns to delight his provincial admirers with the quaint humour of his style, in his part of Mr. Popple. A splendid house welcomed him most heartily. Able support is given by the other members of Mr. Charles Macdona's company, which includes that clever lady, Miss Millie Legarde, as La Bolero, an altogether charming performance, alike in acting and singing. Miss Nellie Hodson makes a sprightly and attractive Louise; Mr. C. M. Daly is an amusing Platt; Miss Kate Forster and Miss Ella Daincourt are an engaging couple of suspicious wives, and their peccant hubbies are cleverly acted by Mr. Sydney Young and Mr. Jas. Stevenson. Mr. Welchman is a smart Norman Popple; and Mr. Arthur Grover sings well as Jacques Kenyon. Mr. Maxwell Stewart cleverly hit off the part of the foreign head waiter at the Blitz Hotel; and an attractive chorus and troupe of dancers give life and vivacity to the various scenes.

KING'S, LTD. — Managing-Director, Mr. F. W. Wyndham; Business-Manager, Mr. H. Macfarlane. —Mr. George Dance's company, in A Country Girl, is again here. Miss Maisie Gay is a charming Nan, and sings well, as also does Miss Nancy Rossiter as Marjory. The Princess Mehelanah of Miss Winnie O'Connor is another good performance, and her songs are given with most artistic effect. Mr. Percy Carr is a brisk and bright Geoffrey; and his faithful Barry is amusingly played by Mr. Charles Walenn. Mr. St. John Hamund gives a touch of dry humour to the part of the Rajah; Miss Addie Lennard is a versatile Mme. Sophie; Mr. J. C. Graves as Sir Joseph, Mr. Robert Corray as Douglas, and Mr. F. W. Pedgrift as Granfer Mummery ably assist.

GRAND, LTD.—Managing-Director, Mr. R. C. Buchanan; Acting-Manager, Mr. A. Mascard.—A special revival of East Lynne has been put on here, with Miss Dorothy Grimston in the rôle of Lady Isabel. She is a graceful, stately representative of the part, and had a flattering reception. Mr. Vincent Clives as Archibald Carlyle has made a good impression; Mr. Eric Mayne scores as Sir Francis; Mr. Eric Moxon as Dick Hare, Mr. Wilfrid Beckwith as the Lawyer, and Mr. Frank Liston as the Justice are also well suited. Miss Ella Thornton as Barbara Hare gives a sympathetic reading of the part; Miss Alice Inman as Cornelia is adequate; little Moti Hosali appears as Willie, and the clever acting of the youngster is notably appreciated.

METROPOLE, LTD.—Managing-Director, Mr. Arthur Jefferson; Acting-Manager, Mr. W. Gillespy.—Mr. Alfred B. Cross is paying a welcome return visit here with The Manxman, in which he sustains with marked ability the part of honest, simple, kind-hearted Pete. Miss Minnie Waterford gives a vivid impersonation of Kate Cregreen, ranging from light-hearted gaiety to pathetic tenderness; her hypocritical father, Cæsar Cregreen, is forcibly rendered by Mr. James Dillon; the erring Philip Christian finds an able exponent in Mr. Beresford Lovett; while the staid Miss Christian is represented with becoming dignity by Miss Mona Spearing. Nancy is played with great spirit by Miss Dorothy Duncan; Mr. Herbert Lett as Dr. Myereest has the genuine professional style; considerable fun is supplied by the three jolly dogs, Mr. Dudley Stuart as Ross Christian, Mr. Richard Hutton as Professor Mawley, and Mr. Edward Cartell as Monty Missitt. Phonograph items between the acts and animated pictures after the play make up a pleasing night's entertainment.

NEW GAIETY.—Lessee, Mr. B. M. Armstrong; Acting-Manager, Mr. J. Barker.—The Two Orphan Girls, presented here by the New Gaiety Dramatic Company, is a good version of the famous play. Miss Laura A. Pardy acted with much pathos as Henriette; and Miss Kate Perowne as Louise did excellent work. Pierre was performed in good style by Mr. H. Hesslegrave; and Jacques was well looked after by Mr. Alfred D. Adams. Mrs. Walter Barton was effective as La Frochard. Others worth mention are A. H. Clarke (Count de Linicre), Miss Marie de Roos (Countess de Linicre), and Mr. Horace Booth (Chevalier de Vaudry).

EMPIRE.—Proprietors, Moss' Empires, Ltd.; District-Manager, Mr. Sam Gething; Resident-Manager, Mr. Chas. Mussett.—The chief attraction here this week is the engagement of Fred Storey and company in a selection from The Merchant of Venice. As Shylock Mr. Storey gives a fine impersonation; while the rest of the company are all successful in their respective parts. Edward Lauri and May Beattie contribute a capital musical protean mélange, entitled In Her Boudoir; and the juggling of Frank Sylvo is amusing and clever. The other "turns" include Hanid Alexander, juvenile piano player; Alf. Gibson, the immobile comedian; Mr. and Mrs. Melville Stewart, comedy artists; Corbin's dogs; Fancourt and Rubie, in Nursery Pets; Three Onetti Sisters, trapeze act; and the American Bioscope.

ZOO-HIPPODROME.—Proprietors, Moss' Empires, Ltd., and E. H. Bostock; Resident-Manager, Mr. E. H. Bostock.—Miss Alice Keith and company are the top turn here in a breezy, go-ahead musical piece, entitled Where's Aubrey? Eugene Joly is a clever cornet player; Burley and Burley are smart acrobats, and are humorous as well; in a stirring lifeboat song, Ernest Ball, actor-vocalist, is excellent; Cosgrove and Burns have a hearty recall at the close of their comedy interlude; and the balancing and juggling display by the Henri Taylor Trio is at once artistic, original, and clever. Much interest is displayed in the dramatic sketch, A Bolt from the Blue, Mr. Harry Trevanion appearing as the Anarchist. Perhaps one of the best items in the bill is Aunt Matilda, a comedy sketch, of which Frank Elliston and company are the sponsors. It excites hearty laughter. Philip Sefton, a comedian of ability, and good Bioscope pictures are well received.

PAVILION, LTD.—General-Manager, Mr. Samuel Lloyd.—Clark and Hamilton top the bill here, and their new songs, gags, and business help to make their visit more popular than ever; the Harvey Boys make a clever display at their old business, and were accorded a hearty reception; Katie Lawrence contributes several ditties with much acceptance; the Tokio Troupe of Japanese acrobats give a smart and daring display; the Spanish Goldinis again appear in their wonderful carpet-spinning and electrical speciality; Tatten Hall is a quaint comedian; Esme Gordon is well received; and the Bohemians, Three San Remo Girls, the Clarions, and Calile and Walker complete an attractive programme.

COLISEUM.—Proprietors, Moss' Empires, Ltd.; District-Manager, Mr. S. Gething; Acting-Manager, Mr. Harry Burdette.—Mrs. Brown Potter makes a welcome visit here with Mary Queen of Scots, which is adequately presented. The hapless Sovereign is a fine character-study in the hands of the accomplished actress. Next in favour is Barney Armstrong, a comedian who is repeatedly recalled; Stanley and Greenop are past-masters of the banjo; a very comical chap is Kennedy Allen; and Alf. Hurley sings a sentimental song in good style. In The Liftman's Rise appear that clever trio, the Prestons; and dear to the juveniles' heart in particular is the pretty and pleasing display by Boswell's Stage Circus. The Maples, and Dick and Dorothy, divide honours in equally clever performances of the speciality song and dance order; once more we have the Haytors in their clever comedy turn. "A Trip to Rothesay" is enjoyed by large audiences nightly on the white screen.

PALACE.—Sole Proprietor and Manager, Mr. Rich. Waldon; Acting-Manager, Mr. Harry McKelvie.—George Leyton is the principal attraction here, and introduces a new dramatic episode, entitled The Wreck of the Birkenhead, a sketch which gives ample scope for his vocal powers; the Six Æolians, vocalists and dancers, also give a capital display. The other members of a good company include Ethel Loftus, comedienne; Les Valdos, eccentric knockabouts; Frank Hemming and Marie Free, comedy artists; Lily Lonsdale, brilliant soprano; George Ripon, comedian; the Wallys, expert jugglers; Ernie Myers, patter comedian; and Babs Lloyd, comedienne and dancer.

HARMONIC CONCERTS.—Musical Secretary, Mr. Wm. Biggam.—Williams and Warden, cross-talk comedians, top the bill here; Mackenzie-Murdoch, the clever Scottish violinist, gives some excellent selections; the Brennans display their ability as clog dancers; the Dunvilles contribute a smart musical turn; Lindsay and Harte cause hearty laughter with their comedy sketch; and Shavo, the juggler; Flem Darroch, Carrol and Carlton, the Victoria Troupe of Dancers, and Miss E. Clare Buchanan (vocalist), complete a varied programme.

GLOSSOP.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. Sydney Spenser.—Mr. Chas. Macdona's company, in A Chinese Honeymoon, attracted large audiences the first three nights this week. Mr. Jas. Wilson sustained admirably the character of Hang Chow; Mr. Louis Ashmeade as Chippie Chop was entertaining; Mr. Edwin Sykes as Hi Lung deserved praise for capable work; Mr. C. F. Howard acted and sang with success as Tom Hatherton; Mr. Lindsay Harman as Mr. Pineapple was diverting; Miss Frances Olgar displayed charm and grace as Soo-Soo; Miss Florence Wilton as Mrs. Pineapple did exceedingly well; Miss Kitty Clayton as Fi-Fi kept the fun of the comedy going; and Miss Alma Bolton made a dignified Mrs. Brown. The Silver King was announced for Thursday.

GLOUCESTER.—PALACE (late Theatre Royal).—Owners, Messrs. C. W. and J. R. Poole; Manager, Mr. Rea.—The Davis and Gledhill Trio, in their cycling on rollers, contribute an interesting turn; a good reception is accorded Craig, Rose, and Craig in a gymnastic and dental athletic act; Miss Fanny Robina, who sings two songs in very taking style, leaves the audience demanding more; Les Trois Eitenas, billed as marvellous globe performers, fully sustain their title; Sam Shirley sings a capital policeman's song; the Three Panamas give an acrobatic display, in which the juvenile member especially shines; Ray and Miles, comedy jugglers, go well; Mr. E. tells some amusing tales; the Evalos are smart in spoof juggling and a flying ring act; and the bioscope is right up to date. Mr. Sydney Bach, Welsh comedian, supplements some excellent gags with trick piano playing; and Mr. Frank Coyle proves very entertaining.

GOOLE.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee, Mr. John E. Tomlinson.—The United English Opera Co., under the direction of Mr. F. S. Gilbert, on Monday presented Maritana to a crowded house. Miss Elsa May figures conspicuously in the title-rôle; Miss Doris Gilbert is a distinct success as Lazarillo; Mr. F. S. Gilbert submits a fine rendering of Don Cesar de Bazan; Mr. H. Farrelly is seen to advantage as the King of Spain; Mr. J. Kneale Campbell is a dignified Don Jose; Miss Kate White is well placed as the Marchioness; and Mr. H. Blagrave is a capital Marquis. Mr. Evan Davies is highly successful as Captain of the Guard. The Bohemian Girl and The Daughter of the Regiment is included in the répertoire. The chorus is excellent, and Mr. H. Vickerman leads the augmented orchestra.

GREAT YARMOUTH.—ROYAL AQUARIUM.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. J. W. Nightingale.—Mr. Arthur Carlton's company is here this week with the realistic drama, In Sight of St. Paul's. Mr. Arthur Armfield is very successful as Mr. H. Chichester, sen.; and Tom and Harry Chichester are capably represented by Mr. Ernest R. Allen and Mr. W. H. Domoney. Mr. George D. Dainer is earnest and forceful as John Gridston; Mr. Edward Valentine gives a powerful rendition of the rôle of Fretley Burside; and Mr. Herbert Sydney presents a clever character-study as Blidstein. Cynthia Dell is acted by Miss Lallah Davis with consummate skill; Miss Cissie Bellamy is easy and natural as Aileen Millar; and Becky Vetch, Beatrice Boreland, and Rose are well played by Miss Amy Randolph, Miss Louie Valentine, and Miss J. Hackness.

THE HIPPODROME.—Proprietor, Mr. Geo. Gilbert.—A sensational cycle act is being given this week by Arthur Kenney; Hinton and Wooton's football game whilst mounted on bicycle evokes enthusiastic applause; Vernando's ventriloquial turn is well received; the Four Maisonas submit a humorous entertainment as musical clowns; Herr Addison's troupe of terriers give a capital show; Tiney and Novel prove themselves expert staircase artists; Doodles' eccentricities raise many a laugh; and the comicalities of the mock Spanish bullfight must be seen to be appreciated.

GREENOCK.—ALEXANDRA THEATRE.—Proprietors, The Greenock Theatre Co., Ltd.; Managing-Director, Mr. R. C. Buchanan; Resident-Directors and Managers, Messrs. A. B. and J. J. Wright.—Messrs. Polini and Melford's company is here with The Silver King. Mr. Fred. D. Daviss plays the part of Wilfred Denver with great dramatic power and distinction; Miss Daisy Scudamore as Nellie Denver gives a pathetic study of the long-suffering mother; and the rôle of Little Cissy Denver is in the capable hands of Miss Flossie Hale Daviss. The Spider finds an able exponent in Mr. L. St. George Lowther; and his villainous associates are ably represented by Messrs. Arthur Wright, A. Hornby Warburton, and Warriss Lindon as Combe, Corket, and Cribbs respectively. Mr. Edward J. George acquits himself admirably as Daniel Jaikes; and Miss Dorothy Radford makes the most of her opportunities as Oliver Skinner.

EMPIRE THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—General-Manager, Mr. H. L. Skivington.—The Society Quartette are at the top of the bill here, and supply a pleasing musical turn; Bennett and Martell, in the nautical absurdity, The Shipwrecks, prove very amusing; Albertus and Bartram give a clever club performance; and Abrahams and company, in their international boxing absurdity, entitled Fun in a Pawnshop, are responsible for much laughter. Other acceptable turns are the Nettas, in their vocal duets, and Charles Howard, quick-change artist. The Empire pictures complete the bill.

PAVILION THEATRE.—General-Manager, Mr. Samuel Lloyd; Resident-Manager, Mr. Chas. A. White.—A varied and attractive programme is submitted here this week, the top-liner being Empress, a female handcuff expert, who is much applauded for her clever performance. Frank and Violet Payte, in an amusing sketch, entitled Also Ran, are well received; Mlle. Renée submits a skilful performance on various musical instruments. Other good turns are Ventom Swift, swell comedian and dancer; Cissie Curlette, mimetic vocalist; Ted Cowan, comedian; and Billy Hobbs coon comedian and dancer. An exhibition of the Paviscope is also given.

GRIMSBY.—PRINCE OF WALES'S THEATRE.—Chairman of Directors, Mr. H. J. Curry; Managing-Director, Mr. J. H. Curry.—The Leopolds have again presented their amusing burlesque, Frivolity. The humour of the show is well sustained right through, Mr. Barry Lupino as the eccentric youth, Sammy, being especially prominent. Other amusing characters are Tickle, played by Mr. Will Leopold, and Oliver Buckwheat, Jules Vermiglio, and Professor Fumble, represented by Mr. Watson Hume, Mr. Wilfrid Vaughan, and Mr. Tom Leopold respectively. Mr. John Leopold, jun., is good as Daniel Teething; and Miss Cathleen Cavanagh as Mme. Cobweb, and Miss Amy Hall as Lucy Buckwheat also contribute to the success of the comedy. Frivolity is preceded by a sketch, The Houseboat.

CURRY'S TIVOLI. — Managing-Director, Mr. J. H. Curry; Acting-Manager, Mr. J. W. North.—Great has been the merriment caused by the representation of Casey's Court. The efforts of the youngsters to imitate the stars of the variety stage are hugely entertaining. The American Comedy Four are a most eccentric quartette, but nevertheless score high musical honours; Ada Webb gives a capital aquatic performance in a tank; Venie Clements contributes charming baby impersonations; Frank Keegan and company are amusing in their speciality, "Everyday Cyclists"; Barrett and Knowles introduce an abundance of smart patter; George Reeves is successful as a comedian; and Mario displays skill as a juggler.

THE PALACE.—Managing-Director, Mr. T. A. Edwardes; Resident-Manager, Mr. T. W. Moyes; Acting-Manager, Mr. A. V. Allton.—Mr. F. V. St. Clair is always a welcome visitor here. His songs are up to date and invariably upon topical subjects. The Tennessee Guards give a smart display of military exercises, and their wall-scaling is accomplished with wonderful rapidity. Fioretti and Miss Elly give a unique spade-jumping performance; Henry Carlton is greatly amusing in The Window Cleaner; Bessie Travis proves a pleasing lady ventriloquist; Madge Daly, a burlesque actress, wins favour; and an abundance of merriment is provided by Johnny Worman, comedian; and Wake and Dean, patter artists.

THE HIPPODROME.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Alfred Selwyn.—This place of amusement has been reopened this week under new management. It is now under the direction of Mr. Alfred Selwyn, of the Empire, Hull, and Hippodrome, Wakefield. For the HEREFORD.—GARRICK THEATRE.—Manager, Mr. H. P. Barnsley.—A large audience on Monday witnessed the performance of Mr. Sebastian Smith and company in The Night of the Party. Mr. Smith as Crosbie was a distinct success; Lady Hampshire was admirably played by Miss Evelyn Howard; and Mr. Frank Denton was effective as Mr. Frank Fayne. Mr. Douglas Munro acted extremely well as Mr. Flambert, and Mr. Aiden Lovett was a suitable Sir Charles Hampshire. The other members of the company were all good, especially Miss Marion Lewis as Nannie Portland.

HORWICH.—PRINCE'S THEATRE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Fred Lewis; Acting-Manager, Mr. L. Grainger.—Under the new management a marvellous change has taken place, the house being packed each evening. This week Mr. Frank Ayrton's company, in The Power of Gold, is the attraction. Mr. Charles Whitlock plays Zambra, the Malay doctor, with great vigour; Mr. Richard Oliver, as Paul Judson, has a good part, and does full justice to it; Mr. Albert Sefton as Mark Harley, is capital; Mr. Frank Holyoake's impersonation of Marc Antony is extremely funny; Mr. W. Victor is a good Irish asylum warder; and Mr. W. O'Connor as Joe Skillets is fully capable; Mr. Frank Ayrton as Sammy Smudge creates roars of laughter, his songs and dances are both clever and eccentric, and his business with Miss Madge Seymour as Norah Donnelly, a lady's maid, is one of the leading features in the piece; their duets and dancing are loudly encored. Little Prudence makes Paddy Blake, a street arab, quite a philosopher; Miss Georgina V. France as Meg Judson, the persecuted heroine, submits a sympathetic rendering of the part; Miss Lilla Wilde as the so-called Lady Brandon gives an artistic finish to a cruel and repulsive character.

HUDDERSFIELD.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Proprietors, Messrs. Milton Bode and Edward Compton; Resident-Manager, Mr. W. J. Andrews.—Mr. Walter Maxwell's company is playing this week the strong drama The Lion and the Mouse. Mr. Leslie Carter has all the equipment necessary to a completely successful presentation of his part as John Burkett Ryder; Miss Christine Silver, as Shirley Rossmore, displays a fine appreciation of the great effect to be obtained by controlled intensity of feeling, the scenes between her and Mr. Carter being notable for their sustained interest; Mr. Stephen Wentworth plays with discretion as Jefferson Ryder; Miss Elspeth Dudgeon is to be congratulated on the thoroughness of her impersonation of the "nervy" Mrs. Ryder; Mr. J. W. Mackie is clever as Bagley; and Miss Dorrie Roberts attractive as Kate.

HIPPODROME, LTD.—Resident-Manager, Mr. N. M. Robinson.—Good fare is provided by the Flying Eugenes in their clever gymnastic exhibition; Dan Paulton, comedian; Miss Rose Sylvester, comedienne; The Flocton Foster company, in the sketch entitled Ferdie's Ma-in-law; and Sid Bandon, descriptive vocalist. A merry, bustling sketch, The Cuckoo, is admirably done by Chas. Kitts, and Miss Rhoda Windrum and company. Thorpe and Coe, in their humorous duologue, The Burglar; Joe Almaiso, a clever juggler and no mean acrobat; and the Biograph are also included in the programme.

HULL.—ALEXANDRA THEATRE.—Mortons, Ltd.; Mr. George Morton, General-Manager. — The Moody-Manners company opened in this magnificent theatre on Monday evening, and met with the reception always accorded this operatic organisation when it visits the city. The initial performance was a praiseworthy representation of Martha, in which Mme. De Vere, who was in fine voice, earned additional laurels by her conception of Lady Henrietta. An interpolated song from Les Perles de Brésil, with flute obbligato, brought down the house, and the cantatrice met with a deserved ovation. A new and highly efficient Nancy appeared in the person of Miss Mildred Bryan, from whom great things may be henceforth expected. Mr. Chas. Magrath, in excellent trim, added much to the enjoyment of all present. Herr R. Eckhold used the baton effectively, chorus and orchestra alike assisting to promote the effectiveness of the representation. Mr. John Child met with a hearty reception, and so did Mr. Chas. Manners. On Tuesday evening Romeo and Juliet was the attraction, Mme. de Vere being a delightful Juliet and Mr. Joseph O'Mara a fine Romeo. The novelties of the present season are Eugene Onegin on Wednesday, and The Merry Wives of Windsor on Friday.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Sole Lessee, Mr. W. Morton; Resident-Director, Mr. W. F. Morton.—The merits of Mr. G. R. Sims's realistic play, For Life and After are being thoroughly appreciated here this week as presented by Hawes and Von Leer's very capable company. Miss Grace Heywood is a pathetic Marion Grey; Miss Edith Barwell does good work as Tilda; the Dora of Miss Muriel Dean is characterised by many histrionic gifts; Loo Hexham, portrayed by Miss Roslyn Vayne, is a fine character study; Mr. Henry Hare fills the heavy part with conspicuous success, and the same remark applies to Mr. Vernon Sansbury's Richard Grey.

GRAND THEATRE AND OPERA HOUSE.—Managing-Director, Mr. John Hart; Resident-Manager, Mr. Wynn Miller.—The long-looked-for visit of The Blue Moon has at length taken place, and Hull playgoers derived pleasure from the sight of the sumptuous mounting and pleasing stage pictures. It brims over with fun, and with such artists as Bert Gilbert and Edward Lewis the audience would fain beg a pause in the side-splitting laughter their work evokes. Miss Florence Smithson, with indomitable courage and pluck, struggled with the rôle of Monday, but was at length forced to retire from the play, this talented lady's labours being brought to a premature close and her rôle taken up by her understudy. Miss Smithson appeared at the end of the play to receive their tribute of sympathy. The company selected is one worthy of Mr. Robert Courtneidge, who always sends the best available.

THE HIPPODROME.—Lessee, Mr. Alfred Graham; Manager, Mr. Tom Lunn.—Milton Ray's company in a farcical episode, The Cruise of the Calabar, and Gus Harris are the principal turns here. Other artists include Tom Yorke, Fred Hallam, Foreman and Fannon, and the Three Transfields.

THE NEW EMPIRE.—Lessee, Mr. Alfred Selwyn; Manager, Mr. Slingsby.—Dolly, Agnes, and Maud top the bill, in addition to an excellent all-round company.

THE PALACE.—Bella and Bijou, the clever duettists, and Griffiths Bros., a funny couple, are the two leading turns. Other artists include the Glenroy Troupe, Les Voces, Ben Albert, The Clarkes, Hughes and Elliott, Gracie Moore, and Johnny Gilmour.

HYDE.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Sole Lessee, Mr. Fred Granville; Acting-Manager, Mr. A. R. Feather—A big attraction here this week is Messrs. Carpenter and Cooper's company in The Spider and the Fly. Mr. Stanley E. Gordon gives an earnest and convincing rendering of his lines as Cyril Girdlestone; Mr. Ellis J. Preston brings out very realistically the callous nature of Welby Girdlestone; Mr. Frederick Ross makes David Strong an exceedingly interesting character; and Mr. H. C. Lanceley furnishes an excellent sketch as the Rev. Mr. McAllister. A charming and graceful Edith McAllister is found in Miss Nina Vaughan; Miss Amy Venimore plays with dramatic force the rôle of Stella Gray; Miss Ada Palmer is well placed as Jane Ellen Scriver: and Miss Marjorie May does good service as Flipps. Messrs. Fred Terriss and Charles A. Preece, two clever comedians, create roars of laughter as Romulus Roe and Remus Roe; and Miss Lucy Murray as Molly Blake ably assists them.

ILKESTON.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Licensee and Manager, Mr. L. F. A. Rogers.—The drama, Honour Thy Father, is this week presented by Mr. T. Morton Powell's company. Miss Mabel Coleman figures conspicuously as Lilian Garth. Mr. Walter M. Cameron is excellently placed as Gabriel Garth, and as Gertrude Garth Miss Kate Mewton is in every way suited; Miss Winnie Donovan appears with effect as Mercy Merry, and Mr. Bertram Ross as Jack Halyard makes the most of his part; Mr. Claud Merton handles cleverly the double rôle of Job Merry and George Bloggs; Mr. W. H. Melrose is amusing as Ned Pennycumquick, and Miss Lizzie Morley scores as Poppy Cornleigh; Mr. W. R. Winning plays Duncan Bly, and Mr. Fred Rolls, as Mike Copplestone, assists him in a humorous way.

IPSWICH. — LYCEUM THEATRE.—Manager, Mr. Leonard Grey.—Mr. R. C. Carton's clever farce, entitled Mr. Hopkinson, was played here on Monday evening by Mr. Charles Macdona's company. The part of Samuel Hopkinson was excellently portrayed by Mr. Frank Stanmore; Mr. Arnold Lacy was a fitting representative of the Duke of Braceborough; and Mr. Shirley Lea did full justice to the part of the irascible Earl of Addleton; Miss Marie Hassall proved herself an accomplished actress in the character of the Duchess of Braceborough; and the same may be said of Miss Gladys Gesson, as the haughty and contemptuous Lady Tyra Eggiesby; Miss Katherine M. Romsey acquitted herself well as Eliza Dibb. A curtain-raiser, called A Love Game, precedes, in which Mr. Charles M. Heslop and Miss Marjorie Chard appear.

HIPPODROME. — Proprietor, Mr. E. H. Bostock. — One of the chief items of the bill of fare here this week is the appearance of a troupe of Japanese named the Lukushimas, whose extraordinary baton tricks and acrobatic displays are really marvellous; Wishart, the Bottle King, executes some wonderful juggling with a bottle; and Monta's vagabonds contribute amusing dramatic imitations and good singing; Dolly Harmer's imitation of music-hall artists, &c., are cleverly given; the Howards vary the performance with their instrumental selection on bugles and cornets; the eccentricities of Grant and Allen and Dan Thomas, and the tricks of Devereux's dog are also enjoyable features of an excellent programme.

JERSEY.—OPERA HOUSE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. C. Robert Perkins.—Norman Macowan's company is appearing here this week in A Soldier of Fortune. The title-rôle is ably taken by Mr. Macowan, while Miss Violet Sterne is admirable as Lady Phyllis; Mr. Murray Nathorn, as the Earl of Annindale, makes an ideal patrician; Mr. Sydney Palfrey ably impersonates the treacherous Sir Stephen Cunningham; and Mr. Robert Entwistle is excellent as Dr. Thorn; the part of Capt. Steele is well taken by Mr. C. Hartopp, the landlord of the Three Keys; Jerry Dobbs is impersonated by Mr. Franc Storey; while Miss Emil Leslie figures as Grace.

KEIGHLEY.—QUEEN'S THEATRE. — Proprietors, Messrs. Carson and Kendall; Acting-Manager, Mr. W. Carson.—The Earl and the Girl received here on Monday a hearty greeting. The comedy is cleverly played by Mr. William Greet's company. Mr. William Cromwell, as Jim Cheese, gives an excellent performance; Mr. Robert Hyett is a smart Dick Wargrave, and sings several popular numbers with telling effect; Mr. Stanley Harrison plays the part of the Hon. Crewe Boodle with energy and vivacity; Mr. A. E. Coleby is a prominent Bunker Bliss; Mr. Frank Cane is well placed as Downham; Mr. Arthur Cassidy, as Mr. Talk, is the embodiment of quiet drollery, and his stage management is also to be commended; Miss Gertrude Simpson is a pleasing Elphin Haye; Miss Nellie Grant is a vivacious Mrs. Shimmering Black; Miss Florence Wix is highly appreciated as Liza Shoddam. Others worthy of mention are Mr. Fred Pattrick as host of the Fallowfield Arms, Miss Eva Bevington's Daisy, and Miss Helen Langton as Miss Bliss.

KETTERING.—AVENUE THEATRE.—Proprietor, Mr. Frank Payne.—Mr. F. H. Neville's company is here in The Silent Witness. Mr. Neville portrays the villainous nature of Jan Veddar in a forcible manner, and Miss Emily Lewis is acceptable as Estelle Meredith; Miss Janet Lawton, as Anita, appears to advantage, and contributes some clever dancing.

KIRKCALDY. — KING'S THEATRE. — Managing-Director, Mr. R. C. Buchanan; Resident-Manager, Mr. John Burton.—Miss Frances Delaval presents her company here in Her Lost Self. Miss Delaval successfully interprets the villainy of Philippine; Mr. Herbert Cecil does good work as Wilfred Daventry; as Norman Esmond Mr. G. Osmond Tearle is effective; Mr. Leslie York is good as Paul Kimberley; and Mr. Fred Lillywhite is successful. The Dorothy of Miss Clare O'Sullivan is worthy of special mention; Mr. Jimmy Stewart and Miss Hetty Stewart are amusing as Tom and Bridget; and little Miss Johnston is a clever child actress.

LANCASTER.—ATHENÆUM.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. S. Rogers; Acting-Manager, Mr. Alfred Hook.—Mr. Chas. Macdona's A Country Girl company occupied the boards the first three nights this week, and capital business was the result. Mr. Frank Weir is the centre of attraction as Barry, and keeps his audience in a bubble of merriment the whole of the time he is on the stage; Miss Madeline Du Val is a dashing Nan, her quaint humour and dialect being admirably depicted; as Marjory, Miss Violet Leslie is seen to the greatest advantage; whilst Miss Adelaide Clifton as the Princess looks charming, and sings with much taste. Mr. Bernard Vaughan as the Rajah invests the part with humour, and sings well; and the vocal efforts of Mr. Martin D. Pitts as Geoffrey Chaloner are highly appreciated. A petite and charming Madame Sophie is seen in Miss Madge Campbell; and Mr. W. D. Billington is a success as Sir Joseph Verity. Mr. W. Besley Beltran as Douglas Verity makes the most of his part; and the remaining characters are all commendable. The chorus is well balanced, the dresses and staging being all that could be desired. For Thursday, Friday, and Saturday, Mr. H. F. Maltby with his successful play, The Youngest of Three, is announced.

HIPPODROME.—Proprietors and Managers, Messrs. Porter and Fergusson.—Crowded houses nightly at this opera house testify to the capital programmes arranged. The Craggs, in a comedy acrobatic sketch, Billy, are responsible for a great deal of merriment. Madie Scott, comedienne, is recalled again and again; as also is Lily Morris, comedienne. Baroni and Kemp, in a quick-change act, are very smart; and Robert Gilbert's troupe of dogs win favour. Oliver Conroy, comedian; the Sisters Poole, duettists and dancers; and Walter Payne's animated pictures complete the bill.

PALACE.—Proprietors, Messrs. J. and C. Fell; Manager, Mr. John Fell.—Miss Billie Barlow is the principal attraction here, and has nightly had a most flattering reception. Another capital turn is supplied by Fred and Maud Vypond, speciality entertainers; Laurier is a droll comedian; and the Cosmons dance very well. Sisters Florence; Wirson, equilibrist; Miss Bessie Willow, vocalist; and the Edison Swan animated pictures add to the enjoyment of the programme.

LEAMINGTON. — THEATRE ROYAL. — Lessees, Messrs. Milton Bode and Edward Compton; Manager, Mr. Harry Hunter.—Blue-Bell in Fairyland was for the first three nights this week performed here by Mr. Edward Graham-Falcon's company. Miss Lily Eyton gave a charming portrayal of the title-rôle; Dickie was interpreted by Mr. Lawrence Emery with decided ability; and Miss Vera Vivard as Blue-Bell's good fairy was also very fascinating, her excellent singing being a feature of the performance. As the two footmen Messrs. Harry Vernon and Will L. Clement made the most of their opportunities; and Mr. Frank Lennard appeared with success as the benevolent Mr. Joplin. Mr. Howard Cochran's company in The Marriage of Kitty was announced for Thursday.

LEEDS.—GRAND THEATRE.—Managing Director, Mr. John Hart; General-Manager, Mr. Edward Cadman.—The Carl Rosa Opera Company opened their annual sojourn at the Grand on Monday with Carmen, to which fine opera a large and enthusiastic house accorded a gratifying reception. Miss Doris Woodall, in the name-part, evidenced the possession of a remarkably good voice, and was no less successful in her histrionic efforts. Mr. Edward Davies made an admirable José, revelling in the numerous vocal opportunities which fall to his lot; Mr. Charles Victor as Escamillo sang his numbers with rare power and an admirable restraint. Miss Elizabeth Burgess, Miss Ina Hill, Miss Dorothy Mayfield, Mr. F. Clindon, and Mr. Arthur Hyde each filled their respective parts exceedingly well. The work of the chorus and band, under the baton of Mr. Van Noorden, was beyond reproach. The week's répertoire includes Lohengrin, Maritana, Il Trovatore, Tannhäuser, Faust, and a revival of Fidelio.

THEATRE ROYAL. — Proprietor, Mr Frank Macnaghten; General-Manager, Mr. R. Ernest Liston.—The Power of the Cross is being presented here by Mr. Lingford Carson's company. Baron Curzola is well handled by Mr. Hartwell J. Kirby; in the rôle of Rita Lascelles Miss Cissie St. Elmo shows ability; Mr. Harry C. Rutland renders excellent assistance in the part of Gerald Fairfax: the wronged woman has a sympathetic exponent in Miss Stanley Burt; and Mr. Richard E. Nugent finds opportunity for much humour in his portrayal of Timothy Dowd.

QUEEN'S THEATRE.—Lessees, Messrs. Dottridge and Longden; General-Manager, Mr. C. H. Longden; Acting-Manager, Mr. Chas. Bush.—Mr. Fred Terry and Miss Julia Neilson and their powerful company, with the romantic new play by Messrs. Paul Kester and Charles Major, Dorothy o' the Hall, are filling the theatre to overflowing nightly. The part of Dorothy is well suited to Miss Neilson's temperament, and she gives an artistic impersonation of the part. Mr. Fred Terry subscribes a dashing study of the valiant Sir John Manners, a picturesque figure; Mr. J. Carter-Edwardes is good as Sir George Vernon; Mr. Jerrold Robertshaw enacts the despicable Sir Malcolm Vernon with conspicuous ability; Mr. Horace Hodges puts another big success to his name in the rôle of Jester; Miss Miriam Lewes makes a stately and effective Queen Elizabeth; and the rôle of Mary Stuart is a no less pleasing effort by Miss Lilias Waldegrave. Mr. Frederick Groves is well placed as the Earl of Rutland; and other prominent members of the cast are Mr. Malcolm Cherry and Miss Claire Pauncefort.

EMPIRE PALACE.—Moss Empires, Ltd.; District-Manager, Mr. T. Gerald Morton; Resident-Manager, Mr. Alex Galley.—The Boissets remain a second week here, and the laughable sketch, A Trip to the Continent, proves an excellent vehicle for their acrobatic humour; Mabel Bright and company submit a pretty sketch, Girls will be Girls; Lambeth and Robertson are most entertaining in their exposition of Scotch courtship; Fielding and Hull are a clever vocal comedy duo; Frank Maura is an expert barrel juggler; Harry Hayton possesses more than average ability as an eccentric comedian; the vocal contributions of Clarice Netta are much enjoyed; and Jessie Burnett is a pleasing comedienne. The animated pictures are interesting.

HIPPODROME. — Proprietor, Mr. Thomas Barrasford; General-Managers, Mr. Claude Shayler and Mr. Chas. Weldon.—Fred Wright, jun., submits some amusing tit-bits from musical comedy; Lottie Lennox comes again with clever new items; Jenny Johns does clever work; the Five Whiteleys give a most finished performance; the Two Bees sustain a big local reputation; acrobatic and cycling feats by the Cumberland Troupe arouse the liveliest interest; Gus Garrick continues to hold his own as a favourite comedian; and in a similar line W. B. Raby is very successful. The Brothers Curran, in an original boxing speciality, and Marie Wilton, comedienne, also entertain.

CITY VARIETIES.—Proprietor, Mr. Fred W Wood; General-Manager, Mr. J. C. Whiteman; Acting-Manager, Mr. Sam Jones.—The Bank Clerks, who again top the bill here, secure much appreciation; Tray and Rich are responsible for eccentric comedy; Jack Pleasants has new items that are rendered in his best style; and further humorous entertainment is subscribed by Tom Shenton. Athas and Collins are popular with vocal comedy; Percy Hannam uses a fine baritone voice with judgment; and the Coolvilles, coon specialists, are doing a successful turn.

LEICESTER.—ROYAL OPERA HOUSE.—Proprietors and Managers, Messrs. Milton Bode and Edward Compton; General and Business Manager, Mr. Henry Dundas.—A farewell visit is being paid here this week by Mr. J. Bannister Howard's No. 1 company in Florodora. As Tweedlepunch, Mr Daley Cooper is brimful of merriment; Mr. R. Courtier Dutton sings and acts well as Frank Abercoed; Mr. J. R. Tate is very good as Cyrus W. Gilfain; Mr. Harold Perry excellent as Arthur Donegal; and Mr. Edwin Oxlee picturesque as Leandro. Miss Edith Housley makes a vivacious Lady Holyrood; Miss Gladys Elvey a delightful Dolores; and Miss Nellie Bowman a successful Angela.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Sole Lessees and Managers, Messrs. Milton Bode and Edward Compton; Business-Manager Mr. E. R. Beaumont.—Miss Maud Hildyard and company are here in The Great Awakening. As Lola Selby Miss Maud Hildyard makes a conspicuous success; Mr. Charles E. Linney plays with distinction as Guy Rogan; Mr. Martin Sands deserves high praise as James Selby; Mr. Bernard Copping, in the dual rôles of Sir Henry Merton and Jock Merton, is clever; Mr. Herbert Evelyn as Captain Harry Lambert is all that can be desired; Miss Doris Digby as Molly Merton enacts her part excellently; and both Mr. Willie Scott as Billy Brass and Miss Isa Bellington as Selina Worts are to be complimented on their amusing and popular portrayals. The play is well staged.

PALACE THEATRE, LIMITED.—Managing-Director, Mr. Oswald Stoll; District-Manager, Mr. Hatton Wharton; Acting-Manager, Mr. C. Finch-Hatton; Assistant-Manager, Mr. Bertram G. Iles.—The chief attraction here is an episode in four scenes, founded on Ouida's famous novel, "Under Two Flags," entitled La Vivandiere, by Dick Cruickshanks, in which Miss Isabel Derry as Cigarette, La Vivandiere, displays her histrionic talents with the greatest success. Laughter reigns supreme while Geo. Formby occupies the stage; Ancillotti presents his thought-reading dog, Pilu, which goes through a bewildering performance; Mark Melford and company create merriment with a mirth-provoking sketch; Howard and St. Clair are a versatile couple; the Three Amaranths are charming and clever girl acrobatic dancers; Little Ganty is well described as the "lump of fun"; Madge May is a capital comedienne; the American Bioscope is showing some entertaining films; and Jimmy Springthorpe, the collier tenor, hailing from Coalville, Leicestershire, renders his songs in a manner which deserve warm commendation.

PAVILION THEATRE.—Proprietor and Director-General, Mr. Frank Macnaghten; Acting-Manager, Mr Walter Lapworth.—James Willard and company lead here this week with the farcical sketch, The Little Wonder. Miss Patey Trounsell and company are remaining over another week, and are presenting the sketch True Irish Hearts, in which Mr. J. P. Kennedy, Miss Patey Trounsell, and Mr. Jack Bigwood are seen to advantage. The Dancing Gilberts, in their novel act, are extremely smart; the Sisters Melba are vocalists of ability; Walter H. Pallister's Bioscope still remains a special feature. Other entertaining turns are contributed by Will Driscoll, comedian; the Lovelaces, song illustrators; and Harry Thurston, impersonator.

LEIGH.—THEATRE ROYAL AND OPERA HOUSE.—Proprietor, Mr. J. W. Cragg; Resident-Manager, Mr. Harry Rousby.—Mr. Hilliard Vox and company are paying a visit here this week with the American drama Alaska. Mr. Hilliard Vox gives a striking and clever impersonation of Shookum Jim; Miss Cora Patey appears as the heroine, Jessie Dalton, to the best advantage; Miss C. Hastings Walton submits a fine embodiment of Alaska, the Indian girl; Mr. C. D. Pitt is successful as Ned Larson; Baptiste is capitally portrayed by Mr. H. Naylor Grimson; and Mr. Albert Rogers causes much amusement as Pompey Cæsar.

LEITH.—NEW GAIETY THEATRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. R. C. Buchanan; Resident-Manager, Mr. John Darlison.—A Trip to the Highlands has at last found its way to the Leith theatre, where it is staged this week for the first time, and met with a very cordial reception. It is well mounted, and some new songs are introduced. Mr. Wal Croft is still well to the fore as The MacMutchkin, and Mr. Joseph Montague continues his amusing impersonation of Timmins; Mr. Arthur Poole revels in his many disguises as Dexter, the detective; and Messrs. Walter Southern, Frank Barclay, and Gus Wheatman are successful in the parts of Lord Lackington, the Hon. Frederick, and Sir Septimus Brown-Windsor. The ladies, who act and sing with much acceptance, include Miss Maisie Ellinger and Miss Clara Moore as Araminta and Winnie Brown-Windsor, Miss Kitty Clinton a sprightly Fanny Flounce, the Misses Nan Dowling and Kathleen Naughton as Charley Chatterton and Lottie Langley, and Miss Lillian Kevill Davies as Mrs. MacMutchkin.

LICHFIELD.—ST. JAMES'S HALL.—On Monday night Mr. J. Bannister Howard's company appeared here in Florodora. Mr. Gus Danby was a most laughable Tweedlepunch, and Mr. Howard V. Cropton an excellent Frank Abercoed. Miss Dorothy Dance and Miss Rosa Sullivan distinguished themselves in the parts of Valleda and Lady Holyrood respectively.

LINCOLN.—ROYAL.—Sole Proprietor, Mr. Frank King.—An Actor's Romance, now presented by Miss Lillian Beezant's company, is meeting with just favour on a return visit. Mr. E. Eardley Howard as Harold Davenport and Miss Florence Nelson in the heavy lead are particularly successful. Miss Lillian Beezant scores greatly as Dot, and the support is excellent.

PALACE.—Sole Proprietor, Mr. Frank Macnaghten; Manager, Mr. G. D. Bradbury.—On Monday evening Mr. G. D. Bradbury, lately assistant-manager at the Palace, Southampton, took over the reins at this house, and is promptly winning many friends by his courtesy and urbanity. Two big houses demonstrated unqualified approval of the show. Nothing so effective and pretty as Maurin's Fountains has been staged at the Palace, and it is quite unique as a spectacle. Herbert Shelley's new protean sketch, Dan the Outlaw, elicited great applause; and Harry Weldon was cheered to the echo at the end of his very funny act. Grace Bard, the Rossis, Bros. Durrant, Lina Verdi, Mr. and Mrs. Finden, and Raymond's Bioscope were all highly successful.

LIVERPOOL.—SHAKESPEARE THEATRE, LTD.—Manager and Secretary, Mr. John Gaffney.—General satisfaction has been expressed over The Shulamite, which made its initial appearance in this city on Monday. Mr. William Greet sent a capital company to interpret the skilfully-contrived story, with the result that audiences were delighted. Miss Evelyn D'Alroy displayed high talent as the unfortunate Deborah, earning rounds of applause; Mr. Charles Weir was a robust Simeon Krillet, being a rough Boer farmer to the life; Mr. W. T. Lovell, as the adventurous Robert Waring, played with much effect; Miss Mary Griffiths was successful as Tante Anna; Mr. Reynolds Denniston did the utmost with Jan Vanderberg; and Miss Marcella Hudson proved capable in a minor part. The Widow Woes, in which Messrs. Denniston and Henry de Solla, Miss Griffiths, and Miss Hudson took part, was the curtain-raiser.

ROTUNDA THEATRE.—Manager, Mr. M. Montgomery.—The Lights of London has paid another visit to the popular north-end house. The company producing it is that of Mr. Herbert Hollister, who undertakes the part of Seth Preene. Mr. C. F. Collings makes an excellent Harold Armytage; Miss Jennie Burgoyne does credit to the rôle of Bess; Jarvis, Mrs. Jarvis, and Shakespeare are well interpreted by Mr. Herbert Lewis, Miss Violet Temple, and Miss Renee Douglas; Mr. Sydney N. Hallows is a dignified squire; as the lodge-keeper Marks Mr. F. V. Lloyd is well placed; and Mr. Raymond Thomas makes a sufficiently repulsive Clifford Armytage.

LYRIC THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Henry C. Arnold; Directors of Entertainments, Messrs. T. Barrasford and F. Willmot; Acting-Manager, Mr. Fred Coles.—Harry Roxbury, in the musical mélange entitled "The Prince of Monte Carlo," takes premier position in a very entertaining programme, and their efforts are deservedly applauded; a prominent turn is Jake Friedman, who is delightfully amusing; O'Malley and Brown, in the sketch You're Still a Friend of Mine, are entertaining; the Violas' second-sight item is mystifying; the Three McDonalds are good comedy musical experts; Adams and Ward are clever acrobats, besides being extremely amusing; the Sisters Cora are pleasing duettists; and Cardo is diverting in mystery and magic.

STAR THEATRE.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. Harris Fineberg.—A most attractive drama has drawn large audiences to the popular Star this week in the shape of Melville's The Beast and the Beauty. Jack Barrymore, a strongly-drawn character, was efficiently played by Mr. W. S. Hartford; Miss Violet Bowes was eminently successful as Violet; Mr. Eric Campbell filled to perfection the part of the fighting man Samson; Mr. William E. Passmore presented a good portrait of the Earl of Loman; Mr. Bernard Mervyn made an efficient Henry Denver; and Miss Daisy Gwynne gave every satisfaction in the heavy part of Delilah Vane. Some of the scenery was particularly fine, and the glove fight, near the close of the play, aroused excitement.

QUEEN'S THEATRE.—Proprietor, Mr. Lingford Carson; Manager, Mr. Fred L. Arthur.—Miss Annie Bell and her company paid a welcome return visit here this week with Sapho. Good business has been done. Miss Bell, in the title-rôle, played with her former intensity and care; Mr. Otto Meinster did every justice to the character of Jean Gausin; Mr. George Antley proved particularly amusing as Cesaire; Mr. P. Geo. Beresford acquitted himself well as Father Legrand; credit is due to Mr. H. Langford for his capital Eugene Flamant; a good Paul Dechelette was presented by Mr. Lawrence Kingsley; and Little Miss Doris E. Graham was efficient as the child Joseph. The scenery proved a strong feature of the production.

ROYAL HIPPODROME. — Managing-Director, Mr. Thomas Barrasford.—The unusual intimation, "Free list entirely suspended" appears on the programme here this week, consequent upon the important engagements that have been made. Principal is Miss Ada Reeve, who has countless admirers in the Mersey city, where a few years ago she made a great hit in pantomime. Her reception was a most enthusiastic one, the packed audiences demanding repeated encores of her popular songs. Austin Rudd, an able comedian, likewise earned the favour of his hearers; Downes and Langford were greatly to the fore with their laughable burlesque work and smart dancing; The Millionaires, a sketch which was thoroughly enjoyed, came from Johnny Holland and company; the MacKinnons, as Scottish entertainers, afforded much pleasure; the wonderfully educated horse "Billy," presented by James De Voy, was a source of much astonishment; Leah Arden had some sweetly-rendered ballads; constant laughter followed the efforts of Mac and Hill, patter comedians; and Harry Herbert, comedian, was also in the bill. "England's Naval Nursery" was shown on the Barrascope.

ROYAL PALACE OF VARIETIES. — Manager, Mr. M. Montgomery; Acting-Manager, Mr. Frank O'Toole.—The "Royal" stock dramatic company is presenting this week Arthur Shirley's Passion's Power. The sketch has been well staged and much enjoyed. Mr. Percy Boucher created great laughter with his Felix; Mr. Harry Tresham made a convincing Prince Kandos; as Rudolph Laski Mr. Cecil Ravenswood displayed his high talents; Mr. Sydney Grant handled the rôle of the villainous Michael Laski with great effect; a capital Patrice came from Mr. Robert Wilton; and Mr. Leo Montgomery afforded satisfaction as Prosper. Of the ladies Miss Florence Palmer presented a sweet Zorah; Miss Beryl Ravenswood was a dignified Countess Delaunay; and Miss Sybil Hammersley helped greatly with the comedy as Lucie. The Royal Bioscope presented several capital pictures.

WESTMINSTER.—Lessee, Mr. Fred E. Weisker; Acting-Manager, Mr. G. Montgomery.—This popular north-end hall continues to do well under the new management. A turn which is received with much satisfaction is that given by the Four Charles, acrobatic jugglers, who top the bill; Walker and May, coloured comedians and dancers, submit an acceptable performance; Mackintosh and Royal, lady and gentleman clog dancers, deserve the rounds of applause bestowed upon them; some excellent conjuring is executed by C. H. Charlton; Jackson is a novelty matchbox manipulator; the Bohemian Bros., coloured vocalists and dancers, acquit themselves capitally; and George Dachius is an able double-voiced vocalist and female impersonator.

EMPIRE. — Proprietors, Moss' Empires, Ltd.—This big central place of amusement, with its two houses per night, maintains its hold on the public. At the top this week is the favourite Louie Freear as the slavey in Snooks, supported by an able company. It would be difficult to imagine a greater mirth-provoker than Dotty, played by the Ten Musical Loonies; the able Terry and Lambert, American duo, are as popular as ever; Ella Shields has some capital coon songs, well rendered; De Dio with her weird dance is watched with keen interest; a fine exhibition of ventriloquism is given by Professor Dunning; the operatic selections of Norman and Saxon are much appreciated; and the list also contains the names of Kahn and Kahn, necromancers, and Bob Hamilton, comedian. The American Bioscope shows fine moving pictures.

HAYMARKET.—Licensee, Mr. J. S. Childs.—Conway and Welsh, smart comedy artists, head the bill here; Butler Stanhope and company, including the able actor Mr. J. W. Evelyn, present a telling sketch, Tracked to Death; Maxwell Harvey, a clever equilibrist, introduces some wonderful feats of strength, assisted by Mlle. Lucille; some charming songs are rendered by Miss Lulu Egbert; R. C. Note gives several of his capital songs; Dainty Daisy Davenport dances and sings most agreeably; and Frank Goodwin performs daring feats on the rings.

ROSCOMMON.—Lessee, Mr. Fred Willmot.—Foremost here this week are the Waldrons, whose comedy work arouses endless laughter; the popular Barney Stuart presents some of his smart up-to-date sketches, including The Miser; a refined drawing-room entertainment is submitted by Rappo and Ella; as a juvenile coon vocalist and dancer Molly Manion is pleasing; Allsopp and Bekwith cause a deal of merriment with their I'm Coming Unstairs; and Andy Burn, comedian, also appears. The Roscommon Bioscope has some good pictures.

LLANELLY.—ROYALTY THEATRE.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. Z. Andrews; Acting Manageress, Miss Alice Rocheforte.—The Rich and Poor of London, presented by Mr. Sidney Dench's company, occupies the boards here this week, the leading part, that of May Braithwaite, a hospital nurse, being extremely well taken by Miss Dora Dench, who plays most sympathetically and wins great applause. Mr. Sidney Dench as Spider Jack is also well received; Miss Minnie Bedford as Seadrift is charming; Mr. Henry Deane is good as Dr. Leonard; as are also Mr. Jack Sydney and Mr. Cole Aspinall, as Daniel Drake and Lawyer Grabbem respectively. Mr. Dennis Clyde is the villain of the piece, Mark Standing, deserves great praise.

NEW EMPIRE.—Manager, Mr. W. A. Totten.—Duse Mohamed, the Egyptian actor-author, and his variety company, are here this week. The bill also includes the tragedy sketch, The Jew's Revenge, in which Miss Beatrice Pardo-Nash and Mr. Mohamed appear with great success. Mr. Parkie Roberts, a Welsh comedian, and Miss Rosalie Thorne, ballad vocalist, are well received. Staffo, the butcher's boy juggler; Miss Sadie Otero, descriptive vocalist; Crosby and Walker, knockabouts; the Sisters Bon-Bon, serios and dancers; and Eric Lingard, comedian; and a sketch, entitled Jones's Yellow Lion, are also in the programme.

LONDONDERRY.—OPERA HOUSE.—Sole Proprietor, Mr. W. Payne Seddon.—The Eternal City is being staged here this week by Mr. J. Bannister Howard's company. As the Baron, Mr. D. L. Mannering is very good; Rossi, by Mr. Henry Deas, is ably portrayed; Mr. J. Fortescue is a dignified and impressive Pope; Mr. E. Comberbatch plays Father Pifferi very well; as Roma, Miss S. de Groot is excellent; and makes a deep impression on the audience. Mr. W. O'Flynn as Bruno Rocco is good; and iMss Eva Stuart plays Bruno's wife capably.

LOUGHBOROUGH.—NEW THEATRE ROYAL.—Proprietors, Messrs. Payne-Seddon and George Robertson; Acting-Manager, Mr. Lindsey Edwards.—Mr. Charles Macdona this week presents A Chinese Honeymoon. Miss Kitty Clayton as Fi-Fi causes great amusement by her clever acting; Miss Frances Olgar in the part of Soo-Soo is particularly good; Mrs. Pineapple in the capable hands of Miss Florence Wilton leaves little to be desired; Miss Alma Bolton as Mrs. Brown is also excellent; Mr. Lindsay Harman in the character of Mr. Pineapple has plenty of scope for comedy, scoring a notable success; Mr. James Wilson is capital in the part of Hang Chow; Mr. Louis Ashmead as Chippie Chop and Mr. Edwin Sykes as Hi Lung do well in their respective parts.

LOWESTOFT. — MARINA. — Managing-Director, Mr. E. A. Smith.—This week we have the first appearance locally of The Midnight Wedding, which is exceedingly well mounted and dressed. Mr. Alfred Paumier gives a finished rendering as Paul duel scene in the forest; and the overture and incidental music, all very good, were conducted by the composer, Mr. Clemens Frankenstein. Mr. Harvey's repertoire for the week includes Boy O'Carroll, of which a capital performance was given on Wednesday; Hamlet, The Only Way, A Cigarette-Maker's Romance, and (on Friday) a new play called The Spell, by Rosamund Langbridge, of which a full notice will appear next week.

PRINCE'S THEATRE.—Proprietors, The United Theatres Co., Ltd.; Acting-Manager, Mr. George Lee. — Mr. George Edwardes' company is here again this week in The Little Michus, repeating to the full its previous success. Miss Iris Holly and Miss Thelma Raye give a pretty rendering of the central parts; the General Des Ifs of Mr. Eric Thorne is, of course, a highly amusing impersonation; some admirable singing is given by Mr. Leonard Mackay as Aristide Vert and Mr. W. Tailleur Andrews as Gaston Rigaud; and pleasing light humour is added by the clever impersonations of Mr. Jack Cannot as Bagnolet, Mr. George Miller as Pierre Michu, and Mr. Willie Warde, jun., as the market man; while others who do well are Miss Florence Parfrey as Madame Michu, Miss Elsie Brocklebank as Ernestine, and Miss Vivian Tailleur as Mlle. St. Cyr. Chorus and orchestra add greatly to the effect.

ROYAL OSBORNE THEATRE.—Manager, Mr. W. B. Broadhead; Acting-Manager, Mr. P. B. Broadhead. —Miss Marie Dagmar and Mr. Fred C. Somerton present here this week A Beautiful Criminal, a drama of absorbing interest. Miss Dagmar is prominently successful as Elinor d'Arville, the title-rôle; and Mr. Fred C. Somerton gives a fine character study as Will Maynard. Mr. Roy Fortesque adds excellent work in the dual rôle of Cyril and Geoffrey Langdon; Mr. Alec Findlater presents a manly idea of Harold Kingston; Mr. Willie Barrett and Miss Molly Monaghan are good as Peter and Janet Miles; and others worthy of note are Mr. T. G. Vane, Miss Clara Santley, and Miss Lallah Shelton. The staging is well done.

METROPOLE THEATRE.—Manager, Mr. W. B. Broadhead; Acting-Manager, Mr. P. B. Broadhead.—An admirable programme here this week comprises David Poole, a very clever ventriloquist; Haig and Novel, comedy artists; J. H. Hawtrey, an effective actor-vocalist; the Smarte Bros., in an acrobatic speciality; Little Ada Merry, an excellent comedienne; Mme. de Roze, the lady Foli, a really enjoyable singer; Selby and Myers, lively comedians; Lilian Herol, pleasing ballad vocalist; Hardie Parm, comedian; and Jas. Alston, a comedian who is distinctly amusing.

GRAND JUNCTION THEATRE.—Manager, Mr. W. B. Broadhead; Acting-Manager, Mr. P. B. Broadhead. —Mr. W. Reuben Payne presents here this week Arthur Jefferson's drama, The World's Verdict. The play is very well handled by the company, among whom Mr. Albert Guyon gives a fine rendering of Jasper Woodleigh; Mr. Eric Hudson is particularly strong as Nathan Black, the maniac; Miss May Axon is excellent as Nellie Ashford; Miss Beatrice Fitzhugh is equally successful as Florence Woodleigh; and Mr. Harry Stuart looks and moves well as George Ashford; while Mr. W. G. Wesley gets plenty out of his part as Sam Carrot; Miss Anena Walton as Sally Jenkins adds to the entertainment; Miss Lily Roselle presents an acceptable rendering of Cora Cassilis, Jasper's supposed wife; and a clever depiction of Sir Geoffrey Woodleigh is given by Mr. Cecil R. Thompson.

EMPIRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. Oswald Stoll; Acting-Manager, Mr. H. Hall.—A version of John F. Preston's drama, Rogues of the Turf, in which the author appears, supported by a clever company, is the principal item here this week. Tschernoff's animal novelty is a remarkable act, showing wonderful training of horses and dogs; and entertaining business is added by Die Obersteirers, accomplished Tyrolean singers; Carlotta Levey, the popular comedienne; Kelly and Gillette, in their funny billiard-table act; Arthur Pearl, in The Schoolboy; the Lyons trio of pantomimists and dancers; the Sisters Hope, clever burlesque comediennes and dancers; and Bugler Carr, the musical puzzle. The pictures on the Bioscope depict scenes in Canada.

PALACE.—General Manager, Mr. Walter De Frece; Secretary, Mr. Peter Watson; Acting Manager, Mr. Nelson Barry.—Fred Karno's highly-amusing sketch, Saturday to Monday, is the attraction here this week. Harry Champion makes a hit in his usual lively style; Harry Edson introduces his cleverly-trained dogs; Arthur Aldridge is a good tenor vocalist; Rosie Archer, mimic, is pleasing; and Harry Taft is a capital whistling comedian. Other good turns are Los Rupertos, novelty equilibrists; Little Zola, comedian; Carden and Price, vocal entertainers; and Cyclo, trick cyclist. The Palace Pictures are up-to-date.

HIPPODROME.—Managing-Director, Mr. Oswald Stoll; Acting-Manager, Mr. E. P. Morgan.—A first-rate item here this week is an episode in the life of Napoleon, entitled A Drummer of the 76th, excellently played by Matthew Brodie and company. Hengler's comedy sketch, Harum Scarum, remains from last week; and Fred Ginnett and company are seen again in their funny sketch, The Rejected Remounts. Very entertaining are the Scarleteers in their pot-pourri act. Excellent turns are also those of Charles Vincent, comedian; the Vernon troupe of xylophone players; Dorothy L. Clarke, comedienne; and Selma Braatz, girl juggler. Two vocal items by the choir and some enjoyable bioscope pictures complete the bill.

QUEEN'S PARK HIPPODROME.—Manager, Mr. W. B. Broadhead; Acting-Manager, Mr. P. B. Broadhead.—Sidney Bacon's company is here this week in that bright and tuneful comedy, The Duchess of Tooting. Madge Grey, comedienne, contributes an excellent turn; and Marie Jones, in her quick-change act, The Way to Win a Bet, is well received. Stanley and Vandyke cause much merriment with their grotesque make-up in an amusing comedy, A Broken Promise; the Edwards Trio are clever equilibrists and jugglers; the Sisters Volbecque are entertaining duettists; and Annie Cohen is a good descriptive vocalist. "The Gentleman Burglar" on the bioscope is followed with interest.

HIPPODROME, HULME.—Manager, Mr. W. B Broadhead; Acting-Manager, Mr. P. B. Broadhead.—The Smart Set of vocal entertainers top the bill here this week, and render some delightful songs and dances in a highly-finished style; Carl Mysto, the "monarch of manacles," succeeds in escaping from handcuffs, &c., to the marvel of the audience. Tod Lowan, comedian, makes a great hit, his style being extremely funny; Rose Elliott, vocalist, is well received; Arthur Holland's singing meets with much approval; and Avon and Crest cause much laughter in their comedy act. Others who contribute smart turns are the Three Sisters Hayden, vocal comediennes; France and Francis, acrobatic comedians; and Lilybelle, a clever juvenile comedienne and dancer. "The Missing Legacy" is shown on the bioscope.

MANSFIELD.—GRAND THEATRE.—Proprietor, Captain Cecil Clayton; General-Manager, Mr. Edward Gray. Mr. S. Arthur Jones's company is presenting here Life's Sweetest Sins. Captain Harold Marston is in the capable hands of Mr. S. Arthur Jones; Miss Hazel Dent ably impersonates Doreen Rivers; Captain Rawlins is admirably played by Mr. Frank Thornton; Mr. W. D. Beck as Sergeant Bates and Mr. Edgar Morgan as Bob Tanner cause great amusement; Miss Mary Ainslie capably enacts the part of Fay Colbrooke.

HIPPODROME. — Lessees, Messrs. Darnley and Jennings; Manager, Mr. T. Jennings.—Miss Alice May, at the top of the bill here, provides an excellent turn with her sketch, Tranquillity, in which she takes seven distinct parts; the Paulo Bros. create roars of laughter in their absurdity; the Smalleys are appreciated in their feats on the triple bars; and Aldro Lukos, the man monkey, Charles Ashdowne, leg twister, and Nellie Duval are also successful. Vernon's Imperial Bioscope depicts up-to-date pictures.

MARGATE.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Exclusive Manager, Mr. B. Michael; Business-Manager, Mr. A. Austen Leigh.—The farcical comedy, The Little Stranger, was staged here on Wednesday evening for a four nights' visit. The juvenile comedian, Master Garrott, sustained the title-rôle very cleverly, and was supported by a capable company.

HIPPODROME. — Joint Proprietors, Messrs. F. Mouillot and W. de Frece; General-Manager, Mr. J. de Frece; Resident-Manager, Mr. C. F. Bawtree.—Owing to the magistrates refusing to grant a licence for the appearance of Tiny Wilmot, a seven-year-old comedienne and dancer, the management had to secure at short notice Jenny Venton, who was a great success as a comedienne. Almon, the upside-down marvel, has proved an attractive addition to the programme, and Florence Deighton, the double-voiced songstress, has elicited hearty applause; Bert Woodward, the cycling coon, has made a hit with his eccentric performance; Fred Keeton, the peculiar comedian, has been exceedingly funny; and Fredrica's performing toy terriers, with Dot, the cake-walking pony, have furnished an entertaining finish to a well-arranged programme. The pictures, as usual, are excellent.

HALL-BY-THE-SEA.—Sole Proprietor, Lord George Sanger; General-Manager, Mr. C. C. Evans.—Jury's animated pictures have been attracting large audiences here this week. The show is a remarkably good one, many of the films being splendidly coloured. Several vocal items add to the interest of the entertainment.

PALACE.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. Phil Reymond.—Another good all-round company is appearing here this week. The Two Merry Tramps are a comical pair; Miss Josie Watson is a capital serio; Mr. Gus Daniels is well to the fore with comic and descriptive songs; Miss Topsy Leane makes a welcome reappearance after a long absence, and her singing and dancing are greatly admired; Mr. Harry Royde is a clever comedian; and the Paragon Sketch company concludes with a capital sketch, entitled A Family Quarrel.

MERTHYR TYDFIL. — THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessees, The South Wales Entertainments, Ltd.; Manager, Mr. Lewis Gilbert.—Mr. Lingford Carson's company, with The Drama of Life, is paying a welcome return visit this week. Mr. Edward M. Hamilton plays convincingly the part of the hero Harry Beech, and the heroine is acted with feeling and dramatic power by Miss Kate Hallam. Mr. Sydney Fenner as David Crane finds plenty of scope for the display of his ability. Mr. H. B. Foote plays with ease the part of the detective, Richard Brenton. There is excellent comedy relief given by Mr. Harwood Roberts as Sir Dobson Wilde and by Miss Florence French as Lady Jane Wilde. Miss Marie Pardy is particularly noticeable in the part of Master Beech, and Miss Nellie Birchenough is good as Betty Black.

MEXBOROUGH.—PRINCE OF WALES THEATRE. —Manager, Mr. W. H. Melton.—Mr. Hy. Swinerd's company, under the direction of Mr. J. W. Cordiner, is this week presenting Dare-Devil Dorothy. Miss Dolly Desmonde is delightfully bright and happy in the title-rôle; Miss Marie Vere is sprightly and pleasing as Ruth Montrose; Miss Nellie Harcourt is bright and vivacious as Judith; Mr. Walter Ashley plays in capital style as Capt. Fielding; the Captain Dudley of Mr. Henry C. Ward is a vigorous portraiture; Mr. Will Brereton (Silas Crump) and Mr. Dean Cliffe (Featherstone Haugh) provide abundant mirth. Clever specialities are submitted by Miss Dorothy Desmonde, Miss Nellie Harcourt, the Misses Mabel and Lillie Blake (acrobatic and speciality dancers), Miss Marie Vere, and Mr. Will Brereton.

MIDDLESBROUGH. — THEATRE ROYAL.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. Chas. Imeson.—Mr. H. Armitage and Arthur Leigh's company is again here, presenting for the first three nights of the week Leah Kleschna. Miss Bessie Rignold was very sympathetic in the title-rôle, whilst Mr. Paul Belmore as Monsieur Garnier was a decided success. Mr. Ronald Daniel as Valentine Faure and General Beaton was capital, whilst for the part of Raoul Beaton a clever representative was found in Mr. Hamilton Deane. Miss Edith Summers acted with great distinction as Charlotte, and Miss May Hammond was a charming Friede. Mr. Fred Bannerman was exceedingly good as Baptiste, and Miss Violet Thorold was piquant as Sophie.

OPERA HOUSE.—Managing-Director, Mr. Robert Arthur; Manager, Mr. W. K. Chatto.—My Sweetheart is the attraction here this week. Miss Minnie Palmer is a pleasing Tina, and Mr. Robert Howard acts the part of Song with much distinction. Miss Elsie Forster imbues the rôle of Peek-a-boo with all the humour and charm that are possible to put into it, and Mr. Fred Leonard is amusing as Joe. Miss Iris Smith is exceedingly pleasing as Mrs. Fleeter, and Mr. Alfred J. May is a typical farmer Hatzell. Mr. John MacCallum is capital as Dudley Harcourt, and Mr. Henry Lesmere is good as Harry Bartlett. Mr. Hugh Seaton as Dr. Oliver leaves nothing to be desired.

EMPIRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. John Brill; Manager, Mr. Charles Rembges.—An excellent programme is provided here this week. The Tally-Ho Trio pay a return visit, and their harmony is of the best; an amusing sketch, entitled The Man in Possession, is provided by Gus Blake and Maud Granby; Grey and Welford are clever comedy artists; and Tate and Tate are smart acrobats. Will English scores a great success with his coon songs, and Johnny Walker, comedian, does well. Other turns are provided by Charles Lilburn, comedian; the Daleys, comedy artists; and the Bioscope.

OXFORD PALACE.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. Alf. Graham.—There is a capital company here this week, and Tom Foy is adding to his fame and popularity as a laughter-maker in his sketch, The Yorkshire Lad in London. Inimitably droll. Fred Curran creates roars of laughter with his songs, as does also Harry Conlin, comedian. Foys, famous comedians, in the new speciality comedy production, Jolly Tars in China, meet with great success, and Rosie Coleman provides a clever dancing turn. The Stavordale Quintette provides an excellent musical turn, and George Edney, vocalist, does well.

MOTHERWELL. — NEW CENTURY THEATRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. R. C. Buchanan; Resident-Manager, Mr. Reginald Grant.—Miss Elaine Verner's company has filled a three days' engagement here in The Middleman and Saints and Sinners, the first-mentioned being chosen for the opening night. Mr. Harding Thomas gave a convincing impersonation of Cyrus Blenkarn; Mr. Frank Lyndon did equally well as Joseph Chandler; Mr. Percy Brown made the most of his limited opportunities as Captain Chandler; and Batty Todd lost nothing in the able hands of Mr. Edward de Vere. Mr. Edgar Kent was an amusing Jesse Pegge; and Mr. Guy Dene looked and acted the part of the family solicitor to the life. Miss Elaine Vernier gave a deeply sympathetic rendering of Mary; Miss Ada Clark was an amusing Nancy; and Misses Ruby Roma and Maud Beard suitably sustained their respective rôles of Maud and Mrs. Chandler.

NELSON.—NEW GRAND THEATRE.—Lessee and Manageress, Mrs. T. Greenwood Croft; Business-Manager, Mr. George E. Mudd.—This week celebrates the return visit of Mr. Frank Lindo and company in Home, Sweet Home. Mr. Frank Lindo, in the character of Stephen Armitage, plays admirably; Mr. D. Lawrence Doyle makes a realistic old fisherman of David Armitage; Captain Gerald Gambier gives a fine portrayal of the Duke of Ancaster; Mr. F. Miles Hodgson as Lucas Lyle plays to perfection; Mr. Jack Patrick ably sustains the part of the Hon. Percy; Mr. George Overs acts Dick Redmayne with force and ability; Mr. Ernest E. Owens as Lord Silvermore is quite successful; Miss Marion Wakeford is seen to advantage in the rôle of Joan; Miss May Rochefort is good as Sybil Fane; and Miss Daisy Rochfort very prettily takes the part of Dora, the child.

NEWCASTLE-ON-TYNE.—TYNE THEATRE AND OPERA HOUSE.—Managing Director, Mr. F. W. Wyndham; Business-Manager, Mr. F. C. Sutcliffe. —Raffles is here this week. Mr. Leonard Boyne in the title-rôle gives a capital impersonation of the amateur cracksman; Mr. Arthur Willoughby makes an excellent Earl of Amersteth; Mr. Edward Breon's impersonation of Viscount Crowley is typical; and Mr. Clifford Brooke distinguishes himself as Curtis Bedford. Miss Madge Murray scores as Lady Ethel for her fine acting; Miss Hazel Thompson is worthy of praise as Gwendoline Coran; and Miss Amy Thomas sustains the part of Lady Melove in good style.

THEATRE ROYAL. — Managing - Director, Mr. Robert Arthur; Acting-Manager, Mr. F. Tearle Lingham.—A capital company sent out by Mr. Frank Curzon is appearing here in The White Chrysanthemum. The title-rôle is filled in a charming manner by Miss Nora Grey; Miss Kate Vasey and Miss Daisy Le Hay act gracefully and charmingly as the American heiress and Betty Kenyon respectively; Messrs. W. H. Rawlins and Horace Mills, both sound comedians, are excellent as the Admiral and Lieutenant Chippendale Belmont respectively; Mr. O. E. Lennon as Sin Chong provides capital comedy; and Lieutenant Reggie Armitage is excellent played by Mr. F. Pope-Stamper. Responsible, too, for no small amount of fun is Mr. Harry Paulton, jun., as Private Perks.

PALACE THEATRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. T. W. Rowe; Business-Manager, Mr. H. B. Clarke.—Mr. Bert Coote's principal company in The Fatal Wedding occupies the boards at the Palace this week. Howard Wilson is admirably portrayed by Mr. Ernest Owtrim; Mr. Herbert Humber makes a capital villain as Robert Curtis; whilst as Loto much fun and laughter are evoked by Mr. C. H. Hughes; Mr. Cyril Melton makes a good Schwartz. Miss Madge Haines wins much sympathy as Mabel, and Miss Gertrude Harrison has made a decided hit as Cora. Bridget is embodied in great spirit by Miss Julie Temple; Miss Marjorie Lawrence is a clever juvenile. A special chorus of trained children are well received.

GRAND THEATRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. Sydney Bacon.—Mr. Augustus Van Biene, supported by a company of accomplished artists, is appearing here this week, and despite his frequent visits, gains a well-merited success, and is playing to full houses nightly.

EMPIRE THEATRE.—Proprietors, Moss' Empires, Ltd.; Managing-Director, Mr. Richard Thornton; Resident-Manager, Mr. George Andrews.—The premier position on the bill is held by R. A. Roberts, who on Monday night produced his clever sketch, Dick Turpin, and met with well-merited success. G. H. Elliott, the chocolate-coloured coon, has had a good reception; the Selbinis perform many sensational feats on the wheel; the Vivians' Operatic and Comedy Co. in their playlet, The Reverie, sing and play in good style; the Irish comedienne, Minnie Cunningham, contributes some dainty songs; Boy Glen is a wonderfully clever juvenile raconteur; the Two Tees, musical grotesques, score heavily; Lena Brunton is a charming comedienne; and the Brothers Obo are good comedy artiste. Ryder Slone, in his vocal scena, completes the entertainment.

PAVILION THEATRE. — Managing-Director, Mr. Thomas Barrasford; Manager, Mr. Will H. Boardman.—Yukio Tani, reputed to be the finest living exponent of ju-jitsu, is offering £100 to the first man who can defeat him. Sammy Shields scores a great success with his song; Fanny Wentworth is as interesting as ever with her clever performances at the piano; the Brothers Wifords give a fine exhibition of muscular development; the Albinos are a dainty musical turn; John Tiller's Manchester Mites are a clever troupe of singers and dancers; Flo Cecil, comedienne and dancer, has met with instantaneous success; and Elton and Elba perform well on the horizontal bars. Dick Williams plays catchy melodies on the banjo, and Five Bon Bons and the Barrascope make up a first-rate evening's entertainment.

NEWPORT.—LYCEUM.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Sidney Cooper.—The Traitor is being presented here by Messrs. E. Hill Mitchelson and Harris Pineberg's company. As the chief of police Mr. Stephen E. Scanlon displays considerable power; and Mr. Beneley Evans is successful as Prince Rudolph. Mr. Cyril Maitland very impressively portrays the Speaker of the Hidden Council. Most of the other male characters are humorous, more or less. General Hertz (Mr. Arthur McCulloch) and Zoff (Mr. Edward Lowrie) are extremely farcical; Capt. Ross, R.A. (Mr. W. Hurst) is amusing; Jack Boult (Mr. Frank Sutherland) is intensely funny; and other well-played parts include Cen-Cen (Miss Maud Stuart) and Eliza Dafres (Miss Gwynne Warren); the Countess Zicka (Miss Katherine Vere), Zula (Miss Ruth Shepherd), and Little Nicholas (Miss Isabel Hunt).

EMPIRE.—Moss' Empires, Ltd.—Managing-Director, Mr. O. Stoll.—In Bonnie Scotland, performed by a number of local children, trained by Professor Selkirk, forms a pleasing feature of the show this week. The Leslie Brothers present a really excellent musical turn; Preston and Balmaine give a couple of songs, illustrated by pictures; Kate Cohen is deservedly encored for a beautifully-rendered song, "Children's Home"; and the Caselli Sisters are smart with their dances. Nora Emerald, in dainty dresses, sings a couple of songs that are warmly applauded; Albert Christian is popular with his character songs; and Donaldson Brothers and Ardel have their popular sketch, A Zoological Comedy.

NORTHAMPTON.—OPERA HOUSE. — Proprietors and Managers, Mr. Milton Bode and Mr. Edward Compton; Resident-Manager, Mr. Frank Seddon.—This week Mr. Frank E. Burdett presents George Daventry's military play, The Indian Mutiny. Miss F. Melrose Millett is seen to advantage as Ghuz-nah, and is well supported by Mr. George Steel as Lieutenant Manley and Mr. Villiers Stanley as Nebu Singh. Mr. Cyril Harrison as Captain Manley, Mr. John Davidson as Major Ingleby, Mr. Cecil Morand as Terry O'Brien, Mr. J. S. Shedden as Abul Khan, and Mr. Charles Boult as Ra Goonga make the best of their respective parts.

PALACE OF VARIETIES.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. Fred H. Anderson; Representative, Mr. Edwin C. Jazon; Acting-Manager, Mr. T. A. Evans.—Pollo Jerome on the trapeze is first favourite in this week's programme; Amba Austa, eccentric comedienne, gives a turn of peculiar interest; Billie Burford is highly successful; Grace Merton has a sweet and powerful voice; Alf. Brookes is successful; a hit is made by Lawrence Barclay; the Two Wiltons are well appreciated for their song and dance; Clarke and Glenny appear in a sketch; Will Haines wins favour; and C. Vincent presents some funny pictures on the Biograph.

NORTH SHIELDS.—THEATRE ROYAL. — Lessee and Manager, Mr. Arthur Jefferson; Acting-Manager, Mr. Horace Lee.—The attraction here this week is Mr. Fred L. Conynghame's company with the domestic drama, A Mother's Love. As Paul Wingate Mr. Arthur Mervyn is warmly applauded for his successful rendering of the character; and Mr. Arthur E. Pringle as Geoffrey Mannering contributes a clever performance. Mr. Fred I. Conynghame gives a capital impersonation of Mat Ruddock; Mr. Robert Lynne makes the most of Joe Jackson; and Mr. H. Clifton does well as Ralph Mervain. The part of Winnie Wingate is in the able hands of Mis Rose Mervyn; Miss M. Lavinia Ellis makes an interesting Ellaine Mervyn; Miss Dorothy Monkhouse gives a careful study of Mary Stuart; and Miss Hollie Hazlewood is well received as Marjorie Wingate.

CENTRAL PALACE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Wm. Mould.—Mr. Spearman Potts, a smart illusionist, is the star here, and is meeting with a hearty reception; Mr. George Belrose and Miss Maude De Velin, speciality duettists, provide an enjoyable turn; the Ringling Trio, American eccentrics, give a clever performance; Miss Beatrice Bonnie is a pleasing comedienne; Mr. Walter Styles, hoop manipulator and juggler, is smart; Messrs. Duncan and Morton, comedians and dancers, do well; Mr. Scatter, a local comedian, is popular; and the Bio-Photoscope meets with its usual success.

NORWICH.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Sole Manager, Mr. Fred Morgan.—Mr. Morton Powell's company this week gives an excellent representation of The Woman Who Gambles. Miss Gertrude Hunt is much appreciated for her powerful acting as the Countess Steinbach, and Mr. James Duncan as Count Otto Steinbach is equally successful. Mr. Horatio Sinclair as Baron Cratzlaw deserves commendation, and Mr. Reginald Fox as Lieutenant Carl Czarteriski is well received. Miss Florrie Hatton deserves praise as Cora Gouldhart.

HIPPODROME.—Proprietors, Messrs. E. H Bostock and F. W. Fitt; Manager, Mr. Councillor F. W. Fitt.—But for one untoward incident an attractive programme is presented this week. The incident regretted is the non-appearance of Tom Grave, who has been unable to give his sensational cycling feat, having contracted a chill during his journey from Lancashire on Sunday. Among the others appearing are Letta and Minni, who give a clever exhibition of hand-balancing and musical performance; Minni also introduces her highly-trained dog and his clever tricks. Alma Obrey has a charming voice, and her songs are much appreciated; Shawlene is an expert effleur and mimic, and is very entertaining; Jessie Barley and Phil Smith are humorous in their episode entitled A Rehearsal, whilst Picton Roxborough and Fanny Wright create much fun in their sketch entitled Cockie. Nina Gordon is a pleasing mimic, and Bob Baxter, comedian, is well received. The Hippo Bio is particularly good this week.

NOTTINGHAM.—THEATRE ROYAL. — Managing Director, Mr. Robt. Arthur; Acting-Manager, Mr. Howard Finney.—The Little Cherub is paying its first visit this week, and the excellent play is capitally acted by Mr. Geo. Edwardes' company. Miss Queenie Leighton is delightful as Molly Montrose. Singing spiritedly, and acting with a vivaciousness that is infectious, she wins continuous applause. The two daughters of the Earl of Sanctobury are taken by Miss Fanny Dango and Miss Valli Valli, and no more attractive couple could be desired, their singing and dancing being heartily appreciated; Mr. Robert Hale cleverly embodies Lord Congress; Mr. Lennox Pawle contributes a thoroughly amusing portraiture of the amorous old peer, the Earl of Sanctobury; Mr. Arthur Langley is successful in his portraiture of a society "dude"; and Mr. Colin Coop well depicts the peppery Alderman Briggs. Miss Hazel Saqui makes an engaging chambermaid; Miss Julita Dumas as Lady Agnes and Miss Nellie Johnston as Lady Rose earn distinction, and the fun is also maintained by Mr. Cranston Neville, Mr. Nelson Keys, and Mr. Fred Winn. The music of Mr. Ivan Caryll is charmingly rendered by an augmented orchestra under the direction of Mr. T. Sutton.

GRAND THEATRE.—Manager, Mr. Charles P. Cooke. —A strong attraction is here this week in Mr. Walter Melville's stirring drama, A Girl's Cross Roads. Miss Beaumont Collins essays the rôle of Barbara Wade with highly commendable tact, showing the dipsomaniac in an effective manner, which gains her cordial applause. Miss Gibbons portrays Nellie Meadows with distinctive energy; and Miss Jessica Black is satisfactory as Constance Cornell. In the parts of Fay Dudley and Gertie Seemston, Misses Nellie Noble and Nannie Meade are well placed; Mr. Charles Fanmore gives a fine character-study of the genial old farmer, John Meadows; Mr. Wilson Gunning gains merited recognition in his assumption of Jack Livingstone; Mr. Gerald Jordan makes a success of Cuthbert Lumley; and the humorous element is capitally brought out by Miss Lena Delphine (Tilly Vane) and Mr. Fred Ingram (Toby Turvey).

EMPIRE THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—Managing-Director, Mr. Oswald Stoll; Acting-Manager, Mr. Charles H. Bowmaker.—Fred Karno's troupe of comedians appear in their amusing burlesque, The Humming Birds, to the accompaniment of the heartiest of laughter. The exuberant humour of Dan Crawley is well exemplified in several funny songs; and an item by Kate Butler, "It's a sad, sad story," is brimful of quaint drollery. As itinerant musicians, the Three Dumonds display admirable skill, one member playing the violin with wonderful effect; the vocalism of Lilian Lea quite captivates her audience in a scena, My Bungalow in Borneo; and Jack Charman is deservedly rewarded for his excellent singing. The Molasso Quartette give an attractive exhibition of cyclonic dancing; and the male impersonations of Lilian Bishop are tastefully rendered. Silent Tait gives an entertaining performance as an eccentric wizard; and the American Bioscope shows some up-to-date pictures.

NUNEATON.—PRINCE OF WALES' THEATRE AND ENTERTAINMENTS CO., LTD. — Managing-Director, Mr. A. F. Cross; Acting-Manager, Mr. Walter J. R. Bryan.—Mr. W. H. Hallatt's company is presenting to enthusiastic audiences The Temptress. Mr. Claude Ashworth appears as Sir Oswald Fordyce; Mr. Wallace Campbell gives a meritorious interpretation of Philip Welford; Mr. Weedon Atherstone wins high praise for his excellent acting in the part of the unscrupulous Lucas Denbeigh; Mr. Fred H. Constable is good as Pedro Gonzales; Mr. C. Quinton Fulford scores as Austin Dale; Miss Violet Sims is in favour as Marion Fordyce; and Miss Effie Bartlett pathetically portrays the discarded wife, Madge Denbigh; while Miss Lydia Donovan ably depicts the scheming Stella, the temptress. Plenty of comedy is supplied by Messrs. W. P. Sheen, Allan Carruthers, Charles Reque, and Miss Ivy Chandos.

OLDHAM.—EMPIRE THEATRE.—General Manager, Mr. E. Dottridge; Assistant Manager, Mr. J. Hulme.—Mr. George Musgrove's company is delighting large "houses" once again with the musical comedy, The Prince of Pilsen. Mr. Martin Adeson is exceedingly good as Hans Wagner; Mr. J. B. Fox, as Carl Otto, has a part that suits him, and he does full justice to it. Mr. G. Villiers Arnold is a manly Tom; and Mr. Lawrence Wensley makes an excellent Lord Shrimpton. Miss Millicent Marsden is good as Mrs. Madison Crocker; and Miss Isa Bowman is a charming Nellie Wagner. Miss Nell Emerald is a sprightly Sidonie, the French maid; Edith Adams is well played by Miss Nellie Barnwell; Jimmie is acted in a capital manner by Miss Meg Hamilton; Mr. Alfred Selby scores as François; Mr. Madison Rich makes a fine Cook's courier; and Mr. D. O. Uglas is good as Sergeant Brie. Miss Clara Stanton, as the Gibson Girl, is the hit of the piece. The chorus is a strong one, and the dresses and scenery are pretty.

COLOSSEUM. — Manager, Mr. W. Eastwood.—Mr. F. Melville's play, The Ugliest Woman on Earth, drew a large audience on Monday evening. Miss Beatrice Homer fills the title-rôle in capital style; Mr. Philip Darien is a manly Jack Merriman; Mr. L. Cancellor is good as Hubert Gold, and is ably assisted in his villainy by Miss Nell Oliver as Rose Courtney. Other accomplices are played by Mr. C. Barrett as Antonio, and Mr. W. Wallace-Acton as Raggles. Miss Nellie Jackson is excellent as Aggie Brown, as is Miss Margaret Watson as the Italian girl Merita. Mr. Allan Davenport scores as Tom Redvers; and Mr. Cecil de Lee is the purser, Griffiths. Mr. Leonard Thackeray plays Dr. Carr, and the remaining characters are done justice to.

ROYAL THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—Manager, Mr. E. Dottridge; Assistant-Manager, Mr. W. Howgate.—Carter Livesey and Lillian Rosebery top the bill with The Would-be Actors, assisted by Mr. Albert Mason. The Cattaneos are a smart troupe of acrobats; and the Vasilescu Roumanian Company is excellent in an eccentric act on the bars. Miss Marguerite Broadfoote, a charming comedienne, has had a well-earned reception; whilst the Two Anartos, in a musical skit, are very good. Frank Cass, vocal comedian, also does well; and the Four Sherrys score in a comedy acrobatic act. Miss Minnie Mace, comedienne, and the Royal Dottoscope complete an excellent programme.

HIPPODROME. — Manager, Mr. E. Dottridge; Assistant-Manager, Mr. Nuttall.—Ike Scott and Son, versatile comedians, have had a good reception here; Will Dalton, comedian, has some funny songs; and Louie Lennard and Lazy Larry are successful duettists; and Fred Fyne and Johnny Hurley are amusing in a novel singing act. George Young, blind musician, is excellent in his solos on the concertina; the Athlones are a pair of refined athletes, in classical poses; and Bert Williams is a funny ventriloquist. The Dottoscope shows interesting pictures.

OXFORD.—NEW THEATRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. Thomas Lucas, J.P.; Acting-Manager, Mr. C. C. Dorrill.—Mr. Robert Courtneidge's company is this week paying a visit with The Blue Moon. Mr. Alec Fraser scores in the part of Captain Ormesby; Mr. Alfred Clark is good as Major Callabone; Mr. A. W. Ashdowne makes an interesting Bobbie Scott; Mr. Arthur Soames is excellent as the Prince; Mr. Alfred Beers works hard and successfully as Moolraj; and Mr. R. Switz is humorous as Private Taylor; Miss Ethel Callanan is a fascinating Evelyn Ormsby; Miss Clarice Lockstone sings delightfully in the title-rôle; and Miss Florence Imeson is a winsome Millicent Leroy.

PAISLEY.—PAISLEY THEATRE.—Sole Proprietor and Manager, Mr. J. H. Savile.—Somebody's Sweetheart is being staged here this week by Mr. Edward Marris's company. Mr. W. H. Kirby, who is the life and soul of the piece, assumes the rôle of Martin Blabbs in irresistible fashion; Mr. E. H. Bertram as Stanton Ashleigh sings with expression and puts in good work; Mr. Douglas B. Watson essays the gentlemanly villain, Stephen Leverton, with conspicuous success; Old Joe has an excellent representative in Mr. Reg. Hugh Hamber; Mr. J. Templar Ellis gives a good impersonation of Lem Lee; and Freddie Ashleigh is creditably sustained by Miss Millie Gordon; Miss Molly Hackett wins favour as Lulu, whilst her singing and dancing are full of vivacity; as Zora Miss Cordelia Knight is seen to advantage; and Miss Nora Melton's Mrs. Ainslie gives satisfaction; the clever dancing of Misses Rosie Chandler and Dolly Payne is worthy of special mention.

HIPPODROME.—Sole Proprietor, Mr. E. H. Bostock; Acting-Manager, Mr. Fred Wilson.—The bill here this week is a strikingly attractive one, including the Three Royal Dreadnoughts (Lillian, Vera, and Major Charles), who are vociferously applauded for their skilful rifle shooting; the Herald Comedy Four, in their harmonious singing and spirited dancing, receive hearty recognition. Other good turns are given by Williams and Warden, comedians, in a comedy act entitled Mr. Dooley; the Four Emilions, in their original and sensational acrobatic act; Penstone, prestidigitateur and illusionist, assisted by his China-town belle, Tsaou-ngo, marvellous lady sleight-of-hand exponent; Beattie Kent, comedienne; Kenneth and Kane, amusing comedy entertainers; and Tom Collins, a clever and versatile comedian. The Hippodrome Bioscope gives a fine selection of animated pictures.

EMPIRE.—Lessee, Mr. J. H. Savile; Manager, Mr. Delno Fritz.—This week the top of the bill is occupied by those clever comedians, Regan and Ryan; Patty Yole scores with her new songs and some old favourites; Helen Duncanson is a pleasing ballad vocalist; Archie Cameron, refined comedian, is successful: Annette Gray is an acceptable comedienne, and Ed. Stevens, comedian and dancer, is well received. The performance concludes with a good display of animated pictures by the Empire Animatograph.

PERTH.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Sole Lessee and Manager, Mr. J. H. Savile; Acting-Manager, Mr. Frank Aldridge.—Mr. Herbert Ralland is here this week with his principal company in the celebrated comic opera La Poupée, which is taking well. Mr. Arthur Cozens does full justice to the rôle of Lancelot, his vocal contributions being received with much acceptance; Mr. Walter Balfour's clever portrayal of Father Maxime is vociferously applauded; Mr. Arthur Dennis is seen to advantage as Loremois; as is Mr. Fuller Allen as Chanterelle; and Mr. Harry Brayne's clever impersonation of Hilarius is a fund of amusement in itself; Miss Edith Hunter is well adapted to the rôle of Madame Hilarius; Miss Dorris Dickens is a taking Henri; Misses Dora Dickens and Nita Cree create a favourable impression as First and Second Doll respectively; and Miss Mysie Devine's charming interpretation of the title-rôle deservedly wins for her unstinted approbation.

PLYMOUTH.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. C. F. Williams; Acting-Manager, Mr. J. Langdon Lee.—Mr. Charles Macdona on Monday introduced Mr. Popple (of Ippleton) to a West-Country audience. As the unsophisticated countryman, Mr. Morris Harvey was responsible for much spontaneous merriment; Miss Maimie Brickwell is a fascinating La Bolero, her vocal efforts being greatly appreciated; Miss Lulu Louden is a vivacious Lou smart representation of Harry Alford; and the acting of Miss Sadie Smith as Will Gunstock is clever. Miss Danvers Smith as Marie also adds to the success.

RAWTENSTALL. — GRAND THEATRE. — Lessee and Manager, Mr. Arthur De Frece.—Mr. Vivian Grantham this week presents his company in Held in Bondage. Miss Florence Tyrrell was an exceptionally good Zara Dronski; as Ivan Dronski Mr. Charles Stirling was also clever; as Prince Mazaroff Mr. Richard Vase gave a powerful portrayal; and Mr. George Child was an effective Sir John Hawthorne. Miss Amy Rudd gave a delightful interpretation of the Princess; Miss Grace Baring made an excellent Leonie; and as Harry Dunn and Mrs. Dunn Mr. George Scully and Miss Maude Merrick were excellent, their comedy being fresh and entertaining.

READING.—ROYAL COUNTY THEATRE.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. Milton Bode; Acting-Manager, Mr. Michael Dempsey.—Mr. George Dance's company is appearing this week in the favourite comic opera Veronique. Miss Nellie Wigley acts very effectively in the title-rôle; Mr. J. Warren-Foster is highly efficient in his impersonation of Florestan de Vallancourt. The "Swinging" duet by these two artists evokes enthusiastic applause. Miss Neste Laurel acts charmingly as Denise; Miss Agnes Tandy plays vivaciously as Agatha (Mme. Coquenard); Mr. Tom Seymour as the bailiff and Mr. Scott Cullen as Seraphin are both highly amusing; Mr. Ellis Holland is diverting as Monsieur Coquenard; Miss Edith Devonshire gives a clever impersonation of the Countess Champ d'Azur; Mr. Jack Kelly and Mr. Basil Reynolds act well as Octave and Felicien; Mr. Ben Barnes as Max, the waiter, and Mr. James Davies as the orderly are well placed. Mr. Clement Locknane is an efficient musical director.

ROCHDALE.—THEATRE ROYAL, LTD.—Managing-Director, Mr. W. Robinson; General-Manager, Mr. Otto C. Culling; Resident-Manager, Mr. J. Hague. —The Geisha is fulfilling a welcome engagement here this week, and attracted a good house on Monday evening. Miss Lydia Bland delights the audience as O Mimosa San, her cultured vocalism being much admired; Miss Edith Adeson makes a piquant Mollie Seymour, and her rendition of the "Parrot" song is generously applauded; Miss Winifred Knightley as the stately Lady Constance Wynn acts with becoming grace and dignity; Miss Doris Langdon is effective as O Juliette Dismante; Mr. Wilfred Heath makes a capital Reginald Fairfax, acting and singing with telling effect; Miss Emily Lovel is a pretty Tom Stanley; Mr. J. H. Booth as the pompous Marquis Imari is heard to great advantage; and Mr. Edward Kipling is highly amusing as Wun Hi.

CIRCUS AND HIPPODROME.—Proprietors, Messrs. Smith and Co. — The Brothers Montes, in The Scotchman and the Driver, treat the audiences here to some clever, novel, and amusing acrobatic feats; the Lizette troupe of lady acrobats submit some smart balancing and tumbling; and other turns are given by Marie Yorke, burlesque artist; Dan Noble, comedian and vocalist; Salida and Vone, ragtime dancers; Elsie Rubina, on the wire; Chas. Cassell, comedian and vocalist; and Vernon's Bioscope.

EMPIRE.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. Thomas Hargreaves; Acting-Manager, Mr. Frank Hargreaves.—Mr. Will Godwin scores heavily in Repentance; the Three Cape Girls are popular with their smartly executed long-boot dancing; the Cellos, musical speciality; Bert Weston, comedian, &c.; Julian Mack; James Shingleton, singing collier; Dorothy Dundas, vocalist; and the Empire Bioscope also contribute to the programme.

ROTHERHAM.—THEATRE ROYAL, LTD.—Managing-Director, Mr. F. Macnaghten; Resident-Manager, Mr. Holbery Hardy.—Mr. Charles Macdona's company is here with The Gay Parisienne. Miss Evelyn Hughes as Mlle. Julie Bon-Bon gives a delightful rendition; Mr. Will Harman is funny as Ebenezer Honeycombe; Mr. Horace Lingard amusing as Major Forsdyke; Miss Holford Beringer capital as Mrs. Honeycombe; Miss Ethel Ivimey pleasing as Norah; and Miss Madge Soutter is responsible for much laughter as Ruth. Mr. Clifford Seyler is a typical Frenchman as M. Pompier; and Mr. Edgar makes a successful Tom Everleigh. Mr. J. FitzJames is deserving of mention as Hans; and Mr. Dutton Nicholls scores as Algernon P. Ducie. Specialities are introduced by Miss Hughes, Mr. Cecil Lawrence, and the Original Imperial Glee Singers.

RUGBY.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Managing-Director, Mr. A. F. Cross; Acting-Manager, Mr. Drew Mackintosh.—On Monday Mr. J. Bannister Howard's company commenced a three-nights' engagement with The Earl and the Girl. Mr. Frank Wilson as Dick Wargrave is excellent; Mr. J. Clegg is a humorous Jim Cheese; and Mr. D. Fitzgibbon a good Hon. Crewe Boodle. Miss Alice Nixon is a charming Elphin Haye; Miss Florence Brandon a piquant Daisy; Miss M. Maude a capital strong woman; and Mr. M. Cotter a duly aggressive A. Bunker Bliss. Mr. Godfrey as Downham, Mr. Burgess Barratt as Mr. Talk, Mr. Melville as Hazel, and Messrs. Franks and Scott as Rossiter and Charles are all good in their respective parts. Miss C. Dade as Eliza Shoddam causes much amusement. Florodora was given on Thursday.

SALFORD.—PRINCE OF WALES'S.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. E. B. Goulden; Acting-Manager, Mr. Harold Goulden.—Mr. Augustine Knight is presenting this week Mr. E. Hill-Mitchelson's drama, The Assassin. As Prince Demetri, Mr. Augustine Knight was excellent; Miss Ella Vane was seen to advantage as Countess Wanda; Mr. Edward E. Ashley as the young soldier Ivan Ipanoff, was successful; a fine old Duke Carl was that presented by Mr. Theo. Balfour. Many amusing situations were contributed to by Mr. Cecil H. Raymond as the French Baron Alphonse. Mr. T. Taylor as Peter, Miss M. E. Robertson as Katrina, and Mr. Jack Smith as Evangie. Miss H. Senior as Connie Jonathan did good work; as also did Miss F. Waring as Nita. Mr. Chauncy Morres as General Nicol and Mr. E. Jenner as Capt. O'Neil, gave able support.

REGENT THEATRE OF VARIETIES, LTD.—Managing-Director, Mr. W. Turner; Manager, Mr. Herbert Raymond; Secretary, Mr. J. C. Patterson.—W. J. Churchill, comedian, is a great favourite in this district; Marie San Toi and her company, in the musical scena, In a Japanese Tea Garden, give great pleasure with their dancing and singing; Hanvaar and Lee are amusing and clever in juggling and tumbling. The programme is nicely varied with other turns by Levarni, tight wire speciality; the Paolias, in classical physical culture pictures; Bert Brantford, comedian; Nelson's Newsboys, in solos, quartettes, and dances; the Jalvans, Oriental entertainers, including top-spinning; the Sisters Selhurst, vocal comediennes and dancers; and Hayman and Franklin, in a clever sketch, A Matrimonial Agency.

ROYAL HIPPODROME.—Manager, Mr. W. B. Broadhead; Acting-Manager, Mr. Percy B. Broadhead; Resident Acting-Manager, Mr. C. H. Wentworth.—Some good dancing and singing are given by Dinah Morris and her company, in The Lost Coon; Derbyshire Dan is a good mimic; the Kimberley Boys are comical; Nancy Renshaw is evidently a favourite with her laughing negro songs and bone solos; Mephisto and Marie, in acrobatic drawing-room act, are a clever pair. The other turns include Smith and Johnson, in their drawing-room act; York, Mac, and York, in The Widow's Worries; Dick Thomas, with Welsh songs; and T. E. Johnstone, actor-vocalist.

SALISBURY.—COUNTY HALL.—Proprietor, Mr. Arthur Whitehead; Business-Manager, Mr. T. Brimsmead.—Mr. George Dance's company has been paying a return visit in The Cingalee. Miss Edith Harmer gave a charming representation of Nanova; Miss Bertha Frey made a dignified Lady Patricia; Miss Minnie Muir a vivacious Peggy Sabine; Mr. Tom Payne, as Chambhuddy gave a most amusing representation; as Harry Vereker Mr. Charles Fagan sang and acted in manly style; Mr. Coone Edmonds as Sir Peter Loftus may be commended; and Mr. F. Sutton as Boobhamba and Mr. W. Austin as Bobby Warren did well.

SEACOMBE.—IRVING THEATRE.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. James Kiernan.—Mr. W. H. Hallatt and company fill the bill here this week with Two Little Sailor Boys. Commander Noel Tregarthen is boldly delineated by Mr. Jerrold Heather; Captain Tom Yorke receives excellent treatment at the hands of Mr. W. H. Hallatt; Mr. Tom E. Sinclair causes mirth by his lively performance as Ben Baxter; Miss Blanche Steele deserves praise for her Lola Grey; and the two little sailor boys are adequately presented by Miss May Day and Miss Ethel Frances Greene. Jack Jolly is ably portrayed by Mr. Oscar Power and Jim Royston by Mr. Ambrose Horton. The Admiral is suitably depicted by Mr. J. Court Harvard; Lucy being prettily played by Miss Alice Defoe. Miss Dorothy Lennox gives much satisfaction as Mary Primrose; and Mr. Ellerslie Pyne as Lieutenant Redstone.

SEAHAM HARBOUR.—NEW THEATRE ROYAL.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. A. C. Harrison.—Mr. and Mrs. Chalmers Mackey and company are paying a return visit here this week, and on Monday presented The Wearin' o' the Green to a big house. By his rollicking and humorous portrayal of Barney O'Hea Mr. Mackey has established himself a warm favourite with Seaham audiences; Shamus is well played by Mr. Charles Homer; Mr. David M'Farlane is a satisfactory Connor Martin; Michael Kenny is made sufficiently villainous by Mr. Haughton Macaulay; and as Gerald Courtenay Mr. St. John Stuart is distinctly good. Nora M'Grath is skilfully impersonated by Mrs. Mackey; Miss Adele Liddon acts with sincerity as Mrs. M'Dermott; Biddy is vivaciously played by Miss Nana Flensberg. The Colleen Bawn and Arrah-na-Pogue are included in the week's repertory.

SHEERNESS.—THE HIPPODROME.—General-Manager, Mr. F. Leighton.—The bill this week is headed by E. Montefiore and company, in the sketch, The Little Colonel; Cecil Lidden and Elsie Hayward, in a bright little comedy act, are received with favour; George Keith contributes a couple of songs in a pleasing manner; the Knick-Knacks, comedy duettiste, are responsible for smart patter and clever dancing; Charles Russell, in a song scena "It's a wonder what music will do," is exceedingly popular; May Bass, in coon song and dance, and Ethel Buchanan, soprano vocalist, are also accorded a hearty welcome.

SHEFFIELD. — LYCEUM THEATRE. — Managing-Director, Mr. John Hart; General-Manager and Treasurer, Mr. J. E. B. Beaumont. There was a large gathering of Dickens lovers at the Lyceum on Monday, and the fine performance of Oliver Twist by Mr. Beerbohm Tree's company was received with unqualified approbation. Mr. William Mackintosh realised the famous pictorial conceptions of Fagin, and his acting was replete with grotesque humour and weird intensity. Mr. Cecil A. Collins faithfully delineated the repulsive characteristics of Bill Sikes; Mr. Tom Macfarlane proved very successful in his impersonation of the amusing thief, the Artful Dodger; Mr. T. P. Haynes acted with his usual unctuous drollery and keen sense of humour as Mr. Grimwig; and other clever character sketches were Mr. Frederick Clive's Tom Chittling, Mr. Grose's Charlie Bates, Mr. Max Montsole's Barney, Mr. E. C. Buffem's Mr. Brownlow, Mr. C. H. Croker-King's Monks, and Mr. H. C. Jacobs's Mr. Bumble. Miss Marie Polini acted like a true artist, presenting with wonderful power and fidelity the conflicting passions and dog-like faithfulness of poor Nancy; Miss Maudie Ray was good as Oliver, and won the warm sympathy of the audience; and the parts of Mrs. Maylie and Rose were excellently played by Miss Elsie Carew and Miss Savile.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Managing-Director, Mr. John Hart; General-Manager and Treasurer, Mr. J. E. B. Beaumont.—Mr. Charles Harrington and his strong company are appearing to large and enthusiastic houses this week in the stirring play, The Sailors of the King. Mr. Harrington as Admiral Drake makes a dignified and gallant naval commander, and the support is good all round.

ALEXANDRA THEATRE. — Managing-Director, Mr. W. D. Forsdike; Acting-Manager, Mr. C. W. Ramsay.—The pathos and humour of Sims and Shirley's drama, Two Little Vagabonds, pleased a large audience here on Monday, when Hardie and Von Leer's company commenced a welcome visit. Miss May Hart as Dick and Miss Margaret Nybloc as Wally distinguished themselves by two highly meritorious impersonations. Mr. Henry Watson is good as Captain Darville, and the character of Mr. Thornton has a convincing and earnest representative in Mr. William Fazan; Mr. John F. Traynor's Bill Mullins is a clever and interesting study; Mr. Edward Cuthbert is successful as John Scarthe; the part of Marion Thornton is acted in sympathetic manner by Miss Laura Hansen; and Miss Mildred Hodson is an excellent Barbara Scarthe. Mr. Marston Moor and the other members of the company do loyal service.

EMPIRE PALACE.—Proprietors, The Moss' Empires Co., Ltd.; Acting-Manager, Mr. Alan D. Dunbar.—A capital array of talent is billed this week. Chung-Ling Soo, the marvellous illusionist, is again mystifying the Empire patrons by his extraordinary sleight of hand; the Kremos (four in number) are wonderfully expert and graceful tumblers and posturers; Mr. Pat Carey is a diverting comedian; and other popular favourites are Charles J. Johnson, in amusing coon songs; Miss Beatrice Willey, a sweet singer of old ballads; Mr. Ambrose Thorne, a refined and entertaining humorist; Mr. Spry and Miss Austin, in a new and laughable farcical entertainment; and "Lora." The programme concludes with "Scenes in Paris," by the American Bioscope. On Tuesday the 11th annual celebration of the opening of the Empire took place, and immense audiences were present at each "house." There was a special programme, including artists from other halls, in addition to local talent.

GRAND PALACE.—Proprietor, Mr. Frank Macnaghten; Manager, Mr. Richard Ralli.—The favourite character actor, Mr. Roy Cochrane, and his talented little company opened on Monday in a new and well-written sketch, and others who pleased a crowded house were Mr. George Hyam, vocal comedian; the Leotards, in a smart act; Mr. Will Johnson, patter vocalist and dancer; Miss Daisy Martell, serio-comic vocalist; Miss Nelly Rose, comedienne; Mons. Angelo, lightning picture painter; and Pallister, with his popular animated pictures.

SHREWSBURY. — THEATRE ROYAL. — Licensee and Business-Manager, Mr. W. C. Dornton.—The delightful and refreshingly original play, Sunday, is being performed here this week by Mr. Louis Calvert's talented company. Miss Emilie Polini, in the title-rôle, acts with rare grace; Mr. Leonard Pagden is a manly and capable Colonel Brinthorpe; Mr. G. Wallace Johnston merits praise as Arthur Brinthorpe; Mr. Ernest A. Douglas is well suited in the part of Tom Oxley; Mr. Wm. Lockhart is a picturesque Towzer; Mr. Cecil Yann a pathetic and interesting Lively; and Mr. Sidney Rennef as Davy acquits himself well. Mr. Arthur Vezin as Jacky plays the part with care. Miss M'Aimee shows refinement in the part of Mrs. Naresby; and Miss Muriel Pope makes a sweetly expressive Nun.

SMETHWICK.—THE ROYAL.—Proprietor, Mr. C Barnard; Manager, Mr. E. Hewitson.—The attraction here this week is the stirring military play, The Death or Glory Boys. Mr. E. Hill-Mitchelson, the actor-author, fills the important rôle of Captain Glyn Ferrers with credit. Jack Malden has a capital exponent in Mr. Bonhote Wilson; Mr. Jerrold Ord gives an admirable interpretation to the part of Colonel Fergeson; Mr. Lancelot Usher submits an entertaining portrayal of Lieut. Duff; Mr. Francis Serle plays a useful part as Carn; Mr. J. Russell Bogue creates much merriment as Nat Wilks, and is ably assisted by Miss Marion Armitage as Jane; Miss Violet Carlyle is well placed as Nena Fergeson; and Miss Amy Ellam meets with success as Edith Malden. Other parts were in the capable hands of Messrs. Harold Wagner and Edward Jeffs.

SOUTHAMPTON. — GRAND THEATRE. — Lessee and Manager, Mr. Fredk. Mouillot; Resident-Manager, Mr. Arthur Weston.—A great attraction is provided by Miss Emma Hutchison and Mr. Percy Hutchison's admirable company in The Freedom of Suzanne. Miss Mabel Love is delightfully fascinating as Suzanne, and Mr. Percy Hutchison is very natural and convincing as her husband, Charles Trevor, the efforts of each artist being highly appreciated. Efficient support is given by the other members of the company, and the engagement is a most successful one.

PALACE. — Proprietor and Director-General, Mr. Frank Macnaghten; Manager, Mr. William Trussell.—The Casey Circus, which supplies a street urchin's idea of producing a circus, is productive of loud laughter; Gwennie Hasto excels as a dancer, and Drew and Alders are a comical couple; Gus Hindell, comedian, the Eight Sunrays, Cabaret's dogs, Barney Vox, ventriloquist, and Horace Minto, all command hearty recognition.

HIPPODROME.—Joint Proprietors, Messrs. Fredk. Mouillot and W. de Frece; General-Manager, Mr. J. de Frece; Acting-Manager, Mr. H. P. Howell.—George Lashwood is starring here, and his chorus songs go admirably; Howard and Collinson, in The Porter and the Parcel, are very smart, and Addie Dorina is a clever protean artist; Frazer and Mac create great hilarity; Jeannie Hartley, dancer, Guy Rider, siffleur, and J. C. Crawley, mimic, also contribute to a capital programme.

PHILHARMONIC HALL.—The Eclipse Animatograph company are continuing their stay here, and doing record business. New films and fresh varieties are introduced, and the entertainment from start to finish is a most successful one.

SOUTHEND-ON-SEA. — EMPIRE THEATRE. — Empire Theatre Co., Ltd.; Managing-Director, Mr. Geo. Conquest; Acting-Manager, Mr. A. Lingham Power. — Messrs. Dottridge, Longden, and Elliott provide this week's attraction, their capital company giving a most creditable presentation of the drama entitled A City of Sin. Mr. Conrad Heywood in his rôle of Paul Torraine shows masterly skill; Mr. Edwin Maurice handles the character of Mortain convincingly, and has a really clever accomplice in Mr. Wilfred Grahame, whose impersonation of Zip Barzon is one to be remembered. Messrs. C. W. Spencer and Val W. Gully as Bibi Lebœuf and Titi Culotte are capital humorists; Alice Bertrand is entrusted to Miss Edith Wallis, who gives a striking portrayal; Miss Jenny Watson is successful as Ilma; and the Misses Polly Denville and Elvira Stuart are worthy exponents of Zazotte and Chouette.

THE KURSAAL.—Secretary and Manager, Mr. P. T. J. Bacon.—A varied programme is being given here this week. A pleasing feature is the capital sets of pictures so clearly shown on the bioscope; Mr. Fred Allen possesses a rich baritone voice, whose renderings merit recognition; Miss Carrie Wood is capital as a coon singer, and dances well; Miss Kate Oxford appeals to all with her excellent ballads; the comic element is well provided by Mr. Mark Dale; the fantasies by the Living Marionettes and Fantoccios maintain last week's success. Each performance concludes nightly with a play, and on Monday a most delightful portrayal of the nautical sketch entitled A Sailor's Love was enacted by Messrs. F. Mantell, Mark Dale, Sydney Dalton, and Miss Edith Maynard.

SOUTHPORT.—OPERA HOUSE, WINTER GARDENS.—Proprietors, The Southport Opera House and Winter Gardens Co., Ltd.; Secretary, Mr. K. Singleton.—Musical comedy again forms the attraction here this week, The Sweet Girl being presented on Monday to a large audience by Miss Claudia Lasell and company. Miss Lasell depicts the part of Lola in an artistic and vivacious manner; Miss Alice Lethbridge submits an excellent impersonation of Fritzi Weyringer, her dances being cleverly executed; Mr. Fred Eastman is highly diverting as the Count Leibenberg; Mr. Leonard Russell is a commendable representative of Florian; and Mr. Algernon Newark a capital impersonator of Anthony Strauss. Miss Grace Hunter is a graceful exponent of the Countess Lizzi; and Mr. George De Lara and Mr. Lister Morrah as Prosper Plewney and Dick Kenyon respectively acted creditably.

PIER PAVILION.—Proprietors, The Southport Pier Co., Ltd.; Manager, Mr. Charles P. Johnson.—The Stelnway Quartette, in their successful song scena, "Songs of the Sea," head the bill here this week. The items submitted include Allan Hanbury, the new comedian; Mlle. Zelda, expert performer on musical novelties; Johnny Fuller, the great little cat on the wire; Violet Ashcroft, vocal comedienne; Wal Owen, the comedy man; Pietro, contortionist; A. G. Spry, comedian; and the Bio-Tableaux.

ALBERT HALL, WINTER GARDENS.—Lessee, Mrs. Charles Parker; Acting-Manager, Mr. J. H. Mertz. —The premier attraction at this popular variety hall is supplied this week by the engagement of Mendel, the famous blind pianist, who supplies an interesting and clever performance. The programme also embraces Rosa Rosetti, the musical girl; Lauri Wylie and his mimicking mannikin; Fatmah Diard, American prima donna; the Sisters Terry, baby mimics; Story and Trigg, burlesque eccentrics; Beau and Belle, operatic duettists; Andy Fagan, character comedian; Rosie Lloyd, comedienne; and the Bioscope, with the latest films.

SOUTH SHIELDS.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessees and Managers, Messrs. John and Fred Coulson.—The boards here are occupied this week by Mr. John B. Shinton and Mr. Alexander Greenwood's company, in The Price of Her Soul. Mr. John B. Shinton as Lord Rolfe Mandeville displays considerable ability; another finished piece of acting is that of the heroine, Countess Inez Steinmetz, portrayed by Miss Ada M. Ryder; Miss Kate Walfred powerfully depicts the villainess, Olga; Major Skoboloff is ably accounted for by Mr. Annesley Hely; Miss G. Garside as Lady Jemima Fraser and Miss Ethel Rainforth as Polly Perkins cause much merriment; and a good comedy trio are Mr. Will Percy as Pat Murphy, Mr. Maurice Lesage as Alphonse Didot, and Mr. George Marriott, jun., as the Hon. Algy Fraser.

EMPIRE PALACE THEATRE.—Proprietor, Mr. Richard Thornton; General-Manager, Mr. Frank Allen; Resident-Manager, Mr. Geo. F. Thompson.—Mr. Syd May in his wonderful impersonations of Dan Leno, Harry Lauder, &c., received enthusiastic demonstrations of applause on Monday; Macdonald's Melody Makers, musicians and comedians, contribute a novel phantom scena, The Burglar's Dream; a clever swimming exhibition is given by the Sisters Finney; much merriment is caused by Walter Curtis; and other enjoyable items are Maxwell and Francis, comedy artists; Florence Watson, comedienne; E. J. Sheldon, the white coon; Fred Clements, comedian; and the bioscope.

TIVOLI.—Proprietors, Messrs. J. K. Hall and Jos. Sweeney; Business-Manager, Mr. Harry Burns.—In place of the Zaros, who were billed, a good comedy sketch is presented by Ward and Davis, who are much appreciated; Thompson-Wood's juveniles are well received in The Gipsy's Holiday; a capital duologue, A Game for Two, is given by the Custances; Dancing to Win is a novelty presented by Pete and Juno; Joe Humphreys, actor vocalist, gains the favour of the audience; the Alex Victor Duo contribute a good vocal turn; and the Tivoli Bioscope completes the bill.

STAFFORD. — LYCEUM THEATRE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. James Elphinstone.—The attraction here for the first three nights of the week was Mr. J. Bannister Howard's company in The Silver King. Mr. Horace E. Herbert gave a powerful and manly impersonation of Wilfred Denver; Miss B. Doyle acted with feeling the part of Nellie; Captain Skinner, in the able hands of Mr. Oswald Cray, was an ideal villain; Mr. Percy Foster submitted an admirable character-study of Jaikes; Mr. William Dempsey furnished a fine delineation of Elijah Coombe; and Mr. Ralph Leo as Henry Corker, and Mr. Seton Benard as Cripps rendered valuable assistance. Bluebell in Fairyland was billed on Thursday.

STALYBRIDGE.—GRAND THEATRE.—Lessee, Mr. Louis Ellison; General-Manager, Mr. Eugene E. Hardie; Acting-Manager, Mr. J. D. Oswald.—Messrs. G. M. Polini and L. Maitland's company is giving representations of The Coal King, which has a special interest in mining districts, the scene being laid in the town of Wigan. Much of the responsibility of the performance rests with Mr. Lauderdale Maitland, as the mine manager, and Miss Gertrude Valentine, as Grace Shirley, a schoolmistress. Effective impersonation is also given to prominent characters in the drama by Messrs. R. C. Smith, Escott Robson, Alfred Terris, Frank Dalton, John Coghlan, William Bennett, Harry Nelson, L. Fenwick, Louis Stanford, Fabian Lock, the Misses Evelyn North, Sinna St. Clair, Sybil Coghlan, &c.

ST. HELENS.—THEATRE ROYAL AND OPERA HOUSE, LTD.—Proprietors, the St. Helens Theatre, Ltd.; General Manager, Mr. McLeod Loader.—This week we are having a return visit from Messrs. E. H. Knight and G. Denham's company with The Grip of Iron. Mr. Fred Powell is as vigorous as ever in his thrilling impersonation of the Strangler, a part he has played over 5000 times; Miss Rosabel Dodd earns distinction as Cora; and Mr. George Denham makes an excellent Loustalot.

HIPPODROME. — Proprietors, Messrs. Barrasford, Will Sley, and F. Wilmot; Resident-Manager, Mr. A. V. Carnell.—At the head of the bill here is Mr. Claude Ginnett and company in the equestrian spectacle, Dick Turpin's Ride to York, which is meeting with great success. Mr. Arthur Aiston is a clever ventriloquist; McCann's dogs display cleverness and sagacity in their feats; Miss Lillian is exceedingly good as a cyclist; the Dagodets cause hilarity with their comedy; Mr. W. H. Downs, ballad vocalist, is a success; the Brothers Dean are expert dancers; and the Barrascope is both entertaining and instructive.

STOCKPORT.—THEATRE ROYAL AND OPERA HOUSE.—Sole Owner and Manager, Mr. Charles Revill; Acting-Manager, Mr. Wm. Revill.—Under Two Flags, capably presented by Miss Ida Molesworth and Mr. Mark Blow's company, has provided a popular attraction here. Mr. Wellesley Draper acts with ability as Bertie Cecil Royellieu; Mr. Charles Pawl gives a satisfactory impersonation of Lord Rockingham; as Colonel Chauteroy Mr. Arthur Elwyn makes an excellent villain; and Mr. Fred Hilliard is praiseworthy as the Arab chief Abe-el-Kan. Miss Mary Thorne acts with power and feeling as Cigarette; and Miss Mabel Ormonde fills the character of Princess Venetia Corona commendably.

EMPIRE.—Proprietors, the Stockport Empire Theatre Co., Ltd.; Acting-Manager, Mr. Wm. Black.—The chief attraction here is Mlle. Lumière's Electric Fairy Grotto and fire-dances, which have been much appreciated. Among others appearing are the clever Onatis troupe of Algerian jugglers; Warden-Reed and company, in their laughable sketch, Married or Photographed; the Falcons, in a smart and amusing acrobatic act; Geo. Bendon styled the "white coon"; Martinengo, a pleasing baritone and 'cellist; Miss Omega, who displays talent on the slack wire; the Sisters Bartholomew, vivacious duettiste and dancers; and Percy Curry, comedian.

STOKE.—HIPPODROME.—Proprietor, Mr. T. Allan Edwardes; Manager, Mr. H. Miller.—Mr. Harry Pleon and company head the bill this week in a capital sketch, viz., P.C. Pudden; the Kurios, in their pantomimical business are diverting; the Three De Veres present a clever acrobatic performance; H. O. Wills, as usual, scores a huge success; Ben Harris's Nippers provide a bustling interlude; Ariel and Astarte, in a bar and trapeze act, are exceptionally good; Cyril Carle scores a success in the late Chas. Godfrey's song, "Dreams"; Grace Langley dances cleverly; and the pictures are capital.

STOURBRIDGE. — ALHAMBRA THEATRE.—Manageress, Miss Maude Lynton.—Montague Beaudyn and Sydney Crowe's company, with the drama, The Way of the World, is here. Miss Sydney Crowe heads the company, and her powerful impersonation is most convincing; Miss Laurie Deering is a pleasing Marion Fanshaw; Miss Violette Vivienne a characteristic Polly Bell. Mr. Herbert Skardon plays with good effect the part of Cecil Montague; Mr. Victor Gordon is well suited as Captain Slade; and Mr. Clarence Temple gives a praiseworthy exposition of Matthew Malyon.

SUNDERLAND.—AVENUE THEATRE. — Director and Manager, Mr. Chas. E. Machin.—Mr. George Dance's company is appearing here in the comic opera, The Little Michus. Mr. Foster Courtenay is highly amusing as General des Ifs; Mr. Wm. Everard is successful as Gaston Rigaud; Mr. Leon Simkins ably impersonates the part of Pierre Michu; Miss Alice Coverick and Miss Ethel Bryan charmingly portray the two "Little Michus"; Miss Florence Hylton enhances her reputation as Madame Michu; Mlle. Marjorie dances herself into the good graces of her audiences as Mlle. St. Cyr.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Managing-Director, Mr. C. E. Machin; Acting-Manager, Mr. Jos. Hemingway.—A strong attraction is provided by Mr. Douglas Bruce's company in the interesting and stirring drama, The Girl Who Lost Her Character. Mr. Edwin J Collins submits an able rendition of the Rev. Robert Everton; Mr. C. W. Standing is quite satisfactory in the dual rôle of Jack England and Private Johnson; Mr. Frank Adair creditably sustains the part of Capt. Geoffrey Caversham; Miss Ethel Bracewell sweetly acts the rôle of the heroine Rose Seymour; in the name-part of Molly Vernon, Miss Marion Turner is fully equal to the demands made upon her histrionic abilities; Miss P. Oakley is amusing as the servant Lucy Vere.

PALACE OF VARIETIES.—Lessees and Managers, Messrs. Rosen and Bliss; Acting-Managers, Messrs. Browne and S. B. Stringer.—The bill is headed by the popular comedian, Mark Sheridan, who secures the usual flattering reception; Lieut. Travis provides an interesting turn; Lillie Langtry, comedienne; Fred Moule and E. D. Nicholls' company, who submit a laughable sketch, entitled The Battle of the Belles; Raglus, tennis ball manipulator; Steely and Dowton, burlesque interluders; Little Rose Pink, vocalist and dancer; Diamond and Beatrice, saxophonists; and Vernon's pictures complete the bill

SUTTON-IN-ASHFIELD.—KING'S THEATRE.—Proprietor, Mr. Edward Gray.—Mysteries of the Thames, a melodrama from the pen of Mr. Brook Warren, is here this week, and the author's company did full justice to the piece, which was well received on Monday. Mr. Andrew Money as Dick Brandon gives a capable piece of acting; Mr. Brook Warren is good as Captain Denbigh, otherwise the "Hawk"; Mr. Sydney Vereker as Bill Bosco, the coster; and Miss Stephanie Baring, in the dual rôles of Helen Price, alias Flash Nell, and Grace Rochdale, also do good work.

SWINDON.—QUEEN'S THEATRE.—Proprietor and Responsible Manager, Mr. Alfred Manners.—On Monday San Toy, despite the heavy downpour of rain, attracted a full house. This ever-popular piece is capitally performed by Mr. Robert Macdonald's company, under the business direction of Mr. Fuller Allen. A very pleasing San Toy is found in Miss Mora Hersee; and Miss Florence Cameron as Yung Shi is delightful. Miss Althea Hyde does extremely well as Poppy; and Miss Ethel Twitchen as Rose Tucker is deservedly applauded for her pretty dance in Act 2. Mr. Victor C. Huntley is particularly successful as Bobbie Preston; Mr. Harry Turner is seen to advantage as Sir Bingo; and Mr. Grahame Herington is capital as Yen How. A prominent feature of the piece is undoubtedly Mr. Bert Barton's versatility as Li, and Miss Mabel Carr's excellence as Dudley, their humorous work keeping the audience in roars of hearty laughter.

TON-Y-PANDY. — THEATRE ROYAL. — Lessees, Messrs. Carlton and Duckworth; General-Manager, Mr. Sam Duckworth; Acting-Manager, Mr. Ridgewood Barrie.—This week the boards are occupied by Mr. Chas. Harrington's combination in Uncle Tom's Cabin. Mr. J Carr impersonates Uncle Tom with ability; Mr. J. H. Renny scores a success as Phineas Fletcher; Mr. J Henry Rogers is a callous Legree; as Mr. St. Clair Mr. Stanley Howard acts powerfully; Miss Hettie Johnson as Eliza Harris is effective; Miss Ethel Mildmay acts with expression as Cassy; and Little Minnie's Eva is convincing. Miss Annie Watson makes a sprightly Topsy.

TUNBRIDGE WELLS.—THE OPERA HOUSE.—Lessee, Mr. Charles Carey; Manager, Mr. L. J. Gunnell.—Mr. Cyril Keightley's repertoire company is occupying the boards this week in Old English comedy, and on the occasion of our visit She Stoops to Conquer was successfully presented. Mr. Keightley himself gave a capital study of Young Marlow; while Miss Haidee Gunn made a charming Kate Hardcastle; and Mr. Iden Payne was humorous as Tony Lumpkin. Mr. Chas. Medwin was excellent as Sir Charles Marlow; and Mr. Henry Crocker was good as Squire Hardcastle; while Miss Alice Arden as Mrs. Hardcastle and Miss Ethel Dane as Miss Neville contributed their share to the success of the production. A word of cordial praise is also due to Mr. Baliol Holloway as Hastings; Mr. Sidney Burton as Stingo; Mr. B. A. Pittar as Diggary; and Mr. Basil Hearn as Tom Twist.

WAKEFIELD.—ROYAL OPERA HOUSE.—Proprietors, Sherwood and Co.—Miss Mary Austin and E. Vivian Edmonds' company occupies the stage this week in The Golden Ladder. Miss Mary Austin fills the rôle of Lillian Grant with taste and ability; Mr. W. Clayton is good as the Rev. Frank Thornhill; Mr. E. Vivian Edmonds created a good impression as Peranza; Mr. J. M. Taylor is admirable as Michael Severn; humour is well provided by Mr. I. Rowlands as Sam Peckaby; Miss Winifred Acton gives a pleasing impersonation of Victoria Alexandra; and Miss Nellie Graham is successful as Mrs. Peckaby. The parts of Jim Dixon and Mrs. Dixon are well represented by Mr. Fred Acton and Miss Teresa Haynes.

HIPPODROME.—Lessee, Mr. Alfred Selwyn; Manager, Mr. Henry Lucas.—Gustave Fasola, Indian fakir, introduces some wonderfully clever illusions; Sabino gives a smart musical turn; Poole and Poole, comedy duettists and dancers, win applause; and Gus Granville, comedian, Phineas and Aida, equilibrists, Noel, versatile artist, and Miss Marie Leonard, comedienne, ably contribute WALSALL.—HER MAJESTY'S THEATRE OF VARIETIES, LTD.—General-Manager and Secretary, Mr. W. H. Westwood.—An attractive programme is being presented here this week. Topping the bill are the Barowsky Trio, in an incident of skill, "In the Woods"; May Maskell is an exceedingly smart comedienne and dancer; the Four Jumels present a packet of musical surprises; Madge Morley and company, in the comedy episode, After the Races, are much appreciated; Harry Coates, the singing navvy, is well received; Harry Marte, comedian, is highly successful; and Fred Russell, ventriloquist, and his companion, "Coster Joe," add greatly to the success of the programme. The American Bioscope displays some capital features.

GRAND THEATRE, LTD. — General-Manager and Secretary, Mr. W. H. Westwood.—Messrs. Chas. H. Phelps and Harry Tilbury's company is appearing here this week with The Blind Foundling. Mr. Chas. H. Phelps as Gerald Dalton is seen to advantage; Mr. Alfred G. Fry is well placed as Mark Medman; Mr. Bernard Webb is a capital Jasper Waterford; Mr. Harry Tilbury is amusing as Dick Dobbins, his songs being much appreciated; Miss Belle Tilbury is good in the part of Isabel; as Jaikes Momono, a gipsy, Miss Arline T. George is very smart; and Miss Mabel Hall as Fairy, displays great ability.

WARRINGTON.—ROYAL COURT.—Proprietors, Messrs. W. Johnson and J. Potter; General-Manager, Mr. Joseph Potter; Acting-Manager, Mr. Fred J. Reece.—The habitués of this house are again well catered for this week, Mr. E. Lockwood's company opening to a large house on Monday evening with the musical comedy, Sergeant Brue. Mr. J. Harold Carson, as Sergeant Brue, portrays excellently the good-tempered policeman; and Mr. Maitland Dicker, as Crookie Scrubbs, is a finished comedian; Mr. Robert Selby

WISBECH.—Selwyn Theatre.—Proprietor, Mr. Charles Gates.—Mr. George Dance's company appeared here on Monday and Tuesday in The Orchard. Miss Poppy Wilkinson and Miss Trilby Collier were seen to advantage as Lady Violet Anstruther and Josephine Zaccary, the former's song, "Little Mary," being especially well received. Miss Hilda Vining was good as Caroline Vokins, and the Misses Sissie Brand and Clara Beck did well as Zelie Rumbert and Thisbe respectively. The parts of Guy Scrymgeour, Dr. Faussett, and Aubrey Chesterton were well taken by Messrs. Clifford Bing, Frank Manger, and Charles Seymour. A special word of praise is due to Mr. Harry Walsh as Meakin.

WOLVERHAMPTON. — Grand Theatre. — Lessees and Managers, Mr. E. H. Bull and Mr. Milton Bode; Acting-Manager, Mr. Percy Percival.—There has been an agreeable run of Mr. George Dance's companies here, and this week The Duchess of Danzic is being received with much approval. The part of Sans Gene is taken by Miss May Glenn, whose singing is excellent, and her acting is good; Miss Maggie White pleasingly portrays Renee de Sainte Mezard; and Miss Buena Bent is an attractive Lisette; the character of Napoleon is admirably depicted by Mr. Gilbert York; Mr. J. T. Bolesworth is a successful Marechal Lefebvre; Mr. Ernest Torrance does well as Vicomte de Bethune; and Mr. Steve Fitzgerald is a capital Papillon. Other parts are ably filled by Miss Ella Derwent, Miss Dulcie Garland, Miss Madge Elswick, and Mr. Ralph Forster. The chorus and staging were effective.

Empire Palace.—Managing-Director, Mr. Chas. Barnard; General-Manager, Mr. W. H. Lennon.—This week's bill includes the Four Avocas, who give an original vocal entertainment; and Rose Harvey, who is heard to advantage in "The Boys' Brigade"; Grant and Grant, American octoroons, Burg, Haug, and Wise, in a comedy sketch; Francis and Alfred, jugglers, Carl Howard, conjurer, Charles Austin, eccentric comedian, and Goodfellow and Gregson also appear.

Hippodrome.—The principal attraction here is Harry Lauder, Scotch comedian, who is very popular. The programme also includes Frank Weston; Carina Sisters, instrumentalists; the Olgars, dancers; Hector and Paulos, acrobats) Adey Spencer; Fred Lincoln, comedian; and Kisbey, the comical call boy.

WORCESTER.—Theatre Royal.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Arthur Carlton; Acting-Manager, Mr. F. le Wards. — Miss Emma Hutchison and Mr. Percy Hutchison are this week introducing a very funny farce to Worcester audiences, under the title of Public Opinion. Miss Nancy Beresford is an admirable exponent of the part of Pansy Bligh, a variety artist; as Lady Diana, Miss Emma Hutchison adds considerably to her reputation; and Mr. Percy Marshall's impersonation of the ubiquitous Horace Wigsby is irresistibly comical. The cast is an exceptionally strong one, and leading parts are admirably filled by Messrs. Chas. Harley, Fred Lewis, D. Hamilton, D. Greet, Ashton Pearse, and C. J. Barber, and Miss Connie Dene. Public Opinion is preceded by a curtain-raiser, entitled The Stratagem, of much more than average merit, in which Messrs. Douglas Hamilton and Ashton Pearse, and Miss Nancy Beresford, are seen to advantage.

WORKINGTON. — Opera House. — Lessee and Manager, Mr. Stanley Rogers; Acting-Manager, Mr. Falconer Jackes; Musical-Director, Mr. John Millar.—On Monday night Mr. H. F. Housden's company presented A Woman's Past, which was well received by a large audience. Miss Dorothy Wallace as Bessie, the heroine, was very successful; whilst Miss Irene Carrington played with appropriate dignity as Clara Darel. The rôle of David Heath was ably sustained by Mr. J. Myron Howard; Mr. David Phillips was responsible for the humorous element as Frank Dellanney; and Mr. H. F. Housden was good as Clement Harper.

WORTHING. — Theatre Royal. — Manager, Herr C. Adolf Siebold.—Mr. Howard Cochran and company presented The Marriage of Kitty on Monday. Mr. Howard Cochran cleverly enacts the part of Sir Reginald Belsize; Mr. Cecil Wilford is excellent as John Travers; Mr. Colet Dare does well as Hampton; Mr. Langford Reed amusingly portrays a man-servant as Norbury; and is ably assisted by Miss Helen Kay-Robertson as Rosaline; Miss Betty Castle is everything to be desired as Mme. de Semiano; and Miss Aida Jenoure presents a fine character-study of Kitty. His Lordship Intrudes was the curtain-raiser. On Thursday Mr. Norman V. Norman presented The Adventures of Lady Ursula.

WREXHAM. — Empire Music Hall. — Proprietor, Mr. J. J. Scott; Manager, Mr. Herbert Nicholls.—This week a good all-round company has attracted good houses here. The Dunlops, in their knockabout bicycle and skating act, are clever; Cliffe and Keans, smart dancers, provide a pleasing turn; the Prinellas, in A Country Courtship, are amusing; Lillian Sivado, the "Aerial Queen," is particularly smart; Joe Gill sings acceptably; and the pictures are, as usual, entertaining.

YORK.—Theatre Royal.—Lessees, Messrs. Waddington; Acting-Manager, Mr. H. J. Dacre.—The Geisha and A Greek Slave have been given during the week here with enormous success. In the former piece Miss Louie Collier was delightful as O Mimosa San; very satisfactory, too, was Miss Florrie Saunders as Molly Seymour; Miss Aubrey Ashton was particularly well suited to the rôle of Lady Constance Wynn; and Miss Violet Kenyon was picturesque as the French girl; Mr. Edward Carlton is entitled to special praise for his impersonation of Wun Hi; Mr. Cyril Thompson as Reginald Fairfax used his fine voice with great effect; and as Imari Mr. Lionel Braham was particularly amusing.

Empire.—Managing-Director, Mr. Wm. Peacock; Acting-Manager, Mr. Sidney Brooke.—This week we have here Lockhart's Elephants, a "big" attraction; Rose and Grayson never fail to amuse in their clever scena; Gracie Grahame sings catchy songs in a chic manner; Miss Ada Gatley is well received; Harry Rogerson's original sketch is uproariously funny; Dion Wade is a successful mimic; and Wee Jessie is a clever little dancer. Master May, boy vocalist, and the Bioscope complete a strong bill.

The King was present at the performance of The Merveilleuses at Daly's on Tuesday. The following evening his Majesty, accompanied by her Royal Highness Princess Victoria, similarly honoured the representation of Peter's Mother at Wyndham's.

The Guildford Dramatic Society produced Lady Dedlock's Secret, by J. Palgrave Simpson, in an admirable manner on the 23rd and 24th ult., at the County and Borough Halls. The Society were professionally assisted by Miss Maude Elliston, of whose ability in the title-rôle it is difficult to speak too highly. Her interpretation was the life and soul of the piece, and was in every way successful. Mr. Walter Harris, as Sir Leicester Dedlock, sustained the part with considerable skill; Mr. George S. Tanner, as Tulkinghorn, gave a very realistic personation; Mr. T. Harker acted admirably in the character of Guppy; Mr. Alf Lamacraft as Jo well merited the frequent applause with which he was rewarded; Mr. C. J. Careless gave a droll impersonation of Krook; Mr. Charles Shalders did very well as Buckett; Mr. George B. Goodchild as Jarndyce gave a quiet and essentially suitable rendering of the part; and the minor parts of Higginson and Scroggs were creditably filled by Mr. F. Lymposs and Mr. Ewart Allen. Miss Daisy Deane, who appeared for the first time, gave a simple and natural interpretation of the difficult part of Esther Summerson. The scenery, most of which was specially painted, was the work of the hon. secretary, Mr. G. S. Tanner.

Oscar Wilde's play, Ein Idealer Gatte, recently reached its 100th performance at the Kleines Theatre, Berlin, and is still maintaining a prominent place in the bill. Triplepatte, MM. Bernard and Godfernaux's amusing farce, has passed its twenty-fifth consecutive performance at the Residenz, and Sherlock Holmes is nearing its 100th anniversary at the Berliner. Berlin managers are gradually following London's lead in a one-piece repertory, although this is against the customary German taste. The Royal Schauspielhaus still continues to change its programme nightly, according to tradition.

STAGE STAFF GOSSIP.

The London branch of the Amalgamated Musicians' Union will open their club in Great Newport-street on Sunday evening, Nov. 11, with a dinner, at which several musical-directors connected with West-End theatres and orchestras, Members of Parliament and of the London County Council will be present, as well as representatives of kindred societies connected with the theatrical and music-hall professions. The tickets are limited, and have, practically, already been allotted.

Mr. A. E. Wood, the master carpenter with Mr. H. B. Irving's company in America, who had arranged to return to London at the end of the New York season, has been prevailed upon to continue to the end of the tour in January next. Mr. Wood is the secretary of the General Operatives' Sick and Benevolent Fund, and was desirous of returning earlier to attend to the affairs of that society and other business. Mr. Wood received a cordial welcome from the members of the New York Stage Employees Organisation.

Mr. T. Sheridan, electrician of the Waldorf Theatre, whose serious illness was recently referred to in this column, has been examined by the physician of the Royal National Hospital for Consumption and found to be unsuitable for that hospital. Mr. Sheridan's condition is more serious than was assumed to be the case, and efforts are being made to obtain his admission to some other hospital or sanatorium.

The meeting of members of the Theatrical Carpenters' Branch N.A.T.E., held on Sunday evening in the Salisbury Hotel, St. Martin's-lane, was well attended. The secretary gave a report of the concert arrangements, and several new members were elected.

The burglars who are busy just now in the Covent Garden district paid a visit to 29, Wellington-street, Strand, on Monday evening. The shop and offices in the building were ransacked. The office of the National Association Theatrical Employees seems to have had special attention, the safe being carried out of the front office on to the back landing of the stairway, but it successfully resisted attempts to open it. Desks and cupboards were forced, but with the exception of a few shillings and some silver and gift badges the men, who were evidently "amateur cracksmen," failed to get any booty worth taking away. Mr. C. Aubrey Smith's Relay Race Silver Challenge Cup was fortunately overlooked, and has now been removed to a safer place. Should members of the society find strangers attempting to dispose of the society's badges they are requested to notify the secretary.

A meeting of daymen connected with the various stage departments of the West-End theatres and music halls was held on Sunday evening at the Nag's Head, Hotel, Covent Garden, Mr. Ed. Keating, of the Court Theatre, presiding. The meeting had been called to consider a proposal to form a branch of the National Society, consisting exclusively of members of the day staff. Those present favoured the proposal, and resolved themselves into an organising committee to arrange a further meeting on Sunday evening, Nov. 11.

The secretary of the National Association of Theatrical Employees has received a letter from the general secretary of the American Alliance of Stage Employees containing the following particulars of assistance rendered by the American society to an unfortunate English fellow-craftsman. Mr. Lee M. Hart writes:—

"I desire to inform you that my Chicago Union and myself sent one Mr. Green, of Birmingham, England, who came over on Sir Henry Irving's last tour, was taken sick, had some money, and sent for his family, wife, son, and two daughters—had a stroke of hard luck, daughter and himself taken down with tuberculosis, and they were actually poverty-stricken when their case was called to my attention. I tried to interest the British Consul, but he ignored them and stood on his dignity. I had Green come to our meeting, and the boys gave him 14 dollars to go at once and buy food for the family, and also requested him to report to my office, which he did, and in two weeks' time I secured a rate for the five from Chicago to Liverpool, England, for 143 dollars, and I also put 30 dollars in cash in his pocket. He arrived safe in England and sent us a letter of thanks. He is known at the Prince of Wales's Theatre in Birmingham, and had a card of your National Union of that branch, and that was the only reason we went as far as we did. I personally gave 30 dollars and our Union 50 dollars; the rest our boys dug up out of their spending money. And so we will meet all brothers of the one great principle of unionism."

This splendid act of generosity on the part of the American Alliance is only one of many experienced by unfortunate theatrical employees from this country, but they do not all take the lesson to heart.

The tickets for the annual concert in aid of the Benevolent Funds of the Stage Employees Society are now available. The Duchess of Leeds, Sir Charles V. Stanford, Mr. and Mrs. Kendal (who have sent £1 1s. for tickets), the Alhambra Company, Ltd. (who have sent a donation of £2 2s.), and Miss Agnes Nicholls (£1 1s.) have added their names to the list of patrons, of which particulars were given in this column last week. Mme. Alice Esty, Mr. Charles Knowles, and Mr. Herbert Grover have promised to sing.

A telegram from New York states that the Central Federated Theatrical Union has called out the stage hands, musicians, billposters, engineers, firemen, and electricians of the Metropolitan Opera House, in order to compel Mr. Conried to employ "union" choristers.

COVENT GARDEN BALL.

The third fortnightly Fancy Dress Ball of the present season took place at Covent Garden Theatre on the night of the 26th ult. Sixteen prizes were given, that for the "best costume" being a Stanhope canteen fitted with a complete service of electro-plate and cutlery, while that for the "most original costume" was a sable muff. Among the dresses, one of the most striking was called "Heavenly and Ethereal." It included a blue sequin gown, with stars representing the signs of the Zodiac and some of the better known constellations, while the panels of the skirt contained painted portraits of eminent actors and singers. The cloak, elaborate and dark blue, represented the Milky Way, and the headdress suggested the earth, with the other planets, all illuminated. "En bonne Intelligence" was the name of another remarkable illuminated costume, in which the Queens of Spain and Norway, the Lord Mayor, and many other subjects of international interest were cleverly portrayed. Mr. W. Clarkson was successful in gaining first prize (gentleman's) for a costume entitled "Suffragettes"; fourth prize (lady's) for "Esprit de corps"; sixth prize (lady's) for "Our Neighbours in Space"; seventh prize for "Never too late to mend"; and others for "Orchid," "Emblems of Good Luck," "Charles II." &c.

A painful impression was created at the local theatre at Romford on Tuesday, when David H. Anderson, an actor, aged thirty-six, suddenly fell dead in the dressing-room. He had suffered from a weak heart for some time past, and the fatal seizure occurred while he was awaiting his call.

MR. H. A. JONES IN AMERICA.

Mr. Henry Arthur Jones, in the lecture which he delivered at Harvard University on Wednesday afternoon on "The Corner Stones of Modern Drama," attributed the "lagging behind-hand" of the Anglo-American race in drama to "the insane rage of Puritanism that would see nothing in the theatre but a horrible, unholy thing." He also enumerated the following "secondary and resultant causes of degradation."

(1) The divorce of the English drama from English literature, of which it is indeed the highest and most difficult form, and of which it should be chief ornament. Accompanying this divorce of literature and the drama is the contempt of English men of letters and literary critics for the theatre; their utter ignorance of the difficulties of the dramatist; their refusal to recognise the modern drama as literature, which refusal again reacts upon the dramatist and tends to lower the quality of his work, inasmuch as he is left without encouragement and without any appeal to high standards of literature and good taste.

(2) The general absence from the English theatre and from modern English plays of any sane, consistent, or intelligible ideas about morality; so that, while the inanities and indecencies of musical comedy are sniggered at and applauded, the deepest permanent passions of men and women are tabooed, and the serious dramatist is bidden to keep his characters well within the compass of that system of morality which is practised amongst wax dolls.

(3) The divorce of the English drama from its sister arts; its deposition from any assured place in the intellectual and artistic life of the nation.

(4) The absorption of the English drama into popular amusement; the absence of any high standard whereby to judge acting or plays; the absence of all great traditions; the absence of all pride in the drama as a fine, and humane, and dignified art.

(5) The want of a training school for actors—the want of any means for giving promising novices a constant practice in varied rôles, that they may gradually acquire a sure grip of their art, and make the best of their natural gifts; and that the author may have a sufficient supply of competent actors to interpret his characters in such a way that his play may be seen to good advantage.

(6) The elevation of incompetent actors and actresses into false positions as stars, whereby, in the dearth of any general level of experienced and competent all-round acting, the possessor of a pretty face or a fine physique is able to dominate the situation, and to rule what plays shall be produced, and how they shall be cast and mounted; the general lack of all interest in the play, or in the author's study of life and character, apart from their being the vehicle for some star actor to put or keep himself in a leading position, with his actor brothers and sisters as his satellites.

(7) A widely-spread dependence upon translations and adaptations of foreign plays, inasmuch as they can be bought at a cheap rate, and, in the absence of any general care or knowledge as to what a national drama should be, are just likely to provide the actor with a personal and pecuniary success, while they also largely set him free from all obligations to that objectionable and interfering person, the author.

Mr. Jones, in the course of his lecture, divided the Anglo-American public into: the amusement-seeking class; the moderate, reasonable, indifferent class; and the hostile, religious class. He made an eloquent appeal to the Puritans, in which he said:—"This, then, is the use of the theatre, that men may learn the great rules of life and conduct in the guise of a play; learn them, not formally, didactically, as they learn in school and in church, but pleasantly, insensibly, spontaneously, and oftentimes, believe me, with a more assured and lasting result in manners and conduct. Is not that a wise form of amusement? Ought not every good citizen to foster and encourage it? Then why, Brother Puritans, why, Brother Pharisees, are you found in such bitter opposition to it? If you are the veritable salt of the earth, as by your demeanour we seem to sniff, and as by this appeal we are willing to allow—if you are the veritable salt of the earth, where can you exhale your savour to better effect than in the theatres of your native land? Come amongst us, and brace and strengthen us; incidentally we may sweeten and humanise you, and give you a larger outlook upon life."

The lecturer opined that the following were "The Corner Stones" of any worthy national drama:—

(1) The recognition of the drama as the highest and most difficult form of literature; the establishment of definite and continuous relations between the drama and literature.

(2) The acknowledged right of the dramatist to deal with the serious problems of life, with the passions of men and women in the spirit of the broad, wise, sane, searching morality of the Bible and Shakespeare; his release from the hypocritical fiction that his fellow-creatures are large wax dolls, stuffed with the sawdust of sentimentality and impossible self-sacrifice. To sum up, the establishment of definite and continuous relations between the drama and morality.

(3) The severance of the drama from popular entertainment; the recognition of it as a fine art which, though its lower ranges must always compound with mere popular entertainment, and be confused with it, is yet essentially something different from popular entertainment, transcends it, and, in its higher ranges, is in marked and eternal antagonism to popular entertainment. To sum up, the establishment of definite and continuous relations between the drama and her sister arts.

(4) The establishment of those relations between actor and author which shall best aid the development of the drama; the recognition by the public that there is an art of the drama as well as an art of acting; the assignment of their due place and functions and opportunities to each; the breaking down, so far as may be possible, of the present deadening system of long runs; the provision of training schools for actors, so that they may get constant practice and experience in various rôles, so that the auxiliary arts of the drama and the theatre may keep pace and tune with each other, so that the art of acting may not languish for lack of new plays, and that the art of the drama may not languish from the lack of competent and serious actors. To sum up, the establishment of rigidly definite relations and well-marked boundaries between the art of the drama and the art of acting, to the benefit and advancement of both actor and author.

Mr. Jones, in an eloquent peroration, thus advised his audience: "Especially foster and honour this supreme art of Shakespeare's, so much neglected and misunderstood in both countries; endow it in all your cities; build handsome, spacious theatres; train your actors; reward your dramatists sparingly with fees, but lavishly with laurels; bid them dare to paint American life sanely, truthfully, searchingly for you. Dare to see your life thus painted. Dare to let your drama ridicule and reprove your follies and vices and deformities. Dare to let it mock and whip as well as amuse you. Dare to let it be a faithful mirror. Make it one of your chief counsellors. Set it on the summit of your national esteem, for it will draw upwards all your national life and character; upwards to higher and more worthy levels, to starry heights of wisdom and beauty and resolve and aspiration."

Mr. Uriah Mervyn, the well-known advance representative, is, we regret to have to state, a patient at the West Ham Hospital, Westminster Ward, where he is slowly recovering from a serious operation. He would be glad to see or hear from any of his old friends.

GUILDHALL SCHOOL OF MUSIC.

On Saturday afternoon last, Oct. 27, in the Guildhall, the Lady Mayoress presented the medals, prizes, and certificates to the successful students. Shortly after the Lord Mayor and Lady Mayoress arrived, the Lord Mayor, owing to slight indisposition, had to withdraw, but the programme was carried out, the Lady Mayoress kindly remaining to present the prizes. The proceedings began with a short concert, the first item being a chorus, "Domini Dirige Nos," by Dr. Cummings, admirably sung by the Guildhall Choir. A clever Russian student, Mr. Anton Tschaikov, gave Vieuxtemps' violin solo, "Ballade and Polonaise," with good effect, the dashing Polonaise being particularly well played. In the scena, "O thou to whom this heart" (Lurline), Wallace, better known perhaps in the past as "Great Spirit hear my prayer," Miss Maud Willby won great applause; and the same success was attained by Miss Ethelmay Barwell-Holbrook for her intelligent singing of Weber's scena, "Softly sighs" (from Der Freischütz). A very young and clever violinist, Miss Audrey Richardson was heard in Saint-Saëns' "Introduction and Rondo Capriccioso," her efforts being received with warm applause by the large audience. Mr. D'Arcy Woollven displayed a capital bass voice in Gounod's scena, "She alone charmeth my sadness" (Irene); and Miss Ethel Wynne was entirely successful in her solo pianoforte, "Humoresque," Tschaikowsky, and "Study in D flat" by Liszt. The last item on the programme was Stanford's song "There's a bower of roses" from The Veiled Prophet, sung by Miss Beatrice Jefferys, the happy possessor of a beautiful and well-produced soprano voice. Miss Jenny Hyman presided at the pianoforte and Mr. David Beardwell at the harmonium. After the concert the Principal, Dr. Cummings, gave a short address, saying—"The Corporation of the City of London may regard with pride the Guildhall School of Music, established by them twenty-seven years ago. The result of the excellent teaching given within its walls is emphasised in the work now carried on by former students, amongst whom rank head music masters of Public Schools, conductors of theatre orchestras, popular composers, singers and intrumentalists, resident not only in Great Britain but in foreign countries. "The fame of the school has become widespread, and it is interesting to note that amongst those who to-day will receive distinctions at the hands of the Lady Mayoress are several students from distant lands; for example, Miss Doris Cloud comes from Australia, Mr. Anton Tschaikov from Russia, Miss Audrey Richardson from New Zealand, and Miss Vera Wise from South Africa. The zeal of our professors and the earnest work of our pupils compel us to maintain a high standard in our examinations, and it is recognised that the facilities afforded in the Guildhall School enable a student to acquire a complete and thorough education in all branches of musical knowledge. Thanks to the efforts of the Music Committee, we shall shortly be in possession of a magnificent organ, the only thing we needed to render our practical work complete. I have to tender grateful acknowledgements to the Lord Mayor for the encouragement he has given to the school, by engaging our students, vocal and instrumental, to perform at the Mansion House on several occasions. This matter is of great importance," said Dr. Cummings, "as a young lady who lately appeared there so impressed a gentleman present that he obtained an important engagement for the lady at a Rotterdam concert. This is the eleventh annual report I had had the honour to make in this hall, and I regard the future with hope and confidence, feeling sure that the thousand students who annually leave the school will be full of the knowledge and love of good music, which they will diffuse and add to the happiness and harmony of their homes."

After the distribution of the prizes, in which Miss Dorothy Cummings received the Gold Medal for singing, Miss L. Selden the Silver Medal for mandoline, and Miss Fanny Cuthbert the Bronze Medal for singing; the Silver Jubilee Commemoration Challenge Cup was awarded to Miss Jenny Hyman, the Lord Mayor's prize to Miss Beatrice Jefferys, and the Lady Mayoress's prize to Mr. Gordon Burgess, a vote of thanks to the Lady Mayoress was proposed by James Roll, Esq., C.C., Chairman of the Music Committee, and seconded by Paul Alliston, Esq., C.C., a vote of thanks was also given to the Sheriffs, and with the singing of the National Anthem the proceedings terminated.

The concert of Wednesday evening commenced with a pianoforte solo, Largo from Sonata, Beethoven, the executant being Miss Gertrude A. Shill. Miss Dora Coombs gave a neat and finished performance of Vieuxtemps' violin solo, "Reverie," receiving two hearty recalls at the close of her solo. In Batten's song, "The Nightingale," Miss Elsie Savage was successful, the somewhat florid music and the shake being skilfully executed, but Mr. W. T. Curtis gave a rather tame rendering of Pinsuti's dramatic ballad, "The Bedouin's Love Song." Miss Dadine Sutherland in her piano solo of three Etudes, A minor, A flat, and G flat, by Chopin, displayed ample executive ability and was warmly applauded, while Mr. Leonard Gowings revealed a promising and well-trained tenor voice in Coleridge-Taylor's air "Onaway! awake, beloved." A very young violinist, Master Sydney Roe, played Cummings' "Légende" with great freedom of execution and capital intonation, and Miss E. M. Scarborough sang two new songs, "My garden" and "The skylark," by F. Ethel Scarborough, with good effect. In Saint-Saëns by no means easy study in the form of a waltz for pianoforte Mr. Frederick J. Daff, A.G.S.M., did himself great credit.

Variety was given to the concert by a clever recitation of "Joe and I at the play" by Miss Gertrude A. Shill, a pupil of Mr. L. F. Chapuy. Other promising items given by the students were Brahms' "Lied Feldansamket," sung by Miss Ethel Oliver, Miss Helen S. Gall's piano solo, "Barcarolle," by Moszkowski, and Miss Wininfred Doré Johnson's air from "Faust." The accompanist was Miss Jenny Hyman.

The character of the comic constable in The New Aladdin has been much discussed, for it recalls a lost policeman of Gilbert fame, and it is, at the same time, an original and thoroughly up-to-date "creation." Mr. Alfred Lester has little cause to echo another of Mr. W. S. Gilbert's sentiments—"A policeman's lot is not an 'appy one"—for his first engagement at the Gaiety Theatre has been entirely happy, "taking one consideration with another." Besides being a character actor and comedian, he has played any number of melodrama villains—as a preparation, perhaps, for entering the (stage) force—and possesses a quiet, peculiar humour which is all his own. He is a past master in the art of gagging, and gets so thoroughly "into the skin of a part" that when he first played a scene-shifter at the Palace Theatre last year it was stated, on the "best authority," that the management had really discovered an unconsciously funny stage hand and was presenting him in the rough to the public. Mr. Lester rightly looked on the story as a great compliment to the artistic worth of his character sketch. He probably owes his gift of gagging to the fact that he often played, in the days of his long apprenticeship, a different big part every week, and changed from one character to another as easily as a man puts on a hat. Richelieu, in The Three Musketeers; Joe Hackett, in Romany Rye; and Shaun, the post, in Arrah-na-Pogue, were his favourite parts until he acted the lost constable at the Gaiety.

"The Era" can be obtained at the principal bookstalls throughout the provinces.

THE L.C.C. AND AMUSEMENTS.

The weekly meeting of the London County Council was held on Tuesday at the County Hall, Spring-gardens.

COMEDY THEATRE.

The Theatres and Music Halls Committee reported that they had considered drawings, submitted by the Charing-cross, West-end, and City Electricity Supply Company, Ltd., showing a proposal to fix electric heaters at the Comedy Theatre, Panton-street. They recommended that the Company be informed that the Council has no objection to the arrangements shown on the two drawings submitted, provided that certain stated conditions be complied with.

PROPOSED NEW CONCERT HALL.

The Committee had considered drawings, submitted by Messrs. Joseph and Smithem, of a concert hall to be erected on the site of St. Paul's Church, Great Portland-street. Accommodation was shown for about 750 persons in the body of the hall and for about 484 in the gallery. They recommended that Messrs. Joseph and Smithem be informed that, provided the works shown on the five drawings submitted by them with regard to a building to be known as the Concert Hall, Great Portland-street, be commenced within six months, the Council will be prepared to grant a certificate to the owner of such building, on being satisfied that the premises have been completed in accordance with the drawings referred to and the regulations of the Council, and that certain stated conditions have been complied with.

ELEPHANT AND CASTLE THEATRE.

The Committee reported that at recent inspections of the Elephant and Castle Theatre, New Kent-road, it was found that hasps and staples had been fitted to certain of the exit doors, and that one of the doors was fastened in an irregular manner. They were of opinion that in order to enable the Council to take proceedings, should there be any repetition of this dangerous practice, a notice under the 45th section of the Metropolitan Board of Works (Various Powers) Act, 1882, should be served on the person keeping open the premises. The Committee recommended accordingly.

PUTNEY HIPPODROME.

The Committee had considered a drawing, submitted by Mr. F. W. Hingston, showing the gates which it is proposed to fix at the east and west ends of the 20ft. passage-way at the Putney Hippodrome, Felsham-road, Putney. They recommended that Mr. Hingston be informed that the Council has no objection to the arrangements shown on the drawing submitted, provided the fastenings to the gates be automatic in action and in accordance with the regulations of the Council.

The Committee had also considered a drawing, submitted by Messrs. R. Dawson, Ltd., showing the connections of the main switchboards and distribution boards of the electrical installation at the Putney Hippodrome, and recommended that Messrs. Dawson be informed that the Council has no objection to the arrangements shown on the drawing.

QUEEN'S MUSIC HALL.

The Committee had considered drawings, submitted by Messrs. Alexander Ritchie and Co., showing the heating apparatus proposed to be installed at the Queen's Music Hall, Poplar. They recommended that Messrs. Alexander Ritchie and Co. be informed that the Council has no objection to the arrangements shown on the three drawings submitted, provided that certain stated conditions be complied with.

ELECTRIC LIGHTING AND HEATING.

The Committee reported—We have for some time past had under consideration the question of the revision of the regulations made by the Council on March 25, 1902, with respect to the electric lighting and heating installations in theatres and other places of public entertainment in London. The regulations in question are extremely technical, and it is impossible to indicate briefly the various alterations proposed; but, generally speaking, the object has been to make the meaning of the regulations clearer than it is at present, and in very few instances are the regulations made more stringent. We have been in communication with the Theatrical Managers' Association, the Suburban Theatre Managers' Association, and the London Entertainments Protection Association, and have had the advantage of their criticisms on our proposed amendments. A satisfactory understanding has now been arrived at on the whole question, and this result is largely due to the fact that we propose to give a right of arbitration in cases where the regulations require work to be done to the satisfaction or approval of the Council or do not definitely the work to be done, and in cases where, in consequence of alterations to premises, it is proposed to apply the regulations to an existing installation which has already been approved by the Council. We think it reasonable that arbitration on these points should be allowed, provided it is distinctly understood that it must not be regarded as constituting a precedent for allowing arbitration on the structural regulations of the Council, and, further, that the Council will reserve to itself the right to withdraw the clause if it is found to be unsatisfactory in practice. As regards the application of the amended regulations to existing installations which have been approved by the Council, we have given an assurance that the regulations would not be retrospective except in unusual instances, such as the carrying out of extensive alterations, &c. The Committee recommended that the proposed amendments to the electric lighting and heating regulations made by the Council on March 25, 1902, be approved, and that the necessary consequential alterations be made in the rules relating to premises licensed by the Council (adopted by the Council on Oct. 25, 1904) and in the structural regulations with regard to theatres, &c., approved by the Council on July 30, 1901, and Feb. 4, 1902.

All the above recommendations of the Committee were agreed to without discussion.

The New Schauspielhaus, Berlin, which opened last week with Shakespeare's Tempest, is an immense and highly-elaborate edifice in modern, semi-sessionistic style. It comprises, too, the Mozart Saal—a handsome concert-room—and an imposing restaurant and café. The auditorium, which is handsomely decorated and upholstered in crimson and white, with a judicious admixture of gold, seats 1200 persons; there are but two circles. The stage is of unusual size, and revolving, with all the newest technical improvements. A good view of the stage is obtainable from all parts of the house, and the stalls are raised amphitheatre fashion. Vestibule, staircases, and foyers are all commodious and practical, luxuriously fitted up, and adorned with beautiful frescoes by Klein-Chevaly and Klinger.

The drama was written by Mr. Geo. R. Sims for Mr. Haviland about five years ago, but until to-day has never been produced. As may be imagined, the name-part fits him like a glove, and the same may be said of Miss Edyth Latimer, who takes the leading rôle, that of Molly Davis of the Duke's Theatre, and rival of the renowned Nell Gwynne. The drama is full of exciting moments, and the period of the play allows of very elaborate dressing and picturesque scenery. It takes us back to the pictorial period of the Restoration, when England was known as "Merry England." In the prologue, Sir Basil Brandreth fights a duel with Sir Marmaduke Ashley. The latter is mortally wounded; but before he dies, he entrusts the papers, proving his marriage and the legality of his daughter, to Nat Harlowe, whom he had saved from drowning some years previously. Naturally Nat owes him a great debt of gratitude, and vows he will expose Sir Basil Brandreth, the villain of the play.

Eight years are supposed to have elapsed between the prologue and Act 1, during which time many changes have taken place. Nat and Molly Davis have drifted to London, Nat (in the service of a quack called Dr. Kaspar) with the intention of discovering the relatives of Sir Marmaduke, and deliver to them the papers he has had entrusted to him. The scene of Act 1 is laid at Bartholomew Fair, where we first see Molly at the height of her power, surrounded by many gallants and admirers. The scene is interrupted by Lieutenant Gerard Willoughby, of the Guards, rushing on wounded. He is in love with Helen Leigh (an embroideress to Molly Davis), and in her behalf he has just fought Sir Basil and his accomplices, who have abducted the girl. Nat sets out to rescue the girl, and discovers her in a room at Sir Basil's house, guarded by three villains. Nat gains admittance to the room by scaling the wall outside and entering at the window. He has brought a rope with him, and lowers the girl out of the window, having defeated her guards. Thus he restores her to her lover. However, Sir Basil induces the Duke of York to cast Nat into prison, on the pretence of treason against the King. We are next taken to the tent of Dr. Kaspar, where we discover Lieutenant Willoughby, who is seriously wounded. Here he is visited by Molly Davis, who has fallen in love with him. It is not until after Helen has been restored to her lover that Nat discovers she is the daughter of Sir Marmaduke Ashley.

The scene of the fourth act is in the garden of Molly Davis's residence. Here Nat meets the Duke, and is granted twenty-four hours' leave within which to expose Sir Basil, who is one of the Duke's most trusted friends. Lieutenant Willoughby and Sir Basil meet again, and commence a duel. The Duke intervenes, with the result that he is insulted by Gerard Willoughby, to whom his identity is unknown—the Duke being masked at the time—and condemned to death for this rash act. The meeting between the Duke and Nat, the Mountebank, is very amusing, and in the last act the story ends happily. Sir Basil is convicted of being the murderer of Sir Marmaduke Ashley, and Gerard gains his liberty through the entreaties of Molly Davis.

The character of Nat Harlow, as interpreted by Mr. Haviland, was a complete success. The Molly Davis of Miss Edyth Latimer was a finished performance, and she won great favour with the audience from the beginning. Miss Ethel Warwick appeared as Helen Leigh. Mr. Cecil Calvert as Sir Basil gave a powerful reading of the part, and was exceedingly good in the last act. The rôle of Lieutenant Willoughby was safe in the hands of Mr. Edmund Waller, whose acting reached a very high pitch of excellence. As the Duke of York, Mr. Kenneth Rivington gave a dignified and stately rendering; and Dr. Kaspar, the travelling quack, found an able exponent in Mr. J. Hampton. All the minor parts were sustained in a satisfactory manner.

PERFECTION in perfumes has assuredly been attained by the Halifior Company, who have produced a pure, delicate, soft, and soothing aroma, rich yet chaste, which has been appropriately named the "Halifior Ideal." The delicate odour of the sweet violet has never been fully captured, to be retained in a lasting essence, and yet here, in the Halifior Company's exquisite product, Milton's much-discussed "Gaudy Violet" is enshrined in a perfume true to nature; but not in concentrated essence only, for both the Halifior-Ideal and the Halifior-Violet are combined with the latest luxury of the toilet in a delightful soap. The greatest care, combined with the use of the best materials known to science, have produced in soap, as in perfume, a veritable triumph. The soap is appropriately enough enclosed in patent boxes, artistic in colouring and beautiful in design, which can be retained for trinket-boxes when their rich contents have been utilised by the purchaser. These inestimable toilet adjuncts can be procured at the Army and Navy and all other first-class stores, chemists', and perfumers'.

M. Grisier, manager of the Ambigu Theatre, Paris, has numerous friends, and also many enemies. He, therefore, was not surprised to see himself attacked in a weekly paper. These things do happen. It struck M. Grisier, however, as rather strange that these attacks were unusually venomous, and that the articles bore no signature. So he sent two of his friends to the paper to demand satisfaction from the responsible editor. But the editor declined all responsibility, and sent for the writer of the articles. And when this gentleman entered the room the seconds, to their surprise, recognised in him a former employee of M. Grisier, whom the latter had discharged. The "Affaire Grisier" will now have its dénouement in the police court, where the before-mentioned employee will have to answer a charge of libel.

MR. EDITOR,—Sir,—In your notice of The Harbour Lights at the Elephant and Castle Theatre the exponent of the part of Tom Dossiter should have read yours faithfully, TEDDY COLMAN, Elephant and Castle Theatre, S.W., 27/10/'06.

"THE GRAND MOGUL," a comic opera, in three acts, book and lyrics by Frank Pixley and music by Gustav Luders, was produced for copyright purposes at the Victoria Hall, Bayswater, on Thursday.

MR. BANNISTER HOWARD'S BENEFIT AT RYDE.

Mr. J. Bannister Howard was honoured by benefit performances at the Royal, Ryde, on Wednesday, when the members of the Ryde Amateur Dramatic Society appeared in The Private Secretary. During past years Mr. Howard's associations with the town have led him into a position high in the public esteem, and it was therefore small wonder that his benefit met with the widest support. The house was literally packed for both performances, and the benefit proved in every respect a great success. The local amateurs number among them several able exponents of the histrionic art, and the reputation of these ladies and gentlemen were in no wise belied by Wednesday's performance. Indeed, their latest achievement rivals anything they have ever attempted in the humorous vein. The audience were kept in a merry mood throughout. In a large measure this was due to the admirable acting of Mr. J. B. Howard himself, whose representation of Mr. Cattermole was a most commendable one. The irascible moods of the old gentleman found excellent expression, the "make-up" was altogether irresistible, and the impersonation left nothing to be desired. The same might also be said of Mr. M. J. Osborne's portrayal of the Rev. Robert Spalding. Mr. Osborne was quickly on good terms with his audience, and carried through his ludicrous impersonation faithfully. To him was the audience indebted for some of the most merry moments of the evening, and their appreciation was unstintingly demonstrated at the conclusion of each act. Mr. P. S. Chiverton presented a capital study of the character of Douglas Cattermole, and his work, on the whole, was excellently accomplished. The part of Miss Ashford found adequate treatment in the hands of Miss Florence Stainer, whose effective display of that lady's spiritualistic inclinations was greatly conducive to the enjoyment of the audience. Miss Daisy Harvey made a vivacious and charming Edith Marsland, and Eva Webster was daintily acted by Miss Maggie Schuymer. These ladies combined very prettily, and made equally successful appearances. Miss Nellie Turtle is to be commended for an effective study of Mrs. Stead, the estimable landlady, to whose qualities full justice was done. Mr. C. Sweetman efficiently filled the rôle of Mr. Marsland, and looked a typical M.F.H. The rôle of Harry Marsland, the nephew, was creditably sustained by Mr. F. K. Ayers, and Mr. E. Fowler is entitled to praise for a very fair rendering of the part of the tailor, Gibson. Mr. S. Purnell and Mr. Fitzpatrick made good appearances as John (a servant) and Knox (a writ-server) respectively.

At the conclusion of the performance and after the principals had been enthusiastically recalled, Mr. Bannister Howard, who was received with much applause, said it would indeed be ungrateful on his part if he allowed them to disperse without thanking them for the very magnificent benefits accorded to him that day. He had to thank the Ryde Amateur Dramatic Society for so kindly assisting him. It was perhaps an open secret that he would be soon leaving that theatre owing to his many undertakings in London and the long distance he had to come from town. If, however, he was not lessee of the theatre, he would still send his companies and take an interest in the town of Ryde. In conclusion, he expressed the pleasure his stay in the town had given him, and his thanks for the splendid support that had been always forthcoming from the Ryde public.

ROYAL OPERA, COVENT GARDEN.

Signor Cilèa's opera, Adriana Lecouvreur, was revived at Covent Garden on Tuesday, Oct. 23, and considerable interest was aroused owing to the fact that nearly two years have elapsed since Cilèa's refined and clever opera was heard in London. Although this version of Scribe and Legouve's play is not entirely convincing either in its dramatic or pathetic situations, there are many happy moments in Adriana Lecouvreur, much beautiful music, and with such a fine cast as that given on Tuesday the revival was very welcome. Madame Giachetti gave a sympathetic impersonation of the fascinating French actress; while Signor Sammarco's rendering of the devoted impresario, Michonnet, deserved great praise. Madame de Cisneros made a striking picture of the stately Princess de Bouillon, being especially fine in her duet with Adriana. The part of Maurice was delightfully sung by Signor Zenatello with all the requisite attention to light and shade such a character requires. Signor Beremzone sang the music of the Prince's part well, but was somewhat too strenuous in his acting; and Signor Zucchi made a lively and animated Abbé. Signorina Simeoli appeared as Mlle. Jouvenot and Signorina Liviabella as Mlle. Dangeville with complete success; while the rest of the cast worked zealously to secure a good result. The opera was handsomely mounted, and Signor Mugnone as well as the principal artists had to respond to many hearty "calls" from the large audience.

Verdi's melodious opera La Traviata was given on Wednesday night at Covent Garden, with Madame Melba in superb voice as the unhappy Violetta. An interesting feature of Wednesday's performance was the innovation made by Madame Melba, who for the first time wore the full-skirted dress in fashion at the time the opera was produced in England, instead of the modern evening dress, the result being greatly to add to the picturesque effect of the famous old opera. Madame Melba's singing of the scena "Ah, fors e lui" was as beautiful as ever, and even more brilliant was the succeeding air. Signor Carpi, as Alfredo, increased the good opinions already formed on his singing, but the Germont of Signor Sammarco did not entirely satisfy the admirers of this clever artist, and his delivery of the "Di provenza" air fell somewhat below his usual standard. For the rest of the cast, Signora Garavaglia made an attractive Flora Bervoix, and Signora Liviabella an equally good Annina, while Signor Poggi and Signor Thos gave a careful study of the characters of Barone Duphol and Dottore Grenvil. The chorus were thoroughly effective, and Signor Mugnone conducted a performance that met with the most hearty approval from the large audience.

THE WEST LONDON.

On Monday, Oct. 29, the Drama, in Five Acts, by E. Hill-Mitchelson, entitled

"THE FRENCH SPY."

This intensely interesting drama, played by Mr. Fred Benton's company, has met with a very favourable reception in Marylebone this week. As Captain Sommers, Mr. Richard Fulton acts with earnestness and distinction; Mr. L. Chaseby is easy and natural as Lieut. Maxwell; Mr. Max Coutts acts Count Romanoff with a grimness and determination well suited to the part; Mr. Lincoln Calthorpe does well as General Trepoff; and Mr. Charles Digby is amusing as Viscount Alexis. Mr. Seymour Perry's Knipps is decidedly creditable; whilst Mr. Fred Benton is placidly confident as the German strong man Fritz. Miss A. Harrison Tate portrays Olga in a thoroughly convincing way; Miss Cissie Cleveland is lively as Julie, and Miss Gertrude Evans sustains the important rôle of Countess André with quiet dignity of demeanour and reserved force. The piece is well mounted and staged, and the company all round is an excellent one. Mr. Sidney C. Hill is the acting-manager for Mr. Fred Benton.

PLAYERS OF THE PERIOD.

(SPECIALLY COMPILED FOR THE ERA.)

MISS ADA PALMER.

Since her first appearance on the stage in 1892, Miss Ada Palmer has played a great variety of parts in all sorts of pieces—drama, comedy, farce, and musical comedy. She first studied elocution with Mr. Samuel Hasluck, and after gaining first-class certificates for elocution from the late Mr. Samuel Brandram and from Mr. Beerbohm Tree, studied for a year at Mr. Henry Neville's dramatic studio.

Her first professional engagement was to play Maud Chandler in The Middleman. She afterwards appeared as Lady Linden in Blow for Blow, Maud in Our Regiment, and Kate Garston in The Lancashire Lass. In 1894 Mr. Edouin engaged her for the part of Helen Griffin in Niobe on tour, and in 1895 for Lady Rowland Buttre in The Babes, at the Strand Theatre.

Engagements to play Miss Prim in Nita's First, Miss Prism in The Importance of Being Earnest, and Crafer in Liberty Hall with Mr. Tapping followed, and in 1896 Mr. Calder engaged her for the part of Mrs. Jelf in The Span of Life for a forty-four weeks' tour. In 1897 Miss Palmer joined Mr. Lockwood's A Night Out company to play Mrs. Pinglet. In August, 1899, she was engaged by the late Mr. Walter Sealby for Mrs. Parke in A Trip to Chicago (three tours). In 1901 she played Mrs. Bolton Corrie on the suburban tour of Mr. Frank Stayton's drama The Despatch Bearer, and Mrs. Tulk for the first provincial tour of The Price of Peace with Mr. Dundas. Another tour with Niobe followed, and in August, 1902, Mr. Roy Byford engaged her for the part of Fair Rosamond in A Queen's Vengeance.

In 1903, after a summer tour with Mr. Laurence Irving, Miss Palmer joined the stock company at the Lyric, Hammersmith, and was then re-engaged by Mr. Dundas for Mrs. Angerstein in Hearts are Trumps. She again joined Mr. Sealby's The Wedding Ring company for the part of the Countess of Brierley, and afterwards played the Marquise of Montifiore in A Royal Rival for a special engagement with Mr. Tapping. Miss Palmer created the eccentric comedy part of Agatha Pearce in Mr. John Denton's drama A Modern Judas, this being followed by an engagement with Mr. Mark Blow.

MR. HENRY WORRALL.

Mr. Henry Worrall is a native of Manchester, and gained his early experience in and around that city. There he studied elocution under Mr. Ryder Boys, the violin under Mr. Walter Evelyn, and fencing under Mons. Camille Lefevre at the Fencing and Boxing Club.

His first experience was in Mr. Robert Courtneidge's revival of A Midsummer Night's Dream, when he walked on, and later he played a small part in the production of As You Like It. After this, he played a round of important parts—juveniles, heavies, and character—with Mr. Ryder Boys in Manchester and district, amongst others—Bassanio, Lorenzo, Sir Hugh Evans, Joseph Surface, Hastings, Beauseant, Blifil (Sophia), Willem Hundins (The Mayflower), Sowerberry (Garrick), Vane (Masks and Faces), and Rolf in The White Pilgrim; also being assistant stage-manager for revivals of Macbeth and Twelfth Night, whilst later on he personally stage-managed a production of the farcical comedy entitled The Pick- pocket. When Miss Janet Achurch produced Mrs. Daintree's Daughter at the Theatre Royal, Manchester, he created the part of Captain Hampton. Mr. Worrall then joined Mr. Boys again for a recital tour through the seaside towns of the West and South-West Coasts, the repertoire including selections from The Merchant of Venice, Henry IV., Henry V., As You Like It, The School for Scandal, and modern authors, the evening concluding with a one-act play, such as Barbara, By the Sea, &c.

More recently Mr. Oswald Brand engaged Mr. Worrall to play juvenile leads in his Dickens' repertoire at the Grand Theatre, Islington, supporting Mr. Robert Pateman, the parts being—Richard Carston (Bleak House), Harry Maylie (Oliver Twist), and Fred Trent (Little Nell). Later he fulfilled an engagement with Mr. Harcourt Williams in a most successful and enjoyable pastoral tour, during which he played various parts.

"THE ERA" can be obtained at the principal bookstalls throughout the provinces.

AMERICAN AMUSEMENTS.

NEW YORK, OCT. 17.—Miss Lillian Russell, who used to be called "the Queen of Comic Opera," has been unfortunate in her first venture into the field of legitimate comedy. She appeared in Paul Potter's adapted version of Francis de Croissets' comedy Le Bonheur, Mesdames, entitled Barbara's Millions, at the Savoy Theatre last week, and the play was a complete failure. Its theme is the familiar one of domestic intrigue and duplicity so dear to the Gallic playwright's heart. An American heiress travelling in Switzerland keeps a tryst with a French viscount in an effort to entrap her husband, only to discover, after she has compromised herself, that he is innocent of wrong-doing. The differences of the pair are finally adjusted at an hotel by means of crossed telephone wires. Mr. Ferdinand Gottschalk and Mr. H. Reeves Smith were in the cast.

MISS VIRGINIA HARNED is appearing at the Lyric Theatre in a comedy called The Love Letter, translated and adapted from the French original, La Piste, of Victorien Sardou, by Ferdinand Gottschalk. The play presents a sprightly woman in a vexatious and comical quandary. Mdme. Revillon has obtained a divorce from one husband and has married another. The second husband discovers a letter which makes him suspicious. As a matter of fact, it was written by Mdme. Revillon's first husband, but the superscription and signature have been destroyed, and Madame is obliged to appeal to Philippe Jobelin, her former spouse to prove that the letter is not of recent date. This the latter agrees to do, but he pays off a grudge that he bears against Revillon by inventing certain details and misrepresenting others, so that Revillon is made frantic with jealousy before he obtains the facts and is willing to become reconciled to his wife.

MR. GOTTSCHALK has been very successful in adapting the piece for the American stage, and, as Miss Harned gives a delightful impersonation of Madame Revillon, the newspaper verdict has been distinctly favourable. The comedy is beautifully mounted and costumed, and the stage management is highly praiseworthy. Mr. William Courtenay as Revillon, Miss Eleanor Moretti as Gilberte Loysel, Mr. W. J. Ferguson as Jobelin, and Mr. Percy Lyndal as Oliver Loysel play their parts admirably.

MR. KYRLE BELLEW is appearing in Conan Doyle's comedy, Brigadier Gerard, which has been well received in several of the larger cities, and will shortly be presented in New York.

MISS VIOLA ALLEN is touring the principal cities as Imogen, in an elaborate revival of Shakespeare's Cymbeline. In the cast are Messrs. Fuller Mellish, J. H. Gilmour, Sydney Herbert, C. Leslie Allen, Jefferson Winter, and Miss Alison Skipworth.

"THE SPRING CHICKEN" has been well received at Daly's Theatre. Sundry changes in the original version have been made by Mr. Richard Carle, who appears as Ambrose Girdle, and furnishes most of the fun of the piece, being ably supported by Miss Emma Janvier, who, as Girdle's jealous wife, sings "I don't know, but I guess," and makes a big hit. Mr. Victor Morley as Gustave Babori is capital.

"THE ROSE OF THE RANCHO" is the title of the new play which Mr. David Belasco is preparing for production at his own theatre during the present season. The scenes are laid in Southern California at the time of the American annexation of the Spanish settlement in the late fifties. The cast will include Miss Frances Starr, Miss Maria Davies, and Messrs. Hamilton Revelle, Charles Richman, Frank H. Westerton, Frank Losee, John W. Cope, J. H. Burimo, and William Elliott.

"MADAMA BUTTERFLY," the Japanese opera by Giacomo Puccini, was presented for the first time in America at the Columbia Theatre, Washington, on the 15th inst., by Mr. Henry W. Savage, and scored a brilliant success. This was the first performance of the opera in English on any stage. The applause after each of the three acts was prolonged, the principals being recalled many times. Mr. Walter Rothwell, of London, who conducted an orchestra of sixty, was included in the emphatic approval manifested during the evening.

"JEANNE D'ARC," an historical drama, by Percy Mackaye, was produced at the Lyric Theatre, Philadelphia, last Monday, Miss Julia Marlowe appearing in the title-rôle and Mr. E. H. Sothern as the Duc d'Alençon.

"THE TRUTH," a new comedy, by Clyde Fitch, has been favourably received at Cleveland, Ohio. A wife's fondness for fibbing gets her into trouble, her husband being bent on obtaining a divorce, until relatives patch up the differences of the married pair. The play is said to be one of strong human interest.

MISS ELLIS JEFFREYS and Mr. William H. Crane commenced their joint tour at Johnstown, Pa., on the 15th inst., appearing in Goldsmith's comedy, She Stoops to Conquer.

"MLLE. SALLIE," a musical comedy, by Robert Smith and Raymond Hubbell, has droll little Katie Barry in the title-rôle. The piece made a hit at Waterbury, Conn., where it was produced last Monday.

ONE of the most remarkable runs in the history of New York theatricals was terminated recently at the Bijou Theatre when Mr. David Warfield gave the 635th performance of The Music Master, and left the metropolis to fulfil a four weeks' engagement in Boston at the Majestic Theatre, for the entire period of which nearly every seat in the house was sold beforehand.

IN an address given recently at Carnegie Hall before several hundred literary people, Mr. Frank Lea Short, director of classic plays at Yale College, said that the conditions confronting young playwrights in America were deplorable, writers being subjected to many humiliations before they found a market for their work. Mr. Short is a director of the American Dramatic Guild, which has been formed for the purpose of encouraging young American playwrights.

THE opening of Mr. Robert Redford's New Theatre, Cardiff, will in all probability take place early in December. The theatre is on the model of the New Gaiety in London, being by the same architects, and is one of the handsomest in the provinces. The auditorium consists of stalls and pit area, dress circle, semi-upper circle, and gallery. The site is an island one, and the main approach is at the corner of Park-place, close to the Park Hotel and the entrance to the new municipal buildings. The stage is 77ft. wide and 40ft. deep from the float, with a large scene dock capable of giving a complete depth to the stage of about 55ft. The dominant colour in the decorative scheme is rose du Barry, while over the proscenium opening there is a fine oval painting. The total seating accommodation is 1534. Mr. Beerbohm Tree has kindly promised to open the new theatre.

THE new Astor Theatre, New York, opened on Sept. 21 with a handsome revival of A Midsummer Night's Dream, in which Miss Annie Russell appeared for the first time as Puck, and gave a highly artistic and delightful interpretation of the rôle. A striking feature of the interior of the new playhouse is the tapestry of leafy design on the walls. An entablature extending to the depth of 8ft. from the ceiling has a projection of 5ft. around the walls. A square marble beam rests on the frieze, above which is diamond-shaped fretwork. The proscenium and the fronts of the boxes and balconies are constructed of stone of a warm buff shade, the general tone of the interior being golden mahogany. The house will seat about 1,300 people.

AMUSEMENTS IN AUSTRALIA.

SYDNEY, SEPT. 18.—Veronique was revived by Mr. J. C. Williamson at Her Majesty's Theatre on the 15th, but this time by his Gilbert and Sullivan répertoire company, which includes Miss Celia Ghiloni, a fine singer, Miss Olive Godwin as Mme. Agatha Coquenard, Miss Dolly Castles as Veronique, Mr. Frank Wilson as Florestan, Mr. Walter Whyte as Seraphin, Mr. W. H. Wallace as Coquenard, Mr. Howard Vernon, Miss Aggie Thorn, Miss Vinia de Loitte, and Miss Margaret Caples.

THE Charles Hawtrey season finished on the 15th, and the company left to-day for Melbourne. At the time of writing, Mr. Holloway is lying ill in a private hospital.

MR. BLAND HOLT continues to score with A Woman's Hate at the Theatre Royal.

SYDNEY, SEPT. 25, 1906.—The Squaw Man, played by a mingled company of American, English, and Australian thespians, was Mr. J. C. Williamson's bill on the 22nd at Her Majesty's Theatre. Much pictorial and Press advance notice had roused expectation, and every seat was sold before the date of the initial performance. The public was nauseated with comic opera, musical comedy, et hoc genus omne, and welcomed anything in the shape of probability and human nature. The Squaw Man shows the aristocratic English and the backwoods, American and Indian, every character being strongly drawn, and, in this company, strongly acted. The leaders are Mr. Charles Waldron and Miss Ola Humphrey. The gentleman is a very fine, distinct-speaking, and easy-acting interpreter of the author's intentions, and he became a "chop-chop" favourite. Miss Humphrey was a gracious and dignified Diana, her pathetic touches being particularly effective. Mr. Rapley Holmes captured favour with his powerful portrait of Big Bill, and Mr. Hardy Kirkland made Talywana, the Peace Chief of the Indians, picturesquely attractive. An English actor, Mr. Cyril MacKay, gave a most finished dude effect to Sir John Applegate, and Miss Florence Gleeson elevated a small speaking part, Nat-U-Rich, into strong prominence. Mr. Harry Plumner as the Earl, the veteran actress Mrs. G. B. W. Lewis as the Countess, and Mr. George Bryant, a very excellent Cash Hawkins, Miss Beatrice Usher (Lady Mabel), with a very long list of well-acted minor characters, made up scenes of Western life most enjoyable and natural. Mr. W. R. Coleman painted the fine scenery, Mr. C. M. Berkely stage-managed the production, and Mr. Fred Quintrell conducted the orchestra. The booking is now very heavy.

THE Gilbert-Sullivan Répertoire Company left for Westralia on the 22nd, having a hearty send-off the previous evening, when Mr. Henry Bracey made a valedictory speech.

MR. EDMUND PAGE, hailing from Mr. George Edwardes' and other English companies, presented a new dramatic sketch by himself, entitled The Newsboy's Dream, at the Criterion on the 22nd. This consists of two scenes—the exterior and interior of Westminster Abbey, painted by Mr. Harry Whaite. Outside are two waifs—Ned Cook (Mr. Edmund Page) and Bob Fisher (Miss Lucy Carew). These are starving, the latter dying, and both fall asleep. The cloth rises, and we are inside the historic pile, where a choir, trained by Mr. Kilburn Heron, sing several hymns—"No ceremony else"—with Mr. Ernest E. P. Truman at the organ. The outside again, we see one dead waif and one disconsolate one. This sketch was preceded by "Mr. Edmund Page at Home," where he sings, tells stories, and introduces other singers. This, in its turn, was preceded by Mrs. Hilary's Regrets, with Miss Ailsa Sherbrook and Mr. R. M. Gibson in the two characters.

"THE GREAT MILLIONAIRE" was revived by Mr. Bland Holt at the Royal on the 22nd, and proved that it had lost none of its attractiveness. A strong company interprets the revival, including Mr. and Mrs. Bland Holt, Misses Ross, Jennie Pollock, Harriet Ireland and Violet Canty, and Messrs. Waller, Baker, Albert Norman, Charles Brown, Arthur Styan, and Max Maxwell.

THE Tivoli has got Burinn, the modern Hercules, back again, and many like his "strong" feats. In addition, Mr. Harry Rickards gives his patrons a long procession of talented performers, including Kelly and Agnes, Nellie Kilburn, George Bentley, Maud Faning, Harry Bedford, Olive Denton, Howard Hall, Tom Dawson, Les Cabiacs, Seymour and Dupré, Brightie Smith, and La Moto Girl.

ON Sept. 20 there died at St. Vincent's Hospital here, Nellie, the wife of Mario Majeroni, now in America with the Rance and Neil company, grand nephew of Mme. Adelaide Ristori. The deceased lady was laid in Waverly Cemetery.

MELBOURNE, SEPT. 25.—PRINCE'S THEATRE.—Director, Edwin Geach.—After an interval of eight years, Two Little Vagabonds was produced by Mr. Charles Holloway's company on Saturday evening in the presence of a large audience. The parts of Dick and Wally were most effectively played by Miss Beatrice Holloway and Miss Mabel Russell, the death scene in the final act being very touching. Miss Ethel Appleton, as Marion Thornton, was charming. Mr. Robert Inman, an old Melbourne favourite, made his reappearance in the part of George Thornton, and played with his customary manliness. Mr. John O'Neill, in the character of Gaffer, was sufficiently brutal to satisfy the most hardened playgoer; while Miss Hilda Fraser as his wife introduced some excellent comic business. Taken on a whole, the performance was highly satisfactory.

HER MAJESTY'S THEATRE.—Lessee, Mr. J. C. Williamson; Business-Manager, Mr. George Tallis.—Another large audience witnessed the ever-popular opera, La Mascotte, on Saturday evening. The success achieved by the revival of this opera has induced the management to postpone its withdrawal till Oct. 6, when The Belle of New York will replace it. All the old favourites were cordially received on Saturday evening. Encores were accorded to Miss Young, Mr. Ralston, and Mr. Roberts; while Mr. Lauri and Mr. Bantock were responsible for much merriment.

OPERA HOUSE.—Proprietor, Mr. Harry Rickards; Business-Manager, Mr. Fred Aydon.—Long before eight o'clock on Saturday evening there was not a vacant seat at this theatre. To the already strong bill provided at present were added three new "turns" in the shape of Mr. Alf Chester, comedian, Mr. Larry Lewis, quaint singer and patter comedian, and Miss Violet Stockelle, soubrette and vocalist. All these artists were accorded flattering receptions. Miss Florrie Henderson appeared with her performing dogs and monkey in a clever trick act. Mr. Harry Tate's company appeared in the clever and hilarious sketch, Motoring, and convulsed the house. The last nights are announced of Augustin and Hartly, barrel jumpers; Miss Cassie Walmer, dancer and vocalist; Little Cliff, the clever comedian; and Mr. Fred Bluett. It is understood Mr. Rickards has engaged a number of fresh artists for his various Australian theatres, and his patrons can rely upon some startling novelties being presented to them shortly.

GAIETY THEATRE.—Manager, Joe Solomons.—A complete change of programme was responsible for filling this theatre to its utmost capacity on Saturday evening. Will Dyson and Rupert Cuthbert made their first appearance; and interesting turns were presented by Marion Akarman, Frank Yorke, May Dagmar, Ruby Crawford, Fred Ireland, Harry Hill, and others.

MME. NORDICA, who has not been heard in London for four years, is on her way from America to fill an engagement in the Opera at Covent Garden next month. She is announced to appear in Aida, Il Trovatore, Don Giovanni, and La Gioconda.

LONDON & SUBURBAN THEATRES.

THE MARLBOROUGH.

On Monday, Oct. 29,
the Musical Play,
"THE CATCH OF THE SEASON."

The delightful musical comedy The Catch of the Season, although here in February last, has returned with unimpaired attractiveness, and is playing to packed houses; as a matter of fact, money has been obliged to be refused several nights during the week. This great success is due principally to the highly capable manner in which Mr. Geo. Dance's company interpret the piece, together with the dresses, mounting, and scenery, which are lavish and very appropriate. The large chorus also show the result of much careful training, being well balanced in tone and power, and the Marlborough orchestra, under the direction of Mr. J. A. Robertson, render the music in an admirable manner. Company, scenery, and appointments are alike of supreme excellence, the result being a most enjoyable evening's entertainment. Miss Zena Dare makes a very refined Angela, her pleasant, natural acting charming the audience intensely. Voice, appearance, and acting are alike superb, and she undoubtedly deserves the high position she has so quickly gained. Mr. Frank Lincoln as the Duke of St. Jermyns enacts a character for which he is eminently fitted, and his rendering of the part meets with popular approval, the musical numbers allotted him going wonderfully well. The stuttering Lord Dundreary is made very funny by Mr. E. H. Keely, who works hard for the success of the piece. Mr. Julian Cross repeats his successful performance of the "henpecked" Sir John Crystal; and Messrs. Boielle and Willis are satisfactory as Higham Montague and Lord Yatton. Words of commendation are also due to Messrs. Alfred Lloyd, Joseph Bruce, Vincent Lawson, and Francis Court. Master Grata also repeats his great success as Buckett, the page, keeping the house in a roar of merriment. A great future may be predicted for this clever young comedian. Miss Ida Mann scores a success as Lady Crystal, and a favourable impression is made by Miss Belle Napier in the part of Lady Caterham. The Misses Margaret Savill and Jane Eyre satisfactorily impersonate the Hon. Sophia and Honoria Bedford; and all the subordinate parts are well filled, the Gibson Girls contributing in a liberal manner to the success of the play.

KING'S THEATRE, HAMMERSMITH.

On Monday, Oct. 29,
the Musical Play, entitled
"THE DAIRYMAIDS."

If all dairymaids were as bewitching as those who assist in this musical comedy there would be little heard of the "back-to-the-land" question, for we should then arrive at the true solution of the difficulty. No farm-hand would have the hardihood to leave such charmers behind him, and the town dwellers would be attracted to the land in large numbers. The company is a strong one. Sam Brudenell is energetically rendered by Mr. E. Statham Staples, who acts and dances in dashing style. A consistent Lieut. Brudenell is Mr. George Desmond; and Mr. J. Edward Fraser is a capital Capt. Fred Leverton. Cleverly played is the Dr. O'Byrne of Mr. Clarence Blakiston. The greatest success, however, is secured by Mr. Harry Dent, who as Joe Mivens, A.B., is the life and soul of the play, and creates no end of laughter by his most amusing acting. Peggy is brightly played by Miss Violet Lloyd; and Miss Rhoda Gordon makes a delightful Winifred. Equally successful is Miss Beryl Vaudrey as Helene, whose beautiful voice is heard to much advantage. Elisa, the maid-of-all-work, finds a brilliant representative in Miss Rose Musgrove, whose merits are decidedly valuable; Miss Madge Avery is a capable Miss Penelope Pyechase; and Miss Edith Blanche is a graceful and tactful Lady Brudenell. The unusually large chorus, comprising no fewer than fifty, is animated and pleasing to the eye; and the orchestra is judiciously controlled by Mr. Albert Bartlett. Mr. Conrad Trischler's scenery is most effective.

CRYSTAL PALACE THEATRE.

On Monday, Oct. 29,
the Musical Comedy in Three Acts, book by Owen Hall, music by Liza Lehmann,
entitled
"SERGEANT BRUE."

This play made an entirely successful opening here to a full house and roars of laughter, and with so good a company it could hardly be otherwise. The imperturbable humour of the Sergeant in the hands of Mr. Arthur Reynolds is irresistible, for he is the somewhat obtuse "peeler" to the life, and his scenes with the old lag, Crookie Scrubbs (Mr. Charles McLagan), are excellent, and as neither of these comedians follow the clichés of the originals in these parts, their success is all the more commendable. Mr. E. Percy Rogers as Michael, Bruc's son, is an agile dancer, and sings with point; and Miss Mary Hay as his sister Aurora makes a fresh and pretty nurse, who quite justifies the subterfuge of Gerald Treherne (Mr. Ernest Mozar) in keeping up the fiction of the broken arm. Mr. Mozar well renders the song of the piece, "If I could build a world for you," although on the occasion of our visit there was a slight trace of effort in the production of his upper notes. Miss Hebe Bliss is natural and sweet as Lady Bickenhall, and is fully equal to the large share of good things which fall to her part. The servant, Daisy, of Miss Marion Hargrave is clever and slightly different from the stereotyped Cockney domestic usually presented. Mr. Crank, the magistrate (with the laugh) is a clever character-study by Mr. Charles Sims, his enunciation being especially good. The policemen's dance in the second act, in which Mr. Cecil Hood gives individuality to the part of Inspector Gorringe, is very good, and has to be repeated. Miss Mabel Keith makes an interesting ingénue as Mabel Widget, and a large and well-trained chorus of stately ladies provide an agreeable background of action and song. The chorus of the sterner sex, whether as guests or policemen, is drilled to an exactness of movement which gives great finish to the numbers. The special scenery carried by Messrs. Lockwood and Crossman is considerable, and makes the representation complete in every way. Mr. Bannister Howard must be congratulated on providing such good fare for his Crystal Palace patrons.

THE GRAND, WOOLWICH.

On Monday, Oct. 29,
the Drama, in Four Acts, entitled
"BETWEEN TWO WOMEN."

The drama-loving patrons of the Grand have this week had an entertainment after their own heart, and have been by turns thrilled with emotion and tickled to uproarious laughter by the incidents and accidents of Mr. Frederick Melville's play Between Two Women, as portrayed by the author's talented company. A highly interesting rendering of Carmen de Saverseaux is submitted by Miss Marie McAulay, whose characterisation is both subtle and powerful. The changeful moods of this abandoned woman, her fierce passion for Harry Millard, and her one redeeming feature—her love for her child—are all portrayed with rare skill. Another finished performance is the Earl of Mr. Fred Goddard, who invests the part with remarkable dignity and pathos, and whose rendering of the Earl's outburst of scathing denunciation in the club scene in the third act is particularly true to the nature of the character. Miss Molly Malone is responsible for a touching rendering of Violet Thornton, and is successful in showing that his much-wronged girl's proud reliance on the virtue of her own cause is tempered by an inherent sweetness of disposition. Mr. Walter Thornton gives a clean-cut presentment of the villainous James Durwood, and fully earns his reward in the shape of the hearty execrations of the "gods." Harry Millard is acted in straightforward, manly fashion by Mr. Jackson Wilcox; and Mr. Rowland Yorke makes a decided impression in the rather thankless rôle of Major Strangeways. Mr. Godfrey Turle submits a careful and painstaking representation of the Rev. Phillip Carton. Last, but by no means least, must be mentioned the amusing Jack Pringle of Mr. Fred Danvers, who keeps his audience convulsed with laughter; and the clever Polly Popp of Miss Lillian Earle, who also contributes largely to this desirable end.

THE GRAND.

On Monday, Oct. 29,
the Drama, in Four Acts, by Chas. Watson Mill, entitled
"A WRECKER OF MEN."

A double dose of sensation is nightly administered to the patrons of the Grand Theatre, which is now devoted to the two-houses-a-night system, a whole drama being presented twice in the course of the evening. The attraction this week is A Wrecker of Men, which, compared with its first London performance at Greenwich in 1904, suffers no loss of interest and certainly no diminution of excitement. The magnitude of the undertaking may be imagined when it is stated that the effects of the play include a thunderstorm at sea and the foundering of a yacht, followed by a representation of an Egyptian temple of which an animated mummy is a startling feature. The company performing the piece is that of the author, and the parts throughout receive adequate rendition. The chief personage of the play is Risca Mallison, known as the "Serpent Woman," who is supposed to be the reincarnation of an ancient Egyptian woman of notoriously despicable ways, and in her modern existence has, by her wiles, secured the destruction of many men. The part is in the experienced hands of Mrs. Walter Bentley, who represents the abhorrent character in all its manifold shades of expression, not a little grim humour being infused into the performance. Guise Strange, a young man who rises superior to Risca's wiles, is sent to penal servitude on a false accusation, but eventually escapes, and succeeds in proving his innocence. He is represented in earnest and convincing fashion by Mr. Stanley Champion, whose prepossessing appearance is a valuable factor in his success. Doris Melville, the heroine, is played with confidence and refinement by Miss Cissie Podmore, who has several passionate scenes, which she makes very impressive. An outstanding part is that of Jim Murley, who is described as a "slogger," but is nevertheless a constant friend to the virtuous; while the humour of the play is greatly enhanced by his presence. The rôle is played by Mr. Frederick Biron with an all-round excellence far surpassing that of the ordinary comedian of melodrama. Mr. Biron is a general favourite, and at every appearance causes a hearty laugh at his drollery or arouses a cheer for his speeches, which he delivers in thrilling style. Mr. Millar Anderson acts vigorously as Railton, a devoted servant of Risca Mallison, and renders his lines with skilful emphasis; and the ungrateful part of Eric Melville, one of the "wrecked," is played with intensity and force by Mr. Thompson Carruthers. Mr. Milner Noble is duly picturesque in speech and gesture as Pharosaphus, an Egyptian wanderer; and Mr. Charles Earle cleverly doubles the part of a Jew with that of a "mummy," his sepulchral appearance in the latter character being truly awe-inspiring. The merriment of the evening is added to by Mr. Harry Dunning as the Hon. Reggie Verincourt, who is never too much of a "Johnnie" to stand up for virtue in distress; and the vagaries of Vavasole Slopper, a "slavey" of a distinct type, are divertingly presented by Miss Beatrice Reynolds. Miss Gwendoline Talbot makes a ladylike Marion Isaacs; Mr. B. Davis as a Lascar and Mr. Jack Walker as a warder should be commended; and the cast is completed by Messrs. H. M. Mecres, H. Helton, and A. Martin. Despite the short entr'actes, the play is mounted with every regard to realism, and meets with general approval.

THE CAMDEN.

On Monday, Oct. 29,
the Comedy, by Arthur Law, entitled
"A COUNTRY MOUSE."

For the past few weeks musical plays and operas have been the attraction, but this week a pleasant change is afforded by Miss Annie Hughes, who is appearing in her original part in Mr. Arthur Law's amusing comedy, A Country Mouse. The company is under the direction of Miss Emma Hutchison, and is a well-chosen one. As Angela Muir, Miss Annie Hughes is quite delightful and very amusing; her assumed innocence of every-day life is very cleverly done, and a ripple of laughter followed her performance. The large audience recognised the real value of her work, and gave her a splendid reception. As the Hon. Archibald Vyse, Mr. Charles Esdale is excellent, playing the part in a finished and refined manner. Mr. William Calvert gives a very good impression of John Bowlby, M.P., a clever piece of character-acting. Mr. Evelyn Vernon is amusing as the Duke of St. Kitts; and Mr. Thomas A. Braidon is most successful in the rôle of Lord Robert Wyckhem. Miss Moyra Creegan appears as Lady Sylvia, and she acts a somewhat difficult part with great judgment and skill. Miss Francis Davis is quite charming as Violet Aynsley, and Miss Ida Laurie is to be specially complimented on her clever sketch of the charwoman, Mrs. Cooper. Mr. John E. Watson, who is the manager for the company, gives a good impersonation of Jephcot. The comedy is preceded by Mrs. Oscar Beringer's clever little play, A Bit of Old Chelsea, in which Miss Annie Hughes appears as Saucers with marked success.

THE CORONET.

On Monday, Oct. 29,
the Comic Opera,
by Arthur Sullivan and W. S. Gilbert, entitled
"IOLANTHE."

The last week of the D'Oyly Carte Répertoire Opera Company has been equally successful with the preceding ones, and crowded houses have testified to their appreciation and delight at the playful wit and fancy of William Schwenck Gilbert and the rippling, tuneful melodies of the late Sir Arthur Sullivan. The bill of fare for the week has consisted of Iolanthe, Princess Ida, The Mikado, The Gondoliers, Patience, and to-day (Saturday) a matinée of The Pirates of Penzance, The Yeomen of the Guard being given this evening. It is passing strange how up-to-date a clever, far-sighted dramatist or librettist can be, and probably Mr. Gilbert had no idea in his mind of the advent of the suffragette when he wrote the libretto of Iolanthe, yet the close relation of the interfering fairies to this bogey of the present day occurred simultaneously to many among the audience, and caused them to shout with laughter. Nor is this the only theme of discussion which is singularly applicable to modern methods. Mr. C. H. Workman is absolutely grand as the highly-susceptible Chancellor, and his nimbleness of toe is little short of marvellous. All his songs—"Said I to myself, said I" and "The nightmare" patter song especially—are rendered with humorous point and emphasis. Miss Hope Hastings is very charming as Phyllis, the Arcadian shepherdess and ward in Chancery, and her wonderfully sweet and flexible voice, with its bell-like upper notes, sets off to perfection the pretty songs allotted to her; and notable among them is the duet, "Naught shall part us," in which Mr. Albert Kavanagh renders her no small assistance. Mr. Kavanagh is delightful as that personification of affability and rustic simplicity allied to a fairy-like, bucolic beauty, young Strephon, the Arcadian shepherd, who is mortal only in his extremities! Miss Lulu Evans contributes a very pretty and pathetic picture of Iolanthe, the erring fairy, and her rendering of the plaintive ditty, "If in the bygone years," is very pleasing and characteristic. Mr. Leicester Tunks is seen to advantage as the unassuming young nobleman, the Earl of Mountararat, and sings remarkably well; and equal praise is due to Mr. Pacie Ripple as the still more modest Earl Tolloller. Miss Theresa Rassam is exceedingly good as the commanding yet urbane and adipose Queen of the Fairies, and her songs are most agreeably rendered. Mr. Fred Billington is irresistibly droll as the portly Private Willis, of the Grenadier Guards, with his splendid song of the little Liberal or Conservative. Misses Bessill Adams, Mabel Burnege, and Mabel Graham, as Celia, Leila, and Fleta, lead the chorus of sweet-voiced Fairies, and a word of commendation is due to the fine chorus of Peers. Mr. Fred A. Leon is again responsible for the stage management, whilst Mr. H. E. Bellamy assists Mr. Edward Lytton in the front of the house.

THE SHAKESPEARE.

On Monday, Oct. 29,
the Pantomimical Farce, in Three Acts, entitled
"HIS MAJESTY'S GUESTS."

This popular and diverting pantomimical farce, brought up to date with new songs, &c., is attracting large audiences to the Shakespeare, where Mr. Fred Karno's company is being received with great enthusiasm. Bristling with comic incidents, of which full advantage is taken by the respective comedians, the performance from start to finish is thoroughly enjoyable. The piece, too, is staged with completeness, and the scenery and dresses leave nothing to be desired. Mr. George Hestor, a comedian of the highest order, scores a decided hit in the part of Sergeant Lightning, his clever acting keeping the audience in a state of uproarious laughter throughout. An excellent contrast is the Lord Easem of Mr. Frank Morton, whose fine voice is heard to advantage in several songs, which gain well-deserved encores. Mr. Charles Usher is thoroughly satisfactory in the rôle of Mr. Miffin; Mr. Alec Munro is a capable exponent of Harry; Mr. Johnny Clegg makes the most of his part of Mr. Minks; and Mr. Dick Kitchen as Fritz, the doorkeeper, also contributes to the fun. The part of the flunkey Bunker is creditably sustained by Mr. Harry Howe; Mr. Tom Marnado deserves warm praise for his excellent impersonation of Selina; Miss Berenice Maxwell makes a charming appearance in the part of Dolly Miffin, her singing being greatly appreciated; Miss Leonora Castelle submits a clever delineation of Lady Maud Easem, acting with marked ability; and Miss Kitty Brunton as Miss Manley gives an excellent picture of a New Woman. A feature of the play is the clever acrobatic work of the Karno Troupe, which is responsible for a deal of the fun, scoring a decided hit also in "The Burglars" song. Mr. Lyndon Greenwood is the acting-manager, Mr. Charles Usher stage-manager, and Mr. F. H. J. Moran musical director for Mr. Fred Karno.

NEW PRINCE'S THEATRE, POPLAR.

On Monday, Oct. 29,
the Musical Pantomimical Comedy, in Four Acts, entitled
"THE SWISS EXPRESS."

Like Charley's Aunt, The Swiss Express is still running, and Messrs. C. and F. Renads' excellent company is this week providing plenty of amusement to the patrons of the New Princes Theatre.

The Sleeping-car scene brims over with fun and merriment, and one is almost inclined to pity poor Dr. Gull, who has so many tricks played on him whilst on his honeymoon, although he is a quack and swindler.

The brothers C. and F. Renad provide the bulk of the amusement, and are exceedingly eccentric and clever with their acrobatic and other feats. Mr. Johnny McElroy is excellent as Dr. Gondimar Gull, and scores with his song, entitled "A man without a girl." Mr. George Martin as Bob Rollingstone is well suited, and Mr. Alec Wylie causes many laughs as Dudeley Green, the comical dude. Mr. Wilfred E. Brandon as the landlord of the Black Bear Inn does capital service, and Mr. C. Gray is quite satisfactory as Mr. Septimus Squeeze.

Miss Blanche Lee, Miss Rosa George, Miss Violet Lee, and Miss Rosa Montague all dance well, and are equally at home in their parts of the bridesmaids or as maids at the hotel. Miss Ida Ernest plays the part of Virginia, the bride, with much charm and vivacity; her singing and dancing are much to be commended. Miss Dora Moorhouse is impressive as Mrs. Septimus Squeeze; Mr. Cecil Barrett is an awe-inspiring Gendarme of a particularly ferocious aspect. Smaller parts are all well played.

ALEXANDRA THEATRE, N.

On Monday, Oct. 29,
the Play, in Four Acts, by Alfred Sutro,
entitled
"THE WALLS OF JERICHO."

Mr. Alfred Sutro's clever play, presented by Messrs. Silvanus Dauncey and M. V. Leveaux's company, is again at the Alexandra, and loses none of its attraction and power from the manner in which it is performed, the principal characters being especially well played. A more manly, virile, and robust representative of Jack Frobisher than that supplied by Mr. Herbert Bunston would be difficult to find. He plays the part in an incisive, straightforward way that appeals directly to his audience, and the fine opportunity afforded in the telling speech towards the close of the third act is taken full advantage of. The rough diamond, Hankey Bannister, of Mr. George A. Brandram is an admirable study of character, the gaucheric of the old miner being presented without undue elaboration. Mr. Cyril Balcine supplies a finished and artistic performance of the dissipated old roué, the Marquis of Steventon, his playing in the scene between Frobisher and the Marquis in the third act being particularly good. As Lady Alethea Frobisher, Miss Florence Jackson has no easy task to fulfil, but she is fully equal to all demands made upon her, and is completely successful in her delineation of this difficult and complex character. Lady Lucy Derenham and Lady Westerby are well played by Miss Molly Carton and Miss Lydia Busch; and the Harry Dallas of Mr. Sydney Hamilton is a sound piece of work. Other parts worthy of notice are those filled by Messrs. Alexander Casey, E. F. Meads, Harry Pemberton, and Joseph Herbert, and Misses Rita Milman and Edith Cuthbert.

THE LYRIC, HAMMERSMITH.

On Monday, Oct. 29,
the Drama, in Four Acts, by Arthur Shirley,
entitled
"THE MIDNIGHT MAIL."

This week the domestic drama, The Midnight Mail, is being presented at the Lyric by Messrs. Dottridge and Longden's company. Miss Ada Oakley is a pathetic and convincing Mary Steyne, and succeeds in obtaining a hearty reception. Mr. Alfred Goddard is excellent as Harry Steyne, the somewhat weak but heroic engine-driver, and rouses his audience nightly. From the part of Billy Brewer, Mr. Fred E. Evison extracts much merriment; Mr. Robert Grey, who is the manly yet unfortunate Leonard Royle, receives much applause. The vivacious Nancy Brewer is played with success by Miss Mildred Carr; a charming performance is given by Miss Grace Chesterfield as Mrs. Mildmay; Miss Phyllis Dailley portrays Lady Phyllis Eustace very capably. Others who deserve praise are Mr. Arthur Gilroy as Hassan Padisha, and Mr. Charles McCann as Donald Craigg, both of whom, in their respective parts, are valuable units to a successful company.

THE CROWN, PECKHAM.

On Monday, Oct. 29,
Mr. and Mrs. F. R. Benson and Company in
"THE TAMING OF THE SHREW."

It is a long time since we have seen Shakespeare's plays at Peckham, and the enterprise shown by Mr. Cecil Paget in securing Mr. and Mrs. F. R. Benson and company in a series of the most notable productions of the Swan of Avon is meeting with the great success that it merits. A crowded audience assembled on Monday evening to witness The Taming of the Shrew, one of the most bustling and frankly farcical of Shakespeare's comedies. Albeit the main theme of the story, which concerns itself with the subjugation of a high-spirited woman by the strong, if not brutal, personality of her husband, seems in these modern days to be a little old-fashioned, Mr. F. R. Benson skilfully triumphs over all obstacles. The actor gives us a fine, virile study of Petruchio, and shows by a score of skilful touches that "the tamer" possesses real affection for the wayward girl he has married. Mr. Benson's high spirits and buoyant humour are exactly suited to the part. Mrs. Benson makes an appropriately shrewish Katharina, and the gradual conquest of her stubborn nature is well shown by this accomplished actress. The ripe humour of that favourite low comedian, Mr. G. R. Weir, finds plenty of opportunity in the rôle of the servant Grumio; and Biondello becomes a very clever character-sketch in the hands of Mr. Percy D. Owen, who makes a decided success in the part. Mr. George Buchannan looks handsome and acts with fervour as the lover Lucentio; Miss Gwladys Wynne makes a sweet and pretty Bianca, while Mr. H. O. Nicholson as Gremio, Mr. Clarence Derwent as Iranio, and Mr. Edward A. Warburton as Baptista contribute greatly to the success. The minor characters are all in good hands. In Act V. Miss Cissy Saumarey sings very sweetly "Should he upbraid." During the week Macbeth, Henry V., The Merchant of Venice, and The School for Scandal have been performed. To-day (Saturday) there will (by special request) be a matinée of As You Like It, and in the evening Hamlet will be produced.

THE GRAND, FULHAM.

On Monday, Oct. 29,
the Farce, in Three Acts, by E. H. Perry and Frederick Mouillot, entitled
"WHAT THE BUTLER SAW."

A company under the direction of Mr. Lionel Rignold, with himself and Miss Ada Blanche in the leading rôles, has been visiting Fulham with the successful play from Wyndham's and the Savoy. By this time a good many playgoers have found out what the butler did see, and have joined him in many a hearty laugh. Mr. Rignold is well suited as Pink, the butler, and keeps the fun going with great success. Like another famous butler, the late Mr. Toole, he hovers round the guests most assiduously, extracting humour from their foibles, and his laughter is infectious. Miss Blanche is excellent as Mrs. Barrington. The supposed widow, by means of clever little touches, now and again gives a glimpse of her real love for her husband, and adds a charming note of sincerity to her comedy. Mr. Charles Fawcett as the mercurial Barrington submits a delightful representation, and shares the honours of the play with Mr. Rignold and Miss Blanche. Miss Marie Dalton contributes a good sketch of Miss Poden; Mr. G. M. Ascot is good as the peppery General Dunlop; as are also Mr. Reddich Anderson as Sir Charles and Mr. Alec Alves as Vere de Bogyns. Mr. Harry Rignold is amusing as Abraham Weinstein; and Mr. Roy Byford is really clever in his performance of the elephantine Professor. Miss Annie Goward does well as Mrs. Hake; and Miss Willett as Sophonisba, the Misses Davies and O'Connell as the Dunlop Girls, and Miss Jennie Wigney as Nora are all up to their work, Miss Dorothy Garth being a bright and amusing Maria.

DALSTON THEATRE.

On Monday, Oct. 29,
the Play, by Charles Darrell, entitled
"WHEN LONDON SLEEPS."

Mr. Lester Collingwood's company, appearing this week in the realistic play, When London Sleeps, is meeting with a most cordial reception. Mr. C. P. Wentworth, in undertaking the part of Captain Rodney Hayes, has to portray a most relentless villain. To his credit as an actor it may be conceded that he assumes the character in a convincing manner. Mr. Sam Arthur as David Engleheart, an athlete, known as the "Star of the Air," gives a manly touch to the impersonation which secures popularity. Mr. F. E. Thomas as Bob Jones does full justice to the comicalities associated with the proprietorship of a small circus; and Mrs. Edgar Colona is a success as the showman's wife. Mr. D'Arcy Kelway makes a humorous as well as a vigorous Sammy Blyth, a handy man in the circus ring; and Mr. Frank Howard as the Hon. Bertie Broomhead, who is seeing life, is also amusing in the way peculiar to that class of character. Miss Mable Scudamore evidently takes the fancy of the audience as Queenie Carruthers, "White Queen of the Slack Wire." Her acting is certainly sympathetic. Others who take prominent parts include Mr. Charles E. Sutton, Mr. Harry Barham, Mr. Fred Bernardo, Mr. Otto Clayton, Miss Maude Yorke, Miss Bessie Frank, Miss Daisy Clifford, Miss Helen Holmes, and Miss Josephine Melbourne.

GRAND THEATRE, FOREST GATE.

On Monday, Oct. 29,
the Drama, in Four Acts, by Watts Phillips,
entitled
"LOST IN LONDON."

This theatre has again come under the popular management of Mr. Herbert Sibley, who has opened with a stock company and popular prices. The result has proved eminently satisfactory, the building being fairly full each night. Mr. Johnstone Gould gave a powerful rendering of the part of Job Armroyd, whose grief at the loss of his wife was portrayed so naturally as to bring tears to the eyes of many of the audience; Miss Nellie Lucas won all hearts by her touching performance of Nelly; Mr. James Fettes gave a clever impersonation in the character of Gilbert Featherstone; Mr. Alfred Groves was all that could be desired as Sir Richard Loader; Mr. Charles Wisher was soon on excellent terms with the audience as Benjamin Blinker; Miss Kate Roberts (a great local favourite) ably sustained the character of Teddy Tragglethorpe; Flounce had a capital representative in Miss Edith Wenbrook. The play has been mounted in a manner that is highly creditable to the management.

THEATRE ROYAL, STRATFORD.

On Monday, Oct. 29,
the Drama, in Five Acts, by G. Carlton Wallace,
entitled
"THE VILLAGE BLACKSMITH."

Longfellow's poem has been admirably utilised to provide the subject-matter for the piece under notice, and the peaceful picture presented in the opening act of the Village Smithy, with the brawny blacksmith at his forge, is one which few would wish for dark clouds to overcast. However, despite the vicissitudes through which John Strong and his wife and child have to pass, owing to the appearance on the horizon of an evil spirit in one Captain Leo, their blissful country home is eventually restored to them, though not before the powerful John Strong has given an exposition of his wrestling prowess which occurs when he competes against that rascally athlete, Captain Leo, who is defeated and accidentally killed. Messrs. Dottridge, Longden, and Livesay's company most creditably interprets the piece. Mr. Sam Livesay is well endowed physically for the part of John Strong, and he acts throughout most incisively. Mr. Joseph Carter depicts the villainous Captain Leo with an ease and assurance which is most effective, and his performance is in every way praiseworthy. A lesser villain in Lucas Marlow is graphically delineated by Mr. Edwin Meydew; and Mr. Thomas E. Marshall is responsible for a sterling performance in the character-part of Jeremiah Parkins. Mr. George V. Campbell depicts the bucolic Billy Twigg with a keen sense of humour; and Mr. George Wilton does capitally as the Music Hall Manager. Miss Maggie Edwards makes a charming and graceful Kate Strong; and Miss Cassie le Grande easily enlists the sympathies of the audience for the much-wronged Ruth Parkins. Sal Parkins is made sufficiently vicious in the capable hands of Mrs. T. C. Livesay; and Miss Edith Giddens makes a bright and amusing Martha Mopps. Minor parts are all ably played.

ELEPHANT AND CASTLE.

On Monday, Oct. 29,
the Four-Act Play, by William Bourne, entitled
"WHEN DARKNESS FALLS."

Mr. J. M. East's stock company this week is presenting the powerful military and domestic drama When Darkness Falls, and right well they do it, every part being played in a way which indeed denotes careful study and rehearsal. Mr. Albert Ward gives a finished and attractive impersonation of the young Captain Montrevor; Mr. William Felton as the Rev. Arthur Graham makes a delightfully unaffected young clergyman, and acts with a degree of dignity and earnestness which carries distinction. Instead of the polished, refined villain, Mr. Horace Hunter this week shows his versatility by taking the part of James Woodruffe, ex-Army captain. Mr. Hunter is eminently successful in portraying the vulgar, degraded débauché, his methods being resourceful and well thought out. A foreign spy, Bertin, is capitally presented by Mr. Brian Daly; Mr. Edward Boddy is excellent as Inspector Digby, whilst Mr. Paul Peters as a pawnbroker is effective. Mr. Teddy Coleman seems to revel in the part of Mike Kavanagh, and induces repeated peals of merriment by his quizzical humour. As Jenny, a demure domestic, Miss Agnes Paulton is happily placed. As Jim and Harry, Miss Ross and Miss Dora Hannesley are capital; they very ably show the striking difference in temperament between the two waifs. Miss Therese Osborne in a trying character, that of the wife of James Woodruffe, gains much approbation by her clever impersonation. The heroine, Helen Montrevor, is portrayed by Miss Kathleen Russell with much tenderness and charm, her acting towards the end being touching in the extreme. Incidental music is very ably supplied by the orchestra, under Mr. J. Nurnberger. Mr. R. A. Neville is the genial and energetic acting-manager.

KENNINGTON THEATRE.

On Monday, Oct. 29,
the Comedy by Alfred Sutro, entitled
"THE FASCINATING MR. VANDERVELDT."

One of the prettiest and most interesting comedies that have been seen this year is The Fascinating Mr. Vanderveldt, who has been nightly making fresh conquests at Kennington Theatre. The play is produced by the strong company which is touring under the direction of Messrs. Sylvanus Dauncey and M. V. Leveaux, and full effect is given to the biting satire on the conventions of a modern society which abounds in Mr. Sutro's brilliant dialogue. As Mr. Vanderveldt, the hopeless rake but ever hopeful lover, Mr. Reginald Dance scores a big success. It is by no means an easy part to play, but Mr. Dance is an artist of great ability and much resource, and his interpretation reflects considerable credit on his artistic perception. Miss Gladys Mason admirably supports Mr. Dance in the rôle of Lady Clarice Howland, the charming, but somewhat wayward, widow. Miss Mason is an accomplished actress, and she finds ample scope for her histrionic powers. Miss Agnes Gunn is exceedingly clever as Miss Pelling, the lady companion, and her attractive appearance renders her a warm favourite. Mr. H. Lawrence Leyton is a soldierly Col. Rayner; whilst as Mr. Goddlestone and Sir Batholomew Cardick, Mr. G. A. Seeger and Mr. Russell Barry are responsible for a great deal of merriment. The part of Lord Woolham is finely sustained by Mr. Edward Coutts, and Miss Eva Titheradge makes a winsome American girl. As the austere Marchioness, Miss Mary Weigall is admirable; and Miss May Brooke is a very good Lady Clementina. Mr. Geo. Percy, in the character of the unsophisticated parson, is the subject of considerable mirth; and others who should be mentioned favourably are Mr. F. Vernon Travers as the inn-keeper, Mr. Gerald Henson as the inn-keeper's son, Miss Helen Tytler as the inn-keeper's wife, and Miss Dorothy Haigh as Mrs. Brevell. The comedy is preceded by that weirdly thrilling drama, The Drums of Oude, in which Mr. Dance, as Captain McGregor, is able to give full evidence of his versatile qualities.

THE PAVILION.

On Monday, Oct. 29,
the Drama, in Four Acts, by M. Katz, entitled
"THE ZIONIST."

On Monday evening the Jewish Operatic and Dramatic Company appeared in M. Katz's strong and virile drama, The Zionist, which was produced in so complete a manner as to give entire satisfaction to a large and appreciative audience. Mr. S. Feinman played with considerable power, and presented a fairly drawn and finished portraiture of the Zionist, Reb Yechezkel Lando. Mr. M. D. Waxman as Diomka gave a well-studied performance, while his make-up was exceedingly good; and a careful interpretation of Judah Leib was given by Mr. Goldsmith. Mr. Gusofsky as Efroim fully sustained his reputation as an accomplished artist; throughout the representation his splendid vocalism and excellent acting evoked hearty applause. Mr. N. Hamburger as Schamrie Zukerfass commanded respect and admiration by his undoubted ability, and Mr. Schilling infused much life into the part of Schachne Pinchas. Mme. F. Waxman deserves commendation for her successful delineation of Scheindel; and Miss R. Bryh as Mariashe came through a trying ordeal triumphantly. Mme. Goldstein was a conscientious Chane, and a capable Corele was found in Miss Lubritsky. As a policeman, Mr. Isaacowitch was effective; while Mr. Markowitz was a competent Yontel. The play was staged in a most attractive manner, and the orchestra and chorus rendered valuable assistance. During the week Gabriel, Hanncle the Finisher, The Rich Beggar, Mirele Efras, and Hyman in America have been performed.

COUNTY THEATRE, KINGSTON.

On Monday, Oct. 29,
the Musical Play, in Three Acts, entitled
"THE DANDY DOCTOR."

Mr. Edward Marris's company is appearing at the Royal County this week in this clever combination of fun and frolic, which is attracting good audiences, and affording no end of amusement to them. The maid-of-all-work Jane is played by Miss Florence Smithers with great success; and Miss Elfie Vincent as Ivy Pendred has won much favour, particularly for her graceful dancing. Miss Rosie Chandler for the same reason has also won the favour of the audiences. Mr. Edward Marris as the doctor has made a great hit, and good work is done by Mr. Herbert Pearce as Col. Pendred. Other characters are ably sustained. There is a numerous and well-trained chorus under the direction of Mr. G. Jenkinson.

THE DRAMA IN PARIS.

"LA PREFEREE,"

Comedy, in Three Acts, by M. L. Descaves, produced at the Odéon on Oct. 25.

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

PARIS, THURSDAY, NOV. 1.—We have had this week a deluge of novelties, but none of the works produced—although from the pens of well-known and talented authors—have come up to our expectations. M. Antoine especially disappointed us. He inaugurated his management of the Odéon, and an "all-Paris" audience had assembled to celebrate the event. We began by admiring the improvements he has made in the theatre. The old stalls have disappeared and been replaced by up-to-date seats. A broad passage-way has been cut down the middle, and other useful changes have been made, adding to the comfort of the audience. M. Descaves' new comedy contains a very fine second act, which created a deep impression, but the opening scenes are so entangled and the dénouement is so obscure that towards the end we almost ceased to feel interested in the personages. The plot reminds us rather of that of Le Père, brought out a few years ago at the Théâtre Antoine. M. Charlier, who holds an important post in one of the government offices, has two daughters, Isabelle, engaged to be married to a Colonial official, and Souci, a bright sixteen-year-old girl, as impetuous and affectionate as her sister is reserved and undemonstrative. No wonder therefore, she is her father's favourite, his "préférée." A blackmailing creature, in the shape of a woman, informs M. Charlier that sixteen years ago Thérèse, his wife, had been the mistress of a man, since dead; and that Souci is not his daughter at all. Stunned by this blow, the poor father leaves the house and resolves upon a divorce. Neither Isabelle nor Souci have the least idea of what has happened. After a week he returns, for he is pining after his little Souci. And then we witness a pretty scene between Souci, who cannot understand her father's sudden coolness, and the man who struggles in vain against the love that binds him to the child. What we expect occurs. Charlier, remembering the many years of domestic happiness his wife has given him; forgives her, and everything ends happily. The play was fairly well interpreted. M. Duquesne did not seem quite at home in the rôle of Charlier. Mme. Charlier was impersonated by Mlle Devoyod, who was not natural enough. Mlle. Lély, on the other hand, gave unbounded satisfaction as little Souci. She was really delightful.

THE night's entertainment wound up with La Recommandation, a one-act trifle, by M. Max Maurey. A poor out-at-elbows fellow applies for a post. He is humble and gentle. But the moment he has secured the position he shows himself a terrible tyrant, bullying all his subordinates. The sarcastic, well-written sketch was received with roars of laughter.

AT the Théâtre Cluny we have had the première of Le Coup du Million, a three-act farce by MM. Desvallières and Eugène Millon. It is not very funny, but it may suit the easily-amused public that frequents that playhouse. Maurice Trémonin has inherited a million francs from an old uncle, but the testator makes it a condition that his nephew shall only receive the money if his wife is unfaithful to him. Trémonin thereupon at once marries his mistress, Thérèse, a flighty damsel, who always deceived him. But Thérèse, now that she has become "respectable," remains on the straight path. Trémonin's friends, at his bidding, try to lead the lady astray. All in vain. Thérèse remains steadfast. In the end Trémonin disguises himself as a burglar, and entering his wife's room takes the lady by surprise. And Trémonin is happy. His wife has not deceived him, and the million will be paid to him.

A CURIOUS law-suit has been brought into Court. M. Marcel Simon had engaged M. Le Bargy and Mme. Jane Hading to go on tour with him. Each partner was to receive one-third of the proceeds. The tour proved a great financial success. In Bordeaux, however, an incident occurred. Through a mistake on the railway company's part the trunks did not arrive in time, and the performance could not be given. M. Marcel Simon claimed and received £240 damages from the railway company. But when his two partners asked for their share of the amount, he refused to give them a cent. Both M. Le Bargy and Mme. Hading are very wealthy, but as they reckon they are entitled to £120 each they are sueing M. Simon.

AT the instigation of M. Albert Carré, of the Opéra Comique, the managers of the principal Paris theatres held a meeting to discuss the Franck-Bernstein incident. Among those present were M. André Antoine, M. Fontanes, M. Franck, M. Gémier, M. Micheau, M. Porel, and M. Richemond. M. Carré presided, and informed his colleagues that the question before them was to decide whether an author has the right to withdraw a piece accepted by a theatre without any plausible reason. In the present case M. Bernstein had demanded from M. Alphonse Franck the return of his comedy, Le Voleur, because, Mme. Le Bargy having fallen ill, the piece would not be ready for production at the Gymnase on the 20th inst., the date mentioned in the contract. M. Bernstein offers to pay the £320 forfeit, which M. Franck refuses to accept. The latter argues (and not without reason) that, having guaranteed the author one hundred performances, and spent a much larger sum on costumes and scenery, not reckoning the special engagement of well-known artists, the author is in no way justified in taking away his piece. There is, of course, no doubt that if brought into court M. Franck would lose his case. But, as he pointed out to his colleagues, it is a question of fairness between playwright and manager, and, for that reason, affects the interests of every theatrical manager in France. The gentlemen present seemed to take that view, and one of them, whom I will not mention, even went so far as to suggest that they all should boycott M. Bernstein. Good sense, however, prevailed; and, on the principle of audi alteram partem, M. Bernstein was invited to attend the next meeting to state his case if he liked. This M. Bernstein has done; but the proceedings were kept secret. It, however, is more than likely that an amicable arrangement will be arrived at.

AN influential committee is co-operating with the Concert-Goers' Club in organising the banquet to be given to Mr. Joseph Bennett on the occasion of his retirement from the active duties of musical criticism, and to mark the appreciation of the musical world at large of his unequalled services to music. Sir Alexander Mackenzie has consented to take the chair, and the committee includes Lord Burnham, Sir Hubert Parry, Sir Frederick Bridge, Sir Edward Elgar, Sir August Manns, Sir Charles Hanford, Dr. Henry Coward, Dr. F. H. Cowen, Dr. W. H. Cummings, Mr. J. Spencer Curwen, Mr. Ben Davies, Mr. B. W. Findon, Mr. Edward German, the Hon. Harry Lawson, Mr. Edward Lloyd, Mr. J. A. Fuller Maitland, Mr. Claude Phillips, Mr. Charles Santley, Mr. Albert Randegger, Mr. Hugh Thomson, Signor F. Paolo Tosti, and Mr. A. Visetti. Tickets for ladies or gentlemen are 6s. each, and can be obtained of Mr. W. E. Renaut, secretary of the Club, at 4, Tenterden-street, Hanover-square, W.

That Mr. Robert Ganthony, the well-known playwright, is held in high esteem in his native place—he was born in Richmond, and has resided there practically all his life—was fully made manifest by the testimonial benefit given in his honour at the Castle Theatre, Richmond, this week, when Tuesday and Wednesday evenings were devoted to performances of his new comedy, Uncle Jack. The performances were held under the direction and patronage of a very strong committee, with the Mayor of Richmond (Councillor W. Sandover) as the president, the vice-presidents including the Right. Hon. Lord Justice Fletcher Moulton, Mr. J. Henniker Heaton, M.P., Mr. Under-Sheriff Langton, Sir Wm. P. Treloar, Sir Smallman Smith, Mr. Frederick Hallison, Sir Thomas Skewes-Cox, Mr. George Cane, K.C., M.P., Colonel W. J. Bosworth, and Mr. Mostyn Pigott.

The play itself was, on the whole, extremely well received, although it was produced under the obvious difficulties usually associated with the work of amateur actors and actresses. Uncle Jack, the principal character, otherwise Lord Burke of Trenton, is the British Ambassador at the Court of Illyria. The name brings to one's mind thoughts of ancient Rome, of Cæsar, Augustus, and Diocletian; but it is quite a modern story that Mr. Ganthony gives us, and it has very little to do with Illyria. Lord Burke—or Uncle Jack, as he is more frequently referred to—is a man of the world who at a somewhat late period in life has fallen in love with his pretty ward, Hazel Stanmore, whose father is the good-natured, easy-going, and, if anything, somewhat weak-minded Rector of Riverdale. Hazel is arranging to hold a water carnival in the grounds of Faudraux Hall in aid of some charitable object, and in order to carry out her plans to the best advantage she has engaged the services of a Mr. Mordaunt, a variety agent. Mordaunt is a man with a past, and there are one or two unpleasant incidents in that past, of which more anon. The rector's daughter goes to London in the company of Mordaunt to attend to certain details respecting the fête. Missing her last train back to Riverdale, she stays at a Piccadilly hotel for the night. She has written a note to the agent, and he contrives to frighten her into the belief that it is of a compromising character, and although the document is of quite an innocent and simple character when read in connection with the whole contents, yet by tearing off a portion of the letter a deeper significance is imparted to it. The girl, not desiring that her father should be worried with even the slightest suggestion of anything improper, gives way to Mordaunt's demand for money. She parts with all the cash she has in hand, and even agrees to let him have a valuable ring she is wearing and which she inadvertently drops upon the ground. It is afterwards picked up by a servant and handed to Lord Burke, along with some "information" as to an overheard conversation between Hazel and the agent. When, for the first time, at the fête, Lord Burke meets Mordaunt, he recognises in that worthy a swindling theatrical manager who had left his company and his wife stranded at Illyria, a false report of his death being subsequently circulated. Mordaunt's wife, a variety artist of the name of Avola, has been married to the rector's son, Herbert Stanmore, a wild and somewhat foolish young man. Avola is also of the carnival party, and in her inebriated state a very vulgar exhibition she makes of herself. Lord Burke's experience of life and his well-trained diplomatic instinct find fitting objects for their employment in the intrigues of Mr. Mordaunt. Uncle Jack quickly sees the trend of things, and as quickly draws his own conclusions therefrom. Hazel comes to him with a request for fifty pounds. As her guardian, he tells her that it is only right and proper that he should know for what purpose she requires the money. Then, without waiting for her to answer his question, he indicates that the money is intended for the blackguardly agent. Gradually the whole story emanates from the girl's unwilling lips. A few seconds later—in fact, before Hazel has been dismissed from the presence of Lord Burke—Avola darts into the room in her usual impudent manner. Uncle Jack speaks to her on the subject of her marriage with Mordaunt, and of her later alliance to young Stanhope when she knew that her first husband was alive. Cornered by a clever and strong-minded man, and finding that equivocation is useless, she admits everything, and seems rather to rejoice in her bigamous action. Lord Burke sends her to her room, instructing her to don her hat and cloak and await his summons. Mordaunt enters, and Uncle Jack gives him plainly to understand that his identity is revealed—that he has recognised him as the man who, under a different name, deserted his wife in Illyria. Avola is fetched, and acknowledges the agent to be her lawful husband. The end of it is that the incriminating letter written by Hazel is purchased by Lord Burke, the rector's son is able once more to consider himself unbound by any matrimonial ties, and the blackmailing agent and his wife retire from the neighbourhood, it is hoped, for ever. And then the ring which had been picked up is placed by Uncle Jack on the finger of Hazel Stanmore, and the curtain falls upon a pretty mutual avowal of love.

As to the acting, Mr. J. J. Bisgood's characterisation of Uncle Jack stood out on the opening night as by far the best performance. He gave one the impression of a man accustomed to command, of a gentleman who never for one moment forgot the dignity of his ambassadorial office or of his own personal importance. He was an ideal man of the world, of undoubted good breeding and aristocratic manner. Mr. Robert Ganthony presented a characteristic study of an exceedingly simple-minded clergyman, who seemed more lacking in knowledge of the world than the average of his calling. As the rector's daughter, Miss Eva Clare showed a sound appreciation of the light and the shade of the character, and acted throughout in a way that was natural and unaffecting. Mr. G. M. Smith was good in a capital portraiture of the blackguardly variety agent; and Miss Florence A. Aikman was amusing as the pert and lively, yet vulgar, music hall artist. Miss Manley was responsible for a clever impersonation of a scandal-mongering old society dame, and a most pleasing performance was submitted by Miss J. Gillott as a very charming and venerable dowager duchess. Mr. Alick Manley gave a really admirable representation of an old gardener; and Mr. Edgar Wicks was good as a restaurant-keeper who had risen to civic honours.

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

Mr. Barton White's story of Jack and Jill, produced at the Gaiety Theatre, Manchester, on Monday, under the personal direction of Mr. Willie Edouin, is founded on the successful opera, Toto and Tata, and contains all the requirements of a success which, no doubt, it will attain.

The opening scene is the perfume factory of Colonel Chorley, whose financial difficulties suggest to him, and to his sister Lady Verona Jukes, that the latter's son, Cleasby, should marry Jill, the daughter of Jos. Bullard, a wealthy mustard king. This is a project highly acceptable to Mr. Bullard—who is also the Mayor of Mulborough—especially because he is made to believe by Colonel Chorley and Lady Verona, assisted by the comic pretences of Cleasby himself, that the young man—styling himself Captain St. Cyr—has seen service in South Africa, and is possessed of the genuine military instinct. To have a military hero for a son-in-law is more to Mr. Bullard's mind than to have his daughter marry young Garnet Manners, a barrister who has conscientiously won a case against the Mustard King, and who looks with decided suspicion upon the military pretensions of his rival Cleasby. The latter is the foreman in his uncle's factory; but at this time he is preoccupied with a book of military tactics, in the attempt to store his mind with knowledge, and acquire the rudiments of a dashing but imaginary experience with the colours. Also at the factory is Jack, Mr. Bullard's son, who is apprenticed to the perfumery business; and this youth is distinctly of a mischievous turn of mind, and more inclined to favour the suit of Manners, the barrister, than the short-sighted Cleasby Jukes.

Having expressed his determination that his daughter shall marry Cleasby, Mr. Bullard gives a reception, at which it is intended that the betrothal shall take place. In this scene the irrepressible Jack has his opportunities to impersonate Jill, sister and brother being so much alike that their own father can distinguish one from the other only by their clothes. Garnet Manners makes his appearance, and arranges that Jill shall elope with him at a certain hour; to give Jill her chance to get away, Jack puts on some of her clothes, and is on the spot when the moment for Cleasby Jukes to make his proposal arrives; so that the spurious Captain's offer of marriage is made to Jack. Of course, the flight of Jill is discovered; the pair have gone away in Bullard's motor-car, and a pursuit is at once begun, which reaches its culmination on the platform of a country railway station near Mulborough. Here, after a number of changes of personality between Jill and Jack, and a revelation of Cleasby's perfidy by Cissie Wix ("La Pirouette" of the halls), who, masquerading as a nurse, has come to remind the absconder of his promise to marry her, the action ends with the proper adjustment of the love affair and the exposure of Cleasby Jukes's pretensions. A variety of lively incidents are employed to illustrate the progress of the story, and the possibilities of a big comic success are great.

The dual rôle of Jack and Jill was undertaken by Miss Stella Gastelle, whose vivacious style was well suited to the sprightly character of the boy, and who invested her impersonation of the girl with a cleverly contrasted quietude and modesty. Great praise is due to her also for the extremely quick changes by which she surprised the house. As Cleasby Jukes, Mr. W. H. Powell acted with a ruminative quaintness and resourceful humour that made quite a success of the rôle, without the need of exaggerating to the point of eccentricity, and he lost no opportunity of getting the utmost out of the situation or the lines. Miss Kitty Cavendish as Cissie Wix, the girl who moves through the action in quest of Cleasby Jukes, was charming and clever from first to last; and as Jos. Bullard, mustard king and mayor—a mayor who "can't find his corporation" when he wants it—Mr. Fred Seymour gave quite a finished and enjoyable impersonation. Mr. Aubrey Carr as Garnet Manners acted well, but had few worthy opportunities as a vocalist; Mr. Frederick Hobbs as Captain Hatteris, scored a big success with his song, "You are mine to-day"; and neat work was done by Mr. William Griffin as Colonel Chorley, Miss Avis Grahame as Lady Verona Jukes, Miss Adelina Burgon as Susie, and Miss Vera Vallis as Netta. It should be added that the words—often remarkably witty—are supplemented by lyrics by Mr. C. Preston Wynne; and that Mr. Ernest Bucalossi and others are responsible for certain numbers. The music is tuneful, and the scenery is as bright and effective as could be wished.

MISS DOROTHEA WALENN'S RECITAL.

At Steinway Hall on Tuesday night, Miss Dorothea Walenn gave a successful violin recital. Miss Walenn was first heard in César Cui's Suite Concertante for violin (with accompaniment for piano). In the Intermezzo Scherzando the violinist's intonation was slightly faulty, but Miss Walenn quickly recovered, and played the beautiful cavatina (one of the finest numbers in the Suite) in a truly artistic and musicianly manner. It is in music of a refined and delicate character that the violinist's talents are best displayed. Other works given by Miss Walenn were Concerto in A major, Op. 45, by C. Sinding, the difficult third movement, Allegro Giocoso being brilliantly played. Miss Walenn was also heard in a well-written but not particularly attractive Reverie and a lively Caprice-Mazurka, by Emmaline Brook, accompanied by the composer. Miss Walenn was assisted by Mr. Roland Jackson, a tenor with a pure and pleasing voice of good compass. His first two songs, "O, Mistress Mine" and "Blow, blow, thou winter wind," by Roger Quilter, hardly did full justice to his vocal powers; but the lovely air "Che gelida Manina," from the first act of La Bohème, was sung in a most expressive and artistic style, Mr. Jackson heartily deserving the encore which followed. In this kind of song one of course misses the orchestra, but even with a simple pianoforte accompaniment Puccini's melody was worth scores of the commonplace ballads far too often sung in the concert-room. Two other songs, "Thy Beaming Eyes" (G. Macdowell) and "Through the long days and years" (F. Korbay) were also given by Mr. Roland Jackson. Miss May Walker ably performed the duties of accompanist. The recital was well attended, and Miss Walenn met with a most flattering reception.

ACTORS' DAY.

The Organising Committee, acting under a recommendation from the trustees, are making arrangements for the election of an Advisory Board, which shall represent all classes of contributors and advise as to the ultimate applications of the funds.

The broad lines of the scheme from its inception have been to place on a firmer basis recognised theatrical charities which are purely charities, and the formation of a Grant and Pension Fund for the benefit of contributors.

The constitution of the proposed Advisory Board is as follows:—

Actors (of these four at least must not have played in central London during the last twelve months)	11
Theatrical Managers' Association	2
Touring Managers' Association	2
Suburban Managers' Association	1
Provincial local managers	2
Business and acting-managers, London	1
Business and acting-managers, provincial local	1
Business and acting-managers, provinvincial touring	1
Authors	1

The Actors' Benevolent Fund and the Actors' Orphanage will each be invited to send a representative. The theatrical managers, the suburban managers, and the touring managers will be invited to nominate representatives through their associations. In other cases representatives will be elected by the votes of those whose class they represent.

Nominations, which must reach the Organising Committee not later than the last day of November, must be sent on copies of forms printed below:—

THE TERRISS.

On Monday, Oct. 29,
the Drama, by Wilton Jones and A. Melville,
entitled
"THE WOMAN IN BLACK."

This week we have an exciting drama full of dramatic interest and comic relief—in fact, just the sort of play the Rotherhithe audience will flock to see. There are several sensational scenes, notably a collision at sea, and the prevention of a railway accident by the hero. Full justice is done to the drama by the talented stock company, headed by the old favourite, Mr. Ashley Page, who plays the hero, Frank Edenbridge. Mr. Page is deservedly the "Darling of the Gods," and his notable character-portrait adds another feather to his cap as one of his most popular impersonations.

Miss Marion Denvil makes a popular and pathetic Ruth Branstone, Frank's sorely-tried young wife. Mr. Johnny Chippendale, who is the favourite low comedian here, extracts every ounce of fun out of the rôle of Bill Stokes, ostler, policeman, and porter; and Miss Mattie Everett as Gwenny Morgan is a bright and winsome Welsh maid-servant. Miss East Robertson gives a powerful impersonation of the revengeful "Woman in Black." Mr. Alf. Harding gains the hisses of the gallery for the excellence of his acting as the villainous Captain Edenbridge; Mr. John Sargent as Pierre Duval and Mr. C. A. Chandler as Count Ivan Orloff contribute excellent character-sketches; Mr. Tom Taylor, an old favourite here, who also acts as stage-manager, is an admirable Squire Edenbridge. The remaining characters are all satisfactorily rendered. The scenery and effects are quite adequate.

BOROUGH THEATRE, STRATFORD.

On Monday, Oct. 29, the Musical Play,
entitled
"LADY MADCAP."

The second visit to Stratford of Lady Madcap, this time under the régime of Mr. George Dance, is proving a very popular engagement this week. Miss Vera Vere, who is best remembered for her comical impersonation of Fi Fi in The Chinese Honeymoon, is now seen in such a contrasted rôle as that of Lady Betty, and her success is very gratifying to her many admirers. She depicts the roguish "madcap" with all the necessary verve and vivacity, and sings and dances most pleasingly. Mr. H. V. Surrey makes a decided hit as Oroya Brown, his quaint sayings and doings always compelling laughter. Mr. Alex Chentrens makes a fluent and polished Count de St. Hubert, and his fine vocalism wins much applause. Mr. Percival Knight quickly wins his way into favour as the nimble Bill Stratford, and Mr. Oliver Round plays with a dry and incisive humour in his former part of Posh Jenkins. The peppery Colonel Layton is appropriately played by Mr. R. S. Comber; Mr. Frederick C. Leister is well placed as Major Blatherswaite; Mr. Douglas Phillips is a painstaking Captain Harrington; Mr. Rupert Stutfield fulfils all requirements as Lieut. Somerset; and Lord Framlingham has an excellent exponent in Mr. Martyn Roland. The irrepressible Corporal Ham is divertingly played by Mr. Tommy Nellson, who extracts unlimited mirth from the part. Miss Peggy Primrose makes a bright and entertaining Susan; Gwennie Holden is daintily impersonated by Miss Maisie North; and Miss Florence Raymaur is entirely successful as Mrs. Layton. The concerted music is admirably rendered by the large and well-trained chorus, under the able direction of Mr. Ernest Hartmann; and Mr. Dance's business-manager is Mr. Arthur Davis.

MISS GABRIELLE RAY was not, it appears, originally brought out by Mr. J. Bannister Howard, but sustained her first important rôle with Mr. G. Brydon-Phillips at Mr. Moufet's Richmond Theatre in 1894-5, performing Cupid in Victor Stevens' pantomime Little Red Riding Hood. Prior to this, Miss Ray was in Mr. Paul Valentine's Blackpool ballet, when Mr. Brydon-Phillips saw and engaged her.

THE DRAMA IN BERLIN.

"DER LIEBESKONIG,"

Kurier ..... HERR CONRADI
Magd ..... FRAULEIN FLATAU
Hellebardier ..... HERR SCHOLZ

BERLIN, THURSDAY, Oct. 25.—A most indulgent audience received the play with every appearance of cordiality, even going so far as to call the author, who is young enough to give promise of better work. Der Liebeskönig is written in blank verse of good quality, but it is rhetorical and declamatory rather than dramatic; the characters talk "tall" without saying much that is worth hearing. The background of the play is historic—apart from a few inaccuracies—but the greater part of it is the result of a fine phantasy. The scene is laid in Baden, in Switzerland—a particularly naughty little resort in the Middle Ages, in which period the action passes. Thither comes King Vladimir of Poland, disguising his plain features under the mask of Venus, and followed by the members of his Court in the costume of fauns and wood-nymphs. The King is an effeminate youth, whose one desire in life it is to solve the riddle, Woman. He has been all but betrothed to the Emperor's daughter Isabella, but she heartlessly casts him off, and weds a handsome Italian prince. The King is captivated in turn by one of the gay fräuleins who frequent the spa, one Marianne, finally making her his Queen, and entering Warsaw with her in state. Vladimir, in the hands of a worthless woman, becomes even weaker than before. His subjects, indignant at the follies of Marianne, rise in revolt, and demand that she be put to death. Vladimir, feeling he has not yet solved the riddle of this woman at any rate, and discovering she has never cared for him, yields to the people's wishes after a struggle with himself, and, in a very realistic scene, condemns her to death. Isabella, in the meantime, is followed by Nemesis, her handsome husband having been slain by Ritter Kunhard the Terrible, because he insulted the King. The piece, whose purport it is difficult to see, would have been less well received had the acting and mounting been less admirable than was the case. Frau Eysoldt made the most of the rôle of Marianne; but it was a poor part for an artist of her great talent. That Herr Reinhardt staged the play in masterly style goes without saying, but I do not fancy the game was quite worth the candle in this case.

BERLIN, THURSDAY, Nov. 1.—The opening of the New Schauspielhaus last week was an event of much importance. Shakespeare's Tempest was selected for the opening play, and it is holding the boards nightly. It was remarkably well acted and staged, Herr Adolf Klein as Prospero, Herr Grube as Caliban, and Fräulein Maren in the rôle of Miranda being especially commendable. The Ariel of Fräulein Gasny was not satisfactory in all points. The musical setting by Herr Humperdinck is pretty and appropriate, and the Elfin dances were charmingly executed by the Duncan dancing school. A large audience testified to its appreciation by loud applause and calls for the manager. The second performance in connection with the cycle of Spanish plays at the Neues Theatre takes place at the end of the present week. This time it is a drama entitled Der Grossvater (el abuelo), and Herr Schildkraut—one of the first actors of the Deutsches Company—will take the leading rôle.

SIGNORA DUSE gives eight performances during the early part of November at the New Royal Opera (Krolls). Her season opens with Hedda Gabler, and other plays announced are La Locandiera, Heimat, and Rosmersholm.

MME. AINO ACKTE, of the Grand Opera, Paris, has been studying the rôle of Salome in German under the supervision of Dr. Strauss himself. A day or two ago Mme. Ackté left for Dresden, where she will sing at the Court Opera. Salome, by the way, is to be produced definitely at our own Royal Opera towards the end of November, the composer conducting.

"KLEIN DORRIT," Schönthan's travesty of Charles Dickens's work, is still drawing at the Royal Schauspielhaus. The piece was acted, too, at the New Palace, in the private Imperial theatre, on the occasion of the Kaiserin's birthday last week.

CASTLE THEATRE, RICHMOND.

On Thursday, Nov. 1, 1906,
the Comedy, entitled
"THE NIGHT OF THE PARTY."

Ubiquitous Mr. J. Bannister Howard is keeping his word: to present "good plays" has been his motto, and he has lived up to his promise. This week The Night of the Party is the attraction, and very admirably it is interpreted. Indeed, we are inclined to doubt if the comedy has ever met with a more intelligent rendering than it receives at the hands of this capable company. Mr. Sebastian Smith makes a decided hit as Mr. Crosbie; Lady Hampshire has a capable and pretty exponent in Miss Evelyn Howard; Mr. Aidan Lovett is capital as Sir Charles Hampshire; and Mr. Frank H. Denton as Frayne is exceptionally good. Delightfully droll and deliciously comic is Mr. Ed. Sawer as the Alderman. Miss Lena Graham does exceptionally well as Mrs. Young; Miss Stanley Ronalde plays Gipsy Vandelier with much skill; excellent in every respect is Miss Marion Lewis as Nannie Portland; Baby Hastings is capably played by Miss Gertrude Manners; good work in a minor degree is done by Mr. Douglas Munro as Mr. Flambert, Mr. Stanley Arthur as Mr. Roundle, and Mr. Chas. Wilson as Horace Clonge. The comedy is mounted with scrupulous care, and Mr. Arthur Howard has charge of the front of the house.

MESSRS. H. LAZARUS AND SON, of 21, Great Eastern-street, E.C., who have been among the foremost in the revolution in theatre seating, are issuing an elaborate catalogue of up-to-date furnishing in which the latest designs of patent automatic tip-up chairs are to be found. Luxurious and elegant seating, besides being fully appreciated by patrons, adds considerably to the adornment of the auditorium, and as Messrs. Lazarus are experts of over thirty years' experience, the production of the most comfortable tip-up chairs and other seating at the cheapest price possible is secured. The tip-up chairs of the well-known firm can be seen in a very large proportion of theatres, &c., throughout the United Kingdom, also on the Continent, and South Africa, and everywhere the utmost satisfaction has been given. The success of their patent tip-up automatic chairs, which are of but recent invention, is proved by the fact of their having been adopted in several of the principal theatres in London and the provinces, while a patent for these chairs has been granted by the United States of America. Messrs. Lazarus have in hand the contract to supply their patent tip-up chairs to the orchestra stalls, stalls, and dress circle of Mr. Robert Arthur's His Majesty's Theatre, Aberdeen.

THEATRICAL GOSSIP.

Sir Charles Wyndham will take the chair at the sixteenth annual dinner of the Actors' Benevolent Fund, which will be held in the Whitehall Rooms of the Hotel Metropole on Wednesday, Dec. 5. A brilliant gathering of friends of the theatrical profession is assured, and it is hoped that a new record in the way of subscriptions may be achieved

Mr. Frederick Harrison is again the recipient of a distinguished mark of Royal honour, having been commanded by the King to give a performance of The Man from Blankley's at Sandringham on Friday, Nov. 9, the occasion of His Majesty's birthday. The Haymarket Theatre will therefore be closed on that evening, as the full Haymarket cast, including Mr. Charles Hawtrey, Mr. Henry Kemble, Miss Fanny Brough, and Mr. Weedon Grossmith will be associated in the momentous performance.

Miss Cordelia Grossmith, daughter of Mr. George Grossmith, was married on Saturday at St. Marylebone Parish Church to Mr. George Frederick Turner, son of Mr. H. J. Turner, of Phillimore-gardens. The veteran entertainer gave his daughter away, and the ceremony was performer by Canon Barker. The bride was attired in a gown of soft white crêpe de chine and old lace, and her train was carried by two smart pages dressed in white cloth suits with pale green shoes and stockings, while four bridesmaids, wearing white chiffon and lace dresses and large white and green velvet hats, added to the prettiness of the group. Among those who attended the reception, held at 55, Russell-square, were Lady Wyndham, Mrs. George Alexander, Herr Wilhelm Ganz, and Sir George and Lady Hanson. The happy couple afterwards departed for the Continent, followed by the heartiest wishes of all.
